President John L. Lewis of the miners' union forced the mine owners into their present attempted bold front, thru his letter to President Coolidge threatening the walkout of the soft coal miners. It is said that Coolidge is still considering the letter from the mine workers' president; that he will have a reply to make to it. It is not expected that this reply will be conciliatory in the least.

As usual Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, is again trying to trick the anthracite strikers into a position where they will accept a compromise to the liking of the coal profiteers.

• • • •

Thus the anthracite strike is developing into a class battle of major importance. The holiday atmosphere that was claimed for it, in early September, is completely dissipated as the grim clash between the mine workers and mine owners rushes toward its full implications. The so-called "suspension" becomes a strike of the first magnitude.

In this instance, it is well to remember that it was the miner militants, some of whom were sent to jail by the judicial stool pigeons of the coal interests, who urged the steps that must inevitably be taken in the strike, if it is to become effective, the calling out of the thousands of maintenance men still at work, and the spread of the struggle to the soft coal fields. As the strike continues, even the reactionary officials of the miners' union, who join the bosses in their red-baiting campaigns against the progessives, will be forced to espouse at least some of the demands that have been made by the militants since the beginning of the struggle.

• • • •

Thus the anthracite strike becomes more and more the affair of the rank and file and less the affair of the officials, who have permitted no meetings of strikers and given them practically no opportunity to voice their views on policies to be followed. It will also become more the affair of the whole American labor movement. The Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor passed resolutions of sympathy. That was almost two months ago. Sympathy will not help the anthracite strikers very much. What they need is the co-operation, in every possible way, of all American labor, in order to win the present conflict, no matter what its proportions may become, and then press on to greater triumphs.

Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce Angered by Expose of Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 29—The Atlantic City chamber of commerce is filing a libel suit for $2,000,000 in the New York supreme court against the MacFadden Publications, Inc., for a series of articles in the New York Evening Graphic which exposed the beauty pageant held in Atlantic City as an advertising stunt and stated that the pageant had been fixed and the winners had been decided upon long before the pageant had opened.

JUDGE SULLIVAN HOLDS PEACEFUL PICKETING LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, Chicago's labor-hating injunction judge in a decision against the striking retail clerks who have been picketing the Ossey Brothers' department store, cor. Halsted and Maxwell Sts., has dealt a body blow to the legislation enacted by the state legislature which allowed strikers to peacefully picket struck establishment without being molested by the courts.

In his decision sentencing eight pickets from 10 to 30 days in jail and assessing fines of from $50 to $200 on the strikers, he declared that there was no such things as peaceful picketing and that any legislation which permitted strikers to picket an establishment was an interference with the rights of the owners of that property.

In holding the new law unconstitutional, Sullivan declared "Picketing has been held unlawful in this state, on authority of state and national constitutions. The state act passed last summer legalizes peaceful picketing, but that is a contradictory phrase. Evidence in this case shows an assault with a razor, intimidation, and above all the depriving of owners of property rights by imperilling their invested capital by unlawful means."

Boss Slashes Picket.

The judge forgot to mention that it was not the union pickets but one of the Ossey brothers who used the razor on a union business agent.

In his usual flamboyant style when he wishes to show his masters that he is awake to their interests he declared, "To say to one class that its property may be taken from it or destroyed by another class without compensation or process, is not liberty, it is inviting the tyranny of the mob."

Mussolini Says He's the State

not be removed within the confines of parliamentary legality. While the chamber of deputies still possesses the theoretical power to pass a vote of non-confidence in the premier, whereupon the king can call for his resignation, the possibility of a vote of non-confidence is overcome by the device of passing a rule making it impossible for the chamber to vote on the order of the day without permission of the premier. Hence his refusal to permit a vote to take place renders void the former prerogative of the chamber to vote against him.

In Desperate Straits.

The government of blood and terror is in desperate straits because the overwhelming majority of the population literally despises Mussolini and his blackshirt bandits. To distract attention from his ferocious internal suppression he is now indulging in threats against surrounding nations, particularly the Balkans, hoping to provoke a war with some small nation as a pretext of further excesses against the home population.

The Matteotti Affair.

It is known to everyone in Italy that the alleged attempt on the life of Mussolini was a plain fraud, a swindle to distract the attention of the masses from the liberation of the agents of the bandit chief who murdered Matteotti, the socialist deputy who had in his possession documents proving Mussolini a thief and pillager of the national treasury. On the day before the Matteotti murderers were freed, the fraudulent attempt on the life of Mussolini was staged as an excuse to suppress all newspapers that would likely carry news regarding the shameful sanction of the notorious murder.

Despised Everywhere.

Added to this nation-wide execration of Mussolini is the contempt in which he is held in all parts of the world. Even the yellow laborities of Great Britain announce that they will rally the masses against a visit of Mussolini to that country to sign the Locarno pacts. The railway workers have stated that they will refuse to operate a train carrying the vile carcass of this monster assassin of the working class of his own country. As a result of the attitude of British labor the brigand chief dare not attempt the journey to Britain, so he will send one of his mercenaries to represent Italy.

The new outbreak of frightfulness is directly connected with the support Mussolini is receiving from the thieving, rapacious House of Morgan.

Working class Italy is awaiting the day when the Communists can obtain sufficient power to start a civil war against the despicable Mussolini and scourge him and his criminal bands from the face of the earth.

BRIAND AGAIN ORGANIZES A FRENCH CABINET

Eight Times Premier of France

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, Nov. 29.—Aristide Briand, eight times premier of France, has finally succeeded in creating a cabinet out of the wreckage of the Painleve cabinet that a week ago fell for the second time within a month.

Briand will retain his post of foreign minister while acting as premier. The new cabinet is simply a reshuffling of the old one with a slight swing to the right. Former Premier Georges Leygues is the only member added to the cabinet and is from the right. Painleve is to be minister of war, to continue his bloody assault against Syria, which is one of the fundamental necessities of French policy.

Herriot Falls.

It is generally conceded that Briand maneuvered the past week so that he could gain a majority in the chamber and that his suggestion that the president call in Paul Doumer, whom he knew could not organize a government, would give him time to realign the forces in the chamber. Not being prepared to assume the task when Doumer failed it is known that Briand induced President Doumergue to call in Eduard Herriot, former premier and head of the left bloc, knowing that Herriot would also fail. These two failures and the disorganized condition of the government since a week ago Friday gave Briand a chance to break the left bloc, to isolate the Herriot party and obtain a majority.

In this art of political trickery Briand is a past master, but not even his astute manipulation of parties within the chamber can assure a tranquil regime. The economic and financial condition of the country will doom his cabinet to a short and hectic life. Communists are convinced that the present alignment in the chamber is not permanent and that conditions will force the collapse of the government and soon force a general demand for new elections.

Cincinnati Unions to Find Capitalist Laws Don't Work for Labor

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CINCINNATI—(FP)—"Under proper administration justice will be promoted by holding that labor unions can both sue as a union and be sued", rules judge Robert S. Marx of the Cincinnati superior court. "The unions maintain offices, collect dues and assessments, have large strike funds and use a seal in official correspondence."

The ruling forces Motion Picture Operators Local 165 and Bakers Local 213 to proceed with their defense in court. The movie union is sued for $10,000 by George Kiser who found it difficult to find a job at his trade in Cincinnati after he got in wrong with the Pittsburgh local. The bakers are sued for $4,000 by an openshop master baker who objects to union pickets outside his shop.

not exceeding $14 a year, and including neither fines nor assessments."

Favors Speed-Up System.

Not only is this a thin disguise for the open shop, but the governor of Pennsylvania, who has attained by some strange way the name of a "liberal," proposes that the board find some way of "increasing efficiency"—in other words, to speed up the miners more than at present. His plan is said to have been worked out by him and the Scranton chamber of commerce.

KU KLUX KLAN SEEKS TO RULE DRAMATIC ART

American Theater Group Started

By A Worker Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A dinner party, supposed to be private, was given at 19 W. 8th Street, Sunday evening to 85 selected hundred per cent Americans gathered to found the American Theatre Association in opposition to the Jewish producers who control the Broadway plays.

After dinner, the tables were removed to one side and the chairs placed in a circle around the speaker, a ku kluxer, who claims to have been a big factor in the theatrical world for the thirty years.

Jewish Producers Attacked.

In his speech, he attacked the present day producers, making it plain that the theatres are in the hands of Jewish producers who put out nothing but soiled plays, unfit for the American babbittry. He stressed the need of the new organization, which will be entirely American in its composition and spirit, namely the American Theatre Association.

The aim of this association is to present to the American working class plays that will be approved and certified by their masters. The membership of the organization is to be exclusively protestant and gentile. The first step of this organization is to secure 300 zealots as members, with an initiation fee of $15, which will supply enough money to call a convention where the foundations and the by-laws of the association will be decided upon.

Moscow Art, A Novelty!

The speaker attacked, besides the well known producers, also the Guild Theatre Association, which he branded as un-American and controlled by central and south Latin interests. It produces offensive, sophisticated drama, he asserted. The speaker could not attack the Moscow Art Theatre group as producing soiled and sophisticated drama, but said that the Moscow Art Theatre was a dazzling, intellectual novelty for Americans.

The speaker did not forget to impress upon the gathering that the new association will be a paying proposition from a business point of view, that the organization will produce unsoiled plays that will not be too intellectual nor revolutionary, but strictly conservative. He stressed the point that the clean, unsoiled American plays are better money makers than the dazzling, sensational, offensive and sophisticated plays.

How About Realism.

By clean and unspoiled plays, the speaker may have had in mind the beautiful dramatic effects of the high ku kluxer in Indiana who raped and murdered Madge Oberholtzer in such an artistic manner. He held up Golden as the model producer of ideal American plays and that his productions such as Treasure Island are the best sellers to the American public. He also announced that Jenkins, the well known banker, will be secretary treasurer of the American Theatre Association.

Mellon Tells Wary Bankers to Be More Wary of "Deflation"

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Warning of dangers in the stock-gambling madness which American business has been pursuing in recent months has been voiced by A. C. Miller, of the federal reserve board. The press of the country, which eagerly prints optimistic predictions as to the continuance of prosperity, has paid scant attention to this significant message. Correspondents of European papers, however, have taken note of it. They believe the Coolidge administration has begun to see the economic skies clouding.

This warning was carried from Sec. Mellon in Washington to the money-lending center in Boston rather than to the speculative center in New York. Mellon, through Miller, was not warning the reckless but the cautious. He was hinting that an industrial deflation might be necessary and the money lenders should not let themselves be caught unprepared. The agricultural deflation of 1920-22 did catch many of the land mortgage companies so that they are still holding a great acreage of abandoned farms in the northwest. If factories are over-expanded and must be deflated, Mellon would not like the bankers to be found holding the sack.

"Democracy" Found No Job for "Hero," So He Shuffles Off

SAN FRANCISCO—(FP)—"I am sick and unable to find employment and have decided to end my misery. The state compensation insurance should take care of my funeral as they discharged me when I was disabled."

Leaving this note to the coroner, A. T. Matthews, a world war hero, took poison and died.

California I. W. W. Prisoners in "Hole" on Bread and Water

SAN QUENTIN, Cal. — (FP) — Twelve of the 18 I. W. W. prisoners in solitary on bread and water are on a hunger strike. An underground letter states it is a protest against the Anita Whitney decision. The 18 men are in solitary and two are in the dungeon because of unfairness shown in overworking two of their fellow criminal syndicalism prisoners.

"The persecution of Miss Whitney is part of the national movement of intolerance directed particularly against economic evolution and freedom for laborers," said Robert Minor, radical artist, in San Francisco speaking for the Whitney defense drive.

MASS. GOVERNOR COPIES CALVIN; FORBIDS UNION

Bay State Governor a Strike Breaker

BOSTON—(FP)—Essaying the role of Calvin Coolidge, who fought the policemen's strike of Boston, the present governor, Alvin T. Fuller, comes out with a denunciation of the Commonwealth Service Assn., the new organization of Bay state employes that is enrolling many members.

Here is the G. O. P. governor's antiunion declaration:

"No person who would, through joint action, attempt to compel the state to increase his or her salary need expect any special consideration of a favorable nature from me. I welcome the opportunity of saying this before some young people find themselves belonging to an organization that is in the control of some radicals whose action may get the membership into trouble."

George B. Willard, first deputy state treasurer of Massachusetts, and president of the eastern Massachusetts unit of the employe organization, answers Fuller by announcing his candidacy for the state presidency, an office not yet filled. Frank A. Goodwin, state registrar of motor vehicles, and vice president of the eastern unit calls the Fuller blast a "threat which may have the opposite effect of that intended by his excellency."

These and other officials of the new union are not radicals and their organization is not affiliated with the A. F. of L. or any outside labor movement. But economic conditions are forcing a defensive movement, though what kind of action the association will take is problematic. Wages have not kept pace with the cost of living.

Fuller's antilabor record goes back to wartime when as an executive of the Packard Car Co. he broke a strike among their Massachusetts employes. Earlier this year, when the Boston elevated system employes voted for a strike he issued what amounted to a threat of strikebreaking. But the issue never came to a head for the stiff front of the men forced the company trustees to arbitrate.

Debate on Necessity of Family Barred by a Scandalized Prof

BERKELEY, Cal.—(FP)—The annual debate between women's teams of the University of California and Stanford is called off because of objection by President Campbell of U. C. to the subject, Resolved, that the family is unnecessary to civilization. He says the discussion of the desirability of the family and of marriage is indelicate and inappropriate to a college debate. The student body has issued a protest resolution, stating that the cancellation immediately before the first debate was a violation of academic freedom of speech.

A Great Discovery! Capitalist Govt. Is Against the Unions

WASHINGTON — (FP) — Incompetence, ignorance, prejudice and unfair discrimination were charged against various local navy yard wage boards by spokesmen of the organized metal trades in the yards at the opening hearing before the general wage board of review at the navy department in Washington, on Nov. 17. The new wage scale is to be determined by the general board for application in January.

Calles Surrenders National Railways to Private Owners

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Texts received by the Mexican news bureau in Washington show that the Calles labor government has signed an agreement with its creditors, surrendering its 51% ownership in the Mexican national railways, and will hand them over to private operation on January 1, 1926. The creditors give up their mortgage of $250,000,000, and the government loses control of management.

RUSSIA IMPORTS 40 PER CENT OF NEEDS FROM U. S.

Soviets Buy Machines and Cotton Goods

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 29.—A statistical report of the foreign trade of the Soviet Union for the Soviet fiscal year ending Sept. 30, received by the Russian Information Bureau from the commissariat for foreign trade, shows that during the last quarter of the fiscal year 40% of all Soviet imports came from the United States, which led all countries on the import list for the year. Before the war imports from America formed only 6% of the total. The United States forged ahead of Germany at the beginning of the year and outstripped England in the spring.

The Soviet Union's total foreign trade turnover for the fiscal year broke all post-war records. The total turnover, for the European frontiers, was $587,470,000. With the Asiatic frontiers added, the total turnover would be about $644,120,000, as compared with $484,910,000 in 1923-4, and $1,350,000,000 before the war. The turnover thus increased 33% over the previous year and stands at nearly 50% of the pre-war value. Imports are limited by the government to maintain the currency at gold parity.

Imports for the year were $316,400,000 and exports $261,000,000, giving an adverse balance of $55,400,000, as compared with a favorable balance of $65,000,000 in 1923-4. The adverse balance is attributed to the poor harvest of 1924 and the resultant cessation of grain exports, which ordinarily make up 45% of the export list.

September was the largest month for Russian trade since 1917, with a turnover of $74,880,000 in which exceeded exports by $3,700,000. The imports included cotton worth $9,680,000, cotton goods worth $3,650,000, tractors worth $1,500,000 and other agricultural machinery worth $1,450,000. All the cotton and the tractors came from the United States. The exports included grain worth $13,335,000.

Soviet Union Spends 75,000,000 Marks in Buying German Goods

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Nov. 22—The Union of Soviet Republics has used up 75,000,000 of the 100,000,000 marks of the German credit extended her in buying agricultural machinery, pig iron, tons of paper, leather and pharmaceuticals.

The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has purchased 40,000 tons of pig iron, 10,000 tons of paper, large quantities of leather, chemicals, pharmateutical products and agricultural machinery.

The Soviet trade commission which has placed these orders in Germany is laying plans for the purchase of goods to exceed by many times the amount of credit that was extended her. The union needs about 3,000,000,000 rubles ($1,500,000) worth of products and Germany will get a goodly share of this trade since she was one of the first to enter into a commercial treaty with the union.

Melrose Park Russian Workers Benefit Society Aids Soviet Orphans

The Russian Auxiliary Society of Melrose Park, Ill., has just past the thirteenth year of its existence. During this period the society has done much to relieve the workers of Melrose Park, as well as in other cities, and even in Soviet Russia. It has been giving aid, when requested, to striking workers, during the famine in Russia it collected two trucks of clothing and $322.73, which were shipped to Russia thru the Friends of Soviet Russia. Later on the society collected $253 for the Russian homeless children. The money was sent to Nadejda Krupskaya-Lenin and acknowledgement received from her, together with pictures of the children who were benefited by this money.

The society has a good library from which books are circulated among members as well as non-members. The society pays $7 per week benefit and $100 death benefit.

The society is a progressive organization and does what it can for the working class in general.

Patternmakers Demand Freedom for Chinese

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Nov. 25. (FP)—The fight for freedom against wage slavery and domination by foreign powers in China is given the support of the Detroit Patternmakers' association in resolutions adopted by the unionists.

The industrial conditions in China "are bound to reflect and react to the bitter detriment of the people of other nations, particularly the workers of the world, leading to their further industrial enslavement" the patternmakers assert.

Leather Workers Win Union Conditions in Nine Chicago Shops

Nine Chicago shops manufacturing leather pocketbooks and allied products have been put under union conditions in the last 3 months by Local 20, United Leather Workers International Union. The 44-hour week is one of the conditions. The strike against the Chicago Leather Products Co. remains in force for refusal to grant the 44-hour week. Bookbinders Local 8 cooperates by keeping out union bookbinders from the Leather Products plant while the strike is on. As most skilled binders are in the union this is a serious blow to the company.

FINN WORKERS BACK ETEENPAIN AGAINST WHITES

Amorous Pastor Attacks Radical Daily

BY A. HALONEN.

An interesting libel suit was fought in the United States district court in Boston. Rev. John E. Lillback, a Finnish priest, whose name has for many years been connected with many strange rumors, brought a libel suit against the Finnish radical daily Eteenpain of Worcester, Mass., for publishing an article, which he alleged was improper, effecting his income. To justify his action, he also explained, that after the publication of the article, the membership of his Finnish congregation in Brooklyn had decreased almost to nothing.

Expose Love-Making.

The said article dealt with the pastor's love-making and the hypocrisy of the priest and religion in general. For this, Pastor Lillback demanded $50,000 from the Finnish radical newspaper and brought the suit against it.

The case was very interesting and even the English newspapers of Boston followed the proceedings very closely. The case was opened Oct. 13 and on Oct. 27, the jury gave its decision. The defendant paper was condemned to pay $15,000 to Rev. Lillback. The sentence was surprising and the defendant paper will appeal, if a new trial is denied.

White Versus Red.

The suit brought against the Eteenpain was not only a libel suit, for political matters were also brought up. After an unsuccessful revolution in Finland, 1918, there has been a deep feud between so-called red and white among the Finnish people. The "victorious" whites have used all means to suppress the radical movement, that is so strong among the Finnish in America. The Lillback libel suit was one of the weapons used against the radicals. The attorney for Rev. Lillback, Alfred Anderson, who is also the consul of the Finnish white government, tried to show, that the Finnish daily receives money from Soviet Russia and tried to mix Communism, socialism and al kind of -vism and -ism in the case. He wanted to give the jury the impression, that the defendant must be annihilated.

The defendant tried to prove to the court, that the article on which the libel suit was based contained nothing but the truth. The defendant had witnesses, who testified that Rev. Lillback had made love to them under the guise of religious ceremony. In addition to this, many affidavits were read to prove that the newspaper in its article had told nothing but the truth.

Rev. Lillback called for his witnesses three priests and a "professor", who is not a college professor; his original profession being that of a shoemaker. One of the witnesses testified, that owing to the published article Pastor Lillback's hair had grown old. However the defendant proved, that Lillback has been wearing a wig for twenty years. (!) With the aid of these witnesses and his consul-attorney, Lillback won the suit.

Workers Support Eteenpain.

The supporters of the courageous Finnish daily have answered this attack of their enemy by subscribing thousands of dollars to the defense fund of the paper. Appeals have been sent and meetings have been arranged for support of the paper. The answer has been very enthusiastic.

The Finnish workers will show to the blackcoated enemy and the Finnish whites, that their "victory" will turn to a defeat.

National Federation of Federal Employes Grows; Makes Demands

WASHINGTON—(FP)—More than 1,600 new members have been recruited by the Natl. Federation of Federal employes since their recent convention held in Boston. Of this number, 537 were secured in the internal revenue bureau. Seventy locals report progress in the expansion campaign.

This campaign has been started for the struggle in congress this winter to secure improvements in wages, rules and conditions of federal employment. One day rest in seven, extra pay for night work and overtime, Saturday half-holiday the year around, annual leave and sick leave, a court of appeals for grievances, increase in the retirement annuities and compensation rates for injured employes are features of the demands.

JEWISH Y. M. C. A. WANTS $240,000 AS OPIATE FUND

To Teach Dead Learning to Workers

By DON LEVINE.
(Worker Correspondent)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 29.—Altho this city of 175,00 population has only 1,500 Jewish families, it is now the scene of a Jewish campaign for $240,000. This money is to be used to erect a modern home for the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Talmud Torah.

The Y. M. H. A. differs from the Y. M. C. A. only in that one is Jewish and the other is not. The Talmud Torah is a free religious school where ancient rabbis are poisoning the minds of working-class children, as most of them are, with religious ceremonies and superstitions and the dead Hebrew language.

Knowing the value of such organizations for keeping workers mentally enslaved, the rich Jews are donating freely. They have plenty of cold cash exploited rfom their employes, either in factories or in their stores and pawn shops. The owner of the Springfield Public Market gave $10,000.

Every Jewish resident has been put down for a certain amount. Thus, small business men are forced to give for fear of losing favor with wholesalers and bankers, and workers, for fear of losing their jobs.

Class-conscious workers of Jewish origin, however, have their own organizations like the Young Workers League and the Workmen's Circle, so that they will refuse the campaigners and give their utmost for their own working-class development.

Striking Wire Men on Coast Line R. R. Paralyzing Traffic

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Members of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers are conducting so effective a strike on the Atlantic Coast line that the company is advertising for strikebreakers to save its traffic.

The Washington Daily News (Scripps) publishes this advertisement:

> Telegraph Operators—Wanted at once for Florida railroad service, experienced telegraph operators. Good pay, transportation furnished. Permanent if qualified. Apply Room 1037, Raleigh Hotel, Washington, or by wire, at once.

Reports at railroad labor headquarters in Washington show that the company is suffering because qualified telegraphers have not responded to its appeals. Movement of trains has become highly dangerous since the experienced men have taken their stand for an adequate wage.

Manufacturers' Assn. Mobilizes Business to Break Mine Union

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(FP)—J. E. Edgerton, president of the Natl. Assn. of Manufacturers, who has addressed to President Coolidge an appeal that Coolidge help the non-union coal operators to break the United Mine Workers, is moving on the capital. He is to appear as one of the chief directors of the conference of business leaders, self-styled, to gather Dec. 10 to "challenge the right of the government to engage in business activities."

Other signers of the call for this meeting, which is expected to bring spokesmen of 300 trade associations and other big business organizations together, include Homer L. Ferguson, former president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; R. C. Marshall, Jr., general manager of the Associated General Contractors of America, and F. Highland Burns, president of the Maryland Casualty Co. of Baltimore.

Archbishop Hanna Opposes Jailing of Anita Whitney

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 29—Archbishop Hanna is one of many influential persons in this state to raise his voice against the imprisonment of Anita Whitney, who was sentenced to serve from one to fourteen years in San Quentin on a charge of having violated the criminal syndicalism law of California.

Two members of the jury which convicted Anita Whitney have petitioned the government to pardon her.

Archbishop Hanna, in a radiogram from the ship on which he is crossing the Atlantic said he was convinced Miss Whitney was not guilty of the charges preferred against her and that no interest could be served by her imprisonment.

RAIL PROFITS INCREASE, BUT WAGES DO NOT

Tremendous Increase Since 1920

By LELAND OLDS.

It's time for the railroad unions to demand as a unit that the U. S. rail labor board reconsider the entire wage structure of the industry to establish decent American standards, in view of 9-month railroad profits totaling $797,347,520, a gain of $117,902,403 or 17.3% over the same period in 1924.

The suggested wage demand would be a legitimate response to the invitation contained in the board's 1922 decision when it asked the employes to "bear and forebear" until the railroads were again on their feet. With the largest profits of any year in their history assured, no one can deny that the roads have regained their equilibrium.

The probable total of railroad profits for 1925, estimated on the basis of the 9-month figure, is $1,106,000,000, more than $60,000,000 above the previous peak in 1916. The year's return on the excessive valuation set by the interstate commerce commission will be about 5½% while a full 5% will be earned on the entire investment value in the road and equipment claimed by the carriers themselves.

The net profits of the last 6 years, including the estimate for 1935, are:

1920	17,226,902
1922	760,187,319
1923	961,955,457
1924	973,870,978
1925	1,106,000,000

Of special importance to labor is the steady climb in railroad profits since 1920, because the labor board made this prerequisite to "increased consideration of all the intricate details incident to scientific adjustment of a living and saving wage."

The $134,584,916 September profit shows that the steady gain continues. It is the largest total ever secured by the railroads in any month in their history, comparing with the previous high point of $127,000,000 in October, 1924. It is equivalent to an annual return of 6¼% on the swollen valuation of the entire railroad system. October earnings, early figures indicate, will exceed this, probably reaching $142,000,000.

The railroad unions have the facts to demand that the labor board make good.

German Police Prepare to Defend Capitalists Against Labor's Revolt

BERLIN, Nov. 29—Recently, the inhabitants of the town of Gotha in Thuringia were suddenly awakened from their sleep by shooting, marching troops, loud shouts, etc. This time the people responsible for the noise were not fascists, but the republic's German police force, which was practicing street battles against workers. The proletarians in uniform are thus trained in fratricide and the bourgeoisie in its constant fear of the revolution, assures itself like this that its white terror will be successful.

Such happenings as that in Gotha prove that the time of white terror in Germany—the years 1919, 1921 and 1923 are not yet ended.

New York Left Wing Arranges Reception for Christmas Night

Plans have been made for a big affair. The militants are urged to make note of the date and to make their plans accordingly.

PUBLICITY TO BREAK STRIKE COSTS MILLIONS

Mythical "Public" Is Depicted as Goat

By AUGUST VALENTINE.
(Worker Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 29.—Even though "the pinch of strike" is driving the coal dealers to bankruptcy, as claimed by their "expert propagandizers," they still have thousands and thousands of dollars to throw away on advertising to weaken the moral of the striking miners, that have been on strike for nearly three months now.

In the city of Philadelphia we find one, J. E. Kunkel that has the brass enough to have placards placed in the street cars picturing the coal miner laying down the pick and hurling chunks of coal at the "anthracite consuming public."

This "public" is pictured in the persons of a child, woman and a man. In between the miner and the socalled public is an operator trying "to bat" the coal, in which he failed. His club is labelled "arbitration." The writing below the cartoon reads something like this:

"The consumer who has to buy the coal and the dealer who has to make a living selling it—both get hurt." Then in bolder type: "Contributed in the interest of the truth by J. E. Kunkel."

The Kunkel heart has so much sympathy that it sprung another leak, which a week later led him to come out with some more poison for "the public." The headline of this cartoon is headed: "Buton! Button! Who gets the button?"

The cartoon below shows the operator and the miner quarreling. The operator is saying, "let's arbitrate," the miner says, "I don't want arbitration." While the operator and the miner are raising cain, the coal strike which is pictured in a form of a goat, is going after the "public" and the coal dealer.

Again, this cartoon is "contributed in the interest of the truth."

BOSTON TO HOLD DAILY WORKER RESCUE PARTIES

All Party Units Get Behind Drive

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Boston, Nov. 29.—The Emergency DAILY WORKER Rescue Committee in Boston is busy. At its first meeting the committee decided to carry on real agitation in Boston to save the DAILY WORKER, and made the following plans: that every branch in Boston be visited by some member of this committee and urged; 1, to arrange some sort of concert, banquet, revel, party or dance, for the DAILY WORKER; 2, to urge every comrade to subscribe and get new subscriptions; and 3, to stimulate the sale of stamps.

The committee went to work enthusiastically and at its second meeting, the following reports were made. The Boston English Branch arranged a DAILY WORKER Rescue Party for Thanksgiving night, Nov. 26, at the Russian Club, 93 Staniford street, Boston.

Arrange Banquet

The four Russian branches of Local Boston have arranged a joint banquet to be held on Nov. 29 (Sunday) at the Russian Club, 93 Staniford st. They have planned some surprises in the way of entertainment and a good time is assured.

The Boston Lettish branch has planned a party on Saturday, Dec. 19 with Lettish Folk Dances as the big feature. The chorus will also be there strong and no one around Boston needs an introduction to the cold ham and "Kartoffel Salat" the Lettish comrades serve. It's good, so don't miss it.

New Year's Eve Party.

The Roxbury Jewish Branch promises to outdo them all and on New Year's Eve they will dance and sing, at New International Hall, Roxbury, until midnight. At 1 a. m., January 1, 1926, a catered supper will be served to usher in the New Year and to gather in the dollars. It promises to be an all night affair, and their secretary, Morris Lubin, is on the job working for its success.

The Ukrainian and Polish branches reported a joint party for either the first or second Sunday in December More details about this later.

The Scandinavian branch promises the proceeds from two dances held on two successive Saturday nights.

The Armenian branch sent in the proceeds from a banquet.

To Visit Branches

The other branches of Boston will be visited by the committee and it will be insisted on that every branch get behind this very important task and make this drive 100 per cent successful.

Comrades of Boston, remember these dates. Go to all of these affairs and give them your support.

Denver Rescue Party Aids Daily Worker

BY ANNA GAINIS.
(Worker Correspondent)

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 29.—The first rescue party for The DAILY WORKER was given in the form of a banquet by the English branch of the Workers Party. To say it was a success wouldn't express the enthusiasm that prevailed from both the moral and financial standpoint.

Everything for the dinner was donated by members and sympathizers.

The proceeds are $50 which we are forwarding and $50 or more to come.

Wrap your lunch in a copy of the DAILY WORKER and give it (the DAILY WORKER, not the lunch) to your shop-mate.

The How and Why of Party Fractions

By JAY LOVESTONE.

QUESTION 1: What is a party fraction?

Answer: A party fraction is a group of two or more party members belonging to a non-party workers' or poor farmers' organization or functioning for a time in a special body. These members work together as a unit for the general purpose of spreading propaganda and increasing the party's influence and for the specific purpose of carrying out special party policies in the particular organization in question.

Question 2: What are examples of such non-party workers' and poor farmers' organizations?

Answer: Typical workers' and poor farmers' organizations where party fractions should be organized are: The trade unions, co-operatives, educational, benefit and cultural societies, ex-soldiers' organizations, factory councils, unemployment councils, and conferences and conventions of labor and poor farm organizations.

Communists who are members of municipal, county, state or national legislative or administrative councils and assemblies also organize themselves into such party fractions.

Question 3: How do the party fractions function?

Answer: All party fractions get together before the meetings of the organizations in which they function to discuss and consider the various questions that are to come up at the sessions of these organizations. Once a decision is made in a fraction, all the party members in the non-party organization must work and vote together as an absolute unit. Any comrade who violates this procedure is subject to party discipline in accordance with the provisions of the constitution.

Question 4: How are the party fractions organized?

Answer: All party fractions elect their own officers subject to the approval of the leading party committee in the section in which they function. Thus, a district fraction committee functions under the direction of the party district eecutive committee a sub-district fraction committee works under the direction of the particular sub-district committee of the party and so on down the line.

The officers of the various party fractions are responsible to the party fractions and to the respective party committees.

In order to facilitate co-operation and to insure the greatest results in work the party leading committees may send representatives to the various party fractions and may call upon these fractions to send representatives to the sessions of the respective party committees when there is a consideration of questions which concern the party fractions.

Question 5: What is a language fraction?

Answer: A language fraction is a party fraction consisting of those party members who, before reorganization, belonged to one of the former language sections of the party. In a language fraction are found those comrades who are members of a shop or street nucleus, who speak a certain language and who function together as a unit in a newly organized workers' club or in any other already existing workingmen's organization of a particular nationality.

Question 6: What are the functions of language fractions?

Answer: The language fraction is only an auxiliary agency of the party for the purpose of carrying on the party's general and special activities among the workers of a particular nationality. In the language fractions are found only those who pay their dues to the party thru membership in a shop or street nucleus.

No language fraction is allowed to collect dues. With the permission of the Central Executive Committee, language fractions may launch campaigns among the workers of their particular nationality to raise funds for their activities. In order to help the language fractions carry on their activities in their special fields, the Central Executive Committee will provide monthly appropriations on the basis of the dues received.

Question 7: How are the language fractions organized?

Answer: There is no fast and hard rule as to how the language fraction units are to be organized. We should always be guided by the need for the most efficient methods of working in the ranks of the proletariat of a particular nationality.

If the language fractions of a particular nationality are numerous and strong enuf we may have sub-section language fraction committees as well as section language fraction committees to direct the activities of these comrades among the workers of their nationality in the territory under consideration. In cases where there is more than one sub-section language fraction in a special section, then the members of these sub-section language fraction. In cities where there are several sections, the members of the various language fractions meet in January and July to elect language fractions city committees.

District conferences consisting of delegates representing the various languagefractions are to be held annually for the purpose of electing a district language fraction executive committee, subject to the approval of the district executive committee of the party.

If the Central Executive Committee of the party thinks it necessary, it may permit the holding of national conferences of delegates representing the language fractions of a particular nationality. These conferences may elect a national language bureau subject to the approval of the Central Executive Committe of the party. In those cases where no national language fraction conference is held, the Central Executive Committee of the party will appoint a special national language fraction bureau to direct and unify the party's activities among the workers of a particular nationality.

Thus, we see that all the needs for the efficient carrying on of Communist activities among the working masses of a particular nationality are very well taken care of by the above system of language fraction organization. The menace of party decentralization and language federation autonomy is completely removed. In fact, the centralized character of this system of language fraction organization insures far better results than the old federation system evr could achieve.

WORKERS' SCHOOL ANNOUNCES MORE STUDY CLASSES

WorkersCorrespondence Class Meets Dec. 7

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The course in Workers Correspondence is scheduled to begin at the Workers School, Monday, Dec. 7. Other courses offered the same evening are: Rusian language, instructor Alexander Chramoff; elementary English, instructor Ella G. Wolfe; and elementary composition.

Philadelphia Pioneers Meeting Is a Success

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov 29.—Once more have the Philadelphia Pioneers shown their growing influence upon the minds of working class youth, when a great number of working class children responded to their call and came to the protest meeting against "American education week" held under the auspices of the Young Pioneers of Philadelphia.

Complete silence reigned in the hall when Comrade Kritser, age 12, member of the Lenin Pioneer group spoke. In a short talk he showed the misuse of education by the capitalist class. "We are not against education but we are protesting against the misuse of education by the capitalist class. Real education for the children of the working class can only be possible under a working class government." A resolution was unanimously adopted denouncing the board of education for using the schools to dope the working class children and carrying the following demands:

1. Out of the military boy scouts and into the Young Pioneers.
2. Demand recognition of the workers' republic, Soviet Russia.
3. Away with capitalist anti-labor propaganda in the schools; out with religious training to dope children's minds; join the working class struggle for a workers' and farmers' republic.

YOUNG PIONEERS AIM FOR WORK ON NATIONAL SCALE

Also Educational Plan for Training Leaders

By CLARENCE MILLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—The coming district convention of the Young Pioneers of America, District No. 2, is a milestone in the development of our Communist children's work in this country. It marks the beginning of a real centralized organization. In the past our groups did not function as a centralized organization altho they had an organizational basis for doing so. One of the main reasons for this was that this centralizing apparatus (C. C. C. and C. E. C.) was meaningless to the Juniors. They were not drawn into the work on a district or even on a city scale. All of the work for the district and the city was with few exceptions, done by a few of the more active leaders.

Shortcomings in the past.

The basis for our mistakes was the lack of a national Junior policy. There was no plan for systematic work within the groups or cooperation between the different groups. There were no well planned organizational campaigns. There was no educational plan for the Juniors nor for training the leaders. As a result of this unsystematic work when a thing was decided upon it had to be carried thru in a hurry and our organization was not adopted to respond to quick action. The Juniors on the other hand felt more like members of a group that meets every Saturday than as part of the Communist movement. We failed to make the Juniors understand the great significance of the movement and the importanec of their part in it. They therefore did not feel responsibility for the work. The fact that some work was accomplished in our district is due to the hard work of a few active comrades both juniors and leaders.

Ideological Preparation.

Since the plan for reorganization was first formulated and work towards this end commenced, a change for the better was immediately noticeable. The ideological preparation now being carried on in our groups, preliminary to this reorganization on the basis of school nuclei is making our pioneers feel the full responsibility of young Bolsheviks.

Our discussions on reorganization and bolshevization center around the following points:

1. That every Pioneer must understand the aims of his organization and know how to achieve them.
2. Every Pioneer places the interest of his organization above his own interest.
3. Every Pioneer accepts and carries out the decisions of the higher committees.
4. Every Pioneer is a propagandist and has influence among other working class children.
5. Every Pioneer is an internationalist. (No discrimination against nationality or race.)

Iowa Corn Farmers in Desperate Financial Fix, Admits U. S. Dept

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(FP)—Iowa farmers are in desperate financial straits, according to a special report to the secretary of agriculture by Nils A. Olsen, assistant chief of the bureau of agricultural economics in his department, and Albert C. Williams, member of the federal farm loan board.

They were sent to Iowa to recommend means for saving the farmers from the ruin due to a drop in corn prices from 98 cents in August to 50 or 60 cents in November. They recommend that the farmers who can get credit should hold their corn for "orderly marketing" or feed it to hogs.

"The agricultural situation has improved since 1921," they conclude, "but it is apparent that many Iowa farmers still labor under the handicap of large debts, high operating expenses, high taxes, high interest rates on short term loans, and also widely fluctuating and often unsatisfactory prices for their products."

WAR FRAUD CASE DISMISSED; RICH GRAFTERS FREED

No Jail for Wealthy Thieves, Says Cal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(FP)—U. S. District Attorney Gordon, under the approving eye of Atty. Gen. Sargent, has consented to the dismissal of the conspiracy indictment in the local criminal court against Everly M. Davis of New York and Ernest C. Morse of Cincinnati, former director of sales for the war department, in the Old Hickory powder plant case. This was the first war fraud case to be started by the department of justice, and is the last to be dropped.

When Sen. Wheeler exposed the Daugherty regime in the department, he showed that suits involving some $55,000,000 of government property, stolen after the war, were still alive and could be prosecuted.

President Coolidge declared, in denouncing Wheeler's work, that the government would prosecute all the guilty and protect public interests.

The Old Hickory powder plant near Nashville, Tenn., cost the nation $50,000,000. It was sold to Davis and Alexander Phillips, who has since died, for $3,500,000. The two men represented a syndicate of Nashville capitalists. The theory of the indictment against Davis and Phillips and Morse was the latter conspired with them to sell them the property without competitive bidding.

A civil suit brought by the government to recover the property was repeatedly blocked by orders from Harry Daugherty and his assistants, according to testimony by the federal district attorney who had the case in charge. It finally was so handled that the case was lost.

GITLOW PROTEST MEETING ROUSES NEW YORK LABOR

Demand Immediate Release of Fellow Worker

Gitlow was that he told the workers a lot of facts and helped them to organize for their own protection against the oppressing class.

"Last time I spoke from this platform Gitlow was one of the main speakers. I told you then that Great Britain which was held up as an example of free speech would soon follow the rest of the world in the persecution of leaders of the workers. Today there are a dozen Communists in prison in England for showing the masses the way out of slavery."

Masses Must Demand Release.

Sam Lipzin of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union was the next speaker and addressed the audience in Jewish. "When the masses rise up and protest in organized manner, when they demand their rights by showing that they are intelligent enough to plan for taking over the power of government and become the ruling class, the capitalists will listen quite readily. I call upon the workers to take the power of government into their own hands as the workers of Russia have done. It is time for the workers in America to realize their power and to protest in earnest when our leaders are placed in jeopardy."

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn summed up the persecutions under the criminal syndicalist laws that now operate in 35 states in the union. She showed how the present law put Gitlow in prison was enacted 25 years ago, during the hysteria that followed the McKinley assassination. The other laws against labor were mostly passed during and after the war. Now they are being used against workers, whenever the master class finds it convenient to put workers away into some dungeon. There are now over 100 men and women in prison in California, where mere membership in the I. W. W. is sufficient to give a worker 14 years in prison. The cases of Anita Whitney, Tom Mooney, Sacco and Vanzetti were cited as cases of outrageous capitalist tyranny.

Bertram Wolfe, who represented the Workers (Communist) Party at the demonstration, reviewed the historic background for all the persecutions now taking place. He recited the ironical legal terms which declare that "the people of the state of New York" put Gitlow into prison, showing how the laws are made to mislead the workers, putting them in prison and then blaming it on "the people."

Chairman Cosgrove asked how many would be willing to serve the term for Gitlow and let him out to continue his work in organizing. Many hands went up. "How many would be willing to serve one day?" then asked Cosgrove. A fine response of hands shot up. "One day in prison would be harder than one day's wages, and you will not be asked to go to Sing Sing, but you are asked to give a ten dollar bill each." The collection which followed amounted to $220.

The meeting was considered one of the best held in New York and the International Labor Defense is pushing the release of Ben Gitlow and will continue to do so until he is a free man and in the ranks of the active workers in his union and his party again.

I. R. A. PROTESTS BRUTALITIES OF ROUMANIAN JAILS

Scores Boyars' "Silent" Executions

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—The International Red Aid has sent the following message in a telegram to the General Council of the Trade Union Congress in London and to the French members of parliament and a cablegram to the members of the American congress exposing the terror now prevailing in Roumania and in other countries:

Protest Against Bestialities.

"To the victims of the Polish, Hungarian and Bulgarian justice are added new victims from the Roumanian white terror. After the tortures applied to the peasants in the Tatarbounar process, the Roumanian government discovered new methods of 'silent' execution of its prisoners. On the 50th day of his hunger-strike, which he had undertaken as a protest against the horrible conditions in the prison of Doftan, Max Goldstein died and shortly after his death, Dubinski died. The Roumanian prisons will soon produce new victims, amongst them Comrade Bojor, who has since died. The International Red Aid requests you to raise your voices in protest against the unheard of terrorism of the Roumanian bourgeoisie. We request you to do your best to organise an unprejudiced delegation to examine the Roumanian prison regime.

"Silent" Executions.

"The International Red Aid adopted a resolution in a special sitting called after receiving news of the death of Goldstein and Dubinski, according to which the Roumanian bourgeoisie which has theoretically abolished the death sentence in order to make a democratic show to the outside world, yet finds means to do away with its class enemies, by provoking hunger-strikes and permitting the prisoners to die. The hunger-strike is the only means of protest at the disposal of the prisoners against the cruelties carried out in the Roumanian prisons. In this way Comrade Goldstein died. Dubinski was no longer able to endure the tortures and committed suicide. Bojor and other prisoners are approaching a horrible end in the Roumanian prisons."

$100,000,000 Movie Trust Soon to Be Sanctified by Govt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(FP)—Argument in the Lasky-Famous Players moving picture trust case, before the federal trade commission, was begun. Counsel for the commission seek to have the combine instructed to discontinue block booking, and to separate their producing and distributing business from their theatre or exhibition business.

The movie theatres owned by the trust now are valued at over $100,000,000, and these theatres are used to "skim the cream" off the early showings of all pictures handled by the combine.

Rubber Monopoly in Fight on Unions at All Akron Factories

AKRON, O.—(FP)—The Goodrich-Firestone-Goodyear rubber monopoly is waging a war of extermination against Akron union labor. Printing concerns, building contractors and other employers having relations with the rubber kings are forced to agree to employ only nonunion help.

PROTECTION OF LABOR IS REAL UNDER SOVIETS

Employer Has to Toe the Line of Union

MOSCOW—(FP)—Each worker in the Soviet Union is protected by a wage agreement or collective agreement, as it is called. This agreement is negotiated between a representative of the union and a representative of the employer for whom the worker proposes to work. As almost all workers belong to unions, this system of collective bargaining covers the field of employers and employes.

Frequently the employer is the state or a state trust. The representative of the workers bargains with the state as it bargains with any other employer.

American workers might be interested in a collective agreement drawn up this week between an employer and a representative of the workers. The employer was compelled to travel to the capital of the district (very much as an employer in Pennsylvania would travel to Harrisburg). There the employer met representatives of what would be, in the United States, the State Federation of Labor.

First they settled the classification. Taking the wage of a farm worker as a basis, they established categories for carpenters, masons, blacksmiths, drivers, and the other workers. Once this contract is signed, the carpenter or mason to be employed will be paid at the wage fixed in the contract.

Next, the employer in this case agreed to pay 1½ per cent of the total payroll into a "cultural fund" to be used by the union in organizing classes and clubs among the workers. Since the schools in this district are overcrowded, the employer agreed to provide adequate educational facilities for the children of all of his workers.

In addition the employer agreed to pay part of the wages of the local union secretary and to provide him with free transportation whenever he wished to visit the workers on their jobs.

The Soviet Union is ruled by the government and the trade unions. The government safeguards the political interests of the workers. The unions safeguard their economic interests.

ZEIGLER MINERS FIGHT THIEVING COAL OPERATORS

Bosses Frame Militant Union Leaders

at one point for more than a fraction of a second, and an accurate registry of the car's weight thus made impossible, was held to account for a little while.

Extra profits which the company had been making by cheating the miners on the weight of their loadings were being cut off because of the action of Henry Corbishly and his associates in the union who had supplied the assistant checkweighman. The operators then resorted to the simple expedient of excluding the assistant from the mine, leaving the solitary weighman in the old quandary of being unable to give his own union brothers a just accounting. It was then that the miners quit the mine spontaneously in their "wildcat" strike which was immediate cause of the outbreak that occurred later in the union hall and led up to the present trial.

With the co-operation of the reactionary sub-district officials the mine management has temporarily won its fight. Today there is no longer an assistant checkweighman on the job in the Bell and Zoller mine. The cars are run over the scales in one constant stream and the weigh boss calls out the number of tons per car load as he desires, with little or no regard for actual weight. The union checkweighman can keep no track of the real weights and the knowledge of what has happened in the past to honest and militant checkweighmen deters the new one from any enrgetic protest.

Steal 25% of Load.

The miners are bitter and resentful. An average of 25% on each car load is stolen from them by the company thru this means of weighing. The eighty-two and seven-tenths cents per ton that the miner is supposed to get by contract is the purest formality. In actual fact, he averages some sixty odd cents to the ton.

Twenty fighting miners are to stand trial in Benton beginning next Monday, framed up on the flimsiest kind of evidence. Their real crime is their fearless stand for the rank and file miner and against anyone that was injuring the progressive spirit of the union, whether it was the Frank Farrington machine, the ku klux klan or the coal operators. Their fight for honest checkweighing was only a part of their battle for the improvement of the miserable lives of the miners. The Zeigler frame-up is part of the miners' uphill fight against the unsanitary hovels and shanties, and the shacks that are company-owned, airless, end on end and side by side.

Fight Frame-Up!

The constant unemployment of thousands of sympathetic miners in the whole district is to a great extent hampering the development of an organized fight against the frame-up. Lack of funds to carry on the trial is a prospect that the defendants are facing. Both the International Labor Defense and the Franklin County Defense Committee, however, are making energetic efforts to save these militant fighters from undeserved prison terms.

Real Estate Sharks Offer Apartments to Keep Wages Down

MIAMI, Fla.—(FP)—To keep wages and clerical salaries from rising above the pre-boom scale, the Miami realty board, composed of the principal local land speculators, has prevented a precedent by arranging to give school teachers rooms below the standard level of rents. If the board of education had raised teacher wages to meet the increased cost of board and room, other city employes and privately employed workers would have cited the teachers as an example to follow. So the real estate men put a newly built apartment at the disposal of the school board at a rent that covers all carrying charges including interest and depreciation. As a result the realtors lose nothing except the profit on the rent payments of 40 teachers. They gain the difference between high rents and low wages on the rest of the working community.

Only Labor Unity Can Keep Benefit of the Machine for Workers

COLUMBUS, O.—(FP)—Miners officials in Ohio are negotiating wage rates for men operating new loading machines. The machine takes the place of a gang of men with shovels. Unions in Illinois have won a number of fights on attempted wage cutting through machinery.

SOVIET WORKERS HAVE TIME NOW TO READ BOOKS

And They Are Doing It in Factories

MOSCOW—(FP)—Workers in the Soviet Union are finding time to read. Despite the immense difficulties they have been compelled to overcome during the last five years they have turned their attention more and more to books.

During 1920, the books published in the Soviet republic numbered 3,260. For the first half of 1925 the number is 20,771. These figures are vouched for by the Society for Cultural Relations which states that the average number of pages in books was 70 in 1922 and 107 in 1924. During 1924 the average edition per book was 8,632.

Most of the books published at the present time in the Soviet Republic appear in paper covers. All are printed in the state or the cooperative printing plants. They sell at very low prices (from 3c up for the smaller books and pamphlets), within reach of the average pocketbook.

New books cover every phase of science, art, literature. Most of them deal with problems confronting the republic. There are immense numbers of books on social science.

Book stores have been opened throughout the republic. No factory is without its reading room and library. In large factories these Red Corners are numbered by the score. I visited one factory in which there were more than 50. These reading rooms are kept warm and well lighted, and during the noon hour, and before and after work they are crowded with readers.

Workers in the Soviet Union have time to read. The 8-hour day and the 6-day week are quite generally enforced. In one industrial city that I visited where the stores stay open on Sunday to accommodate peasants, they are closed tight on Wednesday. When Wednesday came it was raining and snowing. I had to tramp around all day and needed a pair of rubbers. But there was not a store in the town that could sell them till Thursday. I was uncomfortable, but the hundreds of store-workers were getting their free day.

Need for Policy of Class Struggle Seen in the Shoe Industry

Pressure of unemployment on the boot and shoe workers of Massachusetts is apparently driving them toward a form of class-cooperating unionism which is very satisfactory to employers, to judge by a New York Times article based on an interview with the secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Assn. These employers see the threat of strikes practically eliminated by arbitration.

The boot and shoe industry, with 15% fewer employes than in October, 1924, and 37% fewer than in 1922 features the October employment report of the Massachusetts department of labor. The report also shows that more than half of the boot and shoe workers who still have jobs are in establishments working part-time.

Other Massachusetts industries are depressed but none so badly as boots and shoes. Cotton mills report employment 16% below 1922 but a gain of 4½% over last October. Woolen mills are 8½% below 1922 and 10% below last year. Hosiery and knit goods factories have 25% fewer workers than in 1922 but 1½% more than a year ago. All those are affected by the movement of industry away from New England chiefly to localities where labor can be hired more cheaply or worked longer hours.

Women Teachers of Syracuse Demand No More Discrimination

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(FP)—Women high school teachers of Syracuse will file suit for equal pay with men teachers, in accordance with the provision of the state law. Since September they have been getting $2,400 a year, $250 less than the men teachers.

U. S. FIGURES SHOW MINERS GET LOW WAGE

Explode Operators' Anthracite Bunk

Wage rates in the anthracite industry for over a quarter of a century have failed to keep pace with the cost of living. The present scale for contract miners is an increase of 134.8% over 1900 while the cost of living has advanced approximately 150% in the same period.

In the intervening years the discrepancy between miners' pay and the cost of living has been much worse as shown in the following federal figures which give for each scale period the wage level, the average cost of living, and the average purchasing power in percentages of 1900:

Anthracite Miners	Wage Rates	Cost of Living	Purchasing Power
1900	100%	100%	100%
1900-2	100	104	96
1903-12	113	120	95
1912-16	121	146	83
1916	129	162	80
1917	142	189	75
1918	162	230	71
1919-20	181	283	64
1920-23	213	262	85
1923-25	235	248	95

This means that for producing a ton of coal the anthracite miner earns a smaller amount of food, clothing, etc. than at the beginning of the century and that in the period 1912 to 1920 he earned very much less. In 1919 and 1920 he received only two-thirds as much in exchange for his work as prior to the 1903 award.

Anthracite mine workers have been saved from very serious curtailment of their living standards only by a considerable increase in days worked in the year. In the last 10 years of the 19th century they averaged less than 200 days a year. Lately the average has fluctuated around 270 days.

The average miner's earnings are not high in spite of the operator propaganda to the contrary. The most skilled and responsible miners are averaging only $8.35 a day working about 90% of a full working year. The average of day workers inside the mine is $5.56 and of outside men $4.95 a day.

New York Building Trades Make Demands While Chance Exists

NEW YORK—(FP)—Building trades-men in New York, organized in 50 trades and numbering more than 120,000 are taking a step forward in their demands for agreements to go into effect Jan. 1, 1926. Bricklayers and stone masons ask $4 a day more, or $16 in place of $12; slate roofers, plasterers, stone setters and marble carvers demand a two dollar advance to $14 a day. Many crafts ask a dollar and half raise to $12 a day. The carpenters ask a 5-day work week.

Even the Non-Union Miners Get a Raise by Going on Strike

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(FP)—One hundred sixty bitumious miners at the Pikeview mine near Colorado Springs are enjoying wage boosts as a result of a 12-hour strike. Day men now get $5.75 instead of $5.25. They had demanded $5.81. Machine miners get 57c instead of 61c a ton. They wanted 63c.

RUSSIAN CROWDS SHOW TRAINING IN SELF RULE

Nearing Describes the Frunze Memorial

MOSCOW—(FP)—I have just seen a remarkable performance.

Frunze the red army chief is dead. A memorial service is being held.

The Big Theater is packed. The Red Square is full of people, standing out in the storm to hear the loud speakers from the theater.

All the leading lights are on the platform, speaking. Kalenin led off. When he got up there were a few scattering handclaps, immediately silenced by the crowd.

Twice after that there were a few handclaps and both times the crowd restored order immediately.

Then they let loose an orchestra—one of the finest I ever heard. And the orchestra spoke for the crowd. It was a real performance and when it was over the crowd felt as well satisfied as though it had applauded.

The Russian crowd practices self-discipline more effectively than any other I have ever seen, except in England.

And the English crowd is far more boisterous and rowdy than the Russian.

Labor Editor Favors Delegation to Visit the Soviet Unions

CLEVELAND—(FP)—Vigorous support is given in Cleveland trade union circles to the proposal that American labor send a delegation to Russia. Albert F. Coyle, editor Locomotive Engineers Journal announces his support of a plan which would include a tour of the principal European countries, including Russia. The recent address of Pres. A. A. Purcell of the International Federation of Trade Unions, under the auspices of the Cleveland Federation of Labor, has stimulated interest in Europe in labor ranks.

Quebec Provincial Labor Party Bars Out the Communists

QUEBEC—(FP)—The Quebec provincial convention of the Canadian Labor party, which was organized under the aegis of the Dominion Trades and Labor congress, has passed a resolution forbidding Communists in the party and ordering the expulsion of members with Communistic tendencies. The convention also called for a working week of five 8-hour days and offered to help anti-Fascist movements.

LABOR COLLEGE STUDENTS HEAR OF SOVIET UNION

Brookwood Celebrates Soviet Anniversary

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—The students of Brookwood Labor College held an annual celebration of the anniversary of the Russian revolution at which Dr. Harry F. Ward and Bert Wolfe, both of whom were in Russia in 1924, were invited to address the student body.

Dr. Ward said Russia was going thru state socialism and planned economy definitely away from capitalism and towards Communism.

Wolfe Analyzes Russian History.

Comrade Wolfe's subject was "The Political Lessons of the Russian Revolution." Among the lessions that he took up were: (1) The refutation of "mechanical Marxism" which believed that a proletarian revolution had to come first in the industrially most advanced country and last in the industrially least advanced. (2) The lesson of the effect that the revolutions of 1905 and 1917 had revised the slogan "Workers of the world, unite" into the slogan "Workers and oppressed peoples of the world, unite." (3) An analysis of the mistaken doctrine that the Russian revolution could succeed and Russia move towards socialism only if revolutions were immediately successful in other European countries and state aid furnished to the Russian revolution by the German or some other revolutionary government.

He showed that the eight years of existence of the Russian Soviet Union and the definite progress it had made and was making towards socialism were a palpable refutation of this doctrine. The latter part of his talk he devoted to a discussion of the new plans of attack against Soviet Russia, analyzing the significance of the debt-funding pact, and the Locarno treaty.

American Capitalists Kow-Tow to Mussolini

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 29.—American officials and judges which included Henry P. Fletcher, United States ambassador to Italy; Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo, Supreme Court Judge Francis X. Manacuso, Judge Louis A. Valente and many more, gave the fascist salute when his name was mentioned at a luncheon given by the New York Italian Chamber of Commerce in the Hotel Plaza, attended by Count Volpi and the other members of the Italian debt commission.

Each time Mussolini's name was mentioned the assemblage stood with arms upraised, palms toward the speakers table, and an ovation followed. Recently, in an edict, Mussolini ordered this salute to be tendered him as a mark of obedience.

When Count Volpi and his party arrived in New York City recently, they were met at the pier by indignant Italian workers who assembled to show their displasure with the bloody fascist rule which now governs Italy. To escape the wrath of the Italian workers, the local police department gave the Italian commission a heavy guard and helped them to dodge the workers.

A Socialist Tammanyite

Thruout the whole world the name Tammany Hall is synonymous with political corruption. One skilled in all the low arts of political swindling is called a Tammanyite not only in New York and Chicago, but in London, Paris, Pekin, Bombay and in the remotest corners of the earth. But Tammany, since 1910, has extended its influence. Its activities formerly confined to New York alone, where it plundered in the most brazen fashion, now extend thruout the whole nation. Finance capital in 1910-12 stamped it for its own and broadened the power of Tammany.

With its rise to national influence it becomes necessary to whitewash it, so that its past reputation will not thwart its present purposes. That is a job that requires extraordinary skill in the black magic of political fakerism. Only those so hardened to the practice of public deception that they can with straight faces call Tammany a beneficent institution can do the job.

Two types of creature are useful for this purpose. One of them is the type of the mayor-elect of New York, Mr. Walker, who is so ignorant that he is not aware of the nature of the machine that made him. The other is one whose principles are for sale to the highest bidder. Such a one is Mr. Walter Lippman, chief editorial writer of the New York World, who, while speaking in Pittsburgh the other day, extravagently eulogized Tammany Hall. Mr. Lippman, talking to the national municipal league, said the Tammany politicians are not the old type of boodle bandits, but "a typical group of city men—successful lawyers, successful businessmen, and I might add constant but successful golf players." He doesn't say they are just dressed-up crooks and thugs.

Who, you may ask, is this man Lippman?

He is a former socialist, who came into prominence as the secretary of Mr. George R. Lunn, socialist mayor of Schenectady, N .Y., in 1912-13; he was a leading light of the intercollegiate socialist society. When his political mentor, Mr. Lunn, became a renegade socialist and joined the democratic party, Mr. Lippman soon followed. When Lunn supported Morgan's war, Lippman became editor of the New Republic, a pseudo-liberal sheet and supported Woodrow Wilson's policy.

Former Mayor Lunn eventually became a congressman; then lieutenant governor of New York under the Tammanyite, Al. Smith. When Lunn became identified with the Tammany branch of the democrat party, Mr. Lippman followed him. Now Lunn holds an appointive job in the state, because he was defeated in the recent election, and his former office boy, Mr. Lippman, defends Tammany in the columns of the World and before Kiwanis club audiences in the hinterland.

This is the inevitable road travelled by the egotistical products of bourgeois universities, who in their immeasurable arrogance imagine they have something to contribute to the revolutionary movement. They think their professional training fits them to lead the movement out of the wilderness of Marxism in which they say we helplessly flounder.

Not one of that vile crew ever contributed anything but confusion to the ranks of the movement in the United States. And the history of all of them is identically the same. After vitiating the movement with the accumulated rubbish of bourgeois universities they learn that the slow tempo of the movement does not insure them the dazzling careers they crave, so they drift into the ranks of the capitalist class where they become the most cringing, servile mercenaries in the service of capitalist class corruption. Their former alleged radicalism and liberalism makes them better prostitutes.

The Northwestern "Riot"

The other nightt a mob of students at Northwestern University went on a wild rampage, overran the business section of Evanston, a suburb of Chicago, indulged in violent assaults upon individuals and policemen, attempted to burn down a stadium used to seat crowds at athletic events, and in general conducted themselves in a most obnoxious manner. The disorders occurred because certain judges awarded the "big ten" football championship to the University of Michigan.

Workers, especially those who have been assailed by police thugs and gangsters, while conducting peaceful picketing, cannot avoid drawing comparisons between the very mild and considerate manner in which the police treated the rioting students and the unristricted savagery and frightfulness with which workers' demonstrations are crushed by force of arms. For workers the police have riot guns, clubs, tanks, tear gas, bombs and all the equipment of modern warfare. For the students attending a methodist college, rioting because their moron football team ranked lower in the averages than another group of half-wits from another bourgeois university, the police have the utmost consideration, even taking beatings themselves rather than disperse the ranks with bullets.

Evanston's riots are a good lesson in class distinctions. The reason the workers are shot, slugged and jailed is because they are fighting for decent conditions to defend the capitalist exploiters. It is the job of the police force to defend the capitalist class in its endeavors to make beasts of burden of the workers. The Evanston students are spawn of the ruling class, who attend college to learn how to utilize the information they receive to enable the ruling class more effectively to exploit the workers.

Furthermore, university students are always on the side of the police in strike disorders and with great gusto join the forces of terrorism in order to crush strikes, as was the case of the Harvard students during the great Lawrence strike of 1912.

The class to which one belongs determines the attitude of the police.

Mussolini now has complete control over all parts of the government and even directly controls the municipalities in the unfortunate nation over which his insane despotism holds sway. He is the state. Another character in history whose name is synonomous with tyranny uttered similar sentiments at the close of the 18th century. The regime he personified fell before the avalanche of the revolution. Mussolini is treading the path of his predecessor and his destination will be as dismal.

Some Revelations of Mr. Hoover - -

By H. M. Wicks

The annual report of the secretary of commerce, released for publication this morning, is a document that will prove useful to those loyal mercenaries of the capitalist class, the labor fakirs. Mr. Hoover, the secretary of commerce is unique in one way at least. He is the only statesman on earth who qualified for his position by operating soup kitchens requiring the same degree of economic understanding as the manager of a salvation army doughnut factory.

This eminent "soup kitchen" statesman in the first part of his report deals with the elimination of waste. By a rather crude juggling of statistics that would disgrace a high school boy, Hoover endeavors to prove that the real wage has increased during the past five years and comes to the conclusion that today we have the highest real wage in our history.

Hoover says this result was brot about thru increased efficiency and waste elimination.

"What the country as a whole has accomplished during the past five years in increased national efficiency in those directions is impossible of measurement. Nor does the Department of Commerce lay claim to credit for the great progress that has been made save as we may have helped to organize a definite public movement. That movement is the result of a realization by every group—business men, industrial leaders, engineers, and workers—of the fundamental importance of this business of waste elimination.

"In addition to elimination of waste we have had the benefit of notable advances in science, improvement in methods of management, and prohibition. Thanks to elimination of waste and these other contributing factors, we can as a nation show one of the most astonishing transformations in economic history."

Here is the table presented by Hoover to prove his contention:

(1913 equals 100)

Year	Wage rates	Prices*
1920	199	226
1921	205	147
1922	193	149
1923	211	154

Figures Won't Lie, But—

Liars will figure. Note that Mr. Hoover uses the statistics of the year 1913 as the starting point for all his investigations. Every person living in the United States at that time knows that the fall and winter of 1913 was a period of widespread unemployment and that wages sank to the lowest level since the panic of 1907.

The winter of 1913-14 saw unemployed hordes tramping the highways of this nation ekeing out an existence in any way they could and willing to accept the merest pittance as a wage to tide them over the period of depression. The "soup kitchen" statesman very carefully avoids recalling that situation in presenting his "astonishing" picture of unexampled prosperity.

Then there is a second deception practiced in the statistical table of Mr. Hoover and one that is used in most tables of government statistics which renders them useless, tho they are taken as authoritative by the labor leaders who carry on wage negotiations with the capitalist class. It is the trick of computing alongside the index number for wages the figures for the wholesale price of ALL commodities.

*Average wholesale prices of all commodities.

Real wages of labor are not determined in any such a manner as that. The only way to compute real wages is to compare the income of the workers with the price of the necessaries of life. The total wholesale prices of commodities includes the millions upon millions of dollars' worth of luxuries that are consumed by the ruling class, which can fall in price without affecting the economic condition or the real wages of the working class at all.

Such figures include also the millions spent for gasoline, the price of which has fallen because of the fierce price-cutting campaign in many parts of the country in the war of Standard Oil against the independent producers. This benefits the owners of motor cars and trucks, but does not affect the majority of workers in the least. Hundreds of such examples can be presented.

Furthermore Mr. Hoover's figures are based upon the wage RATES when workers are employed, and not upon the actual wage received during the year, which makes a considerable difference.

Another contemptible trick is a second table purporting to show the figures covering the same period in Great Britain:

(1913 equals 100)

Year	Wages	Prices*
1920	230	283
1921	230	283
1922	260	181
1922	200	159
1923	170	162
1924	170	174

The little joker here is easily detected. The British table does not indicate the wage rates, but the wages actually received.

With this sort of deliberate falsification Mr. Hoover builds up a case for American prosperity.

No wonder American statesmen are held in contempt by other public servants of the bourgeois thruout the world. They richly deserve their odious reputations!

Watch for These Figures.

American wage workers should watch for this argument, based upon the "authority" of governmental statistics, to be sprung on them in the first wage controversy in which they are engaged. With this information you will know how to meet the fake government statistics.

It is certain that they will be utilized by B. & O. Bill Johnson, William Green, head of the A. F. of L. and all the other class collaborationists, to prove that their betrayal of the workers into schemes for increasing the efficiency of the capitalist machinery of production will benefit the workers.

Unquestionably, such "astonishing" figures will be used in those cesspools of intellectual stagnation called labor colleges where the doctrine of class collaboration is the alpha and omega of their "educational" system.

The workers who are deluded by such sophistry as the notion that they must increase production before they can hope to receive increases in wages have yet to learn the most elementary principles of economics.

*Average wholesale prices of all commodities.

Marxism teaches the working class the irrefutable fact that to the extent machinery of production develops, to the extent that efficiency devices enable the capitalists to get more out of the working class for the same expenditure of labor-time, to that extent will the demand for labor-power diminish, with the result that the workers will find themselves in ever-increasing numbers out on the streets in the army of unemployed. Any worker knows, thru his own experience, that when there is an army of unemployed in the country wages are always beaten down to the very lowest level. So in the last analysis the increased efficiency propaganda of the labor leaders and their apologists in the labor colleges is simply a new form of belly-crawling before the capitalist class, a new betrayal of the working class in an effort to fool the workers into aiding the capitalist class reduce wages.

This sort of thing is to be expected from Mr. Hoover, one of the time servers of the Coolidge strike-breaking, scab-herding, open shop government. The government exists for the one purpose of coercing the working class in the interest of the capitalist class.

It is interesting to find Hoover's lying statistics predicated upon the propaganda of the labor lieutenants of the capitalist class and the intellectual eunuchs in the labor colleges.

Neither Mr. Hoover, Mr. Green, Mr. Johnson or any of the frail sisterhood of the professional crew dare defend their theories against a Marxist before a working class audience.

Such theories could only originate in the minds of those whose mental development is compatible with the conduct of soup kitchens—or the nursery.

The Voice of French Young Workers Is Heard

tion until the eighteenth year, four weeks' vacation a year on full pay, application of the labor laws under the control of the workers, the Red Army—the revolutionary school in the service of all the workers and the oppressed peoples!"

"The dividends of the shareholders are coined of the blood of young workers!" (Marx).

"The proletarian youth must learn to use arms not to shoot their own brothers but to overthrow their bourgeois and to seize power."

Opening of the Congress.

The congress opened amidst scenes of indescribably enthusiasm. Following a series of sixty district conferences of young workers, over six hundred delegates had been elected to the national congress. The majority of these delegates were not members of the Communist Youth League; most of the young workers there had not even heretofore taken any prominent part in the activities of the militant left wing workers of France. For the first time now, as the spokesmen of their exploited and oppressed young comrades in the shops, factories, mines, and fields, they came forward to consider the position of the toiling youth of France and to cement a united front of labor in the struggle against capitalism.

Toiling Youth and Its Demand.

After the greetings of the French Communist Party, of the French League of Communist Youth, of the C. G. T. U. (revolutionary labor unions), and of other French and foreign labor organizations had been enthusiastically received, Barbe, a young worker, reported on the conditions of the young workers and peasants of France. His report, based upon a painstaking collection of facts, placed the conditions of the French young workers in a very clear light and the discussion that followed showed that the young French workers were at last awakening to their conditions and were determined to wage a militant struggle against capitalism.

Situation of Youth in Army.

Military service, the imperialist adventures of France, capitalist militarism—this was another point that demanded the attention of the congress.

Chasseigne opened the discussion on anti-militarism and the situation of the working and peasant youth in the army. "What awaits the youth in the barracks?" he asked. "No trade unions to protect them, no right to vote, the working class press banned, silence in the ranks . . . You have heard complaints of the oppressive discipline of the shops. But how can that compare to the bullying discipline found in the ranks of the army—to the oppression of the petty officers and officers?"

War in Syria and Morocco.

"But how can they make good their 'promises' of lowering the service period to one year—this government that sends thousands of young men to destruction in Morocco and Syria at the word of the bankers?"

In reply the French Communist Youth League issued and the Youth Congress took up with enthusiasm, the militant slogans: "Down with the capitalist wars in Syria and Morocco! Mass fraternization!"

Into the Trade Unions!

The young workers must enter the trade unions! Crozat, member of the Executive Commission of the C. G. T. U. (revolutionary unions), made a plea for the unionization of the young workers. "They must enter the unions and fight for their demands side by side with the adult workers. In this way and in this only can be realized the united front of the young and the adult workers . . ."

World Trade Union Unity.

"But the working class—old and young—cannot really be strong," Croizat showed, "unless it is united internationally for the struggle of the working class. Along with the struggle for national unity, the worker must carry on the struggle for world trade union unity. The youth must stand in the front ranks of this struggle!"

It was in this spirit of militant struggle and unity that Coulon, of the C. G. T. (reformist unions) of Bourdeaux, proposed to send a delegation to the national council of the C. G. T. then in session.

"The C. G. T. U.," he said, "has listened to us and has adopted our demands. The C. G. T. has done nothing for us. Let us bring our demands before them!"

A delegation of seven members was immediately chosen and dispatched on its mission.

Need of Political Struggle.

Upon Comrade Ferrat fell the task of pointing out the necessity for the political struggle of the youth and the proof that the Young Communist League was the only organization that could lead this struggle."

Citing the experiences of the struggles of the French and the world proletariat, Ferrat showed that only the Communist nucleus could draw out, organize, and direct the struggles of the youth on all fronts: in the factory, on the land, in the army . . .

Petroff and Nadia Speak.

On the last day of the congress there stepped forward two Russian workers, the representatives of the emancipated proletarian and peasant youth of Russia—a young worker by the name of Petroff and a young working girl called Nadia. The enthusiasm with which they were received cannot be described.

With broad strokes, Petroff painted the situation of the Russian youth under the czar. Long hours—10 to 14 a day—the most miserable wages, brutal tyranny and oppression, ignorance . . . Came October! Then four years of intervention, civil war, blockade, . . . but the revolution was maintained! And all the time the conditions of the toiling youth were the first care of the workers' government. The working day had been reduced to 4 to 6 hours, the wages are on the same scale as adult workers, social insurance functioning as nowhere else, young workers in the trade unions and occupying privileged position in them, a long vacation on full pay (one month a year), summer resorts for the youth, the factory the center of social life and the factory committee the real "boss" in the factory . . . As Petroff, in simple words, gave a rough sketch of the conditions of the young workers in Russia, the representatives of the French young workers sat up amazed, hardly believing such things possible, and seeing at last the malicious lies and slanders that the capitalist press had been spreading about Soviet Russia in order to befuddle the minds of the workers.

Nadia then spoke and she touched more on the life of the young girls. She concluded with an enthusiastic description of how the red army carries on its tremendous educational and political functions in helping to raise the new generation of young workers and peasants in the spirit of Communism.

French Delegation Appointed.

Questions followed thick and fast which were all answered to the greatest satisfaction. Finally Nadia said: "You should hurry up and choose your delegation to go to Russia to verify what you have been told today. You trust us. But you will have more confidence in your delegation."

The question of a French young workers' and peasants' delegation to Russia then came up for discussion and finally a delegation of fifteen was chosen. These young workers are to go to the Soviet Union and, in the freest possible manner, investigate and examine anything they may find of interest there, stressing, of course, the conditions of the young workers. Then they will come back to France and tell the French young workers just what they saw, what they learned, and what their conclusions are. There can be no question that the report of this delegation will help tremendously to open the eyes of the widest masses of young workers in France and outside to the truth about the Soviet Union and the work of the revolution.

Significance of the Congress.

Thus the congress ended after two solid days of work. The great success of this congress, its wide basis of representation, the militant spirit manifested in its deliberations and activities—these proved that important revolutionary changes were and are taking place in the ranks of the French toiling youth. The revolutionization of the masses is progressing apace: the objective situation and the internal class relations in France are especially favorable for energetic and determined activity of the Communist vanguard—the Communist Party and the Young Communist League.

And the Young Communist League of France has not been found lacking. The rooting of the young Communist vanguard in the masses of the young workers, the formation of the widest mass contacts, the transformation of the French league into a mass young Communist league of the workers has already begun. And the real Bolshevik spirit, the Leninist understanding and activity, that the mass work of the league manifests, give fair promise for the future. . . .

Long live the Young Communist League of France!

Long live the Young Communist International!

CASUAL REVIEWS

By HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

There is an article in the November Century Magazine. It is called the "Bitter Bread of Exile." It is by Marguerite E. Harrison. A charming lady, doubtless, who I more than suspect of the subtle art of nothing so crude as lying. No, no! exercising a vivid imagination to the profit of her pocketbook. The article is well written. It is interesting. Nothing could illustrate the muddled thinking of the author, and of the class for which the mainly writes, than to have her piece de resistance, the mysterious stranger of the lonely yurt, exclaim "We had meant to institute the dictatorship of the proletariat, and we had merely substituted a new class dictatorship." What a gem! And to have been uttered by a revolutionist, a member of the C. E. C. As if any distinction lay between the two phrases. Here, you little eight-year old Junior, what do we mean by the dictatorship of the proletariat? "Working class control of the government in the interests of the workingclass." Oh, Marguerite, Marguerite! if you must take a slam at the terrible Bolsheviks, be more careful in the future what you have your dream characters say. It may get by with your gang, all right, all right; but now and then such things get read by an honest to god worker who might be guilty of poking fun at you

From Mudpool to Communism

By MARTIN MATTILA.

IN the beginning there was a cell which lived in a mudpool. The sun kept it warm. It felt happy, grew fat and strong until it by its own weight was divided into two cells. And that was the glorious end of the first cell.

The new cells had inherited good appetites and in many generations grew into tadpoles which in turn in a few mililons of years developed gills. But the mudpool in which the illustrous ancestral cell had lived and loved, had dried up and our famous foreparents with gills found themselves on a dry land.

Never did a sailor cuss the land with such vehemence as these unfortunate kinsmen of ours, finding the water all gone and no use for the fins, and that is how it happened that the air, instead of water, began to flow thru their gill-openings.

Always rebellious against conditions like good revolutionists, they began to flap their fins as if to find out whether or not they could rise still higher; and indeed they were successful flappers.

For they, or at least their descendants, with shrieks of joy flew into a tree.

THERE were delicious berries in the tree; but with stiff bills they were hard to pick and wings indeed were more in the way than for use in the thick tree.

That is why our forefathers Tip and foremother Sip plucked the feathers off their wings and always ground their bills against the bark of the tree. Such foolishness of course could not lead anywhere but to death. But before they died they had the blessing of many beautiful children tainted with this plucking insanity.

In fact the children outdid their parents and plucked the feathers off their entire body including the head. All naked they felt cold and sought refuge in the hollow of the tree, or they had found new trees by this time. In that hollow they found beard-moss which they tried to wrap around their shivering bodies. They paid the penalty of folly and succumbed to rheumatism, not before they had given lives to short-billed and almost featherless offspring, which continued the brilliant traditions of the species.

One of them, called Ed, looked at his garb of beard-moss, scratched his neck and thot how he could make such a beard grow on his head, for the head suffered most from the cold. As if for answer to the constant scratching, hair indeed began to grow on his zenith. Mrs. Ed. made the discovery on her mate's head and that night could not sleep an eyeful. Trying to solve the mystery she, too, scratched her head and with far more excellent results. In hair-pulling contests and helping each other to free from hair, this personal adornment grew thick and strong. It reached the back of the knees and one could conveniently hang household goods to it in moving to new quarters.

BUT the back was still cold sometimes and the scratching was extended over all the body. Father Ed. summarily rubbed even his face, which Mrs. Ed. was careful not to touch for aesthetic reasons; there was water in the mudpool and the lady liked to watch her face in its glimmering surface.

Father Ed. was at first horrified in finding the growth on his face, but as he could not prevent it, he declared, "Beard is a man's natural adornment, pacify yourself," with which solemn judgment Lady Ed. had to content herself.

The Eds lived to a very old age and left be-whiskered and hairy children. One couple, particularly sensitive to cold, moved south where the sun shone much more warmly. There they discovered that whereas hair was allright for the north, one could live more comfortably without it in the south; consequently they had a hair-pulling madness similar to the feather-plucking madness which their ancestors had had. The hot sun helped them and behold, they were naked!

They had not taken any account of horseflies and wasps which bit and stung them like the very enemies. Without losing his resourcefulness the Ed. of this generation captured a bear with his bare hands and snatched its hide. It was a retreat to hair but not to one's own hair! Mrs. Ed. said that she wanted a nice fur, the like she had seen the leopard wear; and with utmost patience, cunning, and strength Mr. Ed. succeeded in wrenching the pelt from this swiftly-moving animal.

BUT even these Eds went the way of the world, for the great joy of their children who inherited their furs, stone-axes and caves.

The race of the Eds flourished and grew in number inasmuch as it was saved from plagues, wild animals, cold and hunger and above all, the wars between different tribes of Eds.

For many, many generations later we find again an Ed. seated in his workshhop. He has on a neat suit of hair, woven of sheep-wool; but his chin is shaved with a sharp weapon.

He is thinking, measuring, and calculating. He calls himself Edison and tries to invent an electric light. And he invents it.

One other of the Eds, Darwin, forces his tools of research into the history of Ed's and excavates the whole history from the mudpool to the master of the world.

Thus the progress conitnues. At one time the Eds were able to fly; now they have regained that knowledge. Earlier yet they swam under the seas; they now swim again in powerful machines.

The next step or them is to overthrow the capitalist society which has grown inadequate for their welfare, and to establish in its place a Communistic commonwealth. When this is done there will be great joys in store for them in the future.

LEWIS AGREES TO STRIKE BETRAYAL

BIG DEMONSTRATION FOR LEFT WING AS I. L. G. W. CONVENTION GETS STARTED IN PHILADELPHIA

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 30.—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' biennial convention opened here at the Arch Street theater with 1,300 workers in attendance, to the tune of both America and the International—the officials wanted to show their neutrality (?).

A tremendous demonstration occurred when left wing delegates marched into the hall carrying banners in favor of amalgamation, for a labor party, for proportional representation, against expulsions, against squandering union money, and demanding the expulsion of Reisberg, the notorious expulsionist who, as Philadelphia manager, has kept many of the best members of the Philadelphia union out of the organization for two years and more.

The stage was covered with flowers from New York and Philadelphia locals and shops. Two baskets of red roses aroused great applause.

Patriotic Bunk.

Banal preliminary speeches were delivered by local luminaries in the labor movement. An address of welcome by Adolph Hirschberg, president of the Central Labor Council of Philadelphia, was full of sentimental rubbish about patriotism, brotherly love and so forth.

David Braginsky, secretary of the Hebrew trades, spoke in Jewish and said he hoped workers would some day take over Philadelphia, bub did not say how they were to accomplish it.

Mr. Joseph Ritchie, American Federation of Labor organizer, delivered a long speech ranting about the decleration of independence being signed in Philadelphia and bringing joy, happiness and freedom to the people. Not one constructive suggestion about effective organization or a militant struggle against the employer.

Maurer Also Speaks.

James H. Maurer, president of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, spoke last and told the delegates to visit Valley Forge and other historic spots and that in every square mile human blood had been spilled to build unions. He assailed the state constabulary as a strikebreaking institution. His speech was somewhat better than the others, and at least was based upon working class problems. He said the employing class does nothing and owns everything and that

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

EMILE VANDERVELDE, socialist premier of Belgium forgot to consult Wall Street when his government made up the national budget. The House of Morgan, hearing of this piece of impertinence got sore and ordered Belgium to lop off 150,000,000 francs. Ex-soldiers who fought to free "pore li'l Belgium" from the goose-steppers of kaiserism, must not feel elated, particularly if they are wearing a souvenir from the fields of Flanders in the form of a bum lung or a set of ragged nerves. Whoever won the war, the soldiers did not; neither did the small nations. We have a sneaking suspicion that our own capitalist got most of the gravy.

IT seems to us that the anthracite settlement suggested by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, is nothing more than an argument to go back to work and take whatever the good boss says he can afford. There may be a little anti-Mellon politics mixed in, but the spoils of the political trading will not go into the jeans of the coal diggers. If the operators can afford to grant an increase in wages, it shall be done! Who ever heard of a capitalist admitting that he could grant an increase in wages? And the checkoff! Any miner who would like to have his dues collected for Lewis, by the boss may have this done—provided the boss agrees—after writing a letter embodying his request. You can search the popular

LEFT WING NEEDLE TRADES GREETS DELEGATES TO I. L. G. W. CONVENTION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—The following meeting was issued by the National Committee, Needle Trades Section, Trade Union Educational League, to the delegates attending the Philadelphia convention opening today of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, in which it exposes the present leadership as unfit to lead the union in its fights with the bosses and calls upon the delegates to fight for the new leadership which will aggressively combat the employers in the garment trades:

"FELLOW WORKERS!

"To those of you who are ready to listen to the needs of the workers in the shops, to those of you who are not in the union to make a comfortable living from holding offire, we address this appeal.

"You are confronted with great responsibilities. The seasons are growing shorter and shorter year by year. Tens of thousands of our members toil in small bedroom shops ekeing out a miserable living. There are hundreds of unorganized shops in and out of town.

"Thru the continual civil war inside our union for which the present leadership is responsible the treasury of the union has been practically emptied. Our International has lost and is losing in membership while the bosses in our industry are bursting with profits and organizing stronger than ever. As a result of these miserable conditions to which the present leadership and their polciy has brought us, there has arisen a powerful opposition which has the support of the overwhelming majority of the members.

"The past has proven that no further progress is possible with the old leadership. Their methods have outlived their usefulness and cannot bring results. Ninety per cent of the membership despise these leaders, therefore a new leadership must arise out of this convention if the union is to survive and progress.

"The union must be reconstructed so that the members have new confidence in its honesty, strength, and fighting abilities.

"The out-of-towns must be organized thru the common effort of all needle trades unions. The old spirit of struggle and sacrifice and an aggressive leadership is necessary to prevent the complete degeneration of our union, and the further worsening of conditions in the shops. Therefore, delegates, especially those of you that have been brought here as 'Yes' men for the old leadership from small out-of-town locals, we call upon you to let the will of the majority of the membership of our international prevail, only then will it be possible to organize the unorganized to improve conditions for you as well as for those living in the big cities. The left wing calls upon you to make our international a strong, clean, fighting union by supporting the new leadership.

"Natonial Committee, Needle Trades Section, Trade Union Educational League."

TEACHERS' UNION NEWS CENSORED BY BOARD OF EDUCATION, BOASTS EDITOR OF CITY NEWS BUREAU

Just how "fair and impartial" the capitalist press services are, may be seen by the experience of Morris Backall, an educational expert, who attemped to get the City News Bureau, an auxiliary of the Associated Press, to cover a story on his suggestion to the executive council of the American Federation of Teachers, that they send a delegation to Soviet Russia to examine into the econditions of pedagogy in the Soviet Union.

Backall had written a long letter explaining the educational system of Soviet Russia in outline, its difficulties and its marvelous accomplishments.

CHINESE MASSES RISING AGAINST TARIFF MISSION

Red Flags Fly at Big Demonstrations

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, China, Nov. 30.—Widespread disturbances and great demonstrations have kept the city in a turmoil the past three days. The extreme left wing of the Kuomingtang party has led the demonstrations.

They parade the streets with red flags and demand the expulsion of all anti-nationalist elements and many of them demand a Soviet government.

The tariff commission trying to stifle the Chinese workers and lay the country open to imperialist pillaging is one of the objects of attacks. Thousands of students paraded the streets here with red flags and banners calling for the overthrow of the present government thru a popular revolution and the dissolution of the tariff commission.

Anti-imperialist sentiment is pervading all the populous centers of this part of China and in most cases it is of a distinctly working class character.

BOUCK TO SPEAK TO MONTANA FARMERS AT MANY MEETINGS

PLENTYWOOD, Mont., Nov. 30.—William Bouck, one of the most militant spokesman of the farmers in America, and head of the Western Progressive Farmers, is coming to Montana to attend a conference of eastern Montana farm leaders.

He will address mass meetings at the Farmer Labor Temple here at 3 o'clock on Saturday and on Sunday at the same hour at Stivers Hall, Outlook.

The announcements of these meetings specifically state that all bankers and exploiters will be barred. Farmers and their families are cordially invited to attend. Altho no information is given as to the subject matter of his meetings promises are that he will deliver "the most important message the farmers have heard in years."

SOVIET RUSSIA DOES NOT USE AMERICAN METHODS ON GRAFTERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, Nov. 30.—Soviet Russia will not relax its campaign against graft and corruption, it was said following the execution on Saturday of twelve Russians who profited by the sale of quartermaster stores from the red army.

The drive against the alleged ring dealing in quartermaster supplies brought 123 persons before the courts. Besides the twelve who were executed, there were 93 who were given heavy prison sentences.

This is the largest number of executions ever carried out in Russia for this offense.

RUSSIAN UNIONS AND SCHOOLS IN CLOSE CONTACT

Students Belong to Unions in College

MOSCOW—(FP)—Students in the higher schools of the Soviet republic are generally organized in labor unions. There are some higher schools, such as the Higher Workers Schools (Rabfacs) to which only union men and women are admitted. In the technical colleges and universities students not in trade unions are a minority.

Membership is determined by the course the student takes. A student who studies medicine joins the health workers; a student of mechanical engineering joins the metal workers. Each student member pays 1% of his income to the union. In many cases the union is providing him with his entire income. Still he pays back his one per cent. (Adult workers in the shops and mines pay two per cent of their income to the union.)

Among the students in many of the higher educational institutions of the Soviet Republic the basic unit of organization is the union. In the agricultural university at Moscow, with its 3,000 students, except for about 300 peasant lads who have no union affiliation, the entire student body is organized in 6 unions: food workers; construction workers; sugar workers; metal workers; miners, and farm and forest workers. These groups hold mass meetings at least once in six months. At these meetings each union group elects its officers and delegates who elect an executive committee of 11 that has charge of all student activities at the university.

The basis of this entire student organization, with its central officers and subcommittee activities, are the trade unions to which practically all of the students belong.

When these young men and women graduate and enter on their trades, they are already familiar with labor union activities. They have been union members for years, and their cards are simply transferred from the university union to the local union with which they wish to affiliate.

BRITAIN WILL WIN TURKEY-IRAK DISPUTE

Serious Crisis May Follow Decision

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Nov. 30.—The league of nations commission to investigate the Mosul question has found in its unofficial report that "the Turks have persecuted the christians and have violated the Irak frontiers," it was learned here today.

The commission will arrive in Geneva at the end of the week and make its official report to the league council on December 7.

The unofficial report appears to make it certain that the league council will continue the British mandate over Irak, without a change of frontiers.

The Turks have already decided not to accept such a decision, and a serious crisis may easily arise.

Engineer Killed at Work.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 30.—Pinned beneath his engine as it left the tracks and rolled down a steep embankment, Tom Murphy of Iowa City, fifty, was instantly killed this morning in a derailment on the Rock Island railroad in Iowa City. Fireman C. S. Clark escaped injury.

STEALS FOR HIS BABY; DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR IN PENNSYLVANIA JAIL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Nov. 30.—Phillip A. Hartman, of Annville, Pa., died in the electric chair in the Western Pennsylvania prison here for the alleged murder of a state policeman. Hartman's so-called career started a little more than a year ago, when he is said to have robbed a filling station in Canton, Ohio, so that his baby, who since has died, might have food and medical attention.

FASCISTI MOB HENRI BARBUSSE

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Nov. 29.—Henri Barbusse, noted French author, who had accepted the invitation of the Roumanian boyar government to investigate the "trial" of the 500 Bessarabian peasants for their participation in the Tatarbounar uprising, was brutally beaten at the instigation of government officials by the Roumanian fascisti for declaring that he had not been allowed to see the accused peasants and hear their tale.

Several hundred young officers and cadets assaulted Barbusse following a lecture he had delivered in one of the halls here.

The leader of the mob was the fascist Barlogau, who is the chief official of the government press bureau. Upon Barbusse's arrival, Barlogau had welcomed him, but when Barbusse dared to expose that the military and government officials refused to allow him to speak to the peasants and that their invitation was a sham he organized this assault on the French writer.

PRESIDENT OF MINERS SAYS HE'LL ACCEPT PINCHOT'S PLAN OF SURRENDER TO COAL BARONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 30.—In spite of the basic demands of the strike of the union miners of the anthracite fields, to force the coal barons to pay a higher wage and to enforce the checkoff, President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America, in the name of the wage scale committees of Districts 1, 7 and 9, pledges himself to a strike settlement that will betray these miners.

President Lewis declares he is willing to sit down with the operators and tie the union down to a five-year agreement with the bosses, and that the matter of the wage increase be left to a board of award, which inside the next six months would decide whether the coal operators "can afford" to pay the miners higher wages. The betrayal is contained in a letter to Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, accepting the governor's program as a basis of settlement of the strike.

Would Relinquish Checkoff.

On the matter of the checkoff which is one of the demands that the miners went on strike to enforce and which also means that the operators recognize the union in the mines, Lewis accepted the governor's proposal which provides that any miner who wants to have his dues deducted from his pay envelope must make a written request that the union deduct his dues from his pay.

In spite of the declarations that Lewis made that he would not arbitrate the wage demands of the union miners that went on strike because he would be dickering over their lives, and their blood, in his letter he expresses his willingness to sit down with the bosses and dicker over the wages. A board of award cannot be expected to give the miners any increase in wages and this action of Lewis is placing the union at the mercy of the coal operators for five years.

Bosses Not Surprised.

When the operators heard of the action of Lewis, they declared that they "had expected it right along" and that they "were not surprised." The operators are holding a meeting at which they decide whether they will accept the proposals laid down by Pinchot as the basis for settlement of the strike.

Coal Barons Meet in Secret.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 30.—Members of the anthracite coal operators' scale committee went into secret session at one o'clock this afternoon at the Ritz-Carlton hotel to discuss Gov. Pinchot's proposal for the settlement of the coal strike, which was accepted by the miners.

NORWEGIAN FASCISTI ASK GOVERNMENT TO OUTLAW COMMUNISTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

OSLO, Norway, Nov. 30.—The Fedralandslaget, a Norwegian fascist organization, has sent the government a letter demanding that the Communist Party of Norway be declared an illegal organization.

Down With Arbitration!

By ALEX REID

Secretary Progressive Miners' Committee.

According to press reports John L. Lewis, authorized by the executive board of Districts 1, 7 and 9, has accepted the Pinchot terms, as a basis of settlement of the dispute between the miners and coal operators.

Mine-Owners Victory.

The proposed settlement, means that the miners return to work for the same wages, and working conditions which they had when they came out on strike, and their dispute be handed over to "impartial arbitrators." It is not yet known that the operators will accept the Pinchot proposal, but it is expected they will as it practically means a victory for the mine owners.

Arbitration is the dominant note thruout the governor's plan, and the fact that Lewis has accepted it,—after his many statements, that he would not arbitrate the lives and happiness of the coal diggers—shows to what extent the Lewis gang of treacherous union workers will go for peace in the industry, even tho that peace means the sacrifice of the miners meager demands.

Why the Charge Johnny?

John L. Lewis has pointed out that arbitration of the miners' food schooling and citizenship would not be tolerated by him or the union, "arbitration of the miners' wages means exactly that" and they would not be the victims of arbitration a second time.

The miners demand to know now why the Pinchot arbitration plan is accepted in face of the former arbitration denunciation by Lewis. We, the progressive miners, know why, and Lewis knows that we know.

Lewis Aided Operators.

John L. Lewis has contributed to the defeat of the anthracite miners by his permission to the maintenance men to work during the strike. The maintenance men have secured the coal-owners property during the strike, and have aided the coal owners to break the strike, by keeping the property in a condition that enabled the operators to wash and ship stock coal all during the shut down.

Lewis stands accused of betraying the miners by his acceptance of arbitration and his refusal to call out the maintenance men. The miners will have to act on this plan,—should the operators accept it, at a reconvened convention of the Tri-District miners.

Refuse Arbitration!

Miners! refuse to arbitrate your wages and conditions. If your demands were worth fighting for at the beginning, they are worth fighting for now. If Lewis was sincere in stating he would not arbitrate your lives and happiness at the beginning of the strike then he is a traitor now.

Call Out Maintenance Men!

Refuse arbitration, bring out the maintenance men at once, and fight for your demands. Demand the union officials stand by the Tri-District program and fight for the same.

Down with the arbitration!
One strike, all strike!
All maintenance men out!

More Moonshine Casualties.

Grahama, Ont., Nov. 30.—Raoul Stegermain, whisky-crazed, ran amuck here, shot and killed Mike Lascesco, railway laborer and William Lefebre, fur trader, and seriously wounded C. BATTLE OVER WORLD COURT UNAVOIDABLE

Borah Prepares to Lead Fight

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nov. 30.—The shadow of a great senate battle, every bit as bitter and as intensive as the memorable fight over the league of nations, began to loom today over the congress that meets next week.

It involves the question of American entrance into the world court. The leaders are worried because the battle may upset carefully laid plans in other directions—tax reductions, agricultural relief, etc.

To all intents and purposes, the battle is to be a replica of the league imbroglio. The elements for and against are largely the same, the arguments for and against are strikingly similar, the feeling on both sides is just as intense—and the veterans of that titanic conflict remember how the whole business of congress was thrown out of gear for months while the battle raged.

While surface indications point to the senate's agreeing to join the court on the terms contained in the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge program actually administration leaders are none too sanguine.

Borah Will Lead Fight.

Senator Wm. E. Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, has remained deaf to every entreaty that he abandon his intention of fighting the court to "the last ditch." For weeks the Idaho senator has been preparing for the issue, and he has drawn to his support the same indomitable band of league foes who overcame seemingly the same great odds in the league fight.

The anti- courters found a forceful ally in Representative George H. Tinkham, republican of Massachusetts, representing the woolen industry, who altho a supporter of Pres. Coolidge in almost every other respect, differs violently with the administration's espousal of the court.

Tinkham announced he would introduce on the opening day of congress a resolution providing for the establishment of an impartial international tribunal and the codification by it of international law.

As at present constituted, he said, the court could be compelled to sanction the French war on Syria, the Franco-Spanish war against the Riffs, and as a subscriber to the court, the United States would be morally bound to support those decisions.

St. Paul Labor Has I. L. D. Conference

I. L. D. News Service.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30—Several trade union locals and workers' fraternal organizations participated in the first conference of the International Labor Defense held in St. Paul, Minn. last week.

Organizations that sent delegates are: Workmens' Circle No. 573; Workmens' Sick and Death Benefit Society; Ladies Auxiliary Workmens' Circle; Ladies Farmer-Labor Educational Club; Housewives Union No. 1; Jewish National Workers' Allience; Local No. 65 National Federation of Postal Clerks; Capmakers Uunion Local No. 10; Electrical Workers No. 110; Brotherhood of Railway Clerks No. 2068; Painters Local Union No. 61; Barbers Union No. 31; Amalgamated Clothing Workers Joint Board; Machinist No. 459; Bakers and Confectionery Workers and Switchmen No. 31 in addition to several branches of the International Labor Defense.

The conference decided to send a copy of the constitution of the International Labor Defense to all the unions participating in the conference. A provisional committee consisting of the following was appointed with instructions to issue a call for another conference in the near future at which a permanent organization would be formed: A. B. Krenge, Painters No. 61; Nick Unger of Workmens' Sick and Death Benefit Fund; O. L. Johnson, Electrical Workers No. 110; Fred Stienel,. Machinists No. 459 and Sam Wolfe of the International Labor Defense.

U. S. GOVERNMENT LENDING ALL AID TO BREAK THE ANTHRACITE STRIKE AND DESTROY THE UNION

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.—Unless the Lewis administration in the United Mine Workers has courage and honesty enough to launch a general bituminous coal strike that will call out not only the unionized miners, but also the non-union miners in the unorganized fields, which the union must at the same time organize and support, the union will in the next six months face a crushing defeat worse than they have ever experienced.

What is this situation?

First, the biggest bituminous operators in western Pennsylvania—Mellon, Berwind, Rockefeller and Schwab, who signed and then tore up the Jacksonville wage contract—have put their mines on a company union basis during the past few months. One year ago the western Pennsylvania field asked the interstate commerce commission to grant it lower freight rates to the New England and upper lakes market.

Later, Rep. Robinson of Kentucky, a nonunion operator, was permitted by the commission—in violation of ordinary procedure—to joint the suit with a like demand for the nonunion fields of Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia.

Slemp, Coolidge's then secretary, was a Virginia operator in this "smokeless bituminous" group. The commission in mid-September, granted lower rates to market to the non-union fields, and refused to take action on the western Pennsylvania unionized field.

Now the case has been renewed with a demand for further reductions for the Kentucky-West Virginia nonunion field, and for a reduction in rate for the western Pennsylvania field in which company unions have replaced regular U. M. W. A. recognition. Big lawyers for the Mellon-Rockefeller-Schwab-Berwind crowd are in Washington, confident that now they will get their lower freight rates.

Second, big anthracite operators are releasing their own coal cars for use in the western Pennsylvania bituminous field. Ivy Lee, press agent for both anthracite and bituminous operators, leaves no doubt that the anthracite operators are encouraging the talk about a boycott of their product.

They sit tight, waiting for the solidly-unionized miners in the anthracite field to be starved into surrender of the union. Millions of dollars are being poured by the anthracite operators into the campaign of hate-publicity against the U. M. W. A.

Third, Herbert Hoover, who has been credited with selecting the member of the interstate commerce commission who has turned the trick to subsidize the non-union coal by freight rate favors, is keeping mum. The members of the staff of the late coal commission have largely been given jobs by the bituminous operators.

He has three men—Wadleigh, Eyre Hunt and Dewey, watching every turn in the game, and all the while he has cultivated the American Federation of Labor with his invitations for discussion of "efficiency" in production of goods. Hoover is hailed by the bituminous operators as the business genius of the century. And steadily and quietly the encircling and crushing process closes upon the miners' organizations. The question is: Will Lewis call a general strike?

BUILDING TRADES UNIONS PAY NO HEED TO BOSSES

40-Hour Week Next Step to Win

CHICAGO—(FP)—Not even the dignity of an official answer is accorded by the Chicago building trades council to the resolutions adopted last week by the conference in Chicago of the National Assn. of Building Trades employers. The employers resoluted against wage increases, against the 40-hour week, against the union apprentice systems and against alleged slowing up of work under union rules, which in most cases safeguard the quality and safety of construction work.

Wage increases in Chicago come in spite of resolutions, federal statistics show. Bricklayers have a scale of $1.50 an hour compared with $1.25 in 1920 and $.75 in 1913. Electrical workers show the same increases. Painters show $1.50 for 1925, $1.25 for 1920 and $.65 for 1913. Carpenters show $1.25, $1.25 and $.65; plumbers $1.25, $1.25 and $.75 for the corresponding years. At the same time several investigations have shown profits of material firms and of contractors rising out of all proportion to the wage increases.

The 40-hour week is the next step after the 44-hour week which is now practically universal in the Chicago building trades. Though no union in the Chicago district has the 40-hour term it is being recognized, particularly for painters, in a number of contracts with employers elsewhere. With employers taking weekend vacations from Friday noon to Tuesday morning a 40-hour 5-day week for actual workers, who are producing more now than ever before, will soon become a matter of course.

The union apprentice systems guarantee adequately trained craftsmen. The building trade schools maintained by openshop employers to turn out plasterers and plumbers in 6 weeks are ridiculed even by the bosses, whose experience with them on the job is of the never-again variety.

"The association passing these resolutions is a national organization," says Secy. Conroy of the building trades council, "composed of both union and nonunion contractors. We have found that our union work advances best by ignoring such findings."

WHITE SOUTH SHOCKED BY CONVICTION

"Right" to Murder Any Negro in Danger

NEW ORLEANS—(FP)—For the first time in the history of the courts of New Orleans a white man has been found guilty of the murder of a Negro. Southerners stand aghast at the jury that dared render such a verdict.

About a year ago Frank De Rocha, a white blacksmith entered a street car near the naval station with several companions after a night out. In a rear seat were two peaceful Negro citizens, Ernest and Joseph Baptiste, on their way to work. De Rocha, remarking that he felt "like killing a couple of niggers this morning," drew a revolver and fired point blank. Joseph Baptiste was killed at the first shot. Ernest, the brother, begged the white man not to shoot again, when De Rocha fired again at Ernest who died a few hours later.

The state's attorney asked for a conviction without capital punishment. Efforts are being made to appeal and carry the case to the supreme court to prevent a precedent that it is unsafe for a white man to kill a Negro in the south.

Russian Selskosoyus Buys Sowing Materials to Improve All Crops

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—During the coming season the Selskosoyus will extend its work in purchasing sowing materials. According to statistics in hand, seed operations during the present year will be on a large scale. In connection with the transfer to the many field system and improved methods of agriculture, the demands of the peasants for seed cereals and improved sowings of that crops will be increased.

The Selskosoyus has signed contracts for 500,000 rubles worth of seed cereals and 250,000 rubles worth of seed wheat. The purchase of picked seeds is conducted by the Selskosoyus thru cooperative seed rearing societies and state seed farms.

During the last season the Selskosoyus granted the peasants 78,000 rubles of the profits from seed operations.

DETROIT'S RACE HATE VICTIMS GET NEW TRIAL

Eight Negro Defendants Out on Bail

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—The trial of Dr. Ossian H. Sweet and 10 co-defendants for the alleged murder of Leon F. Breiner, a member of the mob that stoned and fired on the Sweet residence here, has resulted in a disagreement of the jury and the granting of a new trial. After being out for over 46 hours, the jury was discharged as it was unable to agree. On one of the last ballots, the jury stood 11 to 1 for acquittal.

To Have New Trial.

Upon the jury being dismissed, a motion was made for a new trial, which has been set for the first week in January. The defense intends to have separate trials for each of the defendants if it can be arranged.

Eight of the defendants are now out on ball of $5,000 each and arguments will be made on December 2 to have the remaining three Negro defendants released on bail.

Makes Eloquent Appeal.

Dr. Sweet, whose home was stoned and fired upon by the mob, in an eloquent appeal to the jury and those present in the court-room showed the discriminations practised against the Negroes in the United States and called upon those present to work for the elimination of persecutions of men because their skins are not of one shade.

Klan Festers Prejudice.

The ku klux klan, which was one of the contenders in the recent mayoralty fight here, did all that it could to work up a prejudice against the Negro defendants and have them convincted of murder in the first degree and to have them pay the extreme penalty of the law.

While the trial was in progress, someone set fire to Dr. Sweet's garage.

Attempts were made continually thruout the entire trial to influence the jury by klansmen, who were determined that these Negroes, who were attacked and their lives threatened by a mob, should hang for the alleged murder of Breimer.

Attorney Denounces Horthy for Denial of Counsel to Rakosi

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 30.—All reports of the human treatment of the revolutionary workers arrested in connection with the Rakosi affair and about the observation of the legal regulations on the part of the authorities, which have been spread by the government, are pure lies. In order to calm down the protests of the international working class the Bethlen government published the deceptive news that Comrade Rakosi had made a statement to his lawyer to the effect that he was not in the least tortured, but on the contrary treated politely and humanly.

In the telegram the name of some lawyer, the alleged defender of Rakosi, was mentioned. Now since the Hungarian hangmen have showed their true faces and have expressed their intention to try the arrested according to all rules of martial law, the defender of Comrade Rakosi, the lawyer Dr. Zoltan Lengyel (a right wing bourgeois advocate) declares in public in all bourgeois papers that he had not yet seen or spoken to Rakosi. He protests against the fact that the trial will take place without he having been able to look into the material and he brands the fact that he is compelled to defend a man, whose accusation he will hear for the first time in the trial.

From this can be seen clearly that the Horthy bandits intend to hang Rakosi and his comrades.

Soviet Russia Plans to Develop Agriculture

MOSCOW, U. S. S. A.—The people's commissariat for agriculture has decided to organize during the new economic year 13 factories and 30 flax picking stations for flax and hemp and also seed farms for flax and hemp with and area of 5,000 dessiatins. 2,600,000 rubles have been granted for these enterprises.

The finance commissariat has been able to satisfy the request of the Agricultural Bank of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic for increasing its capital from 3,000,000 rubles to 10,000,000 rubles.

The Agricultural Bank of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic proposes granting 2,000,000 rubles for the supply of agricultural machinery and 325,000 rubles for land distributon.

According to a plan of the agricultural commissariat, 15,600 tractors are to be distributed thruout the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic in addition to a considerable quantity of tractor accessories.

American Workers Must Give Heed to the Plea of Porto Rican Labor

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, another cry of misery comes up out of Porto Rico, called "a military possession under the war department" of the United States. If the American colonies suffered in the 18th century under the alien lash of British tyranny, as they surely did, then the endured agony of Porto Ricans today passes all understanding. If revolution was justifiable in 1776 for the colonists, then the downtrodden and bitterly exploited Porto Ricans have every cause to rebel now.

• • • •

The protest of the Porto Ricans still takes the form of petitions to Washington, D. C. It is significant, however, that it is in great part inspired by the organized industrial workers of the island. A petition of redress of grievances, signed by 13,000 Porto Ricans, has just been handed to President Coolidge, coming from the Free Federation of Workingmen.

It is merely requested that the president appoint a commission to study conditions in the island and make recommendations to congress on improving the situation, economically and politically. It is a small demand. Yet is is doubtful if it will be complied with. American imperialism is quite satisfied with conditions as they exist in the nation's island dependencies, especially in Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. Labor organizations may be outlawed; workers seeking better conditions may be murdered by the forces of "law and order"; the whole population may be degraded, but all that is of no consequence as long as the absentee profiteers receive their dividends regularly. No count is kept of the toll in blood, pain and tears. Even to investigate might expose the rottenness.

• • • •

The petition of the islanders declares:

> "The resources of our land are absorbed and controlled in such a form that the Porto Rican people are practically organized and constituted just like a factory worked by industrial slaves."

That shows that the Porto Ricans have at least attained the beginnings of wisdom. They realize their condition. That is greater progress than masses workers in the United States have made. This realization of their degradation has come to them in spite of the fact that

> "Heavy dividends paid stockholders in the United States and Europe does not leave sufficient revenue for educational and health activities . . . with the result that thousands of children die annually from anemia, tuberculosis, malaria and other diseases, and 50,000 children have been deprived of an education."

• • • •

Let the workers and poor farmers in the state realize that this picture, presented to them by the Porto Ricans, mirrors the conditions that American exploiters would inflict on them if they could. It is what they will attempt; are attempting.

On the island four-fifths of the working population are without permanent employment. Oppressive taxes have increased the cost of living 25 per cent. The rich dodge taxes, according to the best schemes of Secretary of the Treasury Andy Mellon, among them the sales tax. A dictatorship ruled at the polls in last November's elections, disfranchising the workers. Laws prevent fraudulent elections being challenged, even in the capitalist courts.

This is the condition of the Porto Ricans after four centuries of suffering as colonials of a foreign imperialism. They protest against American misrule just as they fought the Spanish tyranny. Their cause is that of the whole American working class, that suffers today under the Wall Street oligarchy. The Porto Ricans ask that the island "be considered as part of the United States with the full rights of national life." But that will not free them from their misery. They must cast in their lot with the workers in "the states" for the complete abolition of the profit system and the inauguration of Soviet rule that struggles for the emancipation of all oppressed, in the colonies and in the homeland.

WIRELESS OPERATORS STRIKE 5,000 STRONG, TYING UP MANY SHIPS

LONDON, Nov. 30—Several of the largest Atlantic liners were held up Sunday in consequence of a strike of wireless operators belonging to the Association of Wireless and Cable Telegraphists, which controls nearly 5,000 wireless operators on land and sea.

The strike, which was provoked by a suggestion of a reduction in wages, began with the placing of pickets in the shipping offices. The strikers count on the unlikelihood of the liners being allowed to leave port at this time of the year without wireless operators.

Professor Attacks Ban on Teaching Evolution

Professor Fairchild Osborne, president of the American Museum of Natural History made a plea for a more liberal attitude toward the teaching of evolution in the United States before the convention of the Association of colleges and secondary schools of the middle states and Maryland, being held in New York.

He said the recent hysteria against the teaching of evolution was a loss to education and told of his recent journey thru Nebraska where even in the state university a "hush" is put on the sound of the word evolution. In the public schools the word may not be used at all. "No teacher in the whole state of Nebraska is free to be sincere," he said.

Storm Hits Towns in Italy.

NAPLES, Nov. 30.—A terrific storm has devastated the town of Bagnara, in Calabria, near the Strait of Messina. The nearby port of Monteleone Di Calabria also suffered heavily. The force of the storm was also felt in Sicily and the province of Calabria.

Steel Trust Determined to "Get" Fred Merrick

(I. L. D. News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 30.—Fred Merrick, a member of the Workers (Communist) Party who was indicted under the Pennsylvania sedition act in 1923 on a charge of having distributed circulars announcing a May Day celebration of the Workers (Communist) Party will go to trial in the Alleghany county superior court at Pittsburgh on Nov. 30. Merrick is the first of nine others to stand trial. Funds are being raised by the International Labor Defense for this trial.

Merrick is well known thruout Pennsylvania for his activities in the progressive wing of the trade union movement. He served a term in the workhouse for a speech made to the Westinghouse company strikers in 1917, and another jail term previously for publishing advice to workers to violate an anti-free-speech ordinance.

Steel Trust Victim.

Many local trade unionists, frankly admit that it is their belief that Merrick is being persecuted for his activity in efforts to unionize the workers in the citadel of the open shop movement, the United States steel trust and its subsidiary coal holdings.

DEAD CHILEAN CAUSES BREAK IN COMMITTEE

Chile May Appeal to League of Nations

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Nov. 30.—From the censored dispatches arriving from the Arica region, it appears that the dead Chilean carabinero over whom ex-President Allesandri spoke in a funeral ceremony that was a vitriolic attack against the United States as a disturber and an inciter of discord, was killed at Chayavinto in a clash between unnamed forces and Chilean boundary guards.

Expose Brings Break.

The sub-committee on boundaries of the plebiscite commission, broke up Friday when an expose of the clash at Chayavinto was made in a signed statement of the Chilean commandant, Col. Louis Marchand Gonzales, published in El Pacifico.

The Peruvian delegate on the boundary sub-committee, moved for an "investigation" by the committee, which was perfectly agreeable to General Morrow, the American member. But the Chilean member, Senor Greve, feeling that the committee was packed against any fair investigation, insisted that it had no jurisdiction. When Morrow and the Peruvian, Col. Ordonez, voted that the committee had the power to act, the Chilean withdrew.

May Defy Monroe Doctrine.

Chile claims the plebiscite is being hampered and delayed while American troops and ships occupy the territory and the coast, and they declare that unless a plebiscite is held soon Chile will appeal to the league of nations. This would be a major move of diplomacy, since the United States might find itself and its nice little Monroe doctrine in a head-on collision with the "interference" of the league of nations.

Czar's Victims Call on Workers to Unite Against Bourgeoisie

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—The conference in Moscow of the one-time political prisoners and exiles, adopted a resolution in the name of the association whose members have spent a total of 10,286 years in prison in the struggle against the czar and in whose ranks are fighters of the Paris Commune and pioneers of the Russian revolution, calling upon the international proletariat, the intellectuals and all honest people to force the bourgeois governments to cease political persecutions, and to do everything in their power to save Rakosi and the other Hungarian revolutionaries from the danger of death.

Soviet Union Takes Steps to Teach Trades to Young in Ukraine

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The central commission for aid to children attached to the all-Ukrainian central executive committee is drawing up a plan for the complete liquidation of vagrancy among children in the Ukraine, during the next three years. It has been decided to place the children in agricultural colonies, in factories and workshops and in special juvenile homes where they will be taught handicraft work, and also to open ten new permanent children's receiving stations, 15 children's homes and 15 agricultural colonies.

Russian Soviets Plan to Build More Shops

MOSCOW, Nov. 30.—In view of the fact that we shall soon have arrived at a point when all existing factories will have been utilized to the full, it will be necessary to proceed with the construction of new factories and works in Soviet Russia. Thus, for example, in Stalingrad a tractor factory will be built with an annual output of 10,000 tractors; in the Urals a wagon factory with an annual production of 5,000 wagons; in the central industrial district a factory for textile machines with an annual output of 6,000 weaving looms. Further, it is planned to build five large iron foundries in the various ore districts and in the Donetz territory eight new coal pits are in preparation.

COMMUNIST PARTY TO REDOUBLE ACTIVITIES IN GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 30.—In a manifesto issued by the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party of Great Britain following the sentencing of twelve Communists in "Old Bailey," the committee shows that the capitalist class of England encouraged by the decisions of the Liverpool labor party conference against the active Communist workers, have attempted to destroy the Communist movement in England.

The manifesto calls upon the Communists to redouble their activities in the trade unions, local labor parties and in the factories in order to defeat the aims of the capitalist class of Britain.

AMERICAN AVIATORS ATTEMPT TO JUSTIFY MURDER OF RIFF BABIES

PARIS, Nov. 30.—Colonel Charles Sweeney and Captain Lansing Holden, members of the American mercenary Sheriffian escadrille that has mercilessly bombed Riffian villages killing hundreds of innocent women and babies, are attempting to justify their warfare on the Riffs.

These mercenaries claim that they did not wear the American uniform nor did they earn more than "moderate" pay and that they were not "baby killers."

When confronted with evidence that they had killed hundreds of babies during their bombings of villages in the Moroccan mountains, these hirelings fo French miperialism attempted to justify their actions by saying: "We went because we wanted to serve France. The basis of the charge that we bombed women and children was our 'half-dozen' attacks on Chechaouen, Abd-el-Krim's revictualment center. WE WERE ONLY ACTING ON ORDERS, AS GOOD SOLDIERS SHOULD."

SAWMILL WORKERS POORLY PAID WHILE WAGES ARE HIGHER IN STATES WHERE I. W. W. FOUGHT

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The hypocrisy of the attempt to justify high lumber prices on the pretext of high wages in the industry is exposed in a U. S. department of labor survey of wages and hours in sawmills thruout the country. Only in northwestern states where the I. W. W. influence has been felt is there an approach to decent standards. Elsewhere extremely low wages prevail with conditions considerably worse than in 1919-20. The International Union of Timberworkers, the A. F. of L. organisation, surrendered its charter and disbanded in 1923.

Average $17 a Week.

The average wage of sawmill laborers, about 60 per cent of all the employes, is $17.77 a week. This means less than $900 if they can get a full year's work. It is approximately 10 per cent below 1919 and only 71 per cent above 1913.

Lumping all sawmill workers together, hourly earnings in 1925 are 78 per cent above prewar while fulltime weekly earnings are only 68 per cent above that level, due to some reduction in hours. The advance since 1913 falls considerably short both of the wage advance in other occupations and the increase in living costs. From 1923 to 1925 sawmill wages fell.

The average hours per week, earnings per hour and earnings per week of common labor in sawmills of 16 lumber producing states in 1925 were:

Saw Mill Labor	Hours	Per hour	Per week
Aalabama	60.4	20.1c	$12.14
Arkansas	60.3	25.1c	15.14
California	56.4	44.8c	25.27
Florida	60.0	24.2c	14.52
Georgia	60.2	18.8c	11.32
Louisiana	60.7	24.3c	14.75
Maine	57.4	31.5c	18.08
Minnesota	60.2	35.8c	21.52
Mississippi	59.7	24.0c	14.33
N. Carolina	60.2	21.8c	12.82
Oregon	48.0	48.6c	23.33
S. Carolina	60.6	17.3c	10.48
Tennessee	57.9	26.3c	15.23
Texas	60.3	25.9c	15.62
Virginia	59.9	24.6c	14.75
Washington	48.1	47.8c	22.99
Wisconsin	59.4	34.9c	20.73

Sometimes They Do!

The contrast between the Pacific northwest and the south stands out in the table. Sawmill workers have the 48-hour week in Oregon, Washington and Idaho and the 50-hour week in Montana. Elsewhere with the exception of California anl Maine the week is approximately 60 hours.

Similarly, the hourly wage of sawmill labor is 45c an hour or more in the Pacific northwest but runs as low as 17.3c in South Carolina. In spite of materially shorter hours common labor in the mills gets about twice as much for a week's work in California, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington as in the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama. The $10.48 earnings in South Carolina mean less than $500 a year compared with $1,200 for a full year's work in California or Oregon.

Sixty Per Cent Surbey.

These figures cover 60 per cent of the jobs in lumber mills thruout the country. The number of skilled workers in the industry is small. At the top are the head sawyers whose hourly earnings range from 66.9c an hour in Pennsylvania to $1.14 in Washington with an average of 77.7c. The weekly earnings of head sawyers average $50.60, compared with $17.77 a week of three-fifths of all sawmill workers.

OPERATORS' VIOLATION OF JACKSONVILLE PACT APPROVED BY PA. COURT

CLARION, Pa., Nov. 30.—In the most sweeping injunction ever granted by a court in this state officers and members of local unions No. 1305, 1859 and 2342, United Mine Workers of America, are enjoined from interfering with the operations of the Acme Gas Coal company. The plaintiff's bill of complaint states that the defendants have combined to coerce and intimidate officers and men in its employ. The Acme company is operating its mines on a scale of wages in violation of the Jacksonville agreement.

And these are the courts to which Coolidge suggested the union apply for "redress of grievances" if the contract was broken.

Coolidge Interested in Cutting Our Wage

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(FP)—Business lobbyists in the capital are informed that President Coolidge is much interested in the program adopted by New England business interests in conference at Worcester, Mass., Nov. 17 and 18, at which it was decided that wages must come down and hours of labor must be increased.

No representatives of organized labor were present at the conference. It was summoned to discuss the problem of "putting New England on its feet." With much enthusiasm the business spokesmen agreed to organize permanent committees to "carry on." Federal department had been invited to send representatives to advise on ways and means, but they were not needed.

GERMAN VISITORS GUESTS OF HOOCH BREWERS OF N. Y.

Hospitality of A. F. of L. Warms Tarnow

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 30—The German labor delegation which visited the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor and toured the country to learn all the kinks of the American labor fakers in becoming business men, bankers and to learn how to put the "B. & O. plan" of class collaboration over on the German workers, has sailed for Germany after a thoro study of the city of New York.

Needed a Boat.

The Germans were given a cruise around the port of New York on the city's own yacht, the Macom, and were banqueted and feted by the Central Trades and Labor Council. Having spent considerable time learning how to put across what might be called the "Dawes Plan for the Working Class"—the collaborationist "B & O. Plan," the Germans were diverted by a trip thru the city's shady circles and illegal haunts of rum-rings.

The A. F. of L. "news" service, always amusing if not informative, gives the following account of the German's "slumming" expedition:

"Among their most interesting experiences was an inspection of the functioning of the prohibition enforcement law. They visited underground 'speak-easies', saw distilleries of hooch and cellars where high power beer was brewed."

Was Fritz Joking?

Continuing the account our amiable compatriots of the A. F. of L. bureaucracy glides smoothly into quotations from Fritz Tarnow, head of the German delegation; and we must say that either Fritz Tarnow spoke sardonically or was using a frankness comprehensible only after a tour of distilleries under guidance by A. F. of L. bureaucrats when Fritz got out the following:

"We have experienced the generous hospitality of the American labor movement. We visited the headquarters of all the important unions and witnessed the delegates of the A. F. of L. at work in Atlantic city. We know the spirit of the American workers and the source of their economic strength."

Inspired by this tribute to their powers, the A. F. of L. "news" article goes on to say that the Germans were amazed to see the "damage" Communism has wrought to the German organizations in America, "finishing", they say, "what prohibition began."

With this lugubrious note the Germans were given a fond farewell and sailed away with a "B. & O. plan" for German workers to the land of tall beers and Barmats.

Soldiers' Union of Austria Refused to Scab on Strikers

VIENNA—(FP)—Doctors as well as soldiers are included in the trade union field in Austria. When a general strike of state employes was threatened recently, the soldiers union declared its solidarity in case of a strike and announced that it would refuse to do any scab work. Now the hospital doctors union is announcing that it will call a strike if the government puts through the working rules it has in view.

Textile Workers' United Front Committee Opens Lawrence Headquarters

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LAWRENCE, Mass. Nov. 30.—The United Front Committee of Textile Workers of Lawrence opened its new headquarters at 206 Essex St. The united front committee was started in January 1925 for the purpose of amalgamating all existing textile unions and to organize the unorganized. Most of its activities has been organizing the workers in the Pacific mill of which there are now nearly 650, all paying their weekly dues of 10c, collected in the mill. Every one of these workers were unorganized.

The loomfixers of the American Federation of Textile Operatives are cooperating with the United Front Commitee being affiliated by sending delegates. The Franco-Belgians are continuing there active support. The Andover textile workers who were recently on strike at Smith and Doves are holding their own.

At the last meeting of the United Front Committee held Sunday afternoon Nov. 22 in Loomfixer's Hall decided to support the Italian workers in holding an international demonstration against the fascisti, in the Winter Garden theater.

LABOR DISPUTES START TO BREAK FAITH IN DAWES

Wonderful "Plan" Is Found to Be N. G.

BERLIN—(FP)—Lockouts, strikes and dismissals are the order of the day in Germany's important industries. They are the result of a rise in the cost of living and the united resistance of the employers to a corresponding raise in wages. The situation is in nearly every case forced by the employers, who take advantage of some small local dispute to declare a general lockout. The chemical, glass, textile and metal industries are chiefly affected, but trouble is also threatening in the coal industry and on the railroads, where the employers are showing hostility to the modest demands of the workers.

About 150,000 workers are involved in the various disputes. In the textile industry 30,000 workers are locked out in North Bavaria and Hanover, and 16,000 in lower Saxony. 35,000 chemical workers are involved in lockouts in the Rhine-Main area and 25,000 in Bavaria. 25,000 glass workers are out in a bitter struggle for the 8-hour day, and metal workers in different districts have been walking off the job after eight hours work. The reply of the employers has been lockouts and wholesale dismissals.

In North Bavaria an arbitration award granting a 54-hour week to textile workers, 60% of whom are women, and a small increase on overtime rates was accepted by the union but rejected by the employers who thereupon locked out 24,000 workers. In North Bavaria a 25-year-old textile worker earns less than 12c an hour—about $7 a week. Women and younger workers earn even less.

On the railroads, which have been turned over to private hands under the Dawes plan, the employers are attempting to play off one district against another, but negotiations are now under way among the workers for a national series of demands to cover all grades. The 8-hour day has for some time been abolished on the railroads, as well as in the mining and many other industries.

BRITISH UNIONS' AMALGAMATION BUILDS POWER

Get Single Union with Million Members

LONDON—(FP)—A single union with over 1,000,000 members from many different trades and industries is forecast by Ernest Bevin, secretary Transport & General Workers union, when amalgamations now proceeding or under discussion take effect. Such a union would result from the amalgamation of the National Union of General & Municipal workers and the Workers' Union with Bevin's union.

Following on the decision of the National Union of Enginemen, Firemen, Mechanic & Electrical workers to amalgamate, a possible amalgamation of the Electrical Trades union with Bevin's is under discussion by the two executives. Further amalgamations seem to be in the air. The Industrial Alliance, of whose provisional committee Bevin is also the secretary, has experienced a setback in the withdrawal of the National Union of Railwaymen but is ready to be definitely launched early next year.

The final draft of the alliance constitution has been approved by the executives of the unions concerned, with the exception of the National Union of Railwaymen, and the alliance will be launched as soon as the draft has been submitted to the membership and the changes necessary in the constitutions of the individual unions have been made.

The reason for the withdrawal of the N. U. R. is that its proposed amendments have been rejected. The chief of these was that unions in the same industry should prepare schemes for fusion, and where this is not practicable hold periodical meetings to secure a united policy. The N. U. R., which is an approach to an industrial union, wished to give the alliance a definitely industrial unionist basis, while the other unions have decided that unity on the whole industrial field is a more immediate necessity than unity by industry.

The organization of factory and general workers, a field which is practically untouched in America, has brought new problems in Europe. The great bulk of the organized workers are not craftsmen, and industrial unionism has long been a guiding principle and the issue now is industrial unionism or one-big-unionism. The factory and general workers have not been organized by industrial unions but by big general workers unions—in England the National Union of Transport & General workers, and the Workers' Union, operating on the one big union principle and organizing any and every worker regardless of craft or industry.

This has led to overlapping, and organizational rivalries found expression at the Scarborough congress when the General Workers' Union called for one big union, declaring that industrial unionism was not enough, while some industrial unionists opposed, considering that the embryo O.B.U.s (the General Workers' Union) poach on industrial union preserves.

Detroit Union Joins Support of Struggle for Chinese Freedom

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 30.—The voice raised by the Detroit local of the Patternmakers Union in defense of their fellow workers in China, clearly demonstrates that the vision of the workers is broadening and embracing other races and nationalities, despite the traditional short-sightedness of the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor, who can see no further than their own shores. The resolution on China follows:

"Be it resolved that we do hereby pledge our support to the Chinese people and the workers in particular, and be it further resolved that we approve of the fight for freedom against wage slavery and domination by foreign powers."

This union is not the only one that has passed this resolution of solidarity. The Chinese are battling against terrible odds to free themselves, and unions in Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul and many other cities have passed similar resolutions and have contributed to the maintenance of food stations in the affected areas of China by the International Workers Aid.

HINDU TEXTILE STRIKE AIDED BY RED UNIONS

British Workers Join in Assistance

LONDON—(FP)—An urgent appeal for funds to help the Hindu textile strikers has been issued by the British Trades Union congress, which has already sent $1,500 on its own behalf. These 153,000 Bombay strikers, facing a cut of 11½% in wages which range from $2 to $3 a week, are dependent on the solidarity of their fellow workers in other countries. Apart altogether from humanitarian reasons, European textile workers know that they must help the Hindu textile workers if they are to safeguard their own standards, for the competition of sweated Asiatic labor has already hit them. The largest contribution from European labor has been that of the Russian textile union which sent $5,000.

The strike began Sept. 15 with the walkout of 13,000 workers and spread rapidly and now 153,000 are involved. The last telegram from India states "the workers are feeling the pinch of starvation." Many have been evicted from the chawls (tenements rented from the millowners) and thousands of them are still waiting for wages due as far back as August. A big migration from the city back to the land is reported from Bombay, and 50% of the strikers are reported to have left, most of them former peasants.

A trade union delegation elected by the jute and flax workers of Dundee, Scotland, has gone to India to investigate. The Dundee workers are especially hit by the competition from the sweated labor of India.

SHOULD OPPOSE TOBIN WITHIN HIS OWN UNION

Must Unite Withdrawn Locals for Re-Entry

By A Worker Correspondent

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 30.—It is regrettable that progressives, working to build up an organization and having honest intention in regard to trade union work, find no way out of the corruption that the reactionary machine spreads in the organization, but to withdraw from the organisation. It is regrettable, for the ultimate aim of all trade unionists must be to have a unified movement with a single aim: to fight against the employers and to break the power of the employers.

The situation in the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers has driven the biggest locals out of the organisation. The Cleveland locals are not alone in their secession from the brotherhood. The big locals in New York and other large cities are outside the brotherhood—and all of them are determined not to affiliate again with the brotherhood. They are determined that the dues and other increment of the brotherhood shall be used for building up and not destroying the organization.

Should Not Be Isolated.

These locals outside the brotherhood should not be left in their present state. That is to say, they should not be isolated locals carrying on their work individually. They must coordinate their work, so as to add strength to the local organizations. This can best be achieved by an effort being made to bring these locals together in some form. A conference of delegates of these locals should be held at which united action should be decided on.

The purpose of the conference should be to coordinate the activities of the locals outside the brotherhood, to build them up, and to formulate plans whereby as a united group they may return to the brotherhood and take control of it.

Dan Tobin can brag about his organization and he can slander the locals, without the teamsters, chauffeurs etc. outside the local organization learning anything about it. If the various locals thruout the country should unite their efforts not only to build up their locals, to gain strength by united action, but also to organise the many trades that still are outside their scope, a new organizational force would result that would compel Tobin to come to terms.

To Build the Union.

He no longer will be the all-powerful czar of the craft, but will be forced to get off his throne and yield to the pressure of the rank and file for a united organization embracing all the men thruout the country in the trade. New leadership will result, fighting for the interests of the workers, not selling them out and carrying on questionable activities that receive the support and approval of the reactionary machine.

WAITERS' HEAD OFFICER DUE; PROGRESSIVE UNIONISTS ASK ORGANIZATION OF BIG HOTELS

George McElroy, international president of the Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union, is coming to Chicago early in December.

What attitude will he take toward the present scab condition of the majority of hotel workers and toward the Chicago federation for its sabotage of whatever efforts have been made to organize the unorganised? This is what local progressive members of the waiters' union are anxious to find out.

Built by Building Unions.

Altho most of the Chicago hotels were built by union labor and altho the building trades council had jurisdiction over the construction of five huge new hotels within the past few months, the Sovereign, Beldon, Cooper-Carlton, Sisson and Belmont, nevertheless, not one of the these "union-made" structures employs anything but scab help in the dining rooms.

Unionization of the Morrison Hotel dining room was recently attempted by the waiters' union, due to the fact that huge additions had just been added to their structure at Clark and Madison by union building tradesmen. Otherwise the hotel was "open-shop" except in one department. Because one department is unionized, this hotel makes a practice of catering to union conventions.

Bright Idea.

Instead of trying to force further unionization of this hotel, however, John Fitzpatrick advised the waiters not to put up a fight, as "it recognizes us in a degree." "Try to unionize the waiters where no department has any union help at all," he suggested affably.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST - - -

By L. Heller

ARTICLE I.

NEVER, since the Boxer uprising, has China been to such an extent, the center of political attention of the entire world as during the last three months. London and New York, Tokio and Moscow, have been watching with a close eye the developments in Shanghai and Hongkong, have been listening hard to the booming of cannon in China.

Only important wars attract so much public interest. Yet is it a mere strike of some 300,000 workers (200,000 in Shanghai, and 120,000 in Hongkong) that is responsible for it now. Why then do the headlines of the world's press cling so persistently to the events in Shanghai? Why such a troubled air among the honorables of the lower house and the noble lords of the upper house, who have devoted more than one sitting of parliament and committee meetings to the Shanghai strike? Why this overwhelming interest, these passionate sympathies for the Shanghai workers on the part of the workers and peasants of the U. S. S. R. and of the entire world proletariat?

THE answer lies not only in that China for the last few years has become a most important junction in which the fundamental problems of international politics collide and cross. This is not new. New is the fact that the Chinese masses have become a nation, acting as a unit, as a single body thruout the breadth and width of that vast country.

New is the fact that the leader of the movement is not the radical intelligentzia, the student body as has been the case in the past five years, but the working class. And new is the fact that the workers' strike has become the backbone of the entire nationalist emancipation movement, the fact that the supremacy of the proletariat in this movement has been recognized by the entire nation.

Social and Ideological Forces.

THE national movement in China originated at the end of the past century. Its initiators in China, as elsewhere, were the intelligentzia, the students, teachers, a section of the professors, journalists and some of the emigrant Chinese commercialists, who rallied around the Kuomintang Party, or to be more precise, around Sun-Yat-Sen, its leader. In 1915 in connection with the Japanese 21 demands, and in 1919, as a result of the treaty of Versailles, which so thoroly disappointed the Chinese nationalists, who found themselves deceived and betrayed by their own "allies" the nationalist movement received a new powerful impulse.

For some months the Chinese public was in a state of uproar and high agitation. The Japanese ministers were forced to resign; the boycott of Japanese goods reduced China-Japanese trade by 40%. But the leadership of the movement, the acting on the political stage, the cries of protest at the public meetings, the slogans in the fight—these all came from the student body. The voice of the worker was yet silent.

SOON, however, the situation changed. The industrialization of China during the last years of the imperialist war and the early post war period, was proceeding apace.

Side by side with the foreign industries and with the old Chinese trading, go-between (comprador) bourgeoisie, there appeared a new industrial Chinese bourgeoisie.

The industrial centers, Shanghai, Tien-Tsin, Hankow, Changsha, Tzintao etc., have been rapidly growing; within them steadily grew large compact masses of the newly risen working class. Soon this working class began to display its activity by a series of strikes.

MUCH has been written recently of the terrible conditions of labor in China. Men, women and children alike work 12 to 15 hours per day; the wages received by them are miserable. Cheap docile labor made China into a "paradise for employers" to quote the report of the British council at China, recently published in the British "Blue Book."

But this capitalist paradise is a veritable hell for the workers. No wonder then that under the influence of the general rise of the East after the war, under the influence of the November Russian revolution and of their own national movement, a spontaneous movement for better conditions has developed among the Chinese workers, taking the forms of a widespread strike struggle.

Class Differentiation of the Movement.

DURING the first period covering about 2½ years—from the beginning of 1920 to the latter half of 1922—the labor movement, still largely spontaneous, met with practically no serious opposition. The strikes were limited mainly to the foreign industries, and the Chinese public opinion, moulded, as it was, not only by the influential studentry, but also by the new Chinese industrial bourgeoisie, maintained, on the whole, a position of friendly neutrality towards the labor movement.

This was quite natural, since in defending their economic interests against the foreign capitalists the workers were indirectly strengthening the position of the native industry, thus also objectively fighting the imperialists and gaining the sympathies of the nationalist intelligentzia and more particularly of the students. No wonder, therefore, that the strike of the Hongkong seamen in the spring of 1922 not only met with a sympathetic response thruout the country, but even received material assistance from the southern bourgeoisie. In this atmosphere of general support the strikes of that period resulted, in their majority, in complete or partial success.

HOWEVER, already towards the end of 1922, a change was marked. The strike movement, in its expansion, swung over to Chinese establishments as well. A change of front immediately took place among the Chinese industrialists who took up an openly hostile attitude towards the workers' movement. This change was already felt during the strike of the Tan-Shang miners in October 1922. For the first time in the history of China not only the police but the army as well were used against the strikers on that occasion. There were casualities in dead and wounded, and the strike was put down by force.

Even more cruel was the treatment of the striking railwaymen on the Peking-Hankow line, in February 1923, at the hands of the combined forces of the reaction. Equally alarmed by the growth of organization among the railway workers, the foreign and native capitalists, together with the Chinese militarists, joined in a united front against labor. The strike was drowned in the blood of the workers by the military dictator of China, Wu-Pei-Fu.

THE defeat of the railwaymen served as a signal for a general offensive on the part of all the combined forces of the reaction against labor. Not only were the recently organized trade unions dissolved, their premises sealed and the leaders arrested, but even the co-operatives, the schools and the clubs were everywhere closed. All over China (with the exception of Canton) the labor unions were driven underground and only in isolated places were there allowed to exist some semi-legal workers' organizations.

Things continued practically unchanged until the latter part of 1924. For about a year and a half quiet reigned in the labor movement of China. The Pacific conference of transport workers, convened in Canton in June 1924, marked the end of this period. The Shameen strike (Canton) which flared up in July and which, like the 1922 Hong-Kong strike, was directed against the foreign capitalists, again demonstrated to all China the significance of the labor movement to the nationalist emancipation movement.

(Tomorrow's article will tell of the revival of China's labor movement in 1924)

NEW YORK TO START CAMPAIGN FOR ORGANIZATION OF THE UNORGANIZED

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The activity of the New York district of the Workers Party in attempting to organize the unorganized workers in various branches of industry has awakened in the party an acute sense of the unpreparedness of its speakers and organizers for the handling of such work. Particularly has the leadership furnished by the party in the textile strike driven home this lesson.

The party has been sending organizers among the unorganized textile workers to explain to them the advantages, necessities and methods of organization and for the most part these speakers have proved unprepared to handle the specific type of problem and audience in the most effective manner. The industrial department and the agitprop department of the district are jointly planning to develop the necessary type of speaker for this work in the organization of the unorganized.

Our speakers at the present time fall into two main groups and suffer from two different types of defects although a few of the most effective escape the defects of both categories. There is one type of speaker that tends to talk too much in abstract general formulas and does not successfully link up these general political notions with the elementary everyday needs of the workers in the industry to be organized.

There is another type of speaker who very readily gets down to the level of its undeveloped and backward audience but does not succeed in ever leaving that level and leading his audience with him from their concrete problems to the fundamental meaning of them. Such speakers appeal to entirely un-Communist motives, over emphasize the importance of the vague, spontaneous resentment of these workers against their bosses but fail to give direction and permanent crystallization to this resentment.

What is necessary is a combination of both these types into a single whole. By such combination, a speaker should be able to start at the level of this backward group of unorganized workers; begin with their elementary problems of their particular shops—working conditions, wages, tyrannical foremen, etc., etc., and should be able to lead the workers, step by step from these elementary problems to a comprehension of their larger political meanings and broaden their consciousness from factory and wage consciousness to class consciousness. In order to accomplih this, the industrial department and the agitprop department together with the most active field workers in the organizing of the unorganized, are planning to hold a series of joint conferences in order to build that type of speaker for the type of campaign which the party has long advocated in theory but is now beginning to put into practice, namely, a campaign for the organization of the unorganized in all the small industrial towns near the city of New York.

THE anthracite miners have been accustomed to winning wage increases during recent years. This was Lewis' trump card at the last international convention. A labor leader who continues to secure wage increases for the members of his union is going to stay put even if he were guilty of every crime in the social calendar from eating garlic to getting in to his office at 11:30 in the morning. But he is a fathead leader if he honestly believes there is no limit to his ability to succeed indefinitely in securing wage increases.

BOSSES are no more willing—as a general rule—to grant wage increases because the union officials whom they deal with are reactionary than if they were radical. There may be exceptional cases when fear of a radical development in the union may compel the employers to adopt such a course, as a choice between two evils. Whoever takes money out of the boss's pocket is his enemy. The fact is that the reactionary officials are less capable of forcing wage increases than the radicals. This was demonstrated by the British miners. Only when circumstances are extremely favorable do the crawling methods of the reactionaries succeed. It is quite evident that John L. Lewis has made an awful mess of the anthracite strike, but the miners, not he will suffer.

THE Coolidge organization in the house of representatives must secure a new chairman for its committee on public buildings. The gentleman appointed by Alice Roosevelt's husband—that's his business—Nicholas Longworth by name gave the job to a Kentucky solon whose lung power was able to compensate for his mental vacuity. A loud voice is half the battle in politics—capitalist politics of course—brains are a decided handicap. The appointee, like most capitalist politicians was not averse to making a little money on the side, so he leased whisky for bootlegging purposes. The story does not say whether he leased it from one of Andrew Mellon's distilleries. Congressman Langley—that's his name—may have to think it over in Atlanta for two years. And, then, he may not.

NEGRO labor leaders are conducting a campaign to organize the Pullman porters. The company comes forth thru various channels and tells the world that the poor porters are as happy as a movie actress—on the screen—walking towards the setting sun, with the once poor hero—now rich of course—driving away the mosquitoes with his Montana hat. The only bug in the porter's hammock, just now, declares the Pullman company, is the embryonic union. Strange to say however the porters are joining the new union, despite their alleged happiness.

THE Negro workers need the help of the trade union movement badly. Tho the prejudice against them, at least in the northern part of the country, is somewhat exaggerated in our opinion, it is undoubtedly true that the reactionary labor leaders have neglected them. It is a hopeful sign of the times that young Negro workers are now coming forward to perform so essential a task. The present effort to organize the porters shows what a dominating part is played by class division among the Negroes.

WE find Negro lackeys of the capitalist parties and hired flunkeys of the Pullman company, leading the fight against the union. This is a development which cannot help but sharpen the class consciousness of the Negro workers and gradually convince them that even tho they are discriminated against because of their color and their comparative recent status as chattel slaves, the main reason for this attitude toward them is their lack of organization. When they are in a position to fight their real foe—the capitalist—side by side with their white brothers, a quick change will take place.

FRANCE READY FOR NEW DEBT PARLEY IN U. S.

Cabinet Cannot Last Very Long

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, Nov. 30.—France is ready to open new debt negotiations with the United States, on the basis suggested by the United States, according to the semi-official newspaper Temps, in an obviously inspired article today.

"The Briand government recognizes its debts to the allies," said the Temps. "We believe that an equitable settlement can be speedily made. The government is ready immediately to open the suspended negotiations, firstly, with Great Britain on the basis of the Churchill-Caillaux agreement, and secondly with the United States on the basis of a five year provisional settlement.

Briand Friend of England.

Aristide Briand is known to be a friend of Britain, who wants to create alliances with that power, as he believes that the fate of France is closely allied with that of Britain, which is in direct conflict with the former finance minister, Caillaux, who leaned toward Germany, because of his close connections with banks having heavy investments acquired in Germany before the war.

It is noteworthy that the Temps mentions Britain's claims first and puts the question of the debt to the United States in a secondary category.

Loucheur States Plans.

Louis Loucheur, one of the wealthiest bankers in France and the new finance minister, states that he dos not desire a moratorium on debts owing other countries and that he is not in favor of a special levy, but that the raising of money will be so adjusted that the burden will spread over all classes. This proposition is, of course, simply a means of imposing the burden upon the workers and thus reducing their standard of living in order to strive to stabilize French currency.

At the cabinet meeting yesterday the new Briand cabinet discussed its entire program, which included four main points: ratification of the franc nad the debt settlements.

The growing crisis has not abated and it is not thought the Briand cabinet can long hold a majority with such violent differences existing as pervade the chamber of deputies.

Cleveland Workers Will Hear Pat Toohey Tonite

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30.—Tuesday night Pat Toohey, the militant young miner, who was arrested for his activities in the anthracite miners' strike now going on in Pennsylvania, will be in Cleveland to tell the story of the miners' strike. Pat Toohey has just come out of jail and will have much to tell the workers of Cleveland about the anthracite strike and about the activities of John. L. Lewis and his confabs with Governor Pinchot.

Pat Toohey will speak at the Insurance Center Building, 1783 East 11th, corner of Walnut, Room 601. No worker of Cleveland should fail to hear this splendid young fighter and orator. Remember the date, Tuesday, December 1. Come and bring your shop-mates and fellow-trade unionists along.

Capmakers' President Resigns Office and Leaves New York City

NEW YORK—Max Zaritsky, president of the Cloth, Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union has resigned and will leave the city immediately. His duties, till the next convention can elect a successor, will be filled by Max Zuckerman, secretary-treasurer, and a managing committee of three consisting of J. Robers, N. Spector and J. M. Budish.

the workers do everything and own nothing, urged democratic control of industry and workers' share in management. He said that he had been many times asked to recommend workers for state positions, but found it difficult because so few of them were capable of handling jobs. In this connection he congratulated the I. L. G. W. U. for satrting an educational department.

Maurer declared there were forty thousand hotel and restaurant workers in Philadelphia, but that only 700 of them were organized. He urged delegates in town to help organize them and also urged affiliation to central and state labor bodies to bring pressure on lawmakers to favorable legislation for workers.

Sigman Attempt Fails.

When President Morris Sigman took the gavel an attempted demonstration fell flat, the scattered applause lasting but a few seconds. At a despairing signal from one of the Sigman machine supporters the orchestra struck up a Russian Jewish revolutionary song, but again the attempted demonstration fell flat. Frantic efforts to artificially stimulate a demonstration met with a dismal failure and in an obviously embarrased manner Sigman began his talk which was notably dry and stereotyped.

He dealt with the history of the organization, its early struggles and its growth and made a plea for unity of the organization. This was clearly much against the grain, but his recent defeat in New York and the atmosphere of the convention hall showed clearly that he has reached the end of his rope in his efforts to terrorize the membership of the organization.

The convention will meet again tomorrow morning at Lulu Temple, on Spring Garden street, where the remainder of the sessions will be held.

A fight is expected on the report of the credentials committee and the actual representation is a question, but there is no question about the power of the left wing in the union, which is more than 80 per cent of the membership.

Two Welcome Signs.

In the Jewish district near 5th and Pine street there are two signs that attract a great deal of attention. One of them is on the reactionary Jewish Daily Forward office that reads "Welcome delegates", while the other is on the Freiheit office across the street, reading "Welcome, Progressive Delegates."

President Wm. Green, of the American Federation of Labor is expected to speak tomorrow, and will probibly try to aid Sigman in his predicament at this convention.

Mussolini Extends Session of Fascist Puppet Parliament

ROME, Nov. 30.—Premier Mussolini has decided to extend the sitting of the fascist marionette, the chamber of deputies, from Dec. 5 to Dec. 12, in order that the Locarno security part and the Washington debt settlement agreement and other repressive legislation planned may be "ratified."

Starving Horse Stirs Up Society Parasites

Mrs. A. C. Ferlicke, owner of a coal company, satisfied her sadistic tendencies by inflicting extreme suffering upon her horse which she kept more than three months in a barn foodless.

Fashionably gowned society women who coddle themselves in luxurious surroundings while human babies die of hunger, satisfied their perverted maternal instinct by rushing out in a snow storm to the dingy court room of Judge Samuel Trude to report Mrs. Ferlicke's ill treatment of her horse. The horse, the judge was told, had eaten wooden supports and the walls of the barn to appease its hunger. In a state of complete emaciation he was shot by a policeman.

GRAVE DIGGERS STRIKE; DEMAND EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Cemetery Workers Insist on Union Recognition

Two hundred and fifty caretakers and gravediggers, members of the Cemetery Employes' Union, are on strike at the Mount Olivet, Holy Sepulchre, Mount Carmel, All Saints and Calvary cemeteries demanding recognition of their union and an increase in wages.

Want 8-Hour Day.

The burying grounds are under a single management and the cemetery workers who are on strike have received anywhere from $3 to $5 for a day of from nine to nine and half hours. The men are now demanding that these cemeteries pay them $6 for an eight-hour day.

The Cemetery Employes' Union is making a drive for the recognition of the union in Chicago cemeteries and has over 3,000 members in the union. These five cemeteries are to be a test of strength of the union and if successful, the other employers will be forced to accept the union terms.

Chauffeurs Support Strikers.

The cemetery workers are supported in their demands by the Chicago Undertakers' Association and the Livery Chauffeurs' Union.

When the gravediggers and caretakers went on strike yesterday morning, many funerals were halted. The hearse drivers upon learning that a strike existed, immediately turned their carriages away from the cemeteries.

Board of Health Aids Bosses.

The Chicago board of health rushed in to the aid of the cemetery employers, by ruling that the bodies can be stored in vaults until the strike is settled if the cemeteries are not able to find workers to dig graves.

LABOR REPORT IS SHOWN TISSUE OF CYNICAL LIES

Claim to Have Helped Settle Strikes

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—Following the lead of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, whose report was a tissue of studied perversion and falsification of facts, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, and one of the survivors of the Harding-Hughes-Daugherty-Denby-Fall-Coolidge teapot dome oil cabinet, submitted a falsified report on labor conditions in this country. The report is released for publication in Tuesday morning papers and contains the most astonishing and brazen exaggerations.

Every strike settled by a union, where a representative of the department of labor tried to function, was attributed to the influence of that body. It is known that in many of strikes which the labor department claims credit of settling the government representatives were showed aside without ceremony and in general treated with contempt.

Same Old Twaddle.

Just as Hoover talked of contentment of labor, so Davis sings the same song. Facts are completely ignored and rosy pictures of a fantom prosperity are painted, none of them in conformity with facts. Most of the government department reports of late have read like the A. F. of L. reports on the wisdom of increasing efficiency and class collaboration in general, and are of no use to the working class except insofar as their fallacies are exposed and the government revealed as an apologist of every form of exploitation of labor.

Emergency Call!

To All Members and Friends of International Labor Defense:

Two big cases are scheduled to come to trial on November 30th. The Pittsburgh raid case of 10 workers and the Zeigler frame-up case of 15 union miners. The lawyers in each of these cases will not proceed with the defense unless we have the money.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS MUST BE RAISED BEFORE DECEMBER 15TH

We call upon all members of the I. L. D. to rise to the test and raise this sum. Contribute all you can and get your friends and neighbors to contribute.

Much depends on the outcome of these two trials. The entire working class is on trial. Not merely the 25 workers involved.

BRITISH UPPER CLASS DANCES OVER VOLCANO

Lone Conservative Shows Decadence

By LELAND OLDS.

The moral bankruptcy of the capitalist upper class comes clearly to light in England. Nero fiddling while Rome burned isn't in it with the jazzing of the British monied aristocracy in the face of an industrial crisis that may change the course of history. It recalls the frivoling of the French feudal nobility right up to the day when the Bastile fell before a hungry Paris mob.

For every member with the will to rule our increasing social chaos, this class exhibits scores who care only for the opportunity for satisfactions and pleasures to relieve the boredom of a life of leisure.

When a 9-month truce had just saved England from a general strike which might have brought revolution, when the British Trades Union congress was resolving to prepare for more effective united action, for closer union with Russian workers, for a break with imperialism, when active preparations were going forward for possible direct action on both sides, when the press was full of alarms about Communist appeals to the army, —what were the wealthy members of society thinking about?

They were thrilling at the prospect of the first important event of the autumn social season, a medieval wedding between Mamela Paget and the son of Earl Grey, whose secret diplomacy helped prepare the world war. Press stories told of discarding conventional wedding garments in favor of medieval costumes of gold brocade, of red and green velvet studded with jewels, of gold girdles, of two rows of pearls across the bride's forehead with pearl tassels on either side. Such superfluity of wealth was flaunted in the faces of a million and a half unemployed workers.

This is just one episode in British upper class life which a conservative critic of English life describes as frivolous and contemptible. He says:

"The fashion today is to condemn the Labor party: and when not blaming the Labor party for destroying the whole nation what is the fashionable world doing, unrebuked by its church, unexposed by its press? Pleasure, and plasure of the lowest conceivable kind is its sole aim. It hates culture and regards seriousness as boredom. What it loves is dressing up, giggling, dancing, feasting, gaming, jazzing and vamping. To speak to it of moral responsibility would be as if one spoke of esthetics in a pigsty."

Count Karolyi Aides on Trial for "Putsch"

FUENFKIRCHEN, Hungary, Nov. 30—The trial of followers of Count Michael Karolyi, who participated in the republican "putsch" during the Jugo-Slav occupation, was begun here. Sixty-four men are accused, of whom Karolyi's minister of war, Bela Linder, is the most prominent. Linder did not appear at the trial.

Teachers' Union News Is Censored

to F. G. Stecker, the secretary-treasurer of the federation, who, in turn was to send the proposal to the 12 members of the executive council.

An Innocent Quest.

Finding it convenient last Friday, Backall stepped into the offices of the editor of the City News Bureau, 711 Ashland Block, 155 North Clark St., and interviewed the editor of the possibility of informing the newspaper reading public of his proposal to the American Federation of Teachers.

The editor who took a copy of Backall's letter, informed him, however, that it would be first submitted by a reporter to the Chicago board of education. Then he added, rather as a matter of pride:

Proud of Capitalist Censorship.

"Any news of pupils, schools, parents' organizations, in fact any news whatever upon the subject, is always submitted to the board of education, and always written up from the angle of the board of education."

This, the most complete censorship of all matters educational by the capitalistic board of education, was apparently a positive recommendation to the thoroly prostituted editor, who could not even understand the virtue of a press service free from constraint of governmental institutions serving the economic and political interests of one class—the capitalists, and bending the minds of the other class, the workers, to the acceptance of bourgeois rule as holy and eternal.

What Do Union Teachers Think?

What the union teachers of Chicago and elsewhere think of this pollution of news regarding their activities at the very source of such news, remains to be seen. Union teachers could not be reached yesterday. But since the case originates in the letter sent the executive council of the federation, The DAILY WORKER reprints the essential sections as follows:

"Mr. F. G. Stecker, Sec'y.-Treas., Teachers' Federation of America, Chicago Illinois.

"Dear Sir: A short while ago, I visited Soviet Russia, observed the educational system of the country, and studied their pedagogical methods. I made it my business to acquaint myself with the material welfare, as well as the spiritual standing of the teachers and their pupils in that country. My happy discovery is that they make a strenuous attempt to develop the most modern system of education in the world. They have it as their task to develop and often even modify when needs call the 'Dalton plan' of America.

"The days during which the present authorities took over the schools were perilous indeed. The civil war raging, the remnants of which are yet to be seen everywhere. Out of this, their schools emerge with the complex system. It is considered as one of the greatest achievements of modern pedagogy. John Dewey and his educational ideas are their beacon lights.

Peasant Life Transformed.

"The life of the village is being transformed. Agriculture and hygiene are being taught to the peasants and their children. In the city as well as in the country, the school is interwoven with the activities of everyday life. The children as members of a school are live participants of the reconstructional work of the country.

"The first All-Russian teachers' convention representing 250,000 teachers, demonstrated the spirit prevailing in that land. Reacting to the school shortage yet existing they discussed methods whereby with the help of the government they might affect every child yet out of school. They feel that they are the keystone of the rebuilding life. The teachers' councils are authoritative bodies with regard to methods and administrative leadership.

They Invite Us.

"The first all-Russian convention of teachers sent out an invitation to all teachers of the world to visit them. In their invitations they expressed the desire to show the world their achievements and learn from the experiences of their co-workers. The main reason of their call is to establish permanent educational and other relationships with the teachers of the other countries so that experience and research may be interchanged, and thereby enrich the pedagogical sciences.

"Delegations of many countries visited them. Their reports are of invaluable educational experience. The country that has not responded to the call is our America. The home which brought forth such men as Horace Mann, Frances Parker, John Dewey, Stanley Hall, etc.; the place which contributed so much to pedagogy and child psychology, has not given it its consideration.

"I suggest, therefore, that you consider the question of sending a delegation seriously! In our country where the truth about Soviet Russia is so thickly in fog, the delegation report may shed light on many problems that are yet in the dark. You are a non-partial organization with individuals trained for observation, your report will bring to us the truth as it is.

"The teachers of America have shown a great deal of idealism, and independence of thought with regard to the school life of our country. More than once has it been the task of the teachers' unions of America, to save the public school from degeneration, and from becoming tools of special privilege, you now again need a courageous stand, and express it in courageous action." — (Signed) Morris Backall.

Polish Government Jails and Tortures Workers and Peasants

WARSAW, Nov. 30—For months all prominent trade unionists, all White-Russian workers and peasants who are under suspicion, subscribers to the reformist press, radical bourgeois teachers are being arrested, thrown into prison and "examined." How such an "examination" is carried on, show the following descriptions:

Torture Victims.

"The victims were taken to the hospital, completely undressed and taken into a room with carefully-covered windows, where several higher police officials awaited them. The first question was 'Are you a Communist?' If the answer was no, the hands and feet of the prisoner were fettered, an iron stick put between the fetters of the hands and feet and thus, in a cowering position, he was drawn up to the ceiling. In order to bring back the consciousness of fainted victims, salt water mixed with urine was poured into their throats and glowing pins pushed under their finger nails . . . . If a worker or peasant confessed, however, to be a Communist, then water was pumped thru his nose into his stomach till he got very big. Then the policemen sat on it and asked the tortured who their leaders were and other questions."

Beat Women and Children.

As a supplement to these horrors it must be mentioned that among the tortured were old women and men, even children, who had been arrested instead of their relatives whom the police could not find.

DAILY WORKER WILL TELL OF THE FAR EAST

What Do Its Problems Mean to You?

By HARRISON GEORGE.

To many workers of America the gigantic upheaval in China and the labor movement of the Far East, means little or nothing. To the reactionary bureaucrats of the trade unions, whose every action is calculated upon their common interest with the interests of American imperialist penetration and domination of the Orient, the problem of Far Eastern labor is a problem of deceit and betrayal, just as the Pan-American Federation of Labor operates upon a basis of Yankee imperialism in Latin-America, seeing eye to eye with it, applauding its expansion and ready to furnish the proper fig-leaf of international "harmony" to cover the naked force of the United States armed forces.

"Monroe Doctrine of Labor."

The El Paso convention of the American Federation of Labor declared that the accord between the leaders of the Mexican Confederation of Labor (C. R. O. M.) and the bureaucracy of A. F. of L. was a "Monroe Doctrine of Labor." Wall street and Gompers have the same significance to Latin-American labor; the first exploits them; the second presents them with a philosophy of submission to this exploitation disguised as "harmony."

It is in this spirit that William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, wrote in the "American Federationist" for October:

> "American labor properly turns its mind upon labor problems of the Pacific."

The social-democracy, the right wing of the working class movement has an elaborate philosophy about the Far East and all other "backward" nations. This was expressed by both Ludwig Lore and an I. W. W. editor, John Gahan, in the past few months, commenting upon the possibility and even the advisability of the Chinese people freeing themselves from foreign imperialism by a nationalist revolution.

This social democratic idea is that no revolution is possible or even advisable, until the mechanical development of China by outside imperialist capital, has developed a proletariat numerically dominant over the peasant masses and the remnants of feudalism. This view not only shuts its eyes to the Bolshevik revolution, to the Leninist theory of alliance between the proletariat and the peasantry, but is an objective support of capitalist imperialism, giving its most savage massacres and most brutal exploitation of the workers of the Far East, the shining protection of a social philosophy and a "scientific" justification.

The Communist Workers' View.

To the workers in the American shops, mines and mills, the hypocritical words of the Greens, and the philistine phrases of the Lores and the Gahans must be exposed and explained. Against them must be placed the Communist program of unity in open struggle against imperialism of the workers of the east and west.

The best way of doing this is in drawing a graphic picture of the labor movement of the Far East, its problems, its form and content, and how it is hewing the way thru all obstacles to proletaarian emancipation. The Trade Union Educational League, the north American section of the Red International of Labor Unions, has received a series of excellent articles on the labor movement of the Far East, and the first of this series is published today in the DAILY WORKER on the T. U. E. L. page. The series begins with several articles upon Chinese labor and the national movement.

Form Two National Soviets in Ukraine

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The central administrative-territorial commission attached to the Ukrainian central executive committee has accepted the decision for forming new national Soviets in the Ukraine. In addition, it is proposed to define six national districts in the near future. New national schools are to be inaugurated on the territory of the new rural Soviets. All official work will be conducted in the languages of the national minorities.

The opening of two new Polish rural Soviets took place in the villages of Tadeushpol and urtyn. The population of Tadeushpol and Burtyn have decided to name their rural district after Comrade Dombal (exiled leader of the Polish Communist movement, chairman of the Peasant International)

Budget Estimate for Soviet Union Increased for 1925-26 by 40 Pct.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The total budget estimated for 1925-26 is 3,560,000,000 rubles. If we take into consideration state expenditure abroad in gold valuta, which is not included in the above figures, the budget of the Union amounts to a figure exceeding 3,600,000,000 rubles.

The total sum of local budgets in the Union for 1925-26 is estimated at from 1,250,000,000 to 1,300,000,000 gold rubles. This total includes local budgets and also volost budgets. The general total for the state and all local budgets thus amounts, during 1925-26 to about 5,000,000,000 rubles which is an increase of about 40 per cent on the total figures of the 1924-25 budget.

Soviet Russia Aids Southern Urals to Re-equip Factories

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—The factories of the Southern Urals are being re-equipped. 4,500,000 rubles have been granted to the Zlatoustinsk works for constructing new blast furnaces and repairing Martens ovens which will turn out steel now obtained in England. New hydraulic stations are being constructed. 1,300,000 rubles are being devoted to housing construction.

The construction of railway wagons at the Ust-Katavsk works is being renewed. At the Beloretzky works a new blast furnace has been constructed with a productivity of 7,500 poods per day. The Miassky file factory is being extended and during the last few months is turning out 10,000 dozen files which amoutns to 145 per cent of the program.

R.I.L.U. URGES PROTEST AGAINST DUTCH TERROR

Persecution in the East Indies Condemned

MOSCOW —(By Mail)—The Red International of Labor Unions has directed the following appeal to the workers of all countries:

"The toilers of the Dutch East Indies have carried on an energetic struggle for years against the exploitation carried out by the Dutch imperialists. Since the forcible suppression of the railwaymen's strike in 1923, the Dutch government has continually increased its reign of terror against the working class movement.

Jailed Hundreds of Workers.

"Hundreds and thousands of workers and peasants have been flung into prison for their part in the continual struggle against the cruel exploitation and suppression of the toiling masses. The struggle is lead by the Communist Party, the revolutionary people's party Sarekat Rayat and the trade unions. The reprisals of the government against the whole national movement in the East Indies is being strengthened.

"The workers who receive wages amounting to about 15 or 20 per cent of the wages current in Holland, England or the other European countries, and the poor peasants also are compelled to pay high taxes totalling 25 per cent of their yearly income. There are no laws in existence against the enslavement and exploitation of the colored workers. The only labor laws which exist, is the law prohibiting strikes and the law which punishes all workers, who struggle against the horrible conditions of life imposed upon them.

Crush Strikes.

"In August this year, the strike of port workers in Samarang was brutally suppressed. During the strike of printers in the same town and the strike of the hospital workers' the leaders of the local trade unions, Darsono, Guvarno and 10 other comrades were arrested. The strike of the port coolies declared in September last was nipped in the bud. The strike and demonstrations of the port workers in Belavan and Medan in October led to the arrest of the leaders and the breaking up of the demonstrations by armed force which led to the wounding of many workers and their wives who had taken part in the demonstrations demanding bread. Hundreds of workers were dismissed on account of membership of the unions or other working class organizations.

"Despite the permanent terror, however, the masses are doing everything in their power to build up their trade unions. And with this young and still weak weapon they are continually forced to take up the struggle against the horrible exploitation of Dutch capitalism. Only the Communists dare to oppose the imperialist terror of the Dutch government and to assist the workers to form their unions.

Protest Against Terror.

"It is the duty of the international proletariat to protest loudly and energetically against the terror of the Dutch capitalists.

DEBS' TALK IN PEORIA AS VOICE FROM GRAVE OF SOCIALIST PARTY

BY MAX COHEN.
(Worker Correspondent.)

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 30.—In an effort to arouse the dying Socialist party from its lethargy, Eugene V. Debs, aged and weakened, has been called upon by state officials of the party to deliver a series of lectures. The Majestic Theatre was not quite half-filled for the Peoria lecture.

Declaring that "before socialism can be brought about the workers must 'realize' their condition and then they must be 'true to themselves'", Debs followed by stating that "I am opposed to violence, no great question was ever settled by violence." He forgot that every new system at its inception is won over by force and violence.

He quoted Shakespeare, the Bible, and Ingersoll in deploring the conditions of capitalist society. "Lincoln", he said, "was on the right side. He saw that a great race was in slavery, that the sale of human flesh was a moral crime. Under his administration slavery was abolished." Gene Debs must have forgotten that Lincoln, good and honest Lincoln, was willing to grant the south the right to have slaves if they were not to secede from the union, thereby averting civil war.

How futile and out of date are the efforts of the socialists to carry the workers to power is illustrated by Debs' query "If 'we' can run our school system and 'our' postal system, then why can't we run a mine, etc.?" Although Debs spoke on "The Rise of Labor", he did not once mention the first workers' republic of Soviet Russia.

That worker next door to you may not have anything to do tonight. Hand him this copy of the DAILY WORKER.

Murashko Gets Short Sentence for Murder of Two Revolutionaries

Warsaw, Nov. 30.—The trial against Murashko, the murderer of the two Polish revolutionary officers Baginsky and Wieczorkiewics took place in the Polish town of Newgradek. It will be remembered that Murashko murdered the two revolutionaries, who had been sentenced to death on account of a frame-up and were finally exchanged for some Polish criminals, who had been arrested in Soviet Russia. The Polish mercenary, Murashko, killed the two officers at the frontier shortly before the excange was to take place.

A furious attack against this exchange by the Polish government was carried onby the Polish social democratic and bourgeois press. An atmosphere of murder was created and the bourgeoisie hope that some patriotic hero would appear who would kill Baginsky and Wieczorkiewics was systematically agitated.

However, certain government circles did not believe in the appearance of such a hero, they preferred to be sure that something would be done and therefore send Murashko to commit the murder for good payment. The murderer did not belong to the guards of the two prisoners, but was only ordered to take charge of them at the frontier.

After his deed, he was celebrated by the whole Polish bourgeoisie and its press as a national hero who had done a "patriotic deed." No prosecutor was prepared to take up the case against him. When finally such a courageous man was found and the trial against Murashko took place, he openly admitted to the court that he had committed the murder, being sure that nothing would happen to him. He said that he had shot them both down like mad dogs. Altho several witnesses stated that Murashko was a man of beastly brutality, who had already once killed a prisoner who was in his charge, the bourgeois audience of the court gave him its unlimited applause.

He was sentenced to 2 years imprisonment, but we can be sure that his Polish protectors will take care that he will be freed soon and further occasions to kill undesirable workers are prepared for him.

Two Views of the World Court

Now that the question of the world court is to be the major issue in the realm of foreign relations before the next congress every act of that tribunal is carefully scrutinized by both friends and enemies of the court. In the comment of the capitalist press political party lines vanish and only the economic groups stand forth. The recent decision of the court declaring the league of nations had the right to determine the frontiers of Irak and Turkey was the excuse for again bringing up the conflict over the adherence of the United States government to that tribunal.

The Chicago Tribune, republican, opposes the program of the republican president, Cal Coolidge, to enter the court, while the New York Times, staunch democratic organ, favors the Coolidge proposition.

The Tribune, speaking in the interests of the McCormick harvester combination and the middle-west industrial group generally, wants no European entaglements and resents finance capital developing competing industries in Europe that will threaten American industrial products in the world market. It views the proposed adherence to the world court as a step toward the league of nations and a submerging of the interests of the small industrialists to the world-wide interests of Wall Street bank capital. With high moral indignation it views with alarm the possibility of judges from foreign nations sitting upon an international tribunal and deciding the fate of questions concerning the United States.

As against this conception the Times acclaims as eminently just the decision of the court vindicating the faith that Coolidge has evinced in the thing.

The attitude of these two metropolitan papers, one in Chicago and the other in New York symbolizes the struggle against the complete ascendency of finance capital over industrial capital and the conflict within the republican party itself as the small group of industrialists vainly struggle against the inevitable.

Neither of the publications see the real significance of the decision. They do not realize that it is a decision in favor of the British imperialists, struggling for world domination and that the decision of the court in the Near East boundary dispute means a blow to Turkey that will not be accepted peacefully. British warships and flocks of airplanes waiting the signal to try to blast the Turks out of Europe may appear to the Angora government too formidable to be challenged at once, but the final settlement of the frontier dispute will be by force of arms. The Times and the republican and democratic representatives of the House of Morgan want to utilize the world court and the league for diplomatic intrigue while preparing to defend on the battlefield their mighty investments, while the Tribune and the republican agents of the industrialists want to keep out of the mess and sell their products in all the markets of the world.

But finance capital will not long be challenged by an industrial bloc trying to thwart its purposes. The great mergers of industries under domination of finance capital will soon destroy the basis of such opposition.

Murder of Prisoners

Revolting details of the bestial beating to death of Negro prisoners in a North Carolina jail again brings to the attention of the workers the horrors of capitalist penal institutions. Such atrocities make it easy to understand why the bastilles are usually the first institutions to fall before the fury of revolution.

Facts regarding this latest jail scandal are being brought to light thru the investigation of the murder of prisoners under the direction of one M. C. Hanford, county convict superintendent of Stanley county, North Carolina. After severe beatings for minor infractions of rules a number of prisoners died and the slimy prison physician signed death certificates to the effect that they died of heat.

Communists strive for the day when the walls of these relics of the inquisition will be battered down and tortured inmates liberated so that they may swell our ranks and wreak vengeance upon the system that exists thru such terror.

Another Sullivan Decision

Superior Court Judge Dennis E. Sullivan, long notorious for his unrestra[illegible] hatred of the working class and with a long list of labor injunction[illegible] to his credit on the books of the open shoppers and the Landis award scab-herders, has added to his already odious record by declaring "unconstitutional" the state law passed last summer legalizing peaceful picketing.

Continuing a long list of court usurpations of powers never legally granted by even the bourgeois constitution of the country, this latest act again demands decisive action by organized labor in the city of Chicago and in the state of Illinois. This servile satrap of the open shoppers must be driven from the bench in disgrace for thus misusing his power. The most effective way to eliminate the injunction judge is for labor to pursue a political policy independent of and against the capitalist parties that sponsor such people as Sullivan.

Meanwhile—ignore the injunctions and fight on.

Just as German social-democracy betrayed the workers into the hands of Hindenburg and the kaiser during the war, they now try to betray them into the hands of Britain in a hoped-for assault upon Russia—with Hindenburg as president of their democratic republic.

Now is the season of the year when the cabinet officials present reports purporting to prove that this is the best of all capitalist countries and that workers enjoy unexampled prosperity. The wage workers themselves can give the lie to this piffle.

The Labor Movement in Syria and Palestine

By H. M. Wicks

BRITAIN in Palestine and France in Syrira face not alone the nationalist movements that flare into open rebellion at frequent intervals, but there is also developing a labor movement that challenges not merely the power of the imperialist banditti of these two powers, but is equally determined to crush all capitalism in these countries.

While there still rages the unrestrained frightfulness of the French hordes invading Syria, while Damascus lays in ruins at the feet of the French pillagers, and thousands are being cremated in the ruins of the towns burned by the maurading bands of French imperialism, the nationalist struggle consumes the energy of all classes in that stricken land.

But as these mandated areas become objects of imperialist development, the labor movement also develops. It is not the reformist social-democratic trade unions, nor the trade unionism of the British type, nor the syndicalist type of unions, but a movement under the domination of the Communist Party.

The Beginnings.

BEFORE the present trade unions came into existence the only unions in that part of the world were the Jewish unions in Palestine. Jewish workers, driven into Palestine by the anti-semitic movements of the capitalist countries, endeavored to transplant their trade union experience into new soil. Instead of creating a mass movement among the natives, this movement was confined to the narrow space of the ghettos, to which the Jewish immigrants flocked. With large groups confined to certain localities in the industrial cities the movement became purely nationalistic.

Altho the Jewish movement celebrated the First of May as International Labor Day, the celebration itself was merely a nationalistic demonstration. They perverted the labor movement into nationalistic channels. The native workers considered the First of May as a Jewish nationalist and religious holiday—one of the many holidays celebrated by various religious elements that exist in Palestine.

The Illusion Vanishes.

THE activity of the Communist Party in Palestine and Syria, where the most difficult campaign of organization and education was carried on for the purpose of creating a genuine labor movement, finally broke down the barriers of prejudice.

Following a true Bolshevik policy the Communists became the organizers of the new labor movement in Syria and Palestine. The struggle against the imperialist invaders was directly connected with the class struggle; the frightful terror of the armed mercenaries of France and Britain and the intensive exploitation of labor created the objective conditions favorable for our agitation. One of the Communist leaders in Palestine reports that within the past two years hundreds of thousands of copies of newspapers, brochures, tens of thousands of Communist proclamations, hundreds of meetings, and small groups meeting in secret to plan organizational work, laid the foundation for the rise of the labor movement and dispelled the illusions created in the minds of the Arabs by the Jewsih immigrants deliberately segregating themselves and creating nationalist groups under the guise of unionism.

The Communists report that on last May Day, for the first time in the history of these territories, the workers in all the industrial centers participated in huge mass demonstrations. In the principal centers the celebrations were of a real Communist character, the workers, in spite of police threats and terror, marching thru the streets with the red flag defiantly flying.

Bolshevik Tactics Necessary.

COMMUNISTS in Syria and Palestine who have become the leaders of the labor movement are confronted with most serious tasks because of the complicated character of the struggle existing in the mandates territories. Not only must they strive against great odds to build up the unions in defiance of the bayonets of the foreign invaders who defend the investors, but they must fight against the nationalism that manifests itself in the slogans of Mohammedanism.

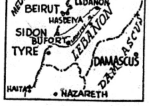
Such slogans as are calculated to cause an uprising of the Mohammedan world against the rest of the world are most dangerous and it is one of the major tasks, and may soon become the one imperative task, of the Communist Party to dispel that illusion just as they had to combat the Jewish nationalism of the earlier movement.

Such slogans as "Asia for the Asiatics," and "The World of Islam for the Faithful," have nothing in common with Bolshevism. They are absolutely, now and forever, irreconcilable with the tactics of Communism. Amidst the Islamite clamor and the general merging of all classes in the struggle to throw off the foreign invader the task of holding aloft the banner of the class struggle becomes extremely difficult. In periods of open, bloody struggle such as now convulses Syria, the class struggle becomes obscured. In this critical period the Communist Party struggles with might and main against the submerging of class lines in the swamp of religious rebellion against all the unfaithful, as the anti-imperialist wars rage.

As a protest against the French stormihg of Damascus, strikes, under Communist leadership, were called thruout Syria. Every effort was made to give the movement a distinctive class character and to prove to the workers the necessity for clearly distinguishing between the world struggle against imperialsim and the religious slogans of Mohammedanism against the rest of the world.

Keeping in mind the international character of the class struggle, the Communists of Syria and Palestine (who work together as one unit) oppose the rallying cries of the world of Islam for the reason that a struggle against the imperialist powers on such a basis arouses a feeling of hatred and distrust against the whole population, including the workers, of the European countries. In this general Islamitic wave the class struggle between the workers and the native bourgeois is found to be obscured. While taking a most energetic part in the nationalist struggle to forcibly expel from these territories the imperialist bandits operating under mandates from the league of nations, the revolutionary proletariat must always keep in mind the fact that the achievement of national independence is not an aim in itself, but only the starting point for the development of the class power of the workers that will realize the proletarian revolution.

The Syrian Inferno



The war in Syria has shifted from around Damascus to Lebanon where the French are being driven from one position after another. American destroyers are lying off the coast of Sidon ready to aid the French murderers of colonial peoples. The French mandate is in Syria, the British mandate territory begins at the border of Palestine (indicated by line) and British forces are mobilized there watching the struggle and awaiting the time when Britain thru the league of nations can wrest the Syrian mandate from France and control the entire territory.

Revolutionary Prospects.

THE revolutionary wave that will expel the invaders must not be permitted to subside, the workers must not be permitted to disarm themselves and submit to the yoke of a native bourgeois, who, altho they use national shibboleths, would in reality serve the ends of foreign imperialism. Instead of surrendering to the nationalist bourgeois they must maintain their arms and follow up the overthrow of the power of the imperialist nations of Europe with the crushing of the native bourgeoisie.

The task of overthrowing the national bourgeoisie will not be difficult for the reason that the industries of these mandates areas were developed by foreign capital, with absentee ownership. Like all the colonies where imperialist bank capital has penetrated, the industries have grown and with the growth of the industries there arose an industrial proletariat. But while the industries created the proletariat they did not create a powerful native bourgeoisie; the result being that in all these countries the strength of the capitalist class is weak compared to the strength of the working class. This situation makes it much less difficult to achieve the actual overthrow of the native bourgeoisie than in the countries where capitalism has followed the normal course of development and where a native capitalist class has grown up with the industrial development of the country.

In the struggle in Syria where the French forces are meeting with the determined resistance of the native population, Britain maintains an attitude of neutrality because she hopes that the upheaval can be utilized to prove France incapable of administering the mandate of the league of nations. In the event of the league deciding against France, then Britain would get control over Syria. British troops are mobilized on the Syrian border in northern Palestine awaiting the signal to enter and help "restore order." Another motive is the threat from the labor movement, as Britain well knows that such nationalist struggles against imperialism may at any time break forth into a class conscious movement against all capitalism.

But not far to the north and east lays the Soviet Union, and the workers in the colonies and mandates areas know that when they have accumulated sufficient energy to act against imperialism as a class they will not be at the mercy of the imperialist butchers. Once a wave of proletarian upheavals, divested of the nationalist garb, starts among colonial peoples it means the beginning of the end of capitalism in Europe, Asia and Africa.

WHILE the labor movement in countries developed in hot-house fashion by the great imperialist nations has many obstacles to overcome that other labor movements do not have, there is one blight that it has escaped. That is the deadening influence of the social-democracy of the Second International. The heroes of that international of ineffable infamy were so busy serving their various capitalist masters and kings that they devoted no time to the colonial movement except to help enslave the colonials.

While the colonial territories were being subjected and enslaved by the imperialist nations the social-democrats were playing grand politics by entering the cabinets of their various countries and aiding in forwarding the interests of imperialism.

Being true social-democrats and therefore slimy philistines they formulated a theory for their betrayal by a monstrous perversion of Marxism. They held that a real labor movement could only develop in those countries where capitalism was highly developed and that it was useless to attempt to bring the workers of backward countries into the labor movement until such time as capitalism had sufficiently developed. The logical deduction from such a position was that by aiding their capitalist masters exploit the colonies the social-democrats were conferring upon the natives the blessings of capitalist civilization and preparing them so they would be fit to enter the exalted company of the Second International.

This distortion of Marxism was utilized to conceal the material interests of these mercenaries of the bourgeoisie. The extreme exploitation and open plunder of the capitalist nations in the colonies results in a super profit which is shared with the skilled strata of the working class of the home country.

Social-democracy is the representative of this bribed and corrupted strata of the working class.

The failure of social-democracy to gain a foothold in the colonies, combined with the fact that we are living today in the era of world revolution, accounts for the developing of the labor movement in these countries under the domination of the Communists.

In the present struggle against the immeasurable terror of Britain and France in the colonies and mandated areas the Communists strive with the nationalists to break the imperialist chains so that they can clear the ground for the final conflict.

With the labor movement in the colonies under control of Communists, and Communist influence gaining in the home countries of imperialism the death knell of capitalism will soon be sounded.

Wants Poison Gas Warfare Developed for the Next War

Claiming that America is not making enough preparations for chemical warfare, Brig. Gen. Amos E. Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service of the army, in his annual report to the secretary of war, urges that this country appropriate more money to develop poison gases to compete with rival capitalist countries.

In his report "Justifiable Means of Waging War," he says in part:

"It must be recognized that there is absolutely nothing inherent in chemical warfare to prevent its consideration as a logical and perfectly justifiable means of waging war. It borders on national suicide to neglect proper preparations for a means of warfare or a defense against a means which has proven so efficient.

"Despite the many disadvantages under which we have labored, the morale of officers, men and civilian employers is excellent," he says. "Nevertheless, without a drastic increase in appropriations, we will soon be the weakest among the half dozen most powerful nations in chemical warfare."

Gen. Fries stated that it is universally appreciated by those responsible for carrying out the leadership of warfare, that poison gas industries should be developed and supported in their respective countries.

"To neglect this phase of preparedness," he declares, "would place a nation at the mercy of one having such a weapon. This state of affairs is recognized and accepted by those charged with the national defense in all countries, as is the impossibility of regulating an effective practice of war."

From the above quotations from Gen. Fries' report, it can easily be seen what a sham was the claim that was made that the world war was the last one that the world would ever see. Preparations for the next war, which will make the former one look like a Sunday school picnic in comparison, are already being made.

Error in Yesterday's Editorial.

In the rush of work in our mechanical department yesterday an error crept into the editorial on "The Northwestern 'Riot'". The sentence that read "The reason the workers are shot, slugged and jailed is because they are fighting for decent conditions to defend the capitalist exploiters" was obviously an error, and should read "because the are fighting for decent conditions against the capitalist exploiters."

OCTOBER IN THE DOFTAN PRISON IN ROUMANIA

(The reminiscences of an escaped prisoner).

Cast into the dungeons of the most terrible and at the same time largest of all Roumanian prisons, whose horrors are whispered in many a legend, wasting away behind the prison walls of Doftan, we send the toilers of Soviet Russia our fraternal greetings on the occasion of the seventh anniversary of the October revolution.

Each year, according to the prison reports, from forty to fifty lives are taken. Taken for ever.

But, notwithstanding the ferocities and horrors of our prison routine, we yesterday celebrated the anniversary of the October victory. We arose before the dawn, two hours before the reveille, and the strains of the Internationale, which went out from our very hearts, swelled the gloomy space, confined by the prison walls of the dead Doftan prison.

A special commission, duly elected by us a few days prior to the anniversary, having by various means collected a little money and having bribed the prison administration, organized a breakfast.

It was still dark, and the chief assistant, autocratic prison governor Stanescu still slept, overcome with deep sleep, and nobody interfered with us in the early hours before sun rise.

It is still uncertain—was it the mean presents, given us by the prison warders, or was it that the sounds of the International instilled them with fear, or was it the excitement felt by the prisoners—more than likely, all these reasons put together—but a miracle took place: in the ordinary way, and as a rule gloomy and strict, ever ready to hit us without slightest reason, the warders feigned not to notice our celebrations. Moreover, one of them, peeping thruout the keyhole, said in a whisper: "And you carry on without any noise"—and unexpectedly threw something thru the peephole. We got up, opened the newspaper, and were confronted with a gorgeous bouquet of red pinks. A storm of applause resounded in our cell.

Then commenced a conversation. As we were very badly acquainted with the news of outside events our talk was consecrated to reminiscenses of the past, and guesses as to what was now taking place outside. This talk continued right on till the reveille, when the cell was searched.

The holiday was broken off till after supper. For some reason or other, our daily half-hour walk was postponed to the evening.

After supper, on going out into the prison yard, we, at a given signal, faced the windows of the cell where, in solitary confinement and bound hand and foot by chains, our comrades Max Goldstein and Bojor, were wasting away.

And suddenly the words of the International were flung into the night air, reaching right up to the stars, echoing far and wide, bold and challenging.

The prison warders hoarsely shouted, ran hither and thither, beating this one with the butt end of the rifle, forcibly dragging this one to his cell. And still the strains of the International swelled out, warming our hearts and fanning the ever-increasing flames.

And suddenly, unexpectedly, the song broke off. There, in the corner window, in the light of the moon, appeared the curly head of Max Goldstein.

A silence as of the grave reigned in the prison yard. And a thin, clear voice, in spite of illness and weakness, penetrating with its joyfulness, rang thru the air:

"Hail October! Long live the hour of victory all over the earth!"

It was the voice of eternal Max. It was his voice mingling with the clang of chains.

CONTINUE FIGHT IN BIG COAL WAR

PITTSBURGH LABOR REALIZES THE RIGHT TO ORGANIZE IS AT STAKE IN TRIAL OF ACCUSED WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 1.—Great interest is being expressed among the organized workers here over the trial of the Pittsburgh workers who are facing trial for an alleged violation of the Pennsylvania state sedition laws.

The opinion is freely expressed by those that watched the picking of the jury for the trial of Edward Horacek, an active member of the Machinists' Union and a candidate of the Workers (Communist) Party for mayor in the elections here, that this trial is the first step of the steel trust in the persecution of those who were active in organizing the workers against the intolerable conditions in the steel plants.

The court room was filled with many active trade unionists and former members of working class political parties who watched with great interest the opening of the trial of six accused workers.

Object to Free Speech.

The counsel for defense and the assistant prosecuting attorney, Estep, had numerous clashes during the choosing of the jury, when the defense counsel asked a prospective juror whether he believed in the right of free speech, the prosecutor objected to the question. The jury was chosen yesterday and the trial before visiting Judge Prather of an adjacent county will start this morning.

Determined to Fight.

The six defendants who are accused of violations of the sedition act are determined to fight their case to the end and establish the right of any worker to belong to any political organization that they may desire to in this steel trust owned and controlled barony.

Following the trial of Edward Horacek, Max Jenkins will go before the court. The other four will follow in due order. Marshall & Marshall and Isaac Ferguson of Chicago are the lawyers for the accused workers.

BORAH AGAIN ASSAILS THE WORLD COURT

Presages Big Fight Against Coolidge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A terrific denunciation of the advocates of the world court signalized the second barrage of Senator Borah in a scathing letter to John Greer Hibben, president of Princeton university. The first gun of the battle against the Coolidge proposal to enter the court by the back door was fired in the Chicago speech of over a month ago.

The espousal of the world court idea by Coolidge is branded by Borah as "sheer trickery and a betrayal of the confidence of the people who voted by a majority of over seven million to stay out."

Borah still holds to the childish idea that it would be all right to enter the court if it becomes completely divorced from the league of nations. His provincial mind cannot grasp the plain fact that the two are inseparable and that recent events developing out of the quarrel between Britain and Turkey over Mosul clearly prove the indispensability of the court in preparing the way for the imperialists to manipulate the league against other members.

Big Fight Threatened.

The chairman of the foreign relations committee, in his letter to Hibben said, among other things:

"Speaking for myself, President Hibben," says the senator, "the one object for which I shall strive is to separate and divorce this court from the league to the extent and to the end that in joining it we do not violate our pledge to keep this country out of the league.

"But, President Hibben, I belong to a small group of irreconcilables, who voted seven million majority strong to stay out of the league in 1920 and repeated the instructions in 1924. I, myself, have been twice elected by a very satisfactory majority on a pledge to do everything within my power to keep this country out of the league. The party, of which I am a member, is pledged to that policy.

"It seems clear to me, therefore, that those who voted against our joining the league have a right to expect that we shall not go into the league thru a court. That would be sheer trickery and a betrayal of the confidence of and pledge to the great majority of the American people.

"There seems to me only one honorable thing for us to do, and that is, to keep this country out of the league. In order to do this, this court must be divorced from the league so that in joining the court we do not become in fact a part of the league."

DEBT QUESTION TO BE DELAYED FOR MAJORITY

Briand Wants to Get Loyal Support

PARIS, Dec. 1.—The Briand government will not attempt to reopen debt negotiations with the United States until it has been assured of a majority in the chamber of deputies, said Senator Pierre Laval.

"The actual reopening of the French debt discussions with Washington will be delayed until the cabinet has received an assuring majority in the chamber," M. Laval said. "Naturally we are most anxious to eliminate war debts from the French balance sheet with the greatest speed, provision for their complete adjustment will be our primary endeavor."

Finnish Convention Unanimous for C. E. C. Unity Resolution

THE convention of the Finnish Section of the Workers (Communist) Party, which has been in session since Sunday morning, yesterday voted upon the report of the Central Executive Committee and the unity resolution of the C. E. C. of the party. The convention, consisting of 17 delegates and with a consultative vote of all leading Finnish comrades including the editors and business managers of papers, secretary of the section, etc., unanimously took their stand for the unification of the party on the basis of the resolution submitted by the C. E. C. which was published in The DAILY WORKER nearly two weeks ago.

The vote includes the stand in the convention on the question of reorganization of the Finnish Section on the basis of shop nuclei and international branches and the organization of language fractions in place of the federation which has existed heretofore to bring every Finnish comrade into the shop nuclei and international branches and into the reorganized fractions of the Finnish Section.

This decision was arrived at after three days of debate in which every phase of the situation of the party, the past factional struggle, the work of reorganization, the need of unification of all Communist forces was thoroly discussed. The discussion opened with a two-hour statement of the views of the Central Executive Committee by C. E. Ruthenberg, general secretary of the party, and during the debate which followed every delegate and all leading comrades took the floor to present their views. The discussion was closed by a speech by Comrade Lovestone for the C. E. C. The spirit of the convention is for an energetic struggle against any right wing tendency and holds to the line of the Communist International and for a united fight to build the party and again extend its work among the masses of this country.

ZEIGLER COAL MINERS' TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Coaldiggers Will Face Trial February 2

By MAX SHACHTMAN

(I. L. D. News Service)

BENTON, Ill., Dec. 1.—The defendants in the Zeigler miners' frame-up won a victory in the granting by the court of a motion of the defense for the postponement of the date of opening of the trial. Judge Eagleton of the Franklin county circuit court sustained the motion of Harry E. Morgan, attorney for the defense, for a continuance.

The opening date for the trial has been set for February 2, 1926. The motion was granted after a denial of the formal motion to quash indictments against the progressive miners. The affidavit of the defense declared as its grounds for desiring a continuance that a number of its important material witnesses were unavoidably absent from the trial and that their evidence would substantially aid the case for the defense.

Henry Corbishly, secretary of the Franklin County Defense Committee, announced that a renewed drive will now be made to get the moral and financial backing of every miner in the district and with the co-operation of the International Labor Defense of every worker in the country.

The addition of Judge Sidney Ward to attorneys for the defense has strongly strengthened the victims of the Farrington frame-up. No effort will be spared to present a solid case in February. All thru the county, the sentiment of the miners is growing stronger and bigger for the defendants, whose temporary removal from active union work they now realize to have been a blow at their own interests in their struggle for correct checkweighing in the mines and against the treasonable policy of the Farrington-Cobb machine.

LEFT WING CALLS ON WORKERS TO SMASH SIGMAN

The appeal follows:

PARIS (By Mail)—The troops in Morocco have taken up their winter quarters. The "great pause" has commenced which will last until the spring. It is time to draw the balance of the results of the campaign up to the present.

NEEDLE TRADES FURNISH LEFT WING THRILLS IN CONVENTIONS OF THE AMERICAN TRADE UNIONS

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (By Mail)—Many trade union conventions have taken place this year but it has been left to the needle trades to furnish the left wing thrills. In October it was the Furriers, and now it is the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Seventeen months ago when the I. L. G. W. U. convention met in Boston it was the blackest, most reactionary convention that was ever held in the history of this organization. The adherents of the T. U. E. L. and other militants were being expelled wholesale from the organization. Every despicable method was used to keep the left wing from having representation in that convention.

The machine was able to accomplish this two years ago. Only about fifty supporters of the left wing program were delegates to the Boston convention, while the machine by devious means was able to secure some 250 delegates. The reactionaries ruled that convention with an autocratic hand.

This time the situation is different. When the bureaucrats declared the T. U. E. L. illegal, this did not accomplish the results that they fondly hoped for. Today in Philadelphia there is

MINE BARONS TURN DOWN THE OFFER OF GOV. PINCHOT TO END COAL STRIKE; COOLIDGE TO ACT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 1.—Despairing of further efforts of Governor Gifford Pinchot to end the anthracite strike the miners' tri-district wage scale committeemen left Harrisburg today. This marks the collapse of the last effort of Pinchot to create a basis for settlement.

His proposal was that the miners return to work and that a special board of arbitration be created to "adjust" wages in the anthracite for the next five years.

This rank proposal which would have betrayed the miners into the hands of the bosses for that period of years was eagerly accepted by the reactionary president of the miners' union, John L. Lewis.

Want to Crush Union.

Altho the miners' officials accepted the proposal which would have resulted in a shameful betrayal of the strike the employers refused to accept any terms that would even permit the union to survive in any form. What the bosses want is complete extermination of every semblance of unionism. Lewis is fighting only to maintain his job as a labor lieutenant of the capitalist class and the capitalists say they don't need Lewis, that they can browbeat the workers without any intermediary assistants of the Lewis type.

The agreement of Lewis to surrender the fate of the miners to Pinchot's arbitration board removed every other obstacle except complete surrender of recognition of the union. The Lewis letter to the governor, a disgraceful yielding to the bosses, follows:

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 29, 1925.
Honorable Gifford Pinchot,
Governor of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pa.
Sir:—

Conscious of the imperative public need, which prompted your proposals to the anthracite operators and miners for adjustment of the present controversy, the mine workers' representatives have given to the subject the most profound consideration. It is obvious that the interests of peace in the anthracite industry require consideration by both sides in a spirit of compromise and mutual concession. The mine workers regard your proposals for a settlement as being representative of the public viewpoint, and have every sincere desire now, as before, to terminate a distressing situation which menaces public health and well being.

I am, therefore, authorized by the Tridistrict Scale Committee of Districts 1, 7 and 9, United Mine Workers of America, to advise you that on behalf of our membership we accept the proposals made by you as a basis of settlement. We stand ready at any time to meet in joint conference with the representatives of the anthracite operators to negotiate an agreement with shall encompass the points set forth by you.

We further advise that promptly following such agreement upon the part of the anthracite operators we will arrange for a resumption of mining at the anthracite collieries

POLICE ESCORT SCABS ABOARD GREEK VESSEL

Only Eight Pass I.W.W. Picket Line

By A Worker Correspondent

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Sailor pickets made it so uncomfortable for the scabs that tried to sneak onto the S. S. Edison at 39th Street, Brooklyn, last night that after having made several unsuccessful attempts, they went to the police station and had the patrol wagon haul them to the gang plank. With the protection of the police, the scabs were escorted on board like convicts, thus escaping the pickets who were trying to keep rats off the struck boat.

The Edison is a Greek ship sailing under a British flag. This it does because the Greek tax is so steep that vessels cannot make the profit desirable, the Greek government being so heavily in debt that it goes to every extreme to collect revenue.

The pickets were on the job till one o'clock this morning. At that time only eight scabs had been able to get aboard, even with the help of the hoosegow dump cart. The ship is short about 80 men and is paying good money for scabs. However, the scabs cannot handle the vessel and take her out of port.

The I. W. W. and the Spanish sailors are striking together and have the situation so well in hand that they are able to guarantee that no one of the men among them will go on the scab ship. The scab crew is composed of navy men, as civilians cannot be coaxed to take the place of the strikers.

What Do You Say?

LET THE FARMERS SPEAK!

THE farm crisis raises one of the most important problems in the nation today. The capitalist politicians are trying to get the farmers to accept their fake remedies.

The importance of the agricultural problem is shown by the fact that President Cal Coolidge is coming to Chicago, next Monday, the day that congress convenes, to address the convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation in an effort to show that his Wall Street administration is the "friend" of the land worker.

What do the farmers, out on the land, think of his quack nostrums that have already been offered. How do these remedies actually work out. Let the farmers speak. Write out what you have to say and send it in. The DAILY WORKER will publish a special issue for distribution during Coolidge's stay in Chicago. All letters received will be published in that issue.

One farmer already writes in that the agricultural conference now starting in Chicago is "a farce from the standpoint of the farmer." It is packed with bankers, small business men, rich farmers and so-called "agricultural experts." Here is an opportunity for the farmers to have their say; an opportunity they will never get thru the capitalist press. Send all your letters to the Editorial Department, DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. LOCARNO 'SECURITY PACT' SIGNED IN LONDON; CHAMBERLAIN GETS TITLE OF 'KNIGHT OF THE GARTER'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Locarno pacts were signed in the reception hall of the foreign office here today. Now begins the maneuvering that it is hoped will isolate the Soviet Union from the rest of Europe, and also realize the British desire for a European combine against American imperialism, called "dollarocracy," by the bankrupt creditor nations of Europe.

The conference of Locarno did not produce the results desired in spite of the loud shouting about peace settling over the world because of the deliberations at that Swiss town. That which was not accomplished openly is still the objective of subterreanean conspiracies on the part of the powers involved.

The ceremonies opened at 11 o'clock when Austin Chamberlain called the conference together and made a brief introductory speech.

The Light that Failed.

In the midst of the ceremonies the light failed that filled the room with artificial sunlight and it was some time before the assembled diplomats realized what had happened. Before the first signature was appended to the documents electricians had to repair the light.

No particular significance is attached to the failure of the lights, though some of the superstitious attaches seemed to regard it as an omen portending disaster. Those better versed in international diplomacy observed that disaster would befall them regardless of the antics of the lights at a critical moment.

The treaties signed today, with seals attached will be deposited with the league of nations at Geneva.

Diplomatic Hot Air.

Foreign Minister Chamberlain addressed the assembly in French, and Chancellor Luther of Germany, who responded, spoke in English. Brief speeches of congratulations were made by M. Briand, Count Scialoja, and Vandervelde.

The security pact was passed about the horseshoe table for signing, and when it had been signed the accompanying treaties were passed about.

When the treaties had been signed M. Briand, speaking from his seat, declared that he represented the majority of the French people in their desire for peace and their hatred of war and he assured the signatories that France would do all in her power to make the treaties a success and to prevent war.

Premier Baldwin of Great Britain, who had witnessed the signing of the treaties, made a brief speech, declared without smiling that the treaties have laid the foundation for world peace, so long sought.

King George sent a message of welcome to the signatories, expressing his hope that "this work of appeasement and reconciliation will provide the foundation for sincere friendship between our several nations and will assure our people." Austen Chamberlain read the message to the assemblage.

Herr Stresemann and M. Briand are confering this afternoon. It is understood Stresemann will urge the abolition of restrictions upon free travel between France and Germany. He will also recommend that there be closer co-operation between Germany, France and Great Britain for the development of civil aviation.

Knight of the Garter.

Austin Chamberlain who was the agent of British imperialism in engineering the Locarno conference went to Buckingham palace immediately after the signing of the pacts and was received by King George, who bestowed upon him the title "knight of the garter." Chamberlain eagerly accepted the title and now becomes one of the lingerie knights. This order, the most solemn confered by the king was established when a slovenly female at a royal ball dropped her garter on the floor and some roue picked it up and tried to place it where it belonged. This was considered such a good joke that the drunken king decided to adorn the favored heroes of the empire with an insignia bearing the shape of a garter.

Chamberlain will now place the letters K. G., after his signature and his wife will hereafter be entitled to call herself a dame of the grand cross of the older British empire and she will be known as Dame Ivy Chamberlain in her own right.

It is quite proper that this Locarno signing should wind up in a bedroom farce that would make Al. H. Woods blush with envy and malice at his rival showmen of London.

Decision not Final.

This alleged conclusion of the efforts put forth at Locarno is not the final denoument of the conspiracy. It only concludes the formula. History will write the final decision in different terms and with different instruments. In the last analysis the Locarno pacts will be thrown onto the scrap heap of history and "finis" will be written to them in letters forged out of the thunder and lighting of the proletarian revolution in Europe and the colonies as the oppressed of the world rise in their might against the conspiracies to make cannon fodder of them in order more effectively to maintain the slave empires of imperialism.

MASTER BARBERS' HEAD DISAPPEARS, FEARING PRISON

Bosses' Chairman Dodging Bomb Trust Quiz

Following the indictment of a number of organizers of the Chicago Master Barbers' Association, Hermann Linnemann, chairman of the association committed suicide it is claimed, fearing that the grand jury investigation of the bombing trust in Chicago would implicate him and his organization in the attempt to terrorise master barbers into joining the association.

Commits "Suicide."

Linnemann, who feared that he would be indicted following the examination that he underwent in the state's attorney's office, donned an old suit of clothes, leaving a list of all his belongings to his wife, left his home for a special meeting of the Master Barbers' Association, and supposedly committed suicide in Lake Michigan.

When he failed to arrive at the Barbers' Association meeting, an investigation started which disclosed that his hat was found near the water's edge on Lage Michigan.

Later two notes were found one addressed to his wife and the other to his customers and friends.

FILIPINOS ISSUE MAGAZINE HERE IN LIBERTY FIGHT

Preparations are now completed for the banquet in honor of the Filipino independence mission to be given in the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago, on Dec. 11. Senator Sergio Osmena, vice president of the Philippine senate, has written to the arrangements committee accepting the invitation to be present and to address the gathering.

Cirilo Manat, chairman of the Filipino independence committee of Chicago, declares that the banquet will be the opening gun in a persistent campaign here on behalf of Filipino independence, to be steadily intensified during the entire term of the visit of the mission in this country. The campaign will not be conducted among Filipinos, for the simple reason that they are already solidly behind it; but every effort will be made to draw the American labor movement actively into the struggle. The All-America Anti-Imperialist League is working in close co-operation with the Filipino committee for the purpose of furthering this end.

There are some 700 Filipines in Chicago and every one of them is an ardent soldier for the overthrow of foreign imperialist domination in the land of his birth. Activities of the local Filipino colony center around the Filipino Association of Chicago, 806 S. Ashland Blvd. The members publish a monthly magazine on behalf of independence, entitled "Philippine-American."

Brookhart and Steck Dicker Over Ballots

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senator Brookhart of Iowa, conceded 1,700 contested votes to Daniel Steck, his opponent. These votes were originally challenged by Brookhart on the ground they were "too marked up" to permit a final decision as to which candidate they were intended.

This move was made in the contest with the hope that Steck's managers would make a similar concession regarding 4,000 Brookhart votes, challenged by Steck on the same ground. If such a concession is made it will mean the seating of Brookhart by 2,300 votes.

The Left Wing in the Needle Trades

present a strong group of left wing delegates with a majority of the membership behind them. The T. U. E. L. has organized a block that has in its ranks all honest elements—from the Communist to the progressives.

At this writing, on the eve of the convention, no one can say which group has the majority of the delegates. But one thing is certain, namely, the left wing delegates represents without any exaggeration, 80 per cent of the membership. The reactionary machine, altho it has only about 10 per cent of the membership, has delegates almost equal to the number of the left wing. This is due to the lack of proportional representation, with small locals sending as many delegates as the great locals which contain the bulk of members, and to the paper locals set up by the machine.

When the left wing delegates started to Philadelphia from New York City, the members of the union gathered in the Pennsylvania station in a tremendous demonstration. Thousands of rank and filers turned out to cheer their leaders on to the struggle. It was really inspiring. A long line of workers leading from the entrance to the train, down thru the great station lobby and out into the streets, with a lane formed for the delegates to pass thru. Red roses seemed to spring into the air from every side. The moment when the first left-wing delegate stepped in to this human lane was the signal for the wildest demonstration that any delegation going to a trade union convention ever got.

Two special cars carried the delegation and visitors to Philadelphia. There they were again met by a wildly enthusiastic rank and file delegation. Again red roses. And, probably for the first time, Broad Street station sleepy officials heard the International sung by hundreds of workers. Some day it will be thousands. It was not musical, but it was splendid.

A procession then was formed and the rank and file of Philadelphia led their representatives to the left wing headquarters, the Loraine hotel. No one knew when the administration delegates left New York, and if anyone met them in Philadelphia it was not the workers from the factory. A few blocks apart are the headquarters of the two warring groups.

The "Majestic" and "Loraine" means only two hotels to the average Philadelphian, but to the delegates of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union they mean a great deal more. Behind the doors of these hotels are being planned the struggle between the left wing representing the great majority of the membership, and the reactionary machine representing their own selfish greed that is willing to make the union an appendage of the employers' association.

In the Majestic there is an air of gloom. They are not sure of themselves. With tricky convention tactics they may get the majority of the delegates, but that does not alter the fact that they only represent a small minority of the membership. So they are not joyful. A victory of this kind they know will be short-live'.

On the other hand, the Loraine hotel, the headquarters of the left wing is a beehive of activities. What a difference in seventeen months! They are eager for the fray. And why not? They represent progress. They represent the very life of the union. True, they also represented that very some thing in Boston, but there they were fighting with their backs against the wall, a minority in the union. Today they have the overwhelming majority of the membership behind them.

The convention begins tomorrow in the Arch street theater. What the results of the convention will be cannot be foretold. One great difference between this convention and the Boston convention is that the machine is fighting with its back to the wall. With all of its corrupt methods, with all of the persecution of the militants, with all of the expulsions, removals from office, and taking workers down from the job, covering a long period of three years, still the machine is beaten. The left wing, under the leadership of the T. U. E. L., comes into this convention stronger than ever. It throws down the gauntlet of battle—to those who serve the interest of the employers. It is determined to wipe out the shameful misrule of the I. L. G. W. U. by the old machine and make the union a real fighting organ of the class struggle.

BRITISH ARREST DRUSE REBELS IN PALESTINE

Fierce Fighting Near Border.

A terrific battle has been raging for two days between French and Djebel Druse tribesmen near the border of Syria, according to advices received here. The outcome of the battle can not be estimated.

Texas Legislature to Have Special Session to Impeach Governor

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 1.—Following the statement by Mirian A. Ferguson, "governor in name" of Texas, that she refuses to call a special session of the Texas legislature to discuss the contracts let by the highway commission to contractors who were her husband's political allies, Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the Texas legislature is calling a special session of the house for January 4 to inpeach the so-called governor.

This special session of the legislature will be powerless to probe the contracts let by the governor, by means of which the American Road company which was capitalized in the state of Delaware for $10,000 was able to make a profit of $1,115,000 in less than a year. This company, which backed the Ferguson gang, received contracts amounting to $1,719,000, charging 30 cents per square yard for asphalt topping while the others charged but 18 cents.

The Hoffman Road Construction company is another which enjoyed juicy plums when the American Road company was forced to cancel many of its contracts and return about a half million dollars to the state treasury when charges were brought against it by the state's attorney, who opposes the Ferguson machine.

The special session of the house will be unable to make any appropriations for the special called meeting and the speaker had made public that an organization had set aside and advanced over $100,000 to defray the expenses.

Want Graft.

It is intimated that the ku klux klan is behind the call for a special session as a number of the klansmen desire to be able to pluck some juicy plums and aid the imperial empire with Texas state funds.

Workers can Expect No Help from Charity of Capitalists' Red Cross

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Victor L. Berger, the Milwaukee "socialist" congressman, is back in Washington, D. C., waiting for the speaker to call the house of representatives into session, while his daily newspaper back home, The Leader, carries the stuff that will help keep him snug and comfortable in his seat 'neath the capitol's dome.

• • • •

Right now every capitalist daily in the land is gushing over in praise of the Red Cross. The profit press is trying to urge everyone to buy "Christmas seals," little stamps the size of those issued by the postal department. It is said that the proceeds aid in the fight on tuberculosis.

• • • •

Like the good and faithful ally of capitalism that it is, Berger's Milwaukee Leader falls gracefully into line with an editorial starting off with this paragraph:

"It is our annual duty and pleasure to request our readers to buy Christmas seals."

• • • •

That is a reminder of the war days when everyone was not only urged, but blackjacked into subscribing for the Red Cross, as well as buying liberty bonds and war saving stamps, not to mention aid to the Salvation Army and similar pap-sucking organizations. Only the staunchest revolutionists, loyal to their principles, fought off the pay-triot horde.

Carl Haessler was a war objector. In the early days of the war he was a member of the Leader's editorial staff. He wrote a scathing attack against the Red Cross and its activities. Berger, the "socialist," could not deny the truth of the charges made against this capitalist philanthropy, but he deemed it bad policy to publish it. Not bad policy from the light of socialist principles. But ill advised when studied from the viewpoint of Berger's political ambitions.

Instead Berger became an ardent supporter of the Red Cross. And he still is. His editorial writer dilates at great length about the results supposed to accrue from the sale of the "Christmas seals":

"They pay for a traveling free chest clinic, a health service training school, health institutes in schools, and constant propaganda teaching how to avoid tuberculosis and how to cure it when caught."

• • • •

The indifference of the American capitalist state to the health and welfare of the masses living under its rule, is shown by the mere fact that this public charity, the Red Cross, must beg funds to carry on its farcical fight against this terrible plague. It cannot be expected that this charity can rise above the profit level of the social system that feeds it. No effort is made to wipe out the causes of tuberculosis. In fact, the big factory owners, who feed children at tender ages, to the insatiable appetite of industry, are among the biggest contributors to the Red Cross. These children grow up tubercular, incurable wrecks, hopeless even for charity fakers to claw over.

• • • •

The Red Cross did not worry about the Illinois miners until the Cherry Mine disaster in which many hundreds were killed under conditions so revolting that great sums were raised in an effort to gag the cries of the orphans and widows left behind. The Red Cross merely concerned itself with the distribution of the charity fund under conditions that caused untold protest. The mine barons of the anthracite coal fields today will buy the "Christmas" seals of the Red Cross, because the Red Cross will not champion the miners' struggle for a shorter workday, increased wages and better conditions, the best weapon in the fight against tuberculosis and all other industrial diseases that clip off the thread of life of these workers at an early age. No mention has ever been made of the Red Cross fighting tuberculosis by championing the struggle against wage cuts in the New England textile industry, where the white plague also finds its ready victims. To mention conditions in the mines and in the textile mills, is to expose the relation of the Red Cross to the workers in all industries. It is on the side of the bosses against the interests of the working class.

• • • •

Let the workers, instead of purchasing the "Christmas" seals of the Red Cross, spend their pennies, or greater sums, for the strengthening of their own class organizations. Let the "socialists" with the class collaborating labor officialdom bow submissively before this fraud of the bourgeoisie. Let the working class stand erect and fight it.

Koracek's Only Crime Organizing Workers, Defense Lawyer Shows the only crime mentioned in the indictment was that Horacek had done organization work and the indictment fails to mention what organization he aided to build.

The prosecutor addressed the jury shortly after this bombshell was thrown into the camp of the state and read the sedition act of 1919 which was later amended in 1920 with the insertion of the clause "any writing or conduct the intent of which might be to overthrow government" to give the sedition law teeth and use it to aid the steel trust to stifle any organization attempts on the part of the workers.

"Exposes" Workers Party.

The prosecutor then declared that Horacek and others were arrested about the first of May when the "Communists and other agitators got active." He then went on to describe that the Workers Party of America was nothing more than an elementary school where they trained members for the Communist Party and that when the members were able to pass an examination successfully thye were allowed to enter the Communist Party.

He declared that the Communist Party has as its purpose the overthrowing of the government and that it is a part of the Third International and that he would show they were closely connected with Russia.

The first witness for the prosecution, a dick by the name of Marmo, testified that he helped to arrest Horacek and was used to "identify" a number of articles, papers, plans and magazines which he claimed that he seized and later turned over to the well-known federal agent Lennon, who planted stool-pigeons in the Pittsburgh labor movement. One of Lennon's stools was discovered in the Machinists' Union and was immediately expelled.

The star witness for the prosecution under cross-examination admitted that the three detectives who had testified were technically wrong when they said they turned evidence seized over to him as he did not receive the material taken during the raid but that they were turned over to former Assistant District Attorney Myers, who is now the United States Attorney General for the Pittsburgh district, and that Myers had turned the "stuff" over to Mrs. Eleanor O'Connell, a government "expert", who sorted out the literature and labelled it as seditious, irrelevant, etc.

Scout Russian Passport Myth.

The government "expert", Mrs. Eleanor O'Donnell, was then called to stand and she testified that among the papers seized at Horacek's home, they had found a passport to Soviet Russia. When Horacek's attorneys began to cross-examine her she was forced to admit that no passport to Russia was found among the belongings of Horacek.

The prosecution had made big of the tale told by this "expert" that among all other papers, they had found blue-prints and plans. The prosecution dodged all mention of what the plans were and tried to hide their real character. Under cross-examination the witness was forced to admit that the plans were blue prints of an invention that Horacek, who is a mechanical engineer, was developing for the betterment of street cars.

Refuse to Produce Blue-Prints.

The defense demanded that the state produce the blue-prints as evidence to put before the jury. This the state denied as it realized that the jury would repudiate the frame-up tactics of the department of justice dicks and the state authorities to sentence this active Machinists' Union member to a long term in a jail cell.

FARM GATHERING WILL BE FARCE, HAWKEYE CHARGE

Ten Bankers There to One Dirt Farmer

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 1.—M. L. Bowman, Waterloo, Iowa, in a statement here today predicted that the agricultural conference called in Chicago today by Secretary Jardine would be "a farce from the standpoint of the farmer."

Bowman said it was just "another attempt to throw political dust."

"Ten bankers in the conference to one dirt farmer will mean exactly nothing for agricultural relief," Bowman charged.

Jardine Talks to Bankers.

Secretary of Agriculture William M. Jardine is in Chicago and yesterday presided at a conference of bankers, businessmen and agricultural experts called to consider the grain crop problems of the farmer. Particular attention was paid to the serious problems facing Iowa farmers.

The national association of secretaries and commissioners of agriculture is meeting in Chicago and the conference was called in connection with this gathering.

Coolidge will arrive next Monday to address the American Farm Bureau Federation at its convention. Today's gatherings were regarded as a prelude to this event.

Mine Barons Turn Down the Offer of Governor Pinchot

at the earliest possible date.

Respectfully yours,
John L. Lewis, President.

Must Fight On.

This situation in the anthracite has reached a crisis that placed forcibly before the miners the question of continuing the struggle or seeing their organization destroyed. The miners who can estimate the situation realise the problem. Their union in its structure is all right and they must defend it. The treachery of the Lewis machine does not thereby justify abandoning the union. On the contrary every effort will be put forward by progressive miners to broaden the strike and make it more effective.

Against the threat of extermination of their union the miners must demand that their officials instantly call out the miners in the soft coal fields and that the maintenance men be forced to abandon the anthracite mines.

Coolidge to Intervene.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Coolidge announced today that he would soon reply to the letter of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in which he hinted at a strike in the bituminous fields unless the government interceded to compel the operators to live up to the Jacksonville agreement.

Coolidge told callers today that he had refrained from answering Lewis' letter for fear of complicating the negotiations being conducted by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

This is interpreted to mean governmental intervention in the coal strike in order to arrest the movement for sympathetic action in the soft coal fields, which is recognized as the most effective weapon the miners have to preserve their organisation.

CZECHO-SLOVAK WORKERS' MISSION TO SOVIET UNION IMPRESSED BY POWER OF WORKERS AND PEASANTS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—(By Mail.)—The Czecho-Slovak workers' delegation that is visiting the Union of Soviet Republics have been greatly impressed by the power that the workers and peasants have in the running of the Soviets. These workers, most of whom are members of the social-democratic party, indignantly repudiated the social-democrats in Soviet Russia who are on trial for aiding the counter-revolutionists in their attempts to destroy the first socialist state in the world.

In the following statement to the workers of the Trans-Caucasian Soviet Republics of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaidjan, the Czecho-Slovak workers' delegation points out that they were satisfied with the solution of the problem of national minorities and were also convinced that it was the workers and peasants who guided the state and determined its economy, and promised the Trans-Caucasian workers and peasants to spread the truth about the Soviet government when they return to Czecho-Slovakia:

"We have visited your countries to find out how far the statements of the international bourgeois press are true when they declare that a Communist reign of terror exists in Georgia, that anti-Soviet elements are tortured and manhandled in the Soviet prisons. We consider it to be our duty to publish the results of our stay in the Trans-Caucasian Soviet Republics and to declare our attitude to those statements of the press.

Have Complete Freedom.

"We have had absolute and complete freedom of movement, we have visited shops and factories, clubs, schools, villages and workers' meetings. We have held discussions with workers, peasants, trade unionists and government officials; we have discussed for days with the imprisoned leaders of the anti-Soviet insurrection which took place in 1924, with social-democrats, national democrats and social revolutionaries, with one-time members of the menshevik party, who now are working together with the Soviet government. Everywhere we were convinced that the workers and peasants of Soviet Trans-Caucasia have finally won their hard fought freedom.

Workers' and Peasants' Rule.

"The governments of all those national republics consist of workers and peasants of the particular nationality, who at the same time lead all the political institutions, direct the factories and control the economic institutions, co-operatives, etc. Each worker feels himself as the owner with his fellow workers of the shop in which he works and he is therefore diong his utmost to raise the level of production and thus the level of the whole economy of his country.

"We have come to the conclusion that the Georgian people are as independent in every respect as the other nationalities of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and that the national question has been solved in a way only possible in a socialist state. There is not the least trace of any suppression of any national minority, on the contrary, the Russian people who are economically, culturally and numerically stronger than the national minorities which were oppressed under the dominance of the czar and which were compelled to remain backward, assist the cultural and material development of these minorities in every way and helps them to take a part as equal workers in the cause of the socialist construction of a new world.

Denounce Capitalist Papers.

"The reports of the bourgeois press about alleged suppressions of national minorities, about the alleged terror of a small group of Communists over the overwhelming majority of the population are malicious slanders intended to prepare the way for an armed intervention against the Soviet Union to conquer its natural resources. The Communist Party enjoys the unlimited confidence of the masses and carries out the policy favored by the vast majority of the people, that is to say, favored by the workers and peasants.

"The achievements of the Trans-Caucasian Republics in social progress are such that they could never have dreamed of them under the bourgeois and menshevist regime.

Economic Improvement.

"On the economic field we have observed a feverish activity which has not only lead to a recovery of the pre-war standard but which has built new factories and electric power stations which can compare and compete with the best modern works constructed by European technique. With the development of industry, the situation of the working class is improving also, wages increasing, etc.

"The building of workers' colonies, and cultural institutions has reached powerful proportions. Intellectuals and scholars have the widest possibilities of exercising their capacities.

"The Soviet Union represents a tremendous step forwards and in the future it will remain the signpost for all the oppressed peoples of the world. Your young socialist land has many enemies, above all the foreign capitalists and the political parties under their influence. And to these belong the rest of the social-democrats, the social revolutionaries, etc., ten of whom are serving sentences in the Tiflis prison.

"We must say that in comparison with the prison regime in Czecho-Slovakia, that in Tiflis prison is more like a sanatorium than a prison.

Denounce Georgian Mensheviks.

"We socialists declare that we have nothing in common with these people, they are as far removed from us as the capitalists. They do not belong to the right wing of the working class, but to the left wing of the bourgeoisie. This has been recognized by their one-time comrades who have returned to the ways of Marxism and to the ranks of the working class, and who have torn themselves loose from the enemies of the Soviet Union abroad. For us, socialist workers, the eight hours of discussion which we had with the arrested leaders of the insurrection were decisive, when their spokesman, the Prince Andronikaschvili, the leader of the national democratic landowners' party and the factory owner, Kavaschischvili, said that they wished to continue the discussion with us in the name of the mensheviki upon the conditions in Georgia under the menshevist regime. These people are dead for the international working class movement. They were far more dangerous for the Georgian proletariat than the capitalists and the Georgian proletariat was right in flinging them aside, out of the way of socialism.

"A free Trans-Caucasia is advancing with firm steps. The intrigues of the international bourgeoisie are shattered against the firm alliance of the workers and peasants. We estimate your powerful trade unions particularly highly. They are a decisive factor in the economic life of your country and they represent the best school of socialism.

"We see that you regard yourselves as members of the great international proletarian family and that therefore you are anxious for the unification of all trade unions into one powerful international proletarian family and that therefore you are anxious for the unification of all trade unions into one powerful international world league to serve as a weapon of victory in the struggle against international capitalism.

"Long live the Soviet Union, the first socialist land in the world!"

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

By L. HELLER.

Labor in the Far East by L. Heller is the series of very excellent articles on the labor movement of the Far East which has been received by the Trade Union Educational League, the North American section of the Red International of Labor Unions. You will find an instalment of this series each day in The DAILY WORKER. The first appeared yesterday. Today we print the second instalment which tells of the revival of China's labor movement in 1924.)

ARTICLE II.

The New Political Situation and the Revival of the Labor Movement.

IT will be recalled that in the autumn of 1924 Peking was the scene of a coup d'etat in which the Chihli clique suffered defeat. Wu-Pei-Fu, the erstwhile almighty dictator, was forced to flee to the Yan-Tse-Kiang valley, and Tuan-Tzi-Jui took over power. This new government has been maintaining itself only by grace on Cham-Tso-Lin and Feng-Lu-Hsiang, the heads of two hostile military groups, between which it has been very cleverly balancing. There lies the weakness of the present government, which has no considerable military forces of its own. Yet, its very military weakness is the source of its political strength. Just because Tuan-Tzi-Jui has no army of his own, Chan and Feng, who are not strong enough to capture the entire power, reconcile themselves with Tuan-Tsi-Jui who is dependent upon both of them.

The disappearance of Wu-Pei-Fu and of his fosterling, President Asao-Kun, who was extremely hostile towards the labor movement, and their replacement by the "weak" Tuan-Tsi-Jui government, has created a favorable situation that was promptly utilized both by the labor and the nationalist movements. The Tuan-Tsi-Jui government syles itself as temporary, thus indirectly recognizing its "illegal" origin. Tuan-Tsi-Jui in the past has been the chief of the Japanofile Anfu clique, hateful to the people as was clearly demonstrated during the stormy years of 1919-20. However, Tuan-Tsi-Jui is a very clever politician, and from the very first days of his coming to power he began to talk of a "National Assembly" that was to establish a "lawful" government while trying, at the same time, to win over the sympathies of the public for which purpose he appealed to the support of the Kuomintang party appointing some members of the right wing of that party to certain government positions and inviting to Peking the leader of Kuomintang, Sun-Yat-Sen.

THIS, of course, was merely a chess move. There could be no agreements between the reactionary Tuan-Tsi-Jui and the revolutionary Sun-Yet- Sen on the fundamental questions of home and foreign policy. Nevertheless, as a result of the new situation, the Kuomintang party, whose political activity is centered in the Kwen-Tung province in the South, obtained an opportunity to appear on the national arena. Sun-Yet-Sen came north and in the course of several months, with the aid of appeals and manifestos in connection with the struggle over the political character of the future National Assembly and of the conference that was to precede it, he carried out tremendous propaganda work in Northern and Central China, noticeably strengthening the nationalist movement in Peking and Shanghai.

This enlivening of the political movement had its immediate effect also on the labor movement.

The railwaymen's and miners' organizations that had been driven underground, began to grow and expand, the recently closed workers' schools and courses were re-opened, and new ones established. The propaganda and organization activities carried out during the early period, as future developments have shown, were not in vain; immediately the unfavorable weather had passed and a new warm wave appeared in the political atmosphere, the seeds sown two and more years previously, began to blossom anew. The labor movement put down after the crushing of the Peking-Hankow strike, again revived. More than that, the beginning of 1925 was marked by the development of a strong movement on the part of the most numerous and backward section of Chinese labor—the textile workers.

The next instalment will tell of the textile workers and their struggle against the capitalist offensive.

RUSSIANS EAGER FOR AMERICAN FARM METHODS

Machinery Changes Country Life

Machinery is revolutionizing the Russian countryside, Donald Stephens told a Chicago audience gathered to hear of his year with the Russian reconstruction farms near the Black sea.

The organization has a concession of 15,000 blacksoil acres on a railroad from the Soviet government, with buildings and live stock.

The 25 Americans, men and women, comprising the unit, have put American farm machinery on the estate and have run the farms on American large scale lines. They have raised $75,000 in America and Stephens and Harold Ware, the leader of the unit, are bacq in the western hemisphere to raise another $75,000. The additional sum is needed for more equipment, to meet notes on some equipment obtained on credit and to enlarge the machine instruction and maintenance work among the Russian farmers.

Demonstrate Machinery.

The estate is crowded with peasants every Sunday, Stephens said, demanding demonstrations of the machinery and the modern system of tractor plowing and harvesting.

An impressive object lesson was afforded in the winter wheat seeding season. The Americans with their tractors kept the ground plowed and harrowed while the Russian peasant after one shallow plowing trusted to providence. But the rains held off and finally they sowed at the latest possible moment. So did the Americans. Soon the American machine-tilled fields were green with the sprouting wheat while the peasant acres remained a sterile brown. The reconstruction farmers showed the way out of the recurring drought-famine disasters.

Excellent Yield.

The Americans produced 24 bushels an acre last year. The United States average yield is 12 to 13 bushels. The Russians are glad to get from 6 bushels up. The reconstruction farmers expect to better the 24-bushel yield next year.

Rosa Raisa's "Madame Butterfly" Gives View of U. S. Navy in Orient

The overfed and underdressed bourgeois audience that came to the Chicago Civic Opera on Sunday afternoon to enjoy the light opera of "Madame Butterfly," a light opera, were given a jolt.

Rosa Raisa's interpretation of Cho-Cho-San, the delicate sweetness of her voice, the charm of personality in depicting the suffering of the little maid of the land of chrysanthemums and cherry blossoms, poignantly and very realistically, brings home a sidelight on American imperialist invasion of foreign nations, this time in the Orient.

In this story taken from the book of John L. Long, the little Japanese maiden Cho-Cho-San, known to her friends as "Butterfly," is wooed and won by the American Lieutenant B. F. Pinkerton of the U. S. navy. He affects a marriage with her, which he knows is not binding. Then he departs for America with a promise to return when the "red robins nest again."

In three years he is again sent to this Japanese port. This time he brings his American wife with him. When he arrives he finds a wife and baby waiting for him.

The inevitable tragic outcome. The little Japanese wife kills herself.

Irene Pavloska's interpretation of Suzuki, the servant and friend of Madame Butterfly and Charles Hackett's portrayal of the depraved soldier of the American dollar were also admirably done.

FINNISH FRACTION OF WORKERS PARTY UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTS RESOLUTION ON YOUTH WORK

During yesterday's session of the national convention of the Finnish Language Fraction of the Workers (Communist) Party the question of the Young Workers (Communist) League was discussed.

Comrade Nat Kaplan, member of the Natonal Executive Committee of the League rendered a short report on the situation in the league and its immediate tasks and then presented the following resolution in the name of the National Executive Committee which was unanimously adopted by the convention.

The Young Workers (Communist) League.

The national convention of the Finnish Language Fraction of the Workers (Communist) Party after hearing the report of the Young Workers (Communist) League places on record the following:

(1) The convention greets the start of mass work of the league and especially agrees that by concentration on a deep-rooted economic-trade union work, application of the united front tactic, the building of a mass workers' sports movement in this country and the complete reorganization of the league on the basis of shop nuclei, will the league be put well on the road towards becoming the mass organization of the young workers of this country.

(2) The convention endorses the policy of the league in drawing new elements into the active positons and work of the league, from all parts of the league membership, especially from the members in the heavy industries and in establishing closer contacts between all districts of the organization.

(3) The work among the agricultural youth must be started. The convention calls upon the league to intensify its work in the rural sections of this country and to win the working youth on the farms to the revolutionary youth movement.

(4) The Young Workers (Communist) League is a reservoir of strength for the party and the best support of the party in its work. In this regard the educational work of the league must be intensified more than ever.

The convention declares that there is an urgent need for creating district courses and a national league training school (in which active comrades from the districts can be trained in the league center for two or three months and then return to their districts and apply their training in the work.)

The convention pledges itself to render moral, material and every possible assistance for the launching of such a school.

(5) The Young Pioneers League (the Communist children's movement) must be built up under the leadership of the league and the entire Communist children's movement must hew close to the international line.

The Communist children's movement must be helped thru the publication of children's literature, thru material help, thru the attraction of party members for the work, etc.

(6) The convention pledges itself to render all possible assistance for the creation of a powerful workers' sports movement on a national scale in this country along class lines.

CHILEAN PRESS EXPOSES 'BLACK JACK'S' MOTIVES

Denounce 'Impartiality' of Americans

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 1.—General "Black Jack" Pershing's methods and "impartiality" in the Tacna-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru are the subject of indignant criticism by the Chilean newspapers who reveal his moves as an attempt to throw the plebiscite to the Peruvians.

Augustin Edwards, who owns a chain of newspapers in Chile, is exposing the "impartiality" of Pershing and the marines that are there ostensibly for police duty; but mainly to see to it that the plebiscite will go the way that the American nitrate interests demand.

Resentment is reaching such a high pitch in Chile that it is expected that Chile may refuse to proceed with the Tacna-Arica plebiscite.

Scientific Expedition Carries Libyan Queen's Jewels Across Sahara

QUARGLA, Morocco, Dec. 1.—The Anglo-American expedition arrived safely at the French military post of Ouargla, where it received a telegram congratulations from the Algerian government yesterday for what is regarded as one of the most important discoveries in Algerian history after a hard tussle in a sandstorm on its trip across the Sahara desert.

The expedition, which arrived yesterday, brought safely through the storm the first part of the treasure of the tomb of the Libyan queen, including the skeleton, jewels, the sculptured canopy and the diadem. All is of unusual beauty and interest.

The Algerian government is sending an armed guard for the treasures.

Max Goldstein Urges Workers on to Victory in His Last Message

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUCHAREST. (By Mail.)—In the first days of his hunger strike, which he began with the intention to draw the attention of the working class to the Roumanian conditions, Max Goldstein wrote a long letter to one of his fellow-fighters. This letter, a wonderful example of revolutionary consciousness, ends with the following sentences:

"I know that I will be blamed. My enemies will condemn me because it appears as if I did not want to carry my heavy cross, all the terrors of my tortures to the end. I know that a revolutionary has no right to suicide. You, however, must know that after everything that I have suffered I am useless for the struggle, helpless, and unable to do anything useful for the working class. There remains nothing else to do for me but to resolve to leave life with a long and yelling scream of protest. What shall I say to you this last moment, to you who has still his whole fighting power, who will certainly experience the happiness of victory?

"On the day after the victory, when the red flags of the triumphant workers will rise high above our poor tortured country, when you march along our graves with your flag, then remember that our whole life has been devoted to its last breath to the struggle for the liberation of the workers. It is not our fault that we could not bear the yoke of terrible sufferings to the last, the yoke of sufferings which made us perish, and that we were not able to reach the aim with our victorious flags. The working class, the only and eternal conqueror of human history will be able to unfold and proudly wave this flag on the ruins of the collapsing bourgeois society."

History of American Working Class Taught at N. Y. Workers' School

By ANTON BIMBA

The "labor" histories that we have at the present time are written either by college professors or labor leaders who have as their main object not to present the facts in their true light and to draw correct conclusions from them, but to be-cloud these facts and draw such conclusions which would hide the real character of the class struggle. Therefore, we must study the history of the working class ourselves, gather the facts from every source possible, co-ordinate them and interpret them from the Marxist standpoint—the only real and scientific standpoint.

The New York Workers' School has arranged to give such a course on Monday nights. It is proposed that the course on the History of the American Working Class should last for three months and be divided into twelve lessons, starting with the colonial period, taking up the role of the workers in the revolutionary war, the struggles of the workers from the beginning of the 19th century up to the civil war, analyzing the development of slavery and the civil war, the great struggles of the workers in 1877, the development and character of the Knights of Labor, the birth of the American Federation of Labor, and so on until we come to the recent labor organizations and the struggles of the workers. This course will deal not only with the economical organizations of the workers but also with the political, winding up with the development of the left wing movement led by the Workers (Communist) Party.

THIRD LESSON IN CAPITAL

(Questions Based on Pages 64 to 81, Vol. I.)

1. What is meant when we say that a commodity is in the equivalent form?

2. Why must every commodity choose some other commodity for its equivalent?

3. In what way does the equivalent form of value bring forth the abstract quality of human labor power as value, rather than its specific form of use-value?

4. In what way can the labor of private individuals take a directly social form?

5. Explain what prevented Aristotle from completing his analysis of the simple form of value.

6. Distinguish between value and exchange-value.

7. In what way is the contrast between value and use-value contained in the elementary form of value? Explain and give example.

8. What is the expanded relative form of value,

9. What are the defects of the expanded form of value?

10. What is the general form of value?

11. Explain the relations between the Elementary, the Expanded, and the General forms of value, and distinguish between these, on the one hand, and the Relative and Equivalent forms on the other hand.

12. How can a commodity acquire a general expression of value?

13. What is the universal equivalent?

14. Why is the commodity which serves as the universal equivalent thereby excluded from the relative value form?

15. What is the money form of value?

16. What is the difference between the general and the money forms of value?

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS FOR SECOND LESSON.

1. Labor has the same two-fold character as commodities, that is, use-value, as a particular kind of labor, and exchange-value, as the expression of human labor power.

2. The useful labor embodied in one product must be different in use-value from that in another, in order that these things may confront one another as commodities; to exchange things, qualitatively the same, as two coats of the same kind, would be a senseless thing.

3. The elements of use-values are material substance, and human labor-power expended in changing its form.

4. The establishment of an equation between two comodities does not relate to their use-values, which, being relatively different, cannot be measured one against another.

5. It is not possible to establish an equation between things of different qualities, as regards these qualities which are different; but if these things also contain common qualities, an equation can be established in regard to the latter.

6. The common element in the equation "one coat equals 2 yards of linen" is that one coat contains the same amount of abstract human labor-power as is contained in 20 yards of linen.

7. The placing of coat and linen in the exchange-relationship proves that there is a common element in the labor of tailor and weaver, behind their differences as particular kinds of labor, otherwise the equation could not be established. This gives us the conception of homogenous human labor power, which is the same in all labor.

8. An increase in the productiveness of labor increases the amount of commodities, which is material wealth, but because the amount of labor power embodied in the larger amount of commodities is the same, therefore the total values have remained the same.

9. The two poles of the expression of value are the relative and the equivalent.

10. The relative form of value gives expression to the value of the commodity placed in this relation. Value can come to expression and find measurement only by assuming the relative form. The relative value of a commodity rises and falls directly as its value, the value of the equivalent being supposed constant. The value of the commodity remaining constant, its relative value rises and falls inversely as the value of its equivalent. If the value of the commodity and its equivalent rises and falls equally and simultaneously, the relative value remains the same.—Earl R. Browder, Instructor.

Towards a World Bolshevik Party

by Jay Lovestone—in the December issue of The Workers Monthly.

The Young Comrade; For Your Children

The December issue of the Young Comrade is the answer of the organized proletarian children of America to the vicious campaigns of anti-labor propaganda of the capitalist schools and press. In simple clear language, in the language of the children themselves, is explained the real meaning of Thanksgiving day, and of the American Legion "education week." But the Young Pioneers do not stop with these explanations—The Young Comrade is a call to all proletarian children to the struggle against capitalism and the capitalist schools and propaganda.

Special notice must be given to the excellent story—A Bolshevik Lad in the Russian Revolution—that is especially calculated to catch the lively imagination of the child and to direct it into healthy proletarian channels.

Every proletarian parent who does not wish to see his children grow up into tools of the capitalist class and enemies of the working class, should see to it that his children get a copy of the December issue of the Young Comrade. It is his duty to himself, to his children and to the working class.

Copies of the Young Comrade may be obtained from many Pioneer organization, or from the national office, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill., at 5c a copy or 50c a year.

Public Speaking and Philosophy Courses Start in N. Y. Friday

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The first regular session of the Public Speaking class at the New York Workers School will be held on Friday at 8 p. m. with Carl Brodsky as instructor. A preliminary session held last Friday night revealed that both experienced speakers and beginners, who think they can develop into effective speakers, have registered for the course. Previous speaking experience is not required. Those who are so experienced will, nevertheless, get many valuable ideas on the preparation and delivery of speeches from the course. The object of the class is to train a battery of effective speakers that can defend the principles of Communism in the unions and other workers' organizations and among the masses.

The course in Materialistic Philosophy, instructor, D. Kvitko, also held a preliminary session last Friday night. Its first regular session will occur next Friday. The hour has been changed to meet better the needs of the students and will be given from 9-10 p. m. until further notice. The first four lessons will take up the need of a true philosophy to understand all phenomena of life. The way of testing the truth. What is evolution? On what is the Marxian philosophy based? Why are contemporary bourgeois philosophers pessimistic about the future of our civilization, and why are they looking backward to antiquity, to the 18th and 19th centuries? The ghost of Communism.

WORKING YOUTH CONFERENCES

By J. WILLIAMSON.

DESPITE the fact that young workers form an important part of the workers in each industry, little attention is given to their problems or demands. No organizational measures are taken to improve their conditions.

The bosses are interested in discrimination against the young worker since it means greater profits for them. The unions either thru craft prejudices or general apathy make no attempt to unionize the youth or fight for their special demands. This is not peculiar to the United States but to all capitalist countries. Only the Young Communist League in each country fight for the betterment of the young workers' conditions.

Importance of Youth Conferences.

Our American league must gain contact with the masses of young workers. This is one of our greatest defects at this time. By initiating and sponsoring youth conferences we will gain contacts with the young workers. At these conferences the young workers are given the chance of expressing themselves and thus become recognized as an important factor in the labor movement.

Aim of Youth Conference.

We must begin systematically to encourage the formation of youth conferences, either limited to one industry or of a general nature. Our aim in these conferences is:

1. To gain contacts with the young workers. At the present time we do not yet know the problems which effect the everyday life of the young workers. We do not know of their struggles and demands. The lack of influence over the young workers, by our league, can be overcome thru the organization of such youth conferences.

2. To attract the broadest masses of young workers on the basis of concrete demands. These conferences must have a magnetic attraction for the young workers in the shops and factories. This will be best expressed thru its series of concrete demands affecting the lives of the young workers to whom we appeal.

3. To develope class and political consciousness. These conferences must serve the purpose of developing class consciousness among the young workers and of enrolling them in the political struggle of the working class. With this will come an understanding of the necessity of having such militant class organizations like the Workers Party and Young Workers League.

4. Organizational forms. Besides the practical demands there must be a discussion and formulation of certain organizational forms in order to gain expression for the young workers (i. e. advocating Assistant Youth Shop Chairman and Youth Representatives on the shop committees and for the unionization of the young workers.)

How to Proceed.

These conferences must be sponsored by all those interested in advancing the interests of the young workers in industry and in politics. The Y. W. L. must take its definite part in this work. In those cities and districts selected, arrangement committees, who will carry on a deep rooted propaganda and agitation for the popularization of such conferences must be set up.

All Y. W. L. members and left wing young workers generally, must conduct a persistent agitation in the shop culminating in the holding of shop meetings of all young workers, where the agenda of the conference, will be discussed and delegates elected to the conference.

Discussion at Conferences.

The discussion at the conferences must hinge around the reports of the young workers on the conditions in their shops and the practical demands to be adopted. Further discussion must take place on the definite organizational forms which the demands must take. Other important points which the youth must give attention to are the unionization of the young workers,. world trade union. unity, class struggles vs. class collaboration and the role of the Y. W. L.

Working class youth conferences have proven great successes in all countries (e. g. recent French conference). Our American league must take an aggressive step forward in helping to organize working class youth conferences in this country.

Emergency Call!

To All Members and Friends of International Labor Defense:

Two big cases are scheduled to come to trial on November 30th. The Pittsburgh raid case of 10 workers and the Zeigler frame-up case of 15 union miners. The lawyers in each of these cases will not proceed with the defense unless we have the money.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS MUST BE RAISED BEFORE DECEMBER 15TH

We call upon all members of the I. L. D. to rise to the test and raise this sum. Contribute all you can and get your friends and neighbors to contribute.

Much depends on the outcome of these two trials. The entire working class is on trial. Not merely the 25 workers involved.

A "SIMPLE" QUEEN DIES

By SADIE AMTER.

A pack of cards, the queen and all
From Nicholas to the deuce
They think they're such a pretty crowd
But we can cook their goose.

The queen of England died, unaided by a revolution or an anarchist.

The queen was noted for her simple habits. She dressed "simply" in furs, velvets and pearls. The queen's royal apartments in St. James palace or whichever of the royal palaces (and there seem to be quite some) she inhabited, were "simply" but royally furnished. The live queen used only a dozen or so maids and butlers to attend the royal toothbrush and polish the royal slippers, butter the royal toast or whatever else they do.

But simple as are the tastes of royalty it costs the British workers a tidy sum to keep them dolled up and entertained, as royalty should be, by divine right. Two millions may be out of work in England; the children in the mines and mills of India may be starved and crippled but the royal estate must be kept going with the taxes paid from the sweat of the toilers. How else could the royal ones dress and live royally?

Quite a bunch of royal robbers attended the royal funeral. Kings, princes, lords, dukes and even the old Russian queen (whose job of queenship was taken from her at the same time that the simple head of the czar was taken from him) was in attendance to witness the sad condition of a dead queen.

One has no idea how many princes and things like that are still running about until a royal burial occurs. At present it appears that all the royalty still unburied attended the funeral of the great and simple queen.

One is tempted to wish that they would all be interred at the same time, thus ridding the world of a lot of simple—very simple—but expensive trash.

Steers Shy of Real Problems.

Jardine avoided reference to agricultural legislation likely to come before the impending session of congress, confining his remarks to routine agricultural subjects.

DECEMBER TRADE UNION MONTH

Thruout the world, the Young Communist Leagues are preparing for "Economic-Trade Union Month" which has been proclaimed for the month of December. Special campaigns are in preparation in the European leagues for a nation wide campaign to unionize the working youth. Closely linked up with this is the intensifying by the Y. C. L.'s of the economic-trade union activities, such as factory campaigns youth conferences, fighting for the everyday demands, etc.

In America, the Young Workers (Communist) League has initiated a campaign for the entry of every league member into a union and the immediate formation of Y. W. L. fraction in the unions to fight for the entry of the young workers into the unions without discrimination and to drive forward in the unionization of the youth.

Every unit of the organization has received instructions to call meetings of all their members in each union and there to insist upon those who are not yet union members joining and to take up the definite organization of youth fractions, linking them up on a city and national scale.

Closely connected with this 'month' is the initiative of the Y. W. L. in organizing youth conferences in certain sections of the country as well as the conducting of factory campaigns in all the large industrial centers.

WORKERS DIG DEEP TO SAVE DAILY WORKER

Three-Quarters Goal of Fund Near

The DAILY WORKER fund is looking up!

By one means or another, by Rescue Party or Red Tea, by the sale of Save The DAILY WORKER stamps, by donations from Workers' Party branches and by the faithful, persistent support of readers,—the sum total of the fund has reached the amount of $27,377.22. This means that three-quarters of the task is almost done. And then there is the final $10,000 to raise!

Before facing the seriousness of the problem as to how the last quarter of the drive can be carried on, let's take a little breathing space and rejoice at what has been done so far. The ground-work has been laid for what gives promise of being a real Bolshevik finale.

FORMER HEAD OF MINERS' UNION IS SCAB HERDER

Is Agent for Mellon's Pennsylvania Mines

Andrew Mellon attempts to reopen on on the basis of company unionism and the 1917 scale.

Was Kicked Out in 1911.

McCullough was cast out of official position, along with President Tom L. Lewis, in the convention of 1911. Now both he and Lewis are with the enemy: Lewis as secretary of the New River Operators' Association of West Virginia whence smokeless coal is being shipped into the former anthracite markets. And Lewis is credited with the maneuvering by lockouts and evictions that has for the time defeated the union in that field.

Plays Scab Herder.

McCullough's role as a scab herder today calls to mind the idealistic speech with which he graced his enforced retirement in 1911. His promise then to go back to the mines to work for labor's cause runs as follows in the records of the miners' conventions.

"Again, let me hope that each and every one of us who retires from official life on the first of April will go back to the mines from whence he came and not sell the intelligence and experience we have gained while serving you on the other side to help defeat the cause of labor that has honored us with official positions in the past . . . In my opinion when a man leaves our rank and file and goes to work with the natural enemy of the working class, his sympathies and his feelings gradually change because of his environment . . While it is my intention to go to digging coal on the first of April, if some other avocation is selected it will not be selling my services to the capitalists of this country; it will be in the interests of the men who are struggling for better conditions and a higher existence."

Efforts Are Unsuccessful.

Now McCullough is selling his experience to the capitalists he denounced, for use against the miners. All the efforts of the Pittsburgh Coal company have not succeeded in bringing in more than 890 men, whereas 12,000 are needed.

Canadian Shoe Workers' Strike Is Called Off

QUEBEC, Dec. 1—The strike of the three national unions in the shoe factories of Quebec has ended. The manufacturers have agreed to the proposition of Mgr. Lonlois that the strikers return to work and that the question of wages be settled by arbitration. About 1,500 men and 1,500 women were affected.

I. L. G. W. Left Wing in Call to Rank and File

senting the workers entered into a peace agreement, despite the fact that some of the most vital demands, like full amnesty and proportional representation were not granted by the bureaucracy.

Political Discrimination Practiced.

"Now, it appears however, that not only is the peace agreement not lived up to, but preparations are being made by the bureaucracy to recapture their good jobs and keep on to those they have, even if they have to split the union.

"The membership, according to the peace agreement, had the right to elect a completely new staff of officials. But having a majority of votes in the old unrepresentative Joint Board, opposition candidates of Locals 10, 89, 48 were not allowed on the ballot with the exception of four. This is one point in the violation of the agreement which made it impossible for the membership to have a full choice as to their officials. Antoniny, who claims to be a progressive and pretended to be fighting Ninfo, one of the blackest reactionaries in the international, combined with Ninfo to vote down the opposition candidates, thus demonstating before the entire world that he is nothing but a contemptible faker. Dubinsky, who was a party to the agreement and declared in his local that he accepts the whole peace agreement, after participating in the examination committee and objecting to the most capable candidates of the opposition on political grounds, withdrew the candidate of his local (Local 10), and threatens to withdraw from the Joint Board.

Bar Opposition Candidate.

"The elections to the convention were supposed to be safeguarded according to the peace agreement, by the opposition being allowed to watch the balloting and as per constitution of the international, be present at the counting of the votes. In Local 10 these rights were flatly refused to the oppostion candidates and Sigman did not do anything beyond promising to afford them these rights. In Local 48 (Ninfo) the election objection committee was appointed by the executive board instead of being elected by the membership and the opposition candidates for delegates to the convention were kept off the ballot.

"Not only were none of the suspended or expelled members, with the exception of Locals 2, 9, and 22, not reinstated, but political discrimination and persecution was kept up, especially out of town. In Philadelphia, where the expulsion policy has left but a wreck of the entire organization, a member was suspended and fined, barred from union meetings and union shops for two years for having distributed a leaflet criticizing the bureaucracy.

Fixing Coming Convention.

"Keeping opponents off the ballot, fixing elections, is the only way they can be the 'chosen representatives of the workers.' The big plum they are after now, is to fix the coming Philadelphia convention and not having the confidence of 90 per cent of the membership and all their tricks in the big cities not giving them even one-third of the convention, they have been busy organizing small paper locals to get delegates. Sigman, who parades as an amalgamationist, has done more for this sham than even his predecessors. The only amalgamating he ever did was to eliminate his opponents.

"There is plenty to organize in these small localities, and the left wing has a genuine program to achieve this, but this is not the object of the bureaucracy. After they use these locals for convention purposes, they forget about them until the next convention. Sigman, who professes to believe in proportional representation, has been busier than any one else to capture conventions by disfranchising the bulk of the membership with charters. He evidently forgot the lesson the cloakmakers and dressmakers gave him in New York. Control over the union cannot be achieved by fakes and charters. That much he should have learned already. If he thinks that by using the local union charters of Long Island, Jersey City, etc. against the membership of the international, he and the others will keep themselves in office, his throne will remain with the charters and nothing more.

Organizes Secret Black-Hand Society.

"A skunk cannot change his footprints. The old bureaucracy cannot rule except by their old methods. Their promises of reforms are not worth the paper they are written on, unless the members are on their guard and finish up the job. Attempting as they do to impose their yoke anew on the membership, they have created a secret organization called 'Friends Don't Worry.' This organiation is headed by the deposed Breslawer, Heller, Feinberg, Perlstein, Levy and still imposed Dubinsky, Ninfo, Sigman and Antoniny keeping good company. The membership consists of the black old guard of the sluggers, gangsters, deposed petty officials, the fascist group among the Italians, so-called anarchists and hundred per cent Forwardists. They are well connected with the bosses' association, with the police and underworld. Thru a prominent lawyer at their first meeting, they mapped out their policy which consists of harrassing the new leadership of the Joint Board and defy it. Make trouble thru the bosses' association and if possible make the next strike a failure. Then if they cannot capture the union, split and create a new one. The same procedure as in the United Garment Workers, only the other way around. Dubinsky, by his threats of withdrawing from the Joint Board and having separate business agents, is carrying out that policy ahead of time.

"Fellow Workers! From all this it is clearly apparent what dangers beset our union. This is no time to sink into indifference, to let up in the struggle. If we want a united union, one that can really fight and improve our conditions in the next gigantic struggle against the employers in the industry, then Sigman and his crew must go! Enuf fakes, enuf of their infamy. Forward to a clean, strong, united union!

Girl Finds Murdered Youth Under Her Bed

New York, Dec. 1.—Miss Margaret Pirie, sixteen, found a man—murdered—under her bed. He was later identified as George Nye, nineteen, son of a retired fireman, of the Bronx.

He was a friend of Margaret's brother, Gordon Pirie, twenty. The police began looking for Pirie to determine whether he could throw any light on the slaying.

Miss Pirie, who returned shortly after midnight after a two day visit with relatives, swooned when she made the grewsome discovery. The victim's skull had been crushed by blows from a heavy instrument. Cement sacks were bound about his head. He had been dead two or three hours when found by the girl, physicians said. He was clad only in a sailor's jacket and Dungaree trousers.

AUTO MAGNATES GATHER JUICY PLUMS IN 1925

Reaches $179,488,209 Nine Month's Profit

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

A year of peak profits has increased the wealth of the owners of 11 automobile companies by over $1,000,000,000 according to a survey of the industry by The Wall Street Journal. This huge gain in wealth marks the success of the high speed exploitation of workers that characterizes the industry.

The combined profits of the 11 companies for the first 9 months of the year amounted to $179,488,209, a gain of more than $100,000,000 over the same period in 1924. And Henry Ford is not in the list. Such profits have increased the market value of the stock from just under $900,000,000 a year ago to nearly $2,000,000,000 today.

The increases in market price include a rise in the value of General Motors stock from $398,000,000 to $841,712,000; of Chrysler stock from $29,000,000 to $190,485,000; of Hudson stock from $35,640,000 to $154,440,000 and of Nash from $40,000,000 to $144,675,000. It is probable that the big financiers have unloaded large blocks of stock at these peak prices, pocketing their share of the $1,000,000,000. They will watch smal stockholders bear the brunt of the coming period of cut-throat competition and will buy it again at low prices when the greater automobile trusts which will emerge enter a new period of steady profits.

The 9-month profits of the 11 companies in 1924 and 1925 were:

Profits of automakers	1924	1925
Gen. Motors	$37,146,413	$74,243,966
Chrysler	2,009,083	14,240,875
Hudson	6,317,469	16,722,269
Dodge	9,858,673	19,302,874
Packard	3,643,735	10,318,228
Studebaker	9,703,679	15,157,226
Nash	4,325,241	11,183,411
Overland	2,811,134	13,638,881
Hupp	1,182,342	2,735,746
Moon	526,072	1,123,725
Pierce Arrow	354,154	970,908

The return on investment in these 1925 profits runs to more than 200 per cent in the case of Nash Motors. The return to holders of Dodge common stock cannot be measured because the stock was distributed as a bonus at the recent reorganization by Dillon, Read & Co. Out of the 9 months business Dillon, Read get $6.33 a share on 1,150,000 sares of common for which they paid nothing. Other rates of return in the 9 months are General Motors 26.5 per cent, Chrysler 38.1 per cent, Hudson 126.2 per cent, Packard 43 per cent, Studebaker 18.5 per cent, Overland 83 per cent, Hupp 28.8 per cent, Pierce Arrow 7.8 per cent.

The Hudson and Nash companies sh wothe huge profits original investors in the motor industry are making. Hudson Motor Car Co. started in 1909 with $18,000 paid-in capital. From this beginning its assets have been expanded to over $30,000,000 largely out of profits. It has also paid $15,000,000 in cash dividends. As only $20,700,000 of the assets are directly employed in producing automobiles the 9-month profit of $16,722,269 is more than 80 per cent of the investment. Hudson may make for the entire year over $100 for every $100 invested in the business.

The owners of Nash Motors Co. now hold 3 shares of preferred stock receiving dividends at $7 at share and 5 shares of common stock (on which the year's profits so far have been about $37 a share) for each $100 originally invested. The market value of its commo nshares has been as high as $488 a share this year and the total value of the original $100 investment has swelled to over $2,500.

General Motors, the Morgan trust, has just declared an extra dividend of $5 a sare which brings the year's cash dividends to $24 on each $100 of stock.

French War on Riffs Fails

the situation was correct. On the one hand we have the official figures which the government at last decided to publish. According to these, "this little adventure" has cost, up to now, 1,500,000,000 francs and over 10,000 killed and wounded. On the other hand we have a description of the results of the campaign, which is all the more reliable as it is from the pen of one of the best experts of France, Robert Poulaine, and has been published in the Temps:

Use Half of Army.

"One hundred, sixty thousand soldiers, 20 airplane squadrons and 40 generals (!), about half of the French army and its generalissimo are firmly entrenched on the slopes of the Riff without anyone asking what they have done there, what they are doing there and what they will do there, without anybody being surprised that they are still there, while all the official reports state that everything in Morocco is proceeding splendidly, that our position is being restored and that the whole business will soon be settled . .

"The successes which have been reached there this autumn, and regarding which I will soon report—altho not without importance—are out of all proportion to the material sacrifices which have been required in order to attain them."

The military aims have not been achieved. The original plans of operations have been swept aside by the arrival of a new general staff; the aims of the new plans have not been achieved. "The great maneuver, which was to place the territory of the important Beni Seraul tribe in our hands, can now be considered as a complete failure," writes R. Poulaine. On the eastern front the French troops suffered severe losses by the raid of the Spanish allies. An army division, consisting of 6,000 cavalry and quite unnecessarily encumbered with heavy naval guns, was compelled to beat a hasty retreat, in which they had to abandon their guns and yield up a stretch of territory 35 kilometers broad which had been captured by the French as a result of 14 days' fighting.

French Lose Territory.

"As regards territory," says R. Poulaine, "we are today not yet in possession of the line which we occupied on April 1. From the military point of view, altho we have driven back the enemy at certain points and captured arms and munitions from him, he is not yet vanquished, and at the commencement of the winter, Add-el Krim has under his flag 60,000 rifles, that is 25,000 more than at the commencement of the campaign."

What is the reason for these astonishing facts? The glowing reports regarding the return of the disaffected tribes were mere bluff. "One can be certain that less than half of the disaffected tribes of our zone have returned to their villages." There then follows the actual enumeration of all the tribes in the area and their positions. We need only add, that when tribes return to their villages it does not mean their return to French allegiance, but more often than not the resorting to guerilla warfare behind the French front.

R. Poulaine concludes the picture by describing what is peacefully termed "winter quarters" but which is in fact a winter campaign:

"At the commencement of the winter, when our troops have to take up their positions under unfavorable climatic conditions, when the provisioning of the troops becomes difficult, the enemy, who still has considerable munitions at his disposal and whose provisioning—we shall be unable, or almost entirely unable, to prevent, shows his readiness to attack our front lines and even to penetrate far behind the lines and destroy our lines of communications."

Spain Abandons Fight.

Spain wishes to give up North Africa. The Spanish general staff has abandoned the campaign. Agadir has long since been evacuated; only the two promontories on the east and west are occupied. This attitude of Spain has destroyed the French plans of operations. Spain, of course, wishes to make the greatest political and financial profit out of the business. There exists two projects:

1. To convert Agadir into Franco-Spanish port (this is the aim of the Banque de Paris). This plan is advocated in Spain by the Francophile diplomat Caballero in Imparcial.

2. To exchange Agadir with England for Gibhaltar. France and Italy would be compensated by other territory. (Murcia in La Verdad).

Workers Resent Warfare.

After a short pause following the strike, the indignation among the masses of the population is beginning to rise again. The truth regarding Morocco is leaking out. Syria is rousing excitement.

The war in Morocco is occupying the center of attention and is occupying the first place in the political crisis which commenced with the fall of the Caillaux cabinet.

UNEMPLOYED WORKERS FACE BITTER WINTER UNIVERSITY PREDICTS

According to two predictions as to the weather which will prevail for the coming winter season, one from the University of Caen and the other from the executive offices of the New York Central Railroad, unemployed workers will facee a long cold winter. Those who are unemployed will walk the streets in the most bitter winter that has struck the continent since 1740.

According the forecast of the University of Caen, this winter will be as cold as it was in the winter of 1740-1, when the Thames froze over and Europe rivaled the Arctic Circle.

New York Unions Unite to Organize Laundries

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—Organization of all wet wash and steam laundry workers in New York is the goal for which several workers' groups are uniting their efforts. The Women's Trade Union League, Trade Union Committee for Organizing the Negro Workers, Hand Laundry Ironers' Union, and International Union of Steam Laundry Workers are the cooperating groups in the big drive. The laundry wagon drivers are likewise being organized by the Teamsters' Union.

The laundry industry is rapidly changing from a small shop, craft basis to the high-power, large unit with central financing of many laundries. The big business combination spirit is forcing the well-organized hand ironers to assist in the organization of comparatively unskilled machine laundry workers who are now among the most poorly paid of workers.

Buying Power of Farmers

Financial writers on the capitalist newspapers devote their peculiar talents to twisting economic facts to create the illusion of prosperity. The latest effort in that direction is the statement appearing in the Tuesday morning papers to the effect that the farmers really are prosperous, despite reports to the contrary.

As justification for reports of prosperity the finance wizards quote the increase in mail order sales by the Montgomery Ward concern, which is 10.21 per cent over a year ago.

One need not be a financial wizard to recognize the absurdity of such a claim. It is a well-established fact that farmers increase their purchases at mail order houses when curtailed incomes compel them to make every penny go as far as possible. Instead of increased mail orders being indications of prosperity they usually denote the beginning of periods of depression.

The complaint of the merchants of the small towns serving agricultural communities has always been that during "hard times" the mail order houses get all the cash and that the town businessmen are asked to extend credit for goods not obtainable at the mail order centers.

This situation exists at the beginning of periods of depression. As the crisis grows and the farmers are unable to obtain money there is a perceptible slackening of mail orders. Thus there are two stages of agricultural depression registered by the volume of mail orders. The first is at the beginning of depression, when the farmers stock up on the cheap goods from the mail order houses in order to make their meager funds stretch as far as possible. This shows an increase in mail orders over normal times. The second is when the crisis reaches its peak and the farmers are without funds, which produces a perceptible slump in mail orders. The farmer then depends for his merchandise upon the credit extended by the country stores.

Agricultural depression results in many of the small stores going out of existence and not infrequently carries down with them banks that extend them credit. The final results of such a crisis are similar to all crises, further concentration of capital in the hands of the big combines.

Precisely, Mr. Sigman!

> "Delegates: A great responsibility is confronting you at this convention, the greatest perhaps in the history of our union. You are being called upon to heal its wounds, to reunite its forces and to rid it of all harmful and disruptive elements which menace its existence."
> —Mr. Morris Sigman, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, in the official organ, "Justice."

Indeed it is imperative that the disruptive elements be stifled and that unity of the union be achieved. But that means that those guilty of disruptive tactics must go. It means that the Sigman machine that tried to wreck the union in order to maintain power can no longer be trusted with leadership. It means the harmful elements that employed thugs and gangsters and gunmen to crush the left wing that had behind it the majority of the membership in three of the largest local unions in New York City can no longer be tolerated. It means that the scoundrel who acts as manager in Philadelphia, where the convention is now being held, and who for two years kept out of the union loyal and devoted members because they wanted an effective union, must go.

In plain words it is Sigman and his whole machine that should go. He is the real disrupter. It is he who, rather than see the union get out of the control of the recationaries, tried to wreck it, like a pirate who scuttles the ship rather than see it fall into the hands of its owners.

The delegates at the Philadelphia convention should weigh well these words of Sigman, and follow his advice for he is the disrupter, the union-wrecker.

Smash the union wreckers, the disrupters, the gangsters, the tyrant—eliminate Sigman and place the union in the hands of those who express the sentiments of the majority of the membership!

Down with the Sigman machine!

Servant to Their Majesties

Emil Vandervelde, hero of the socialist international, and foreign minister of Belgium, confessed before the parliamentary finance committee that the House of Morgan forced him to cut the budget 150,000,000 francs after he had promised to cut no more.

Thus the valiant Vandervelde, who betrayed the workers of his country into the world war and who as servant to his majesty the king of Belgium helped slaughter the working class he was presumed to defend, now crawls before the king of Wall Street. It is not of any concern to these scoundrels and swindlers whose hands drip with the blood of the working class of the world which king they serve. The leadership of the Second International stands perpetually and voluntarily on the auction block of imperialism, ever for sale to the highest bidder. They serve everything and everybody but the working class. The lower they grovel before the royal robes of monarchy and the imperial sceptre of the dollar dictatorship the more vicious become their murderous assaults against the workers.

From servant to his majesty the king of Belgium, Vandervelde becomes obedient lackey for their majesties, the Wall Street bankers.

Absent by Compulsion

Among those present at London when the Locarno pacts were signed were all the outstanding governmental leaders of the countries affected with one exception. That exception was Mussolini, the blackshirt brigand and craven poltroon, who dared not face the British workers who let it be known in advance that they would make it uncomfortable for the assassin of the working class of Italy.

Beneath the bayonets and the terror of his criminal bands Mussolini can strut with pomp and circumstance, parading as the popular hero where no one has the power to challenge his pretense. But where there is still some working class expression this creature faces the open insults and execration of the masses.

That is why he sent a substitute to make the journey that he dared not attempt.

International Red Aid—The Child of Red October

By P. LEPERSHINSKY,
President Central Committee I. R. A., U. S. S. R.

The anniversary of the never-to-be-forgotten days of the October exodus of the toiling masses of a great country from the bondage of the bourgeoisie is, and will be, the greatest holiday not only for workers and peasants of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, but also for the capitalist slaves of those countries where the banker has enthroned himself with the hangman's aid.

Soviet Conquers.

On this anniversary, there will be not a single corner in all the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics where red flags will not be waving. You will not find a single worker or peasant, with the faintest trace of class consciousness, who will not be rejoicing over the fact that eight years have gone by since that experiment of "overthrowing" capitalistic foundation was successfully made on a territory occupying one-sixth of the world's surface. The capitalists have been powerless to destroy that country which first blazed the trail towards socialist construction, and which has not only been able to prove its ability to exist, but also is progressing with gigantic strides towards the red star of Communism.

The proletariat of capitalist countries, who are still bound hand and foot, fix their eyes, burning with joyful hope, on that pole star. It is true, the cities in these countries are not decorated with red flags. But all the same, even in these days, the red blood of the workers flowing behind prison walls will be the brightest witness to the fact that the proletariat blesses the Russian October, and continues to strive both in word and deed to the world October. The struggle between the workers and capitalists not only is not dying down, but is increasing in ferocity; the number of its victims is daily increasing and becoming more and more complicated, and the International Red Aid cannot complain of having little to do, or that there are no more victims left on the field of battle, towards whom it should hasten to aid.

I. R. A. Born in October.

The International Red Aid was begotten by the Russian Red October, which not only was a brilliant episode, but served as a banner of the proletariat in its struggle for the emancipation of humanity from the bondage of capitalism. The International Red Aid has defined itself as an organization, which has consecrated itself to help that very struggle by special means.

Even before October, Ilyitch more than once dreamt of the Paris Commune as an example to be used for the storming of the strongholds of capital, for the Russian revolution. And afterwards, he used to point out with much pleasure the similarities between the "madly brave" Parisian communards and the October revolutionists in our country—finding many points in common between these two stages of the world proletarian struggle.

"Storming the Heavens."

One involuntarily says to one's self that the International Red Aid, one of the direct heirs of October, has not in vain chosen for its "name day" the anniversary of March 18, 1871, so warmly loved by Ilyitch. Where the smoke of gun powder still hovers over the air; where the next problem is that of "storming the heavens" (an expression used by Karl Marx in connection with the Parisian communards) there, for the International Red Aid we have an ever increasing field of activities, for the International Red Aid is the red cross service in the ranks of the proletarian revolutionary army.

The International Red Aid is organizing the red rear guard for the world revolution. This very fact binds the International Red Aid still more closer to the advance guard of the proletarian revolution. October was the first great battle between the proletariat and the plundering capitalists, and has been followed by a long period of "trench warfare," with but rare intervals of open fighting of one or another detachment of the "great army of labor." For all this, this is a real war, and like every war, its success demands a well organized rear. The International Red Aid has taken this very task upon its shoulders—that of organizing the red rear guard.

Need World Support.

No one has yet forgotten the fact that the Russian proletariat, who rose against their bourgeoisie, owes its victorious revolution to the international solidarity of the world proletariat. It would have been foolish to dream even of our October without this hope of support and solidarity from the world proletariat. The Russian workers did not err. Ilyitch more than once emphasized the fact that "we are victorious, not because we were stronger, but because the toilers of the entente countries turned out to be more faithful to us than to their own governments." (From his speech at the non-party conference of the Borough of Krasny-Presny, January 26, 1920.) There are numberless proofs of this statement. Here, however, we will simply point out the refusal of the French sailors (and among them Comrade Marty) to obey the orders of their officers, who demanded they murder Russian peasants and workers.

Marty Aids I. R. A.

It was by no accident that this very Marty later on turned out to be one of the best workers in the ranks of the International Red Aid. By its unceasing propaganda (not only oral, but in deeds) of the idea of international solidarity of all members of the proletarian family, the International Red Aid is now repaying the debt of the Russian workers and peasants to those who "had been more faithful to us than to their own governments," and who had helped us in leading our October victory to a successful end thru the barriers of barbed wire barricades.

But the work of October did not stop by merely throwing the revolutionary advance guard—the proletariat—into the fight. Were it not for the support of the millions of peasants, the proletariat would not have been successful. The greatest of all lessons, and the most practical of all slogans, given us by those leaders of the October days—and, above all, by Ilyitch—is that of the union "strong, lasting and serious" of peasants and proletariat. And ever since then this slogan has not lost its enormous significance (and never will lose its significance, so long as a peasantry exists as a special toiling group) for the cause of the world revolution, neither has it lost its active force. And the International Red Aid, does it not work for the same cause, to the same end? Does it not continue the work of October, when it unites the Ukrainian or White Russian toiler of the soil, the Kirghesy wandering hordes, the Chinese "owner" of about half an acre of land, etc., etc., with the world proletariat, by joining them under the common International Red Aid task of aiding revolutionary warriors, prisoners of capital?

Finally, it is most necessary to state that October facilitated the entry of the Russian proletariat to that school of Communism, known as the Communist Party. But only hundreds of thousands of units pass thru this school—millions are still at a great distance from it. And yet, sooner or later, these tens of millions will have to go thru both such a theoretical and practical communistic course of social construction, which is only being at present undertaken by the most advanced members of the toiling masses.

Preliminary Preparation.

It is evident that the preliminary preparation of these masses, who are at present standing aloof from the Russian Communist Party is indispensible. The International Red Aid is just the organization to carry on best this preliminary preparation. In truth, it is most successfully carrying out its task as a "preparatory class" for the many millions. The most backward and politically illiterate peasant has all the opportunities for learning and understanding the ABC of Communism, passing thru all stages of International Red Aid teaching and its popular explanation of all social problems, linked with the existence of the International Red Aid work of aiding those warriors for the cause of the world revolution.

I. R. A. Mission.

Many more examples might have been given, showing the relationship between the October "storming of the heavens" and the historical task of the International Red Aid. But the above is quite sufficient to place the International Red Aid as a revolutionary child of October. The International Red Aid, with many other helpers of the grand October revolution, continues the great work of October and will carry on its mission to the very end up to the moment, when October, having successfully covered all corners and parts of the world, will cause all weapons of the fierce class war to be laid aside as of no more use. For in Communist society there will be neither class war, nor enemy classes.

Barriers in the Path of a Labor Party -

By H. M. Wicks

THE resolution for a labor party adopted by the Boston convention of the International Furriers' Union is an important step in the movement to break away the masses of labor from the deadening influence of the old parties. The Furriers' resolution should be utilized by every revolutionist and progressive in the trade union movement to get local unions and central labor bodies to endorse it, thereby laying the basis for a concentrated drive toward the realization of a labor party. After a large number of local unions and some internationals are on record in favor of a labor party a conference should be called for the purpose of laying plans to carry the fight into every section of the labor movement.

Out of such a conference a central directing point should be established from which to coordinate the sentiment into a powerful movement.

Many Obstacles.

THERE are many obstacles to be overcome in the struggle for a labor party. In many local unions the question cannot be raised for the simple reason that there are laws upon the statute books forbidding the raising of political issues; a heritage of the baneful influence of Gompers. This must be overcome by candidates to international conventions bringing the question before the membership in the form of a platform containing the labor party demand. In unions where political questions can be discussed there is usually present some lackey of the employers who opposes any suggestion of class action and who offers the most vicious resistance to the labor party demand. Usually the principal opponent of a class policy is one of the satellites of the officialdom of the central labor council.

The professional clique of local labor leaders act as watch-dogs for the capitalist class. They are the backbone of reaction in the labor movement. In order to understand why this is so it is necessary to examine the structure of the American labor movement.

Industrial Treachery.

WE must start our investigation with the American Federation of Labor itself. Just what is the Federation? Is it a machine for consolidating the ranks of labor into a powerful movement against the capitalist class? Everyone knows it is nothing of the sort. It does not even recognize the fact that a class struggle exists. It is primarily a political machine polluting the American labor movement with the most incredible venom of ruling class prejudices. In every conceivable manner it plays the game of the capitalist class. In periods of the most intense industrial strife, when great international unions affiliated with it are struggling for their very existence, the officials of the A. F. of L. seldom show their faces. Take as one example the present mine strike in the anthracite region. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, rose to his present position from the secretaryship of the union that is now waging the fight against the mine barons of Central Pennsylvania, but he remains in his office at Washington or travels from city to city addressing bodies on the identity of interests of capital and labor instead of fighting the battles of the miners in the coal fields. If the organization of which he is the head really functioned to achieve the most elementary demands of the working class he would be fighting directly against the despotism of the mine owners. His organizers would be touring the country arousing the workers to the threat of extermination facing the largest union within the A. F. of L.

If the A. F. of L. officialdom were really interested in the growth of the labor movement until it could challenge the capitalist tyranny in this country it would throw its power against the treacherous procrastination of John L. Lewis and the other officials of the miners union. The mine barons would soon abandon their arrogant attitude if the American labor leaders would demand the extension of the strike to the bituminous fields and the calling out of the maintenance men who now, with the full consent of the union, keep the bosses' property in good condition in order to protect the capitalist exploiters from any loss while the strikers are being gradually starved and terrorized into submission. While its very structure, as a loose federation, prevents compulsory action against international unions, the A. F. of L. could at least hold such infamies as are now being committed by the union officials in the anthracite strike up to the workers of the nation and so arouse the membership of the United Mine Workers that they would drive out the treacherous leaders. If Green and company really desired to use their limited power they have they could help to cordinate the labor movement of the country, but they are the agents of the capitalist class and hence at all times serve the interests of their masters.

Political Treachery.

WHILE betraying the workers into the hands of the employers on the industrial field, the A. F. of L. machine repeats the performance on the political field. It proclaims its political character in its constitution.

Article II, Section 1, of the constitution of the American Federation of Labor says:

> "The object of the Federation shall be the encouragement and formation of local Trade and Labor unions, and the closer federation of such societies through the organization of Central Trade and Labor unions in every city, and the further combination of such bodies into State, Territorial or Provincial organizations to secure legislation in the interests of the working masses."

Its political character is plainly stated. It pretends to secure legislation in the interests of the laboring masses. Its very structure is not industrial but political. Instead of organizing according to industrial units, its organization is based upon political divisions; on the identical divisions of the capitalist government and its various states and cities.

Just why are the headquarters of the A. F. of L. in Washington, instead of in some industrial center? Simply because Washington is the political capital of the nation. In those states where the state federations of labor are not in the capital city, the principal officers of the federations spend their time in the capital, or actually live there as is the case of the president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor. The A. F. of L. machine at Washington, during the life of Gompers was an adjunct of the democratic party, although it hypocritically professed a non-partizan policy. When that party, as the political expression of finance capital, led the country into the European war to defend the interests of the House of Morgan, Gompers followed it. Truly the leading labor lieutenant of the capitalist class he made the slogans of the war-making machine the slogan of the American Federation of Labor.

Now that Gompers is gone and the democratic party is declining the official family of the American Federation of Labor strives to line up the labor movement behind the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge government. Whenever the interests of capitalism change the policy of the official machine of the labor movement in this country also changes. The so-called heads of the labor movement never lead, never have an independent existence. They always follow in the wake of the interests of the capitalist class.

The same is true of the state federations of labor. In New York the official machine is an adjunct of Tammany Hall. In Illinois of the Len Small machine. In New Jersey of the Hague machine. Similar conditions exist in all other states.

It is because of this intimate alliance with the capitalist political machines that the State Federation of Labor officials and their supporters are ever watchful against any attempt to induce the workers in the trade unions to abandon the suicidal policy of political non-partisanship.

From the official American Federation of Labor fountain head of corruption all the little mercenary tricksters in the labor movement draw their inspiration and learn to repeat the whole malevolent credo of the vindictive reactonaries.

With the most astonishing billingsgate, blackguardism and coarse sophistery these creatures state that the American Federation of Labor is the only agency that stands between "democracy and the dictatorship of revolution." They conceal their treachery by paying lip-servicce to the labor movement while doing everything in their power to stultify it. They want the movement to exist only in order that they may have some excuse to curry favor with the capitalist class. But they resent any efforts to make it effective against the capitalist class.

Agitation for independent political action on the part of the working class meets with the contemptible charge that a labor party will usurp the functions of the A. F. of L. If there is any truth in such a charge it proves conclusively that the A. F. of L. officials recognize the fact that it is a political machine serving the capitalist class, otherwise a labor party could not possibly injure it.

It's Functions.

WHEN we examine the function of the American Federation of Labor and the various state and city federations directly chartered by it we discover the fact that they can not call strikes in any industry whatsoever. The only strikes the A. F. of L. can possibly call are those small federal unions, such as bookkeepers, bank clerks and federal labor unions in small towns where no regularly constituted craft unions exist.

The A. F. of L. has neither the power to call nor prevent strikes of any international union. If its executive council should desire a strike of one or all the unions affiliated with it, it would meet with no response for the simple reason that each international union enjoys complete autonomy. Should the A. F. of L. desire to step into a strike situation it dare not do so unless a request comes from the executive of the union involved. Then if at any time the officials of the A. F. of L. did not carry out the policy of the international they would be summarily kicked out of the strike and could do nothing about it at all.

In its constitution the A. F. of L. claims the right to levy assessments upon the internationals in "emergencies," but it is careful that no such emergencies arise, for fear of alienating the support of internationals that might resent such a tax.

Many unsophisticated radicals imagine the A. F. of L. can call a general strike, or bring about the amalgamation of affiliated unions, or bring the unions into a labor party or any one of a dozen other progressive measures, but such is far from the case. Its only authority is the exercise of "moral force," which is less than nothing in cases of labor struggles. It can neither call nor settle strikes. Its resolutions adopted at its conventions are not binding upon one single international union affiliated with it. At best they can only be starting points for agitation among the rank and file for the measure that already has been adopted by the delegates to the A. F. of L. convention.

Futile Resolutions.

TAKE the question of amalgation for instance. On many occasions the conventions of the American Federation of Labor itself has gone on record in favor of amalgamation of kindred unions in a given industry, but nothing came of it. These resolutions, adopted at a number of national conventions, never came to life because very few members of organized labor outside the delegates in attendance knew they had passed. The questoin then arises: Why did the resolution pass?

Simply because someone introduced it and the officialdom scanned it and perceived that it meant nothing in the way of action, and so it was permitted to pass. Other resolutions were passed year after year in the same manner, but meant nothing. They were all futile as far as action is concerned. They committed the rank and file of organized labor to nothing. But when these same resolutions were brot in as part of a definite program of action toward revolutionizing the labor movement, when they were sponsored by workers striving to establish a political movement of the working class, they met with the most stubborn resistance, and were defeated as part of a diabolical conspiracy, a red menace, against the labor movement.

The experience in the Amreican Federation is duplicated by the various city labor councils and state federations of labor. The Chicago Federation of Labor used to pass every sort of resolution presented by radical delegates. In the launching of the last campaign for amalgamation it was the first prominent central labor body that adopted the resolution. But that by no means meant that the 325,000 members of local unions loosely affiliated with the Chicago Federation or even an appreciable number of them were in favor of amalgamation. As a matter of fact few of this number ever knew such a resolution was adopted. It is seldom that delegates to the Central Labor bodies ever report the proceedings to their local unions.

At best, resolutions in Central Labor bodies and State Federations of Labor conventions can be used as starting points for agitation in the local unions.

How to Start.

THE struggle for a labor party should be launched in the central labor unions for the purpose of carrying the fight into the center of reaction and striking directly at the alliance of the labor fakirs with the machine politicians of the capitalist class. In such a fight they can effectively be unmasked. Combined with the fight in the central bodies should be the most intensive campaign within the local unions and an exposure of all delegates to the central labor bodies who vote against the labor party. In this manner the labor party demand can be made a most effective weapon against the reaction in the trade union movement. While voicing the elementary demands of the working class for intelligent class action against the capitalist class it serves at the same time to unmask the agents of the capitalist political parties in the labor movement. With such a combined drive in both local unions and central bodies it is possible to set in motion forces that will deeply affest the whole labor movement, bringing the powerful internationals into line for a labor party.

Minor Opposition.

BESIDES the powerful opposition from the agents of capitalist political machines in the labor movement there is always a group of supercritics and utopian pessimists who object to the struggle for a labor party by pointing to the traitors at the helm of the labor party in England. They say: "What is the use of creating a labor party? Will not the leaders of such a party also betray the workers just as Ramsay MacDonald betrays the British workers by playing the game of British imperialism?"

To such a question we reply that such will probably be the case. But the creation of a labor party is essential as a means of breaking the workers away from the old capitalist parties and organizing them into a class party. We as Communists will aid in the creation of such a party for that purpose, and in elections we will support the American MacDonalds and Hendersons in order to place them in positions of power where they can expose themselves to the workers and also expose the limitations of parliamentary action of any kind within the capitalist order. As Lenin said "we will support them in the same way a rope supports a man who has hanged himself."

The creation of a labor party will be a great step in advance for the workers of this country and as they become aware of the limitations of such a party they will swing toward the Communists and prepare for the final overthrow of the capitalist system.

INTERNATIONAL LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' CONVENTION DEMANDS RELEASE OF BENJAMIN GITLOW

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2.—The biggest and best demonstration of the first session of the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union came early when a motion by Julius Hochman to protest the imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow was amended to provide for a telegram of greeting and sympathy and carried unanimously by a rising vote.

Zimmerman aroused a storm of laughter by informing the convention: "I am glad Delegate Hochman was able to understand what my attempts to get the floor meant and to anticipate my wishes."

A motion pledging support of every possible kind to the anthracite miners was carried by a rising vote, evoking enthusiasm second only to that of the Gitlow motion. A telegram of greeting to Debs was also sent by rising vote.

Molly Friedman moved to send a telegram of greetings and support to Philips Davis of Chicago, in jail for the 1924 strike, and included in the motion a telegram of gratitude to Fitzpatrick, Nockels, Oscar Nelson, Walker and Olander for aiding the International Ladies' Garment Workers strike. Zack moved to separate the two points. This was done and a telegram to Davis was endorsed by rising vote unanimously, while the other telegrams received only a perfunctory majority show of hands.

A telegram of sympathy and support were also sent Sacco and Venzetti and Thomas Mooney.

Fight for Credentials.

The struggle between the left wing and the machine began with the report of Schneider of Local 62 for the credentials committee. The report after giving a list of sums owed to the international by the various locals and mentioning charges prefered against the whole delegations, recommended the seating of all delegates and the reference of all charges to the convention appeals committee. This maneuver of the Sigman machine, which had been forecast by reading of a sheaf of telegrams from machine locals urging "peace, harmony, unity, sunshine and happiness" is intended in all probability to bring the faked charges against such progressive Locals as 2, 9, and 22 before a hostile appeals committee by seating a majority of machine delegates which will elect such a committee, was challenged immediately by Hyman after Fabysach moved to refer the report back. Hyman charged that the report of the credentials committee which claimed no power to pass on the charges made

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

ONE of the most interesting cartoons of the day is the one in The Chicago Tribune depicting a collection of statesmen signing the Locarno pact, with beaming faces. This means, no more war according to the editors of the capitalist papers. Just the same these smiling statesmen are watching out for poison in their soup. They keep their daggers handy. It would not be surprising if history recorded that the only tangible result of the Locarno pact was, is, or will be, the ornamental garter given to Austen Chamberlain by a grateful king.

IT is nice to see a fat German bourgeois representative signing his name to the treaty while his former foes stand behind him looking like happy children waiting for their share of pumpkin pie. Germany is back again in the family of nations, we are told. It would be interesting to learn the feelings of a wounded war veteran on seeing this and similar cartoons. The boys who went forth to battle for "democracy" were trained to kill Germans, to wipe out the entire race so that democracy would have a chance. Those christian lads were placed in front of dummies made to resemble human beings and order to stick their bayonets into them as they should stick them into the quivering flesh of a German soldier after they got to France.

THIS was patriotism. The nearer the soldier approached the hyena in ferocity, the nearer he came to being a once hundred per cent American. The Germans were a bad lot those days. Every time the face of von Hindenburg appeared on an American screen, the morons hissed. The same morons cheer the same face now. The noble Von is now president of the country, our 100 per centers swore to wipe off the face of the earth. He supports the Locarno pact and the international bankers are duly grateful. There are many lessons to be drawn from the happy reunion of Europe's capitalist nations, but fortunately that reunion cannot be lasting. The conflicts inside the

LABOR DEFENSE PROTESTS GITLOW JAILING FRIDAY

To Demand Repeal of Syndicalist Laws

Benjamin Gitlow, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, and Anita Whitney are the latest victims of the criminal syndicalism laws that were enacted to be used against those workers who dared to organize against the employing class. Today, it is the Communists that are being persecuted, tomorrow, it will be the other active members of the unions, who will be victimized by the syndicalism laws.

The workers of Chicago will be able to raise their protest against the continued imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow and the attempt to send Anita Whitney to jail and demand the repeal of the syndicalism laws at a mass protest meeting which is being arranged by the International Labor Defense at the West Side Auditorium, Racine and Taylor Sts., Friday evening, December 4 at 8 p. m. The speakers will be Robert Minor, Pete Jensen of the Federated Shop Crafts, Fred Mann and William H. Holly.

MISSISSIPPI CRIMINAL COURTS ARE COLLECTION AGENCIES FOR EMPLOYERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Dec. 2.—That the criminal courts of Mississippi are being used for the collection of private debts by corporate interests is evidenced by the minutes of Justice S. J. Avery's court at Jonesville. Thirteen Mexican men and women were brought to this section to work on the Barksdale plantation at Jonesville, but before they left their native country they signed a legal document binding themselves to labor at a stipulated sum and to refund the amount of transportation advanced by the owners of the plantation. On their arrival, they discovered that better wages and conditions existed elsewhere and quit; later they were arrested charged with obtaining money under false pretenses and violation of contract. The case was finally compromised in court when the Mexicans agreed to refund to the Barksdale interests $90 and "costs."

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE ON COAL STRIKE

May Pass Law to Open Coal Mines

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec., 2.—The refusal of the anthracite operators to accept the peace plan of Gov. Gofford Pinchot in the wage controversy practically assures the calling of an extra session of the state legislature.

This was the opinion on Capitol Hill today following the declaration of the state's chief executive that "the operators had turned down industrial peace and declared war."

Just what sort of legislation, if any, the Keystone solons could write into the statute books, to bring about a resumption of negotiations between the operators and miners is problemactical. There is no precedent for this.

The governor has made no statement concerning the calling of a special session of the legislature but it was freely predicted today that the situation in the anthracite industry would bring a definite announcement

CZECHO-SLOVAK MISSION PRAISES RUSSIAN WORKERS' ORGANIZATIONS FOR WHOLE-HEARTED CO-OPERATION

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—(By Mail.)—The Czecho-Slovak workers' delegation which had been in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics for more than six weeks issued a statement thanking the workers' organizations of Soviet Russia for their co-operation in their investigations of conditions in the Soviet Union and declare that they were allowed to move freely while they were in the Soviet Union. In the statement, which was signed by every member of the delegation, it points out that they talked to whomever they desired to, went where they wanted to and did as they pleased without any interference on the part of the Soviet government.

In the following statement, which the delegation issued, it points out that the unions in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics are not merely unions that fight to maintain union conditions for the Russian workers but that they are decisive partners in determining the economic and political life in the Soviet Union:

"Thanks to the fraternal support of your organization, we have been enabled in the last six weeks to see thoroly into the various fields of your economic, cultural and social life in various parts of your gigantic country. We were able to see all that we wanted to see to speak with everyone with whom we wanted to speak, to examine everything which interested us and we met with no difficulties in this whatever.

"We thank you for your hearty welcome and for your hospitality.

"The Soviet Union is a state in which the workers and the peasants rule.

Tremendous Changes.

"In consequence of the revolutionary upheavals, there have been tremendous changes in the social and economic life of Russia. Whilst in all bourgeois countries, finance and industrial capital has occupied an ever more decisive position, in the Soviet Union

LEWIS PLEADS FOR PUBLIC TO FIGHT BATTLE

Never Fights Bosses; Only Miners

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2. — John L. Lewis' reply to the operators' rejection of the proposal of Governor Pinchot for an arbitration committee in the anthracite strike is of an evasive nature that jeopardizes the very existence of the Miners' Union. In the face of the threat of William W. Ingliss, chairman of the anthracite operators' negotiating committee, that the fight would last a year if necessary in order to defeat the demands of the miners, Lewis refrains from any act that would strengthen the power of the union in its struggle for existence.

It is now becoming clear that the one impelling motive of the mine barons is to destroy the union in this strike. The statement embodying the refusal of Pinchot's offer makes that aim quite clear. Pinchot's proposal was one that granted the operators everything they wanted except that they would have to recognize the existence of the union. This they refuse to do and have thrown down the challenge to Lewis and his machine.

Lewis Cringes.

Instead of replying to the threats of the operators by mobilizing the miners in the soft coal fields, instead of calling out the maintenance men in the anthracite mines who are working on improvements so that the mines will be in better shape than ever when coal mining is resumed, Lewis makes an inspired plea for the "outraged public."

Instead of urging organized labor to fight the battles against the anthracite Lewis hides his cowardice and treachery behind the plea that this public make its desires known in order to change "the arrogant attitude of the operators."

Knowing perfectly well that the public never makes its desires known on anything for the reason that it is not a unit but composed of all classes in society, Lewis can safely hide behind such a brainless formula.

Sorely Disappointed.

Lewis is said to be sorely disappointed at the failure to conclude the strike on the basis of the Pinchot proposals. Unquestionably that is his desire as it would then assure him a soft berth as lieutenant of the capitalist class while the miners continued to slave under the miserable conditions they endured before the strike.

Progressives Active.

In spite of the terror against them conducted by the police, the courts and the Lewis gangsters under the direction of Rinaldo Cappellini, president of one of the districts here, the progressive miners are waging a struggle in the anthracite to rescue the strike from the certain defeat into which it will sink if Lewis and his compromising, hesitating, treacherous policy triumphs among the rank and file.

Just awakening to the serious situation confronting them the miners in the anthracite are becoming restless and a deep distrust of the officials permeates their ranks as they realize the truthfulness of the charges of the progressives and Communists that Lewis is endeavoring to use the strike so that he may remain the agent of the mine owners.

The miners are coming to realize that Lewis never fights for them against the mine barons, but only against them whenever they strive to defeat the mine owners.

AUSTRIAN BANK EAGER TO INCREASE VOLUME OF TRADE WITH RUSSIA

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 2.—In order to increase the growing trade with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, the Austrian National Bank announcces that it will in the future handle Austrian bills of exchange on Soviet Russia due in six months, whether in shillings or foreign currency, buying them at 75 per cent of their value.

Austrians have been wanting to do this for a long time, and pressure from England, which is heavily interested in the National Bank, hitherto prevented it.

Inability to negotiate bills of exchange has greatly hindered the development of Austrian trade with Soviet Russia, because the Soviets demand six months' credit and money is so tight in Vienna that few business men are able to grant such credit. The National Bank has also decided to list Russian currency in the foreign exchange.

MILITARY PRISON TEACHER FINDS NEW RED SCARE

"Soviets Kill Prisoners to Avoid Trials"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALCATRAZ, Cal., Dec. 2—Discovered—a new Bolshevik atrocity. The old myths of wholesale murder, nationalization of women, wars between the Bolshevik leaders and even the dispute between Trotsky and "Kremlin, the war minister," have all been exploded. The latest one should be welcomed by the yellow capitalist press.

No Trials in Russia.

"In Soviet Russia, if one violates a law, or is even suspected, he is forced by the police to sign his own death warrant and is shot on the spot. There is no trial." This "information" was given to the military prisoners at Alcatraz by C. F. Stanby, a San Francisco attorney, who is conducting an educational (?) class here. This class is not called a course in Hearst journalism, as one would naturally suppose. It masquerades under the name of "business law."

Stanley must think the prisoners are so ignorant that they will believe any mythological tale of the bosses. In the militarist propaganda (alias "business law") course, he states that Bolshevism and anarchism mean the same thing and that a Bolshevik is one opposed to all government.

"Some countries would put you in prison for complaining about conditions," said Stanley. Perhaps he is well aware of the fact that a resident of San Francisco would not need to walk three feet to find himself in one of these countries.

Part of the so-called "business law" course is devotion to the noble art of war and willingness to be used as cannon fodder for the bosses. Stanley, the capitalist-militarist instructor, cautions his pupils against all anti-war organizations such as the Quakers. He thinks they should receive the hate and contempt of all loyal slaves of Morgan. Stanley has not yet reached the question of what should be done to the Communists who propose war against capitalist wars.

Useless Bunk.

Many of the military prisoners here expressed the horrors of the last war. They thot they were fighting for freedom; but they found their reward in the loss of the little freedom that once was theirs. Militarist propaganda for the purpose of creating more cannon fodder for the next war will meet with little success here.

PERSHING'S SCHEMING IN CHILE AND PERU EXPOSED AS LEAGUE OF NATIONS RECEIVES APPEAL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—General Pershing's imperialist crusade into Chile and Peru under the pretext of arranging a plebiscite at the behest of President Coolidge received a severe jolt today when it became known that the Chilean minister at Berne, Switzerland, had filed a formal protest against American aggression with the league of nations, in the form of a memorandum on the whole Tacna-Arica question.

It is well known here in Washington that Pershing is there not for the purpose of organizing the preliminaries for a plebiscite to determine the settlement of the territorial dispute over Tacna-Arica, but in order to prevent such a settlement as an excuse for permanent American occupation. The objective is control of the territory so that the nitrate fields may find an outlet profitable to American imperialism.

an outlet profitable to American imperialism.

Affront to Coolidge.

Because of the delicacy of the situation comment is withheld here among official circles, but the administration is distinctly displeased over the action of the Chilean government.

It is a direct affront to Coolidge as it exposes his game in Chile and Peru. American imperialist adventurers, operating in Central America, connived to induce the governments of Chile and Peru to request a plebiscity under the "neutral" protection of the United States. This request was answered by sending the swaggering war monger, Pershing, down there to keep things in such a state of uncertainty that the resultant disorder could be utilized for American invasion.

Naturally Coolidge and his government cannot but resent the fact that their schemes are known and are being exposed.

Whether the league of nations will take action is problematical, as it would mean a direct clash with the present United States government interpretation of the Monroe doctrine.

Charles Evans Hughes, while secretary of state, interpreted anew this document, adopted in 1823, to mean that the United States had the right of control over both the North and South American continents. Whether Europe will oppose the United States in this stand depends entirely upon the ability of Europe at this time to challenge the American government.

Both Chile and Peru are members of the league, so the United States cannot object to the league stepping into the controversy without challenging all the Central American nations holding membership in that body and thereby assuming a belligerent attitude toward the rest of the capitalist world.

League Is Futile.

While the futility of the league is well known, the publicity attendant upon the protest of Chile will result in the exposure to the whole world of the conniving of Pershing and Coolidge. Recent European squabbles in the league have convinced statesmen of its impotency when it comes to settling any dispute, even of the most minor character.

EXPERT WITNESS FALLS DOWN IN KORACEK TRIAL

Judge Intercedes for "Star" Investigator

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—Much merriment was caused in the court room during the trial of Edward Koracek, member of the Machinists' Union and active trades unionists charged with violation of the Pennsylvania state sedition law, when the star witness for the state, Mrs. O'Connell under cross-examination gave the lie to Myer. When the attorney for Koracek called her attention to the discrepancy in her "expert" testimony, she became excited and tried to explain away her testimony.

Judge Intercedes.

The prosecuting attorney was very much excited at this falling down of the star witness. Judge Prather entered into a lengthy explanation and tried to aid Mrs. O'Connell in explaining away her discrepancies. He stated that Mrs. O'Connell was trying to "re-establish her reputation and accuracy."

As soon as the court opened Attorney Marshall made a motion that the seventh count on the indictment, charging Koracek with membership in SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2—According to the weekly report issued by the state director of health, tuberculosis holds the highest disease rate among Illinois workers.

There were 491 cases of tuberculosis, 357 of scarlet fever, 200 of pneumonia, 128 of diphtheria, 160 of measles, 66 to typhoid, 13 of smallpox and only 7 of influenza reported to the state board of health for the past week.

INTERPARLIAMENTARY COMMUNIST CONGRESS EXPOSES CAPITALIST AIMS AGAINST RUSSIA IN LOCARNO

BRUSSELS, Belgium.—(By Mail.)—The first session of the Interparliamentary Communist Congress, in which Communist members of the various parliaments in Europe participated, was devoted to an expose of the real purpose behind the Locarno guarantee pact, which is being used by the imperialist powers of Europe to divorce Germany from the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and to make a war on the Russian Soviet government a greater possibility.

The first session of the congress elected Cachin of France, Stoecker of Germany, Saklatvala of England, and Overstraeten of Belgium as members of the presidium of the Interparliamentary Communist Congress.

In the discussion on the Locarno pact, Comrades Stoecker, Cachin, Saklatvala, Overstraeten and a delegate from Poland participated in the exposing of the real nature of the pact and discussed ways and means of combatting the aims of the pact which the imperialist powers devised at Locarno.

Cachin, who was the first to speak, declared that the pacifist illusions connected with the guarantee pact must be fought. He pointed to the armament race of the great capitalist powers and their mutual differ-

COGS IN SIGMAN'S MACHINE MESH BADLY AFTER THE PROGRESSIVES ATTACK REPORT ON CREDENTIALS

was a clear evasion of responsibility and without precedent in conventions. He characterized the maneuver as a plan to disfranchise 75 per cent of the union membership and was interrupted by Sigman who warned against spectators participating in demonstrations. Hochman raised a point of order that Hyman was not speaking to the committee report but Hyman was allowed to continue.

Refuse to Recognize Fake Charges.

Hyman then stated that the membership for which he spoke would recognize no fake charges, would appear before no such appeals committee and that the whole procedure was a violation of the recently concluded peace agreement.

He said that in the war conducted by the administration against the New York membership that not only trade union ethics had been violated, but that the rules of so-called civilized warfare had also been abrogated. He concluded amidst great applause.

The convention then adjourned as the hall could not be obtained for an afternoon session. The credentials committee reported 285 delegates with two fraternal delegates, Martin Plattel of the German Needle Trade Workers' Union who has credentials from Amsterdam as well and Davidovitch from the Russian-Polish Needle Trade Workers' Union.

Of the 285 delegates, 100 are said to be progressive and supporting the New York locals.

Dubinsky Speaks for "The Machine"

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 2.—The Sigman machine, with many cogs meshing badly, went into action today with Dubinsky of Local 10 as its first spokesman. The strong fight of the progressives yesterday on the credentials report brought results which deprived Dubinsky's speech of any real punch as he had to announce that the credentials committee did not mean what it said about charges against Locals 2, 9 and 22.

In other words, Dubinsky in the name of the machine informed the convention that the faked charges against these three progressive locals would be quashed if the left wing would cease the exposure of the machine's artificial delegates and crooked election methods.

Portnoy, of Local 22, answered Dubinsky by saying that the progresives could stomach his abuse in view of his long step backward on the credentials report.

Portnoy showed by facts and figures from previous convention proceedings that the credential committee had violated the constitution.

"You have and we can prove that you have 50 delegates representing only 700 members." Portnoy in conclusion evoked prolonged applause by stating "the joint action committee is on the job" and that no favors from the machine were wanted by the progressives. Zimmerman characterized Dubinsky as "a cheap actor."

Dubinsky Barred Candidates.

It was amusing, said Zimmerman, to find Dubinsky who had arbitrarily ruled every eligible progressive candidate from the ballot in Local No. 10 now posing as a defendant of the constitution. "Our bosses," said Zimmerman, "are the rank and file. We are not here to split the convention or to split the union. The progressives came here to heal the wounds caused by the expulsion policy of the machine" referring to Dubinsky's statement that the credentials committee had been misunderstood, warned the administration that a continuation of such actions would cause the membership to misunderstand just as the membership misunderstood the expulsion policy and revolted against it.

Antonini of Local No. 89 made a clever speech supporting the machine but playing to the left wing he hinted that before the convention was over he might incline more to the left. Antonini is undoubtedly open for a deal on the basis of office.

Fight Bosses and Officials.

Morris Rubin of Local No. 2 made an eloquent speech concluding with the remark that the machine charged Zimmerman with membership in the Communnist Party but that altho he himself belonged to no party he was proud to fight side by side with Zimmerman because he was fighting the bosses and the machine for the membership. "We learned a long time ago that we must fight the bosses," said Rubin, "but last summer we learned that we must also fight some union officials and for the same reason we have to fight bosses—so that we can build our union."

Rose Wortis gave a summing up of the policy of the progressives and stated that it was necessary that a complete exposure of the crooked acts and artificial delegations of the machine be made.

The progressive bloc is well organized in the convention and the machine has been badly shaken by the debate in which not one word in answer to the charges of illegal elections has been made.

TOLEDO WORKERS HEAR PAT TOOHEY ON MINE STRIKE

Coaldigger Urges Need of Triple Alliance

By FRED DAVEY.

(Worker Correspondent)

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Despite the heavy downpour of rain, the meeting arranged for Pat H. Toohey, youthful leader of the anthracite miners, in the banquet hall at the Labor Temple here, was well attended by workers who desired to hear of the conditions in the anthracite fields and about the problems that face the miners who are on strike for better living conditions.

For almost two hours Toohey dealt with many phases of the present 158,000 miners' strike and urged the six-hour day and five-day week, the minimum wage scale, abolition of the contract system to really improve their conditions. The audience listened with great intent as he spoke of the deplorable conditions of labor, and the forces at work always in and around the mines in the operators' interests. The inequalities of pay were gone into with some detail.

For Triple Alliance.

Toohey touched on the relationship of the miners to all organized labor and advocated the formation of a labor party which would unite all laboring masses so as to maintain a united front. The necessity of an understanding between the three great forces of labor, miners, transport workers and railroad workers was apparent. In this way the workers' demands for better living conditions would be more readily granted. The treachery of the mine union officials was gone into; the real issues affecting the miners were submerged in the demands of the check-off system.

Denounce Officials.

After the meeting several questions were answered; the methods of the union officialdom were discussed further, and strongly denounced, and as long as officials of the unions played into the hands of the operators and the capitalist government, not much hope was held out for the improvement of conditions of the miners. It was up to the miners to support the left wing, the progressives in the unions to change the bad conditions.

The chairman of the meeting was Bruce Smith who polled 5,000 votes in Toledo recently on a straight Communist platform. He was a candidate for vice-mayor.

Interparliamentary Congress Exposes Capitalist Plot

ences and described the attempts of Great Britain to attach Germany to her policy.

Stoecker declared that the actual wire puller in Locarno was America, but that England also had strengthened her position there. "American capitalism wishes stable conditions in western Europe and the interests of England demand the forcing back of French dominance on the continent,' declared Stoecker. "The chief meaning of the Locarno pact is the formation of a capitalist bloc against Soviet Russia. The German bourgeoisie had sold Germany's sovereignity in Locarno in order to maintain their class ascendancy inside Germany. The German nationalists do not carry on any opposition of principle to the Locarno pact but an opposition in order to be able to obtain better terms for themselves in the inner political game.

"Locarno is a war pact against Soviet Russia, and the stronger Soviet Russia becomes, the stronger will the contradictions between England and Russia become and the stronger will the sympathy of the colonial people for Russia grow. Instead of disarmament, we see everywhere a race in armaments. The workers are better able to recognize the dangers of the Locarno pact than many think.

"A significant sign of the spirit of the workers against the Locarno pact is the fact that neither the Marseilles congress nor the London executive session of the Second International was able to arrive at any final decision with regard to Locarno. The anti-bolshevist policy of the reformists is becoming ever more difficult to carry out. Locarno is also a pact against the European workers. The workers must place the security pact of the international working class against the security pact of the capitalists."

Saklatvala stressed in his speech the distrust of the workers and the middle class which must be utilized. On the basis of the pact text he showed that it must inevitably lead to new wars. England could observe the danger of a bloc between Germany, Soviet Russia and the colonial peoples and was therefore working to secure Germany's removal from such a bloc and its entry into the league of nations. In this it has been successful in Locarno which means a conspiracy of England against Soviet Russia.

Overstraeten of Belgium declared that the Locarno pact was not only a war pact against Soviet Russia, but also an offensive against the colonial peoples, against the working masses of the East.

The Polish comrade pointed out that the economic consequences of the Locarno pact must be realized and stressed. For Poland the Locarno pact meant the sale of Poland to foreign capitalists. The slogan of the working class against Locarno must be the demand for an alliance with Soviet Russia.

(Worker Correspondent)

LIMA, O., Dec. 2—A meeting was arranged to consider the question of International Labor Defense. F. G Biedenkapp a national representative addressed the gathering. He not only interested his audience on the condition of the working class of the world and their need of defense, but convinced them that International Labor Defense has the most practical and far reaching plan ever proposed in this countrry, to meet the persecution inflicted on the working class.

A motion was carried to form a local organization, which resulted in every person present taking out membership.

Aside from the Labor Defense this meeting was represented by those directly interested in organized labor, and the results will be a benefit to the general labor movement here.

SENATORS RAP DAWES' THREAT AGAINST THEM

Unite in Denouncing Fascist Clown

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The threat of Vice-President Charles G. Dawes to take the stump against senators of all political faiths if they fight his proposal for a revision of senatorial rules met with a warm reception today from returning senators.

Republican insurgents and democrats dropped their little private rows to join in "bawling out" the vice-president. The only portion of the vice-president's campaign, which met with favor, was his plea for non-partisan action—and the senators were non-partisan in denouncing Dawes, his plan and his proposed invasion of senatorial primaries.

Couldn't Keep Awake.

The democratic temper toward the vice-president was demonstrated by Senator T. H. Caraway, democrat, of Arkansas, who said: "Senators certainly will be impressed with the proposal of a presiding officer, who did not know enough to organize the senate properly and who couldn't keep awake long enough to vote."

Senators of all faiths and shades of political opinion were united in opposing Dawes and his plan to change the senate's rules.

Republicans Pan Dawes.

The attitude of administration leaders to the vice-president's challenge was indicated by Senator Wadsworth, republican, of New York, who said:

"Mr. Dawes is welcome to come to New York at any time. If I am nominated, he will find himself opposing the republican candidate for senator in New York. I welcome him."

The western reaction was expressed by Senator McNary, republican, of Oregon, who said: "I hate to see the vice-president leave the republican party. But I think he will be back long before the rules of the senate are materially changed."

The insurgent bloc "welcomed" Dawes to their ranks.

"The vice-president is more than welcome in the insurgent camp," said Senator Norris, republican, of Nebraska. "The particular thing he proposes has greater danger than the thing he wants to eleminate, so my only regret is that he espouses insurgency by campaigning for enactment of a ridiculous change in senatorial rules."

All along the democratic front, there was a similar reaction.

"I wish the vice-president would come down to my state," said Senator Pat Harrison, democrat of Mississippi. "He would get a warm welcome from my colleague and myself."

Senator Caraway, noted for his sarcasm, went further. "What answer can be given to a man, whose public utterances traveled all the way from the front pages of newspapers to the classified ad sections in a single summer?" Caraway remarked. "Who can follow the reasoning of a man who says that a few men can hold up all legislation and because of that, the senate passes too many bills?

Dawes' Senate Candidacy.

"Not to be personal, but the vice-president quotes as his republican authority, Mr. Mondell, who sought a seat in the senate and failed to carry a county in his state. I merely mention the fact, too, that Mr. Dawes once ran for the senate and nobody heard of his candidacy until after he was defeated. It does seem that the senate rules might be left to those able to get elected to the senate and not to those, whom the people refuse to place in that body.

"When Mr. Dawes does invade senatorial primaries, I hope he confines his activities to the campaigns of my friends, because I want them elected."

Administration leaders meanwhile, out of courtesy to the vice-president, are planning to let him get a vote during the coming session upon his proposed changes in the rules. He will be overwhelmingly defeated. Aside from this, the subject will be brought into frequent debate on the senate floor, where Dawes will be speechless and forced to listen to the views of his opponents.

Gross and Englander are Only Left-Wingers on Furriers' Executive

In the issue of The DAILY WORKER for Thursday Nov. 19, a serious and regrettable error crept into the dispatch on the proceedings of the International Furriers' convention which was held in Boston, when Gross, of Local 5, New York, and Englander of Toronto were placed in the position of joining the so-called progressives who jumped on the Sorkin band wagon to save the day for the Kaufman machine.

Gross and Englander are the two left wingers that succeeded in being elected to the Furriers' general executive board. This error crept in during the hasty transcribing of a telegraphic dispatch and The DAILY WORKER sincerely regrets its error.

'Daily' Can Become Mass Paper Thru an Army of Worker Correspondents

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, one of the big tasks of the Workers (Communist) Party is the organization and development of an able and efficient army of worker correspondents, who will keep pouring an endless volume of valuable material into the editorial office of the party's official organ—The DAILY WORKER.

This is something that cannot be accomplished thru some sporadic or make-shift activity. It must be brought about thru careful, painstaking work, that never ceases. Our "Daily" appears six times every week. Six days out of the week it carries its working class message to the exploited masses in this country. The strength and carrying power of that message depends on the co-operation that The DAILY WORKER receives from the workers in the shops and factories, the mills and mines.

Communists must make up the vanguard of the army of worker correspondents, those who blast the way for this proletarian activity, that is as yet very new to the workers in this country. Communists must organize groups and classes of worker correspondents everywhere, enlisting large numbers of nonparty workers in this working class activity.

A call has gone out to members of the party's district executive committees, city committees, section and sub-section committees, demanding that they intensify activities for the mobilization of recruits for the worker correspondents' army. Thru their activity in the revolutionary movement, these comrades have been given their positions of trust. But all comrades must unite with them for the successful realization of this paramount task. Some one must bring up this question in every party nucleus, even when all others fail.

The great aid rendered by worker correspondents in building the revolutionary press in Russia, especially during the darkest days of czarism, furnishes one of the brightest pages in the history of the Russian workers' and peasants' struggle for power. American workers must write a similar page in the history of the American proletarian revolution.

Capitalist newspapers are written by hirelings of the profit system. These mental slaves pour out the kind of propaganda the exploiters wish the workers to read and believe.

Thru their worker correspondents, the workers tell their own stories of wrongs suffered, the methods employed thru which they hope to attain relief, and the victories achieved on the hard road to emancipation. Thus they provide in great part the contents of their own press—the Communist press.

In New York City, Chicago and elsewhere groups of worker correspondents have already been organized for study and active work. Every city in the country that has an active Communist organization must organize similar classes. Even the shops, factories, mills, mines, where there is no Communist organization, the workers may appoint some among them to write up and sent in their stories to The DAILY WORKER.

If there is any doubt at all as to how to proceed with this important activity, the editorial department of The DAILY WORKER will be glad to give all information and render all assistance possible. Every day several columns of worker correspondence now appear regularly. Once each week, on Fridays, a whole page of worker correspondence appears as an established feature of the paper. But all this must be developed and perfected until The DAILY WORKER becomes really a mass paper, the accepted spokesman of broad masses of America's workers. Workers everywhere must co-operate with The DAILY WORKER in order to help it achieve that purpose.

an organization which has as its purpose the overthrow of the United States government be excluded. The prosecutor made a bitter argument opposing the motion and Judge Prather ruled in favor of the representative of the steel trust interests in Pittsburgh.

Advertising Poster Evidence.

The prosecutor then had Mrs. O'Connell take the stand to identify "evidence" seized in Koracek's home. One of the pieces of evidence that caused many in the court room to smile was a poster advertising the "Russia Today" film that was shown in different localities. Another was an advertisement for a Cannon meeting. Both of these were objected to by Marshall as having nothing to do with the issues involved. The judge ruled in favor of the prosecutor on this point.

The prosecutor then proceeded to introduce a copy of the ABC of Communism which was published by the Detroit Educational Society, a number of translations of other books that were also published by the society, an order for three thousand party programs and a number of defense letters that were seized.

Isaac Ferguson objected to these as irrelevant. The judge who had made many rulings in favor of the prosecution, now declared that he would pass "judgment" upon the evidence presented as to whether these books, pamphlets, and other "evidence" should be submitted to the jury.

Introduce Water Spigot.

A box containing a number of Workers Party buttons, a number of washers, a water spigot and other trifles was introduced to show that Koracek violated the state sedition laws.

FRENCH FINANCE CRISIS FORCES INFLATION MOVE

Depreciation of Franc Is Alarming

PARIS, Dec. 2—The Briand government will launch an inflation policy in the chamber of deputies tonight, it was learned officially today.

M. Loucheur, finance minister will be forced tonight to ask the chamber to authorize the Bank of France to advance 6,000,000,000 francs to the state, and to print 7,500,000,000 francs in addition.

Assuming that the request upon the chamber is granted inflation in French currency since Jan. 1, 1925, will total 17,500,000,000 francs. This will seriously depreciate the franc.

Wants More Taxes.

As evidence of his intent to fight inflation, Finance Minister Loucheur will ask the chamber of deputies to increase taxation immediately thus enabling the state to refund the advances from the Bank of France within a year.

M. Loucheur's finance bill which has been drafted will probably forecast the fortunes of the Briand government.

Passage of the finance bill thru the chamber is the first act upon the program of the Briand ministry, altho the question of France's external debts is being wdiely discussed. But it is learned that M. Loucheur, while anxious to reach settlements upon the debts to the United States and Great Britain, will not make and overtures in this matter until he knows what funds he may have available for debt payments.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

(The third installment of Labor in the Far East deals with the textile workers and their struggle against the capitalist offensive. The first instalment dealt with facts which show that the workers' strike has become the backbone of the entire nationalist emancipation movement. The second instalment dealt with the revival of China's labor movement in 1924).

By L. HELLER.

ARTICLE III.

THE first place in the Chinese labor movement from the point of view of activity and organization has until lately been held by the railwaymen, seamen and miners. To be sure, there have been sporadic strikes of textile workers in the past as well, but they were generally short-lived and owing to weak organization, ended as a rule in defeat. The main cause of the organizational backwardness of the textile workers is the domination of female and child labor. It will suffice to state that in many of the largest textile factories women constitute 90 per cent of all the workers. In the silk industry the percentage is still higher, reaching even as much as 99 per cent. About half the workers consist of children.

This explains why Shanghai, the foremost industrial center of China, where is concentrated one-third of the entire industrial proletariat of the country, has not until recently played any noticeable part in the Chinese labor movement: Of the 500,000 workers of China, the cotton workers (160,000) and silk workers (80,000) constitute nearly one-half. In addition, the next largest group are the porters (100,000) also not easily given to organization. Only after the Peking coup last autumn, in connection with the new political situation and with the rise of the nationalist movement in Northern and Central China, did the backward Shanghai proletariat begin to move.

THE birth of the first trade union organizations among the Shanghai textile workers dates back to the second half of the past year. The first to be organized were the workers of certain Japanese textile factories, where men constituted a relatively high percentage. There were four such factories and they formed the nucleus of the Shanghai textile workers' organization.

The Japanese capitalists immediately saw a menace in the organization of trade unions and started a determined offensive against them. The biggest Japanese textile company, Nagai-Wata, owning 13 textile factories in Shanghai and two in Tsintao, began systematically to replace the men by women, increasing at the same time the standard of production, and discharging, under various pretexts, the most active men. This led to the February strike, involving all the factories of this company. Despite the cry raised by the entire imperialist press over this strike, despite all intimidations and provocations, despite attempts to corrupt the strike leaders and despite even the formidable intervention of the Japanese ambassador, the strikers held out valiantly and after 11 days of struggle came out partially victorious.

This success served to raise the prestige of the union very high in the eyes of the workers and in a very short time, the union movement made good progress, membership growing from 2,000 to 10,000.

Two months later, in April, a strike broke out in the Japanse textile factories of Tzintao. The Japanese capitalists decided to show their teeth in Tsintao, a small town in the Shantung province, only recently evacuated by the Japanese, where they found it more safe politically to use force and easier to browbeat the workers. The most ferocious measures were employed, including mass arrests and deportations, beatings and shootings. Things came to a head when a Japanese warship entered the Chinese port of Tsintao to crush the Chinese workers.

In response to these events a second strike was declared in Shanghai by the textile workers, in solidarity with the striking textile workers of Tsintao. The Japanese capitalists then decided to apply the same ferocity in Shanghai. Clashes followed, in which the Japanese foremen killed one and wounded 30 Chinese workers.

ON May 30 a peaceful demonstration, held by the workers and students in protest against the murder of Chinese workers by the Japanese, was fired at by the British police of the foreign settlement of Shanghai. This served as a prelude to the Shanghai events, which reverberated loudly in every country, leading to the unheard of rise of the national movement that is still gripping entire China today. In this rise, as in a nutshell, is reflected the entire nationalist and labor movement of the last decade.

During that period the movement was having its ups and downs. First in the stormy onrush on the political stage of the student movement in 1919 and in the splendid activities developed by the young Chinese proletariat such as the strike of the Hongkong seamen in the spring of 1922 or the Shanghai strike in 1924, and then would go down during the period of reaction underground, engaging there in invisible activities and gathering volume and energy for the next outbreaks. Their mainstay are the strikes in Shanghai and Hongkong.

We shall therefore have to dwell at some length upon these strikes.

IN A MOSCOW STEEL MILL

Freedom and More Production

Dear Comrades,—Let me tell you how we Russian workers live and work now that the power is in our hands, and to compare our life with what it was before the revolution. I will speak only of the work in the steelrolling mill, and of the life of the workers of our factory in Moscow (formerly the "Houson," now the "Sickle and Hammer"), because our life and work are characteristic of the industries thruout the Union of Republics.

In former times we used to work in our mills in two shifts of twelve hours each. We used to work because we were goaded by fear, not from any love for the work. For every mistake the worker was punished either by a blow or at best by a fine, losing about five rubles or more in fines every month.

At the close of a hard-working day we had no facilities for sensible recreation. We had no clubs of our own; the theaters were too expensive for us, and the secondary schools were only for the intelligentsia—not for the workers' children. In the same way the sporting clubs were in the hands of the bourgeoisie, and the only thing left to us were the beershops, the government vodka shops, card gambling and fist fights. Many of us succumbed either to these pleasures or to the dope of the priests, who told us to await the kingdom of heaven.

A New Life.

Afer the October revolution of 1917 we began to lead quite a different life. It is true that at first, harassed by the white guards who were aided by your capitalists, we experienced great hardships. We starved while our transport was in a state of chaos; our factories were at a standstill, and most of us fought at the front. Our own factory, which employs 4,000 people, had hardly 400 at that time, and any kind of production was out of the question.

But now we have raised our production over that of 1913, and we work less hours than we did then. All this is done without any compulsion, but by our own good-will and efforts. I feel that to produce in eight hours upon an old bench the quantity that used to be turned out in twelve hours on a new one is quite a big victory, and you will surely share in our jubilation.

We now have our own club, with an endless variety of circles—dramatic, choral, musical, art, radio, and sport. There are scores of members in every circle, but in the sporting circle we have nine football teams alone, whereas in the past we had only five footballers in the whole factory, and even these played in the bourgeois club.

The New Generation.

Our sporting grounds are full of children during the day, and in the evening after work the adult workers engage in physical culture. Our youngsters are all pioneers and communards, robust and happy fellows, growing up under good conditions and in health of body and mind. They are some day to take our place.

Our entire life, our production, our failures and our tasks are reflected in the columns of the newspapers. Since the newspapers cannot possibly give us all the space we need we run our wall newspapers in every factory. The news to the newspapers is communicated by ourselves, so that there can be no garbling as is done by bourgeois reporters.

Therefore, dear comrades, we wish you to get the same as we have—namely, all power in the hands of the workers.

With fraternal greetings. A. G. Pogozhenkov (Non-party workers' correspondent, Moscow).

AS WE SEE IT

capitalist system cannot be harmonized.

THE capitalist system is sliding to its doom. All the efforts of the capitalist doctors cannot save the patient. They can halt the process of disintegration—that's all. But not for long. Austen Chamberlain won a garter and Britain regained the diplomatic leadership of Europe which she has been compelled to share with the United States and France since the end of the war. This will make the tories and the liberals and the right wing of the labor party feel good. They will quaff goblets of sparkling Burgundy to the old empire but the old empire has seen her best days.

AS Leon Trotsky points out in his book: "Whither England" the United States has the skids greased for Great Britain as a world power and anybody with even one political eye in his head can see the fine hand of British diplomacy trying to maneuver the capitalist states of Europe against the capitalist government of the United States. In the meantime the diplomats of the Soviet Union are not idle and Trotsky declares that is regrettable that the Soviet government should be obliged to spend a lot of money on the red army, the rey navy and the red fleet. Trotsky is right, but the workers and peasants of Russia must defend their country.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE does not think very much of the artistic capabilities of the citizens of Oshkosh, Iowa, but on the whole it believes the American people have perfected the art of good government. What the devil? Only a few days after the explosion (political) in our local county jail, and so many other scandals, municipal, state and national, that the space alloted to this column could be taken up for a year relating the incidents of known corruption with which the government of this country reeks! Not that the capitalist politicians of this country are more venal than those of any other country. No, they are as much alike as a family of pole cats. Perhaps they are more brazenly corrupt.

WE learn that the Soviet government pumped half a pound of lead into several Soviet officials who made free with the profits from some of its industries. Could such a thing happen in America? The culprits would stand a good chance of being in the next cabinet. Good government in America! It is a good government for the more clever of the robbers. In times of prosperity all the robbers get something out of it. But honest government! There is no such animal under capitalism.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2—Plans for merging the releasing interests of United Artists and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, two of the biggest motion picture producing organizations have been abandoned.

Joseph Schenck of United Artists announced that the plan had been given up. He denied that efforts of Charlie Chaplin had blocked the move.

The United Artists is owned by Schenck, Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

JAPANESE WORKERS CONVENE DESPITE REPRESSIVE ACTS OF MILITARIST GOVERNMENT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Japan, Dec. 2.—Despite all barriers thrown in the path of the Japanese workers, they have assembled here in a convention of the Proletarian Party where they plan to lay down a program under which they can rally the Japanese workers in a struggle against the capitalists of Japan and the imperialist powers that are entrenching themselves in the Far East.

To Fight Illegality.

One of the first acts of the convention was the discussion of the repressive measures taken by the Nippon department of the interior against this organization of the Japanese workers. The organization has decided to fight the attack of the government under its "peace preservation act."

The department of the interior opposes the Proletarian Party because of the militant stand expressed in the following program around which masses of workers are rallying:

1. National ownership of land.
2. Legal approval of the privilege that workers and farmers are able to work in their movement in unity.
3. In case of strike, the workers can legally defend themselves from employers.
4. Enforcement of 8-hour work day.
5. High taxes on various forms of capital.
6. Guarantee of minimum standard of living for unemployed.
7. Abolition of the house of peers.
8. Abolition of the peace preservation act, under which the department of interior has been able to use repressive measures against working class organizations.
9. Reformation of the general suffrage bill that the age limit must be reduced to 18 years of age.
10. Absolute reduction of the army and navy.

SINCE CONGRESS; NEGROES EAGER TO BEGIN WORK

Sunday Meetings Started in Pittsburgh

By W. C. FRANCIS.

By A Worker Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 2—Meetings of the local branch of the American Negro Labor Congress will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:[illegible] at the Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St., according to plans made at a recent meeting to hear the report of the delegates, following the Chicago meeting.

The reports included discussions on the following subjects: "Obstacles, Confronting the Congress and What it is all About," by Wm. Scarville; "Trade Union Movement and the Negro," by C. W. Fulp; "Cooperation of the American Negro with Mexican and other Workers," by A. Rodriquez; "Explanation of the Constitution and Resolutions, as Enacted by the Congress," by W. C. Francis; "Negro People as a Working Class and Their Historic Background," by E. H. Careathers.

That Negroes must emphasize that their struggle, along with that of all workers, is a class struggle and not a race struggle, was brot out in an interesting talk by Tom Ray, member of the United Mine Workers.

Workers' Angle Wins Negroes.

The meeting was a success, and the future can be judged from the way the colored workers were absorbing the interesting facts that gave birth to the A. N. L. C. At present, many of the Negroes are reluctant to become members due to the fact that in the past they had been used only to pull the chestnut out of the fire for their white brothers and all they ever received were promises.

The fact that the alliance is made up of the working class and not the governing class "whites" creates a different situation. Negro workers are adjusting their thinking caps, and will not accept any advice from that same gang that dishonored democracy.

LEWIS BLIND TO UNION WEAKNESS

By A Worker Correspondent

NEW EAGLE, Pa.—In a recent issue of the Monongahela Daily Republic, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, following a "personal investigation of mining conditions in this state" declares that the Pittsburgh Coal Co. has made a "pitiful failure" in the attempt to operate its mines non-union.

In another column of the same issue, we find a statement of the Pittsburgh Coal Co. claiming that 198 men are employed at Midland No. 1, 205 at Banning No. 1, and 271 at Banning No. 2.

Every one of these "pitiful failures" as Lewis calls them is a nail in the coffin of the Jacksonville agreement and a victory for the scab operators.

If John L. Lewis had checked up the conditions of this part of the state properly, he would have found that there are more than the Pittsburgh Coal Co. repudiating the Jacksonville agreement and that mines supposed to be working under the Jacksonville agreement are encroaching on the men to such an extent that the Jacksonville agreement is practically non-existent. For instance, at Marianna, the miners are being treated like a lot of barbarians with a wire fense around them just like a slave pen.

Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium Denounces Use of Tubercular Cows

Directors and the general and consulting staff of the Municipal Tuberculosis Sanitarium, meeting at the Hotel Sherman, adopted resolutions declaring that the Chicago milk supply is menaced by tubercular cattle.

Pasteurization is not sufficient safeguard against possible infection with tuberculosis, and many infected cattle are being shipped into Illinois, the resolution asserted.

School Board to Request Council for Tax Increase

The school board will bring a request to the city council meeting on Monday for an increase of approximately $15,000,000 in taxes annually which it wishes refered to the voters at the April primary. This would require an increase in the tax rate of from $1.92 to $2.92 on each $100 of assessed value or half of the full value of property. The board claims that this extra money is needed to take care of its deficits amounting at present to $20,000,000 and growing annually at the rate of from 3 to 4 million dollars.

EXPERT WITNESS FALLS DOWN IN KORACEK TRIAL

Judge Intercedes for "Star" Investigator

stoolpigeons in the unions, was then called to the stand as an expert witness. He was questioned on the Workers Party, the Communist Party and the Communist International. He tried to prove that the object of all these organizations was the overthrow of the government, etc. Ferguson then made a lengthy argument against the admission of the evidence of the so-called expert as his testimony was nothing but hearsay and that such testimony cannot be interposed before the jury, but that the jury must be presented with concrete and actual facts.

Case Built on Hot Air.

So far the state's case has been built upon wild charges that cannot be supported by evidence. The workers attending the trial are interested in the proceedings as they realize that the right to organize is at stake.

Defense Springs Bombshell.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—When the attorneys for the defense of Edward Horacek, active member of the Machinists' Union and now on trial for an alleged violation of the state sedition act, threw a bombshell into the court proceedings showing that the indictment under which Koracek was imprisoned did not show any specific charges as to the violation of the sedition law and that the only crime mentioned was organizing, a motion to quash the indictment was immediately made by Isaac Ferguson. The judge overruled the motion to quash the indictment and showed himself in doubt as to whether the trial should be continued.

Judge Regainst Compesure.

The judge after he had regained his composure then stated that the case would continue to the end if the state desired so and then later declared that he would have the trial go thru to the end. Judge Prather, who is on this trial and is one of the visiting judges from another county, intimated that the defendants, in case the jury convicted Koracek, could on a motion for a new trial have it decided whether or not the indictment should be quashed before other defendants were brot to trial.

The United States attorney general for the Pittsburgh district, who was fromerly assistant prosecuting attorney in the Blankenstein case was then called to the stand. He was used to identify some documents that were taken in the raid on Koracek's room.

Among the "documents" that were introduced as evidence against Koracek were catalogs, subscription blanks, copies of the Weekly Worker, and a copy of the old manifesto published in Ohio in 1919.

The Jury.

The jury which was sworn in to try the case of Edward Koracek is composed of a clergyman, a foreman in a metal factory, bitterly opposed to radicals, and a number of aged women. There is but one industrial worker on the jury. This worker is a machinist. The prosecuting attorney objected to allowing a brakeman, a miner and a young saleslady to sit on the jury.

The following individuals are in the jury:

Philip Emmett, foreman; Lena Kirk, housewife; Cochran Fall, machinist; Harriet Watson, housekeeper; Arthur G. Fry, minister; Cordelia Nesbit, housewife; Frank B. Dyer, engraver; Edw. F. Moony, salesman; Chris Berbman, inspector; W. B. Donnelly, realtor; Wm. Greenwalt, retired, and Donald Hamilton, salesman.

CHARITY WAR ON FOR SPOILS FROM 'HOBO BUSINESS'

Unite to Fight Their Competitors

Anyone walking along lower West Madison street these frosty days seeing the parade of shivering, thinly clad and hungry looking individuals may be moved to tears of sympathy for them or to revolt at a system that produces such results but certainly never would guess that these down and outs are the cause of a bitter feud between human vultures who feed on them.

The fact is that they are the cause for a terrific competition that has sprung up between charitable organizations that prey on the misfortune and wretchedness of the Madison street hoboes of Chicago. The fight has become so severe between these religious business men that they have come to the "peeple" with their problems.

Other wise guys have gone into the business. So they formed an organization known as the Mid-City Welfare council. Any charity organization which refuses to join up is fought with reams of propaganda which tells why those who give their money for charity should shun them like the plague.

Incidentally the propaganda gives some interesting information on the statue of the jobless' workers and their fate during the winter months. Says a statement issued by the Mid-City Welfare Council:

"West Madison street's homeless men population is swelling rapidly as seasonal jobs are terminated in the middle west and northwest. . . The cheaper rooms in the lodging houses are all taken. . . As winter advances and temporary jobs become more scarce there will be real distress among the homeless men."

This tells us what they do for the men. "There is a group of men hanging around Madison street which refuses to work because free food is to be had from these badly run missions (their competitors). We insist that applicants for help PERFORM SOME USEFUL SERVICE ABOUT THE MISSION" (our emphasis).

And then: "There is imperative need for the municipal lodging house", the Mid-City Welfare council declares. But the council does not even use any of its money for the operation of the lodging house for it calls on the mayor to provide for the operation of the welfare station.

MOSCOW SOVIET CELEBRATES RUSS SCIENCE ACADEMY BI-CENTENARY

MOSCOW—(By Mail.)—At a plenary session of the Moscow Soviet, dedicated to the 200th anniversary of the Moscow Academy of Sciences, which was renamed the Academy of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, held at the Grand Theater, at which Russian and foreign scientists were present, L. B. Kamenev, vice-chairman of the Council of People's Commissaries, expressed the hope that all the scientists present would carry away the impression of this Russian festival of science as of a real festival of all toilers.

Soviets Based on Science.

The activity of the Soviet government was based on the methods employed in scientific work. The great scientists had pierced the veil of mysticism and dissected the mysteries of nature into their component parts, discovering the elements of the solar system and the forces of nature. The Soviet government had torn off the veil from the capitalist system, showing the nature of the exploitation of the majority by the minority, and revealing the fact that the catchphrase of "national defense" served only as a cloak for the interests of a handful of rich people. The representatives of the Soviet government were rebels against all the old superstitions; they were proud of the fact that in the eyes of the ruling classes they were the same criminals and disturbers of the divine order as had once been in the eyes of unenlightened society such people as Giordano Bruno, Galileo, Diderot and others. The Soviet government believed in the formula of "everything moves" which is at the bottom of scientific development. In the name of this formula had been overthrown the old capitalist order.

The difference between scientific work and that of the Soviet government consisted in that the former was taking place in the laboratories, and the latter before the whole world.

Science had taught us to verify theories by facts; here again the Soviet government was following the way of science, being unafraid to submit to the world's judgement the results of its work. Without concealing the fact that the contemporary Russian reality was not considered by it as ideal, the government could nevertheless claim a record of great economic, social and cultural achievements in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and the organization of actual participation by the masses of the workers in the government of the country.

The Soviet government had never wanted to destroy the science developed before the Octobr rvolution; it wanted only to wrest it from the hands of the exploiters and to lead it out of the cul de sac in which it had been landed by the capitalist system. The goal of Soviet physics and chemistry were not machine guns and new methods for the destruction of human beings, but the perfection of the order of government and the increase of the prosperity of the toiling masses. In this there was close connection between the worker's revolution and real science. Only under the Communist order could science gain a real leading position. The representatives of world science should therefore attentively watch how the socialist commonwealth was being built for the first time in the world's history.

Our Readers' Views

To The DAILY WORKER: In a recent article on Soviet Russia in the DAILY WORKER, Comrade Manuel Gomez spoke of me (and Comrade Walter M. Trumbull) as having been guardians of Wall Street's interests in Hawaii—before our decision to help the oppressed natives in their struggle against 'American imperialism.

Evidently, Comrade Gomez believes that before a conversion to Communism, I was, like many other soldiers, an ignorant tool of capitalism—unconscious of the class struggle. Such a guess is far from the facts.

From the day I entered the army until I was dishonorably discharged and sentenced to serve 40 years at hard labor, I never lost sight of the fact that my first duty was to my class—the workers—and that my imperialist bosses THOUGHT I was just a tool to help suppress any effort to gain freedom on the part of my fellow slaves. To the army czars, I was but one atom in a machine to enslave the masses for the benefit of a few parasites; and the defense of these parasites against their fellow imperialist bandits of other countries. But they were mistaken. I understand their game.

At all times, I was a liability —not an asset—to Wall Street! At Ft. Bragg, N. C. (where I enlisted), at Ft. Slocum, N. Y., and in Hawaii, I spent much time explaining to my soldier comrades the true character of the capitalist system that endeavored to use us against our own interests and for the perpetuation of the wage enslavement of our relatives and fellow workers. For this "crime" the agents of Wall Street branded me a "traitor." Of course, they ignored their own efforts to make all soldiers traitors to the working class. If it is treason to oppose the efforts of those who seek to ruin the lives of millions so they can fratify their abnormal desires, I am proud to be "guilty" of it.

Since childhood, I have been conscious of the necessity of a social revolution to abolish wage slavery and bring economic freedom to the workers.

Would Wall Street's power be any stronger with several thousand more such "guradians"?—Paul Crouch, U. S. Military Prison, Alcatraz, Calif.

CZECHO-SLOVAK MISSION PRAISES RUSSIAN LABOR

Issues Statement After Tour of Republic

it is the Soviets in whose hands the whole of industry, transport, the banks and foreign commerce lie, and thru them the working class which occupies the most influential position. For private capital there is only small production and commerce left. And even here the Soviet power is forcing it out of existence by supporting the cooperatives.

"The efforts of the Soviet power are chiefly directed to the reconstruction and the completion of industry and all other branches of economy. In this the Soviet power has met with great difficulties above all in consequence of the dominance of agriculture and its backwardness and by the fact that the industry left behind by capitalism was deteriorated and in part destroyed by the imperialist and the civil wars. The Russian workers understand these difficulties and work in an unselfish manner for the construction of a people's economy. Old factories are concentrated and modernized, and at the same time new factories are being built. An immense electrification plan is being put into operation and the whole people's economy is led as one state whole.

Boom Benefits Workers.

"Whilst in the years 1920-21 a degeneration of industry was observed, the last four years have shown a tremendous improvement which in contradistinction to a capitalist boom means actually a betterment in the situation of the working class, an increase in wages, the building of workers' sanatoriums, children's homes, clubs, etc. In capitalist countries economic construction proceeds at the cost of the workers, their wages and their social gains.

"Decisive and exact figures show that in 1926, 300,000 new workers will be engaged in the Soviet shops. And with this the unemployment will fall. The unemployment support on the part of the state is incomparably higher in Russia than in any of the capitalist countries. The Soviet economy is not yet completely socialist, altho various branches have achieved forms very closely socialist. Seen as a whole, the Soviet economy is a transition period to a pure and systematized socialist economy.

Prevent Intervention.

"If the international working class, conscious of its proletarian duty, prevents an intervention against the Soviet Union by force of arms, and the construction of the economic relations between the various Soviet republics proceeds, then the realization of a socialist economy will be speeded up. Already the Russian proletariat is class conscious enough to prevent any return to capitalist economic forms.

Russian Trade Unions.

"The Russian trade unions are not merely organizations for the protection of the interests of the workers and for the betterment of their standard of life, they are at the same time decisive partners in the economic and political life of Russia, in the making of laws, in the education of the youth, etc.

"The shops councils are the really decisive factors in the shops; their powers are far greater than those of similar bodies in all other countries. Together with the red directors, the shop councils hammer out a correct economic leadership in the interests of the people's economy. The shop councils' elections take place with all of the workers in the shops participating. The shop councils are responsible to the workers for all their actions.

"Social insurance is developed to an exemplary extent and sick payment approximates to the average wage of the workers. Permanently disabled workers are provided with a pension to the amount of their former wages. The other forms of social insurance are also satisfactory. The regulation of the question of maternity are at a level unknown in any capitalist country. The workers themselves have to pay nothing for this social insurance, the contributions to these ends are made by the state or by the private capitalists.

Eight-Hour Law Enforced.

"The eight-hour day is everywhere and without exception, except where the hours are shorter, carried out. For work in industries dangerous to health there is a six-hour day. Young workers in all industries work only a six hour day. Apprentices work only four hours per day, the other four hours are devoted, with full pay, to instruction in the particular trade. The worker is taxed only when he earns over 75 rubles a month. The situation of the workers in certain industrial branches is absolutely satisfactory. The average wage, particularly the average wage of skilled workers is higher than in Czecho-Slovakia. Various foods are cheaper in Russia than in Czecho-Slovakia while various necessaries are more expensive.

"In consequence of the speedy advance of industry a still further betterment in the situation of the Russian working class is to be expected, whilst in the other countries the standard is sinking steadily.

Soviets Educate Masses.

"The Soviet government is carrying on a gigantic work of enlightment amongst those masses of the people who were held in ignorance by czarism. The Soviet authorities have great achievements to show in the struggle against illiteracy. Apart from the widespread new school system upon the principle of the work school, the Soviet government is carrying on an intensive cultural work thruout the trade unions, the party organizations, the numerous workers' clubs, circles and libraries.

"The serving of prison sentences in Russia has nothing in common with the bourgeois prison regime. All prisoners have a possibility of work paid at the normal trade union rates, imprisoned peasants are allowed two to three months leave of absence to carry out the harvest work. Conditioned sentences, binding over, etc., and frequent release, are the rule.

National Minorities Free.

"The solution of the problem of nationality in the Soviet Union can be regarded as an example for the whole world. Each nationality has complete autonomy and full possibility for independent economic and cultural development. The constitution of the Soviet Union guarantees to all its members the right and the possibility at any time to leave the Union. National oppression no longer exists, the official courts, bureaus, the schools, etc., use the language of the people whatever they may be.

"The delegation has seen that the international working class has been systematically deceived about the real situation in the Soviet Union by the spread of lying reports and calumnies.

To Dispel Capitalist Lies.

"We shall tell the Czecho-Slovakian working class the whole truth and nothing but the truth about your conditions of life, and we shall utilize all of our powers in favor of international trade union unity. We hope that the fraternal connections which we have established will be lasting and will help us in our struggle to defeat capitalism and establish socialism."

TEXTILE INDUSTRY WITHERS IN CAPITALISTIC POLAND BUT THRIVES IN UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS

By LELAND OLDS.
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The sharp contrast between the failure of the Polish and the success of the Russian textile industry after the postwar bankruptcy explodes the contention that workers must look to capitalists actuated by the profit motive for the capital necessary to modern industry. In capitalist Poland the textile industry has gone steadily downhill with one important section today operating at less than one-eighth of prewar, while in Russia a steady gain has brot the industry within striking distance of prewar production.

The critical condition of the textile industry in Poland today is shown ment of commerce. According to the department, important Polish cotton mills are reducing operations to three days or less per week. This is not due to lack of demand but to lack of operating capital in a country where employer dictatorship is openly sustained by foreign capital.

The situation is considerably worse in the Polish woolen industry. This is shown by the department in the following figures covering operations in the Bialystok district, where a once flourishing industry making broadcloth, overcoatings, military cloth and heavy blankets was concentrated:

Polish Wool Industry.

	Spindles operat.	Looms operat.	Workers empld.
Prewar	150,000	2,300	12,000
1923	70,000	1,200	6,300
1925	12,000	270	1,590
Pct. of prewar	8%	12%	13%

Very different has been the experience of the Russian textile industry under a worker dictatorship which practically eliminated help from foreign capitalists. This is shown by Russian government figures covering its growth since 1921:

Number of Workers.

	Cotton	Wool	Linen
1921-22........	132,553	38,539	35,497
1922-23........	181,824	43,696	48,816
1923-24........	218,316	48,493	53,211
1924-25........	256,012	57,000	58,532

Looms Working.

1921-22........	50,225	5,218	4,616
1922-23........	93,692	6,916	8,020
1923-24........	123,338	8,695	9,735
1924-25........	134,052	9,376	10,708

The production of finished cotton goods in Russia is officially estimated at 65.4 per cent of the 1912 total, woolen goods at 82.7, and linen at 107.3. Cotton spindles operating have increased from 1,974,121 in 1921-22 to 5,333,580 in 1924-25; woolen spindles from 202,640 to 400,000, and linen spindles from 172,784 to 208,067.

PEKING TEACHERS OPPOSE FOREIGN RULE OF CHINA

Demand Abolition of Unequal Treaties

PEKING, Dec. 2.—Professors and educators of the Peking universities and of other educational establishments have organized a Tariff Autonomy League for the purpose of strengthening the stand of the government at the tariff conference in favor of tariff autonomy. The fact that these professors represent moderate opinion indicates the strength of the demand for tariff autonomy.

Recently the league gave a reception for journalists in order to explain to them the attitude of educators to the tariff question and to learn the opinion of the journalists. Wang Chung-Hui, a noted jurist and a member of The Hague international tribunal recently returned from The Hague to China, opened the meeting. There was a strong note in all the speeches demanding tariff autonomy unconditionally not as a favor, but as the inviolable right of the Chinese people.

Prepared to Fight.

The chairman, Leang Chandcha, a dean at the Peking Normal University questioned the sincerity of the great powers, particularly of Great Britain, Japan and America, because their proposals are not in accord with their declarations of willingness to recognize the tariff autonomy of China. The speaker declared that the Chinese people were prepared to fight for tariff autonomy and were prepared to make any sacrifice necessary. They refuse to tolerate further obstructions in the way of the realization of China's just aspirations.

Wang Chung-Hui declared that the special privileges of the foreigners in China were damaging to the interests of the country. Unequal treaties are obsolete. The speaker quoted article XIX of the league of nations' covenant which says that unequal and inapplicable treaties must be revised. The recent demonstrations were an expression of the innermost feelings of the Chinese people and it would be a pity if the tariff conference results in new difficulties or an intensification of the old ones.

Professor Tsao, head of the Chingwa college said that the diplomats recognized tariff autonomy in principle as they had recognized Wilson's 14 points, but the problems of the last war are still unsettled. In the meanwhile 400,000,000 people remain oppressed.

Threaten to Extend Likien.

The prominent economist, Professor Mayulin, declared that the abolition of the likien was a domestic question of China unconnected with the question of tariff autonomy. The Chinese wish to abolish the likien because it affects Chinese merchants and not foreigners and it can only be abolished when tariff autonomy has been obtained. Its abolition can therefore not be made a condition for granting the tariff autonomy. The speaker threatened that if the powers refused to grant traiff autonomy to China then the likien would be made to affect not only Chinese merchants but foreign merchants also. All the other professors spoke in the same strain.

BOSSES FEAR GROWTH OF NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS IN AMERICA

By C. O'BRIEN ROBINSON.

In the days when the Indians were being slaughtered in order that the white man might seize the power in this country, an old Indian chief held a council with a certain English pioneer in regard to the condition of the Indians in America. In the course of their conversation, which they held seated on a log, the old chief continually said to the white man, "Move over, I haven't enough room."

The white man complied with his request until he was at the end of the log; then he protested: "I can't move over farther; I am at the end of the log. If I make another move, I will fall off."

To this the old chief responded: "That is just the position of the Indians. You have asked us to move over to give you more room until we are at the end of the log. One more move and we will fall off."

In the attitude of the reactionary elements of the United States, we reverse this analogy with reference to the work of the American Negro Labor Congress. The congress is forcing the reactionary elements to the end of their log and we wonder just where they will "fall" when they "fall off." The capitalist press with reference to the racial problem in the United States has been forced to "move over" a bit. They are facing an issue that is driving them to concessions that they just "hadn't thot of before." They now say that the condition of the Negroes must be improved in the United States to prevent the "blacks from turning red." What a noble cause for granting the Negro his constitutional rights! What a generous motive for protesting against lynching and segregating! What depth of sentiment and magnitude of purpose!

An organization has been started to show the Negro his power as a part of the working class. This organization has been bold enuf to tell the Negro that his salvation lies in his own power to demand emancipation and that this power is in his indus trial strength. This organization has told the Negro that he should have the right to vote, the right to good living conditions; that he should not be discriminated against, segregated, lynched and oppressed; that by recognizing his struggle in common with the workers of the world he can be truly emancipated. This organization even has suggested, subtly, that demands and commands bring greater returns than pleas and requests.

Strangely this message to the working class caused the reactionaries to really "move over." A boys' club appears on the south side of Chicago to "train" the bodies, "elevate" the morals and "sanctify" the souls of the Negro boys.

This, of course, is another contribution to the institution of racial separatism designed to divorce the interests of the working classes—the white from the Negro. However, the politicians behind the move will be quite successful in adding this little "vote-getter" to their repartee when they start the cigar deluge and pink tea campaign.

Innumerable publications North and South, Negro and white, have suddenly awakened to the fact that if the Negro "turns red" it will be "America's fault and not Russia's." Really, it is astounding, to say the least! Opportunists seize upon the work of the American Negro Labor Congress to tell the ruling class represented by the national political machines, that the Negro had better be "salved up" a little by the Americans, or somebody else will show him a way out, and he will take this way.

The bosses have thrown a crumb on the water and now a whole bakery has come floating back. The most dangerous weapon in the world is being used against the ruling class—thought. A cordial invitation has been issued to the Negro—not to get thrifty, not to "get closer with the Lord," not to "quit looking at the clock," but to think. The bosses are trembling in their boots for fear that the Negro will accept this invitation and start thinking. The hangers-on and parasites of the bosses, represented in the Negro race by opportunistic race leaders, are going to get a nice handout of brand new jobs—even if they are in a little segregated department—and the Negro race on the whole will enjoy a campaign for the "let-up" of racial oppressions, which campaign will be conducted by those desiring to capitalize on the sentiment stirred up by the American Negro Labor Congress.

The congress, however, is not gullible and will not be deceived by these false moves. The American Negro Labor Congress, compared to its plan for future agitation, has not started making demands and issuing commands. The American Negro Labor Congress is on the "moving" end of the log and somebody has got to move over.

MANUFACTURER'S SON ATTACKS COLLEGE GIRL ON GOLF CLUB LINKS

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 2.—Twisting nervously and weeping most of the time, Miss Louise King, Battle Creek college student, told her story of the attack made on her by Arthur Rich, wealthy golf champion and son of a millionaire manufacturer.

Rich attacked Miss King while they were taking a stroll the night of May 26 over the Country Club golf links, the girl testified.

"He grabbed me suddenly and kissed me," Miss King said. "Then I struggled and he threw me down. I called for help. Rich drew back his arm and landed a real hard blow on my mouth. I told him I knew he had sisters and asked him how he could act so. He said: 'You're so dumb' and started hitting me again and again."

Miss King then launched into a description of what she said happened to her after Rich stopped hitting her. She wept copiously.

"The next I remembered I was in bed at Henry cottage," the girl added.

For six weeks after Miss King was injured she was confined to a hospital with a broken jaw, two broken ribs and a broken nose.

The Truth About Cieplak

The Chicago Tribune revives the sentimental slush of Laura Jean Libby in a mendacious attempt to cover the shame of an archbishop with a phantom martyrdom. In a screed, reeking with filth and lies, the Tribune pictures the Polish prelate, Archbishop John Cieplak, now in Chicago, as an audacious crusader hurling defiance at "Red Russia, the religion murdering rabble, God befouling Soviet."

Cieplak is pictured as having inhabited a cell in Moscow from which he viewed the Kremlin walls and also overlooked a jail yard in which his priestly brother in Christ, Butkiewicz, was executed before a firing squad. This picture is as accurate as the rest of the Tribune's fairy tale. Every word of the story is a lie except the statement that Cieplak was in jail. From his prison cell he could not even see the walls of the Kremlin and the execution of Butkiewicz did not take place in the prison yard. But Moscow is a long way from Chicago and so the readers of the kept press in this city are treated to the harrowing details concocted by a local profit scribbler.

Just why was this Cieplak person in prison? Because he was a Roman Catholic priest? Certianly not; there are many priests in Russia who are not in prison. People are not imprisoned there for their religious beliefs. He was there because he was proved conclusively to be the agent, the servile tool of the French and Polish military missions trying to destroy the government of the working class of Russia. Butkiewicz was executed only after money that he had obtained from French agents was found in his possession and after it was proved that he used other money obtained from the same source to hire murderers to launch a campaign of assassination against Soviet officials. The Polish archbishop, Cieplak, was an associate of Butkiewicz, and co-conspirator with him in his treacherous work.

This holy pair were willing and anxious to take money from the imperialist mauraders who tried in every conceivable way to destroy the government of Russia and restore the rule of the czars. According to the Chicago interpretation Cieplak opposed the Soviets because "Lenin and Trotsky fetched their eternally accursed visions to supplant the rule of Nicholas."

There is the whole thing in a nutshell. The Bolsheviks supplanted the rule of Nicholas! It is their yearning for the return of Nicholas that causes tears to well up in the hearts of the prelates of the holy church. Instead of the Bolshevik education of children with the facts of modern science, these apostles of darkness yearn for the return of the good old days in Russia when ignorance was a virtue and intelligence a crime, the days when priests were permitted to pollute the minds of children with their filthy teachings. Instead of a government that serves the interests of the working class this pious gentleman wants the return of Nicholas; for the triumphal song of the workers he yearns to hear the muffled groans of thousands to the accompaniment of the hiss of the knout. That is music to the ears of this saintly scoundrel.

He wants Nicholas and his delightful household, containing the fanatic monk, Rasputin, to carry on their orgies in the Kremlin, while the black hundreds shoot down workers in the streets when they ask for bread.

But his yearnings will never be answered. Nicholas is gone—and forever. The crimson emblem of the proletarian revolution in Russia floats defiantly in all the breezes that blow.

As for the priest, Cieplak, he was voluntarily released, because he could do no further harm. The Bolsheviks held the cringing creature in such contempt that they would not even dignify his assaults upon them with execution so his supporters could proclaim him a martyr.

Not all the staged demonstrations arranged by the white guard Polish priesthood of Chicago can efface the record of Cieplak as a hireling of imperialism in its efforts to befoul with their lies the workers' government of Russia.

The Y. C. I. Approval

The communication from the Executive Committee of the Young Communist International, greeting the establishment of unity in the Young Workers (Communist) League of America and calling for an energetic fight for the liquidation of factions in the Workers (Communist) Party, comes at a time when the last remnants of factionalism are being eliminated. The approval of the Young Communist Inetrnational again emphasizes the fact that the Central Executive Committee of the party and the National Executive Committee of the league followed a true Bolshevik policy in adopting the unity resolutions as a basis from which to proceed to eliminate that factionalism that vitiated our party for some twenty months.

Our party and the league now prove to all the enemies of Communism that we know how to meet and overcome crises arising over questions that would wreck ordinary political groups and parties. With the right danger completely overcome and the last remnants of the disease being eradicated the Communist movement in the United States emerges stronger than ever, prepared to fulfill its mission as the revolutionary vanguard of the working class.

The Belated Mr. MacDonald

Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald introduced a motion of censure against the government for the persecution of the Communists recently arrested in London, which was defeated by a vote of 351 to 127.

After paving the way for the vicious attacks against the vanguard of the working class by his action at the Liverpool conferences of the labor party, MacDonald now comes forth against the Baldwin government that carried to conclusion his own program.

It is not because MacDonald has had a change of heart that he now moves a vote of censorship against the government, but because he has discovered what is well known to revolutionists: the fact that an attack upon the vanguard of the working class always means an attempt to exterminate the labor movement.

When the front of the working class is broken by an attack on the most advanced elements the campaign is followed up until it reaches even the moderates. That is the experience of the labor movement in America since the first red raids occurred, and it is now being repeated in Britain.

To the Workers of the World

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The DAILY WORKER is today publishing the manifesto of the Communist International on the eighth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution of November, 1917. For unaviodable reasons this manifesto has just reached us. We had hoped it would arrive in time for our anniversary issue of Nov. 7. However, since the party is conducting a broad campaign for the defense of and recognition of the Union of Soviet Republics, this manifesto should be of great interest at this time.

THIS year the 7th of November is a double festival for us. We celebrate the eighth anniversary of the October revolution of the workers and peasants of Russia, and the twentieth anniversary of the 1905 revolution.

The Russian workers inaugurated a new epoch in the history of the workers' international movement. In 1905 for the first time they endeavored to create the embryo of their dictatorship; the Soviet; for the first time they endeavoured to unite with the peasantry in order to overthrow autocracy and to create that union of working masses which in 1917 formed the basis of the victory of proletarian dictatorship; they proved to the workers of the world what a useful weapon the general strike is, and showed that the armed struggle of the proletariat is not a thing of the past. Already during and after the revolution Lenin drew the theoretical and practical consequences from the experiences and lessons of this historical event. A firm chain of development leads from the 1905 revolution to that of 1917, when the ideas were realized which were inaugurated in 1905.

TWELVE years after the 1905 revolution the Russian workers fought for victory under the leadership of Lenin. Jointly with the peasantry the Russian proletariat overthrew the power of landowners and capitalists, nationalized the land, socialized the factories, workshops and banks and established the rule of the workers in the Soviets.

In October 1917 the Russian workers as the advance guard of the world proletariat set about building up socialism. The international bourgeoisie reacted thereto by war and intrigue, the leaders of the workers' movement in the west, the petty leaders and satisfied bureaucrats of the trade unions and socialist party treated this brave and powerful inauguration with disdain and abuse. For many years the Russian proletariat had to fight with hunger and suffered the greatest deprivations in order to prove by their tireless creation to the international proletariat the necessity and the possibility of building up socialism and the fitness of the workers to be the leaders of society.

WORKERS of the world! During these years of heroic struggle of the workers in the Soviet Union, you have followed with passionate interest the struggles of your brothers and sisters. The victory of the heroic red army has instilled courage and confidence in you; you regarded the hunger on the Volga as your own misfortune; and the economic revival of the Soviet Union has filled your hearts with new hope. Thousands of bourgeois and reformist newspapers have circulated lies about the Soviet Union, have cast mud at the tried advance guard of the Russian workers the Bolshevik Party. Dozens of social-democratic "theoreticians" and politicians—the Bauers and Kautskys, the MacDonalds and Venderveldes—"proved" the "criminal utopianism" of the Bolsheviks and prophesied a collapse of the Soviet power. But look! In spite of everything, millions of exploited and enslaved workers outside the Soviet Union firmly believe in the victory of the Russian workers.

The eighth anniversary of the October revolution is in very reality a festival for the workers of the whole world. It marks the first period of the struggle for socialism. On the eighth anniversary of the October revolution the workers of the Soviet Union can declare proudly to the workers and creators of all countries: Brothers! Sisters! In eight years we have not only repulsed the counter-revolutionary attacks, we have done much more and attained much more. We can already register tangible success in the economic reconstruction of our country. We have conducted our economic life with a firm hand on the part of socialism. 99 per cent of heavy industry and of transport have been socialized. Foreign trade is in the hands of the state; the co-operatives comprised 30 millions of the inhabitants. We have a stable currency system and our production will in a short time be on a par witn pre-war days. Millions of workers who have been incorporated in the work of the Soviet and social organizations, men and women togther, for only in the Soviet are they on an equal basis in all spheres of social life give proof of how far-reaching is the revolution. The youth, even children, find their way into the mass organizations of the Communist Youth Leagues and the Red Pioneers, in order to advance the structure and to made certain its future. The national minorities even the smallest groups of nationalities, have in the Soviet Union free self-determination and thereby have received the possibility of higher development by preserving their own national characteristics. On the basis of our economy it is becoming daily more secure a social superstructure is arising filled with the spirit of Communism. A new, higher culture is beginning to blossom, not as a privilege of a few and a small group, but as the accepted right of the broad masses. The dictatorship which was established in Red October is an expression of the will and approval of millions. A light shines in the life and work of the Soviet Union, which awakens the exploited and oppressed peoples of the East and fills them with hope and a desire for liberty. The Soviet Union is a symbol and an example of the liberation of mankind.

DELEGATIONS, which you sent to us—men and women workers, teachers from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Germany Czecho-Slovakia, Sweden, Norway,—have convinced themselves that the Soviet Union is really the country of the dictatorship of the workers, the country that is unerringly proceeding along the path to socialism.

For this reason international capitalism, chiefly British, is endeavouring to from a "holy alliance" for the destruction of the Soviet Union. The international bourgeoisie is mobilizing all its deadly hatred against the Soviet Union. Why?

The Soviet Union and its development stirs up the exploited and oppressed of the whole world, and urges them on to fight for the success of their rebellion against all oppressing powers. The very existence of the Soviet Union encourages the fighting Chinese peoples, who have risen against the foreign imperialists and their own militarists.

The position of the national governments in the countries of the Near East is strengthened by the neighborhood of the Soviet Union and they are encouraged in their struggles for national independence.

The Soviet Union is carrying on a decisive struggle on behalf of freedom. Its very existence makes it difficult to permeate the masses again with the poison of chauvinism.

BRITISH imperialism is trying to form a hostile alliance out of world reaction to the Soviet Union, and is definitely planning its struggle against Soviet Russia. The guarantee pact is a very important part of its armament. The aim of the guarantee pact is especially to impede collaboration between Germany and the Soviet Union, it is to forge a hostile ring around us and to create for the future war a united and firmly welded front.

The guarantee pact is the answer of international imperialism to the growing power of the Soviet Union. Just now it is not directed against the Soviet Union only; its aim is also directed against the international proletariat. The guarantee pact strengthens the power of reaction in Germany, strengthens British imperialism internally and externally, is accompanied by an intensified terror in the countries of white dictatorship, Hungary, Italy, Bulgaria, Roumania, as well as in the states of "holy democracy." The guarantee pact is intended to give the entente imperialists in Central Europe a free hand, and to enable them to attack with full force the rebellious peoples of northern Africa and Asia.

THE guarantee pact is represented to the masses as a bringer of peace. In reality it is and will be an instigator and preparer of new wars, a new onslaught against the workers.

Brothers and sisters! Do not let yourselves be again betrayed by the speeches about peace and democracy. Think of the bloody lessons of prewar days! Think of the lessons of the peace of Versailles! Ponder the starvation wages and endless days of toil! If you love peace, if you will oppose the attack of predatory capitalism, the growing freedom of fascism, then fight the guarantee pact and see that it is destroyed by an international workers' front.

The anniversary of the October revolution must weld together all honest revolutionary proletariants under the slogan:

The United Front of the Workers!

Fight Against the Guarantee Pact!

Defence of the Soviet Union!

Defence of the Revolutionary East, of all Colonial and Semi-Colonial Peoples!

Fight Against the White Terror and Fascism;

Long Live the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics!

Long Live the Proletarian World Revolution!

Polish Bourgeoisie Attacks and Imprisons Children

(Special to The Daily Worker)

POLAND (By Mail)—More than 50 per cent of the territory of the Polish republic contains purely Ukrainian and White Russian populations— eastern Galicia, Volhynia, Polesia, Kholmstchina, and White Russia on the western side of the famous Kurzon line.

About 30 per cent of the population of the Polish state is composed of Ukrainian and White Russian peasants; their languages, religion and customs and traditions have nothing in common with Poland. On the contrary, for them the Poles are the synonym of the landowner—oppressor. There Polish "Irishmen" therefore hate Poland and feel drawn towards the Soviet Union and to the independent republics of Soviet Ukraine and Soviet White Russia. There they have national unity, there there is complete political and cultural freedom, there the peasants have the land, which in Poland is concentrated in the hands of foreign landowners.

HAVING seized western Ukraine, (east Galicia) and western White Russia by force, the Polish imperialists are holding on to them by force.

Polish Ukraine and White Russia are now in the position of some African colony. There is a military administration and practically a state of martial law. The power of the secret political police knows no bounds. The peasant lands are taken away from them by force and distributed among "deserving" Polish generals and soldiers. Taxation oppression is unprecedented. The Polish administration absolutely tramples on the rights of the local population to their native language. All this has led to such a state of affairs that even the regime of white terror, which reigns in Poland proper, is a kind of ideal order which the Ukrainian and White Russian peasants dare not even dream of.

The Polish bourgeois occupiers wipe out this discontent for the Polish authorities by force. The prisons are always full up, while behind the walls of the secret police stations, scenes take place which surpass the traditions of the czarist regime, and which is indeed the direct ancestor of Pol and of the landlords and capitalists.

Children Political Prisoners.

Not only the most prominent public men are arrested, not only individuals "suspected of Communism," but also the entire population of whole villages, encluding even old men and children.

AT the beginning of April of this year for instance, thruout the entire territory of Volhynia, Polesia and the district of Novogrodsk mass searches and arrests were conducted. In Volhynia about 1,500 peasants, workers and intellectuals were arrested, and in the Novogrodsk military governorship about 1,400.

In September of this year over 1,000 people were arrested, including 13-year old children, in the Bielostotsk district.

In general this struggle against children is one of the most vile and most savage methods of struggle on the part of the Polish occupiers and against the workers and peasants, national and liberation movements in the eastern provinces of Poland.

There is a tremendous number of juveniles imprisoned for political "crimes." The following facts are characteristic of the attitude of the prison administration to these "criminals."

The newspaper Volkszeitung of March 9th states:

"We have received a letter from Bielostok signed by the parents of children who are detained in Bielostok prison as political criminals. In their letter the parents tell how their children are beaten and ill treated. Fine after fine is inflicted and the children are not allowed to receive food from home. They are put into isolation cells for the slightest offence. They are not allowed to see their parents for long periods.

"THE prison administration does not even want to be responsible for inflicting such heavy punishments on the young prisoners, who, as a result of this terrible régime become seriously ill. They are systematically deprived of the rights which ordinary political prisoners enjoy."

Beatings Break Children's Eardrums.

In Strye (eastern Galicia)—according to an interpolation in the sejm by the Deputy Skrzipa—several young workers have been arrested including 17-year old Becker, 16-year old Hoffner, and 16-year old Gliava. They are arrested as a result of information given by a trade union secretary, the Polish social-democrat, Kraxitsky, who at the same time is an employee of the political police. All these young people were beaten up by the police in a most merciless manner. Becker was ill treated most of all, and was hardly recognisable as a result.

The White Russian deputy, Eremitch, pointed out in the sejm, the fact that two pupils of a White Russian high school have been beaten up by the police to such an extent that their eardrums have been broken.

The newspaper Polonia published in Stanislavov (eastern Galicia) wrote in the April 24th number:

"In a street in the suburb of Kniginin-Kolonia a number of school boys gathered together to play on the mandolin. An agent of the secret police, Kozlovsky approached them and cried out to them to disperse. He threatened them that in the event of their refusal they would shoot. When one of the school boys, Veselovsky, son of a railwaymen, said: "fire, if you have the right to,' Kozlovsky drew out a Browning and fired at Veselovsky, wounding him."

Schools Secret Police Stations.

THE Polish schools in the Ukrainian white border provinces are no better than the prisons and the secret police stations.

Here is what we read in the sejm interpolation of the White Russian club dated December 4th of last year:

"On November 6th the White Russian club asked the minister for public instruction a question concerning the ill treatment of children by a teacher in a Polish school in the village Krizhtalovstchisne, Anton Corbatchevsky. This case has not yet been investigated, and meanwhile this teacher hangman is continuing the physical ill treatment of White Russian children. Here is a letter in which a mother describes her eight-year old little girl was beaten until she lost consciousness:

"On November 22nd, a Saturday, the eight-year old girl Maria Dukhovitch was beaten first with a ruler, then her head banged against the wall and was finally thrown to the ground, the teacher sitting on her head and beating her back with his fists until the child turned black in the face."

The bloody offensive of the Polish bourgeoisie against children does not even waver before the court of "Vigilant" justice.

ON November 17th the official Polish telegraph agency sent out a telegram in which it was stated that a court case had come up in Lvoff in eastern Galicia in connection with a 19-year old bootmaker, Rechweld. The latter was handed over to the court for having brought 25 kilogrammes of Communist literature into Lvoff. Rechweld was charged with "state treason" and in accordance with a legal code of the former Russian empire, inherited by independent Poland, he was threatened with the death sentence. It was only because of the youth of the accused that the "tender" court commuted his sentence to 10 years penal servitude.

Want British Trade Union Delegation.

That is how the Polish bourgeoisie is fighting against the children in Polish Ukraine and White Russia, while the governmental circles and prominent politicians of Poland dare to denounce as low slander the charges about white terror in Poland, which the working class organizations and liberal sections of the bourgeoisie are raising in western Europe.

FORTUNATELY the British workers have reliable facts in their hands which the Polish hangmen will not be able to deny.

If the Polish bourgeosie continues to insist that it is the victim of a campaign of slander on the part of 'Moscow" Communists, Germans, and Jews, let it agree to a special commission being sent to Poland by the British trade unions, which can be convinced on the spot as to whether the white terror exists in Poland or not, as to whether the Polish bourgeoisie is really persecuting the White Russian and Ukrainian peasants and workers, and as to whether or not their children are being beaten up.

AMERICAN DESTROYERS ON WAY TO SHANGHAI TO "DISCUSS" CHINESE INTERNAL SITUATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 2.—Three more American destroyers that were stationed here have left today for Shanghai.

The destroyer McCormick, left the harbor at Manila last Saturday for Shanghai, in order to enforce the opinions of the American imperialists on the Chinese internal situation on the Chinese workers. At the time that the McCormick steamed out of the harbor, it was stated that if the situation became worse in Shanghai, that three more destroyers would be sent.

Conditions instead of becoming more to the liking of the American imperialists have become worse and now three more destroyers will be near Shanghai to exert their "civilizing" influence on the rebellious Chinese workers.

Russia Creates New Comedy "Carmen"

Film Pokes Fun at "Mr. Cornedbeef" from America and Shows Many Lessons from Western Comedy Technique.

BY WILLIAM F. KRUSE.

THE life and love of the poor and pretty "cigarette girl" has long been associated with Bizet's "Carmen" and the colorful city of Seville. Love and hate are woven into immortal tragedy through the media of music and drama.

It remained for the film producers of Soviet Russia to give us, not a new "Carmen", nor a film "Carmen", but a new filmed "cigarette girl" who ought to be even more satisfying to the lovers of laughter than are the plump operatic damsels to the devotees of melody. For this Russian cigarette girl is pretty and slender and intelligent, and she is surrounded with a cast of peerless comedians in a fast moving story jammed full of unexpected quirks and twists.

"The Cigarette Girl of Moscow" is a fine five-reel comedy that needs make no apologies to anything of its kind produced anywhere in the world, and its absence of any trace of direct propaganda will make it more readily saleable than the more serious productions. At the same time the true picture it gives of modern life in Moscow, with all the well known streets and buildings used as location, will make it more than welcome to the strictly radical working class audiences.

Photography is excellent, continuity of story and richness of human-interest episode are all that could possibly be desired, the acting perfect, the plot full of ingenious twists, and the direction replete with that broad humour that always verges on, and occasionally trespasses into, the domain of the slap-stick.

JULIA Solzneva is a beautiful and talented heroine, and M. Zeretelli, the leading man, is adequately handsome, strong, forlorn, masterful and sentimental as the script demands. The outstanding player is Igor Iljinsky, who makes the "low comedian" easily the star of the piece— a love-lorn fool who worships the cigarette damsel in vain and finally contents himself with the amply aged and weighted "vamp." Outstanding also in a long list of excellent comedy parts is that of the American film magnate, "Mr. Cornedbeef", with the straw hat and shell-rims of Harold Lloyd and the face and figure of "Fatty" Arbuckle. Keen satire is spent on this character, cigarettes taste better to him because the box bears the American flag (one of the most widely distributed of Russian brands), he thinks he can buy anything he sees with good Yankee dollars, and spices his skirt-chasing with a ludicrous streak of conventionalism.

The story hinges around a pretty cigarette seller whose looks win her a place in the movies. Her admirers are three, the cameraman who can "shoot" no scene in which she does not appear, the clownish clerk who cannot smoke but buys stacks and stacks of cigarettes from the dame as an excuse to speak to her, and finally the fat and flirtatious "Mr. Cornedbeef." To bust up the romance Cornedbeef arranges to transfer the cameraman to shoot a scenic of Moscow, and when this is screened (a film within a film and very well done) the girl is found to monopolise every scene. So he is fired altogether.

THE girl also turns against him and Cornedbeef has things his own way, buying fine clothes on the girl's approval, and hiring as his secretary the love-lorn clerk, now turned would-be scenario writer. Interesting complications ensue when he purposely mistranslates the proposals of his employer-rival, and finally, after countless side-splitting by-plays the girl tires of the movies and fake rescues and murder plots, so goes back to selling cigarettes, where with another riot, arrest, wedding and movie show the film comes to a happy end.

This picture shows how much the Russian directors are learning from the American films; they are copying much of the bad as well as the good. All the comedy tricks, the fat man breaking the wagon, the pie slinging, the boob wandering into the movie lot, the fat girl who would be a vamp, the rescue of the movie dummy, all these things prove lessons learned from Mack Sennet and Al Christie—if not from the old "Essanay." But the combination of these elements into a smooth unflagging tale, the mingling of roaring laughter with touching pathos and deep human sympathy, these show the influence of Charlie Chaplin's latest work. This film will be welcome entertainment to workers and movie-goers all over the world.

HA[illegible] GERMAN ENTRANCE TO LEAGUE

DELEGATES OF BIG LOCALS AT PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION OF I. L. G. W. U. REPUDIATE SIGMAN

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—The vote on the acceptance of the credential committee's report which came after a bitter struggle was 158 for and 107 against. Eleven delegates against whom objections were made did not vote. Their cases will come up tomorrow. In this struggle the progressives polled seven more votes than their estimated strength.

The roll call vote disclosed complete proof that the small locals in districts away from the great garment centers have been mobilized by the machine for this convention and the additional fact that the decisive sections of the membership are definitely supporting the progressives.

The large locals in New York, Cleveland and Chicago showed on roll call that the policy of the Sigman machine had been repudiated. It is an empty victory that the Sigman machine won on the report of the credential committee.

There was more than one dramatic moment during the debate, but the high point was reached when Farbysach, closing for the minority of the credentials committee, opened his remarks with a challenge to Hochman on the denial the latter had made of the charge that he had worked with police and sluggers against the membership. Sigman stopped Farbysach speaking while the convention was in an uproar. As soon as the tumult subsided Farbysach quietly announced that he would submit the proof to the proper union authority.

The real surprise of the roll call was when a delegate of Local 89, Antonini's local, voted with the progressives.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE ruling classes of England and France give the impression of being very anxious to make peace with the Soviet Union. At the present time Tchicherin is reported to be in Paris while Briand is running errands for Austen Chamberlain between the Soviet diplomat and the British foreign office. According to inspired news stories the European powers desire to get Russia into the league of nations, which is nothing more or less than a league of robbers.

IT is now freely admitted by even the most naive pacifists that Locarno was simply a maneuver to isolate Soviet Russia. Germany was bribed to renounce the Rapallo treaty in return for other considerations, not the least satisfactory to German bourgeois pride being the promised return of a few of her former colonies in Africa. The Portuguese, we learn, will be the goats while England will be the generous doner. It is never the acme of wisdom to take everything capitalist statesmen say or do as fact. What Germany actually did before agreeing to the Locarno pact is yet shrouded in considerable mystery. One thing is certain: England was satisfied that Germany's promises were genuine enough to be of some value in the empire's struggle to regain her former prestige, and in her war on Russia.

WHAT is giving England considerable worry is the ferment among the subject peoples of the East. To those people Soviet Russia is the beacon of hope; the champion of the oppressed. England, a past master in the art of making trouble for her enemies, by inciting their slaves to rebellion, believes that Soviet Russia employs the same methods and with the same object in view. It is quite true that the workers and peasants who rule the mighty land once under the yoke of the Czar would like to see the robber rule of England wiped off the face of the earth, but they are

WORKERS PARTY HAILS LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION STAND ON GITLOW

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party notes with joy the greeting sent to Benjamin Gitlow and the demand for his release from prison. Gitlow's "crime" was his stand for an uncompromising class struggle in the workers' interest against the capitalist class and the capitalist system. We welcome the action of your convention in coming to his support as an evidence that the members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union are for the workers organizing their power as a class for the fight against their exploiters. The imprisonment of Gitlow is an example of the way the capitalists use the governmental power against the workers which you have also experienced thru use of injunctions and police against workers on strike. This must be met by stronger organization of trade unions and organization of the political power of the workers thru the formation of a Labor Party and a fight for a workers' and farmers' government. Our party supports the formation of a united front of all workers to gain this end and is ready to join with you in the work of building a mass party of labor to fight for labor's interests.

C. E. RUTHENBERG.
General Secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

UNEMPLOYMENT INCREASES IN "CHRISTIAN" POLAND; OFFICIALS LOOT THE GOVERNMENT TREASURY

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 3.—During the past five weeks the army of the unemployed has been reinforced again by about 10,000 men in Poland. The number of registered unemployed is now 207,400, to which may be added more than 100,000 clerical employes of the plants. The crisis is particularly acute in Upper Silesia. The number of workers there, which last year was 169,000, has shrunk to 78,000 and 80,000 men are jobless. Altho the output per shift has risen from 581 kilograms to 1,045, the total production of coal has fallen to about 58 per cent of that of 1913.

The increasing corruption has recently aroused considerable excitement among the people. The Republica of Lodz writes that the reports of the superior control board are being animatedly commented upon. In no previous year had the irregularities been so great as in the last. The paper asserts that in the ministry of railroads the embezzlements totaled 200,000,000 zloty (about $35,000,000), and that the ministry of war took second place with 150,000,000 zloty to be accounted for. The little Arma factory in Lemberg is said to have used up 600,000 zloty alone without producing a single weapon.

Before the transportation commission the minister of railroads openly admitted that contracts for the construction of repair shops in Piotrowize, in Upper Silesia, had been signed by the under secretary and two directors with companies that had charged the nation several dozen per cent [illegible] than normal rates.

The extent to which corruption has spread to the different departments is shown by the arrest last spring of a district attorney on a charge of having made away with 5,000,000 zloty, some of which had been taken from smugglers by the courts. Premier Grabski issued a secret order to suspend payments for public works in order to be able to pay the state's workers and clerks.

Sigmanites Invite Green To Lead War on Left Wing

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will be brot here by the Sigman machine, not only to make his set speech of greeting, but to lead the fight against the progressives. This is planned as a coup d'etat to smash the progressives and with all negotiations conducted with the utmost secrecy, the plan has been exposed thru sources close both to Green and the Sigmanites.

Dicker with Green.

Representatives of the Sigmanites met Green quietly a few days ago and it is understood that the whole purpose of the meeting was to intensify the struggle against the progressive elements which are now a powerful factor in the union. The presence of 107 progressive delegates in the convention, representing the largest garment centers after the supposed crushing of the left wing at the Boston convention, coupled with the fact that the International Ladies' Garment Workers is among the five largest unions in the American Federation of Labor, has created something like a panic in official circles.

Sigman Plans Betrayal.

It is understood that with the help of Green the Sigmanites plan to take all positions in the General Executive Board, move the headquarters to some other city than New York, quietly notify the bosses that the International office will not intervene to aid the progressive New York locals in strikes and lockouts and wait for results.

A Compromise Offer.

Another plan which is favored by other International Garment Worker officials is to offer half of the General Executive Board positions to the progressives on condition that Sigman is made president.

CZECHO-SLOVAK WORKERS' MISSION LEAVES SOVIET UNION WITH NEW VISION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail). —The Czecho-Slovak workers' delegation, which has been visiting the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics for over six weeks, have left the Soviet Union. Representatives of the White Russian trade unions accompanied the delegations to the frontier.

At the frontier, a great demonstration took place, and the representatives of the Czecho-Slovak workers and the White Russian trade unions addressed the assembled workers.

The Czecho-Slovak delegation told the workers and peasants that they were well pleased with what they had seen in the Soviet Union and that when they get back to Czecho-Slovakia, they will do all in their power to tell the workers there of the true conditions in the Soviet Union and blast the lies of the capitalist press.

FRANCE READY TO OPEN NEW DEBT PARLEY

Officially Notifies Wall Street Agents

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—France officially notified the United States today that she is desirous of resuming negotiations for the settlement of her $4,000,000,000 war debt at the earliest practicable moment.

Ambassador Daeschner, who, it is reported, is soon to be supplanted by Henri Berenger, has communicated to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that the new Briand government will shortly take steps to reopen the parleys.

Railroad Could Not Get Loan from Bank

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad borrowed money from the government in 1920 because the road could obtain no loans from bankers, H. E. Byram, former president, and now one of the receivers of the road, told the interstate commerce commission.

Byram said bankers had refused because they were not convinced that an increase in freight rates authorized by the commission in August, 1920, would enable the road to pull out of its difficulties.

STATE FAILS TO REOPEN CASE ON NEW 'EVIDENCE'

Koracek Explains Class Struggle to Workers

By ELLA REEVE BLOOR.
I. L. D. Press Service).

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3—As soon as the trial of Edward Koracek, active member of the Machinists' Union and charged with a violation of the Pennsylvania state sedition act, started this morning, the prosecutor tried to reopen the case in behalf of the state in order to introduce some new "evidence."

When asked as to what the evidence was, the prosecutor said that it related to James P. Cannon's lecture, "Russia Today." The judge refused to allow the matter to be introduced stating that the evidence was of no value to the case and only served to confuse matters.

Raps Nature of "Evidence."

Attorney Marshall, one of Koracek's attorneys, then opened the case for the defense analyzing the nature of the evidence which the state had introduced showing that it has little connection with the case in question and that the indictment did not mention a single specific overt act on the part of Koracek which would substantiate the claim of the state that Koracek plotted or was part of a plot to overthrow the United States government.

Koracek was then called to the stand. On the stand, he stated that he was an American citizen, and that he was a draughtsman for the Carnegie Steel company and was a member of the Workers Party. He told the court in unmistakable language the he subscribed to the principles of the Workers Party.

Ran on Workers Party Ticket.

During his testimony it was also brot out in the court room that Koracek had been nominated on the Workers Party ticket in Pennsylvania for the office of state auditor and that

SERIOUS POLITICAL CRISIS IN GERMANY PREVENTS ENTRY INTO THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS MONDAY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 3.—Herr Stresemann declared tonight that the entrance of Germany into the league of nations could not be achieved on next Monday as had been desired owing to the political situation in the country. He intimated that Germany might enter early in 1926.

The working class centers of the large industrial cities are unanimously opposed to the league program as well as the Locarno treaty and with the Communists exposing the role of the Luther-Stresemann government as a pawn of British imperialism the situation may be brought violently to a head should Germany at this time enter the league.

ANTI-IMPERIALIST LEAGUE FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT

That the oppressed peoples of the "American empire" feel the common nature of their separate struggles for national liberation and appreciate the importance of common action against Wall Street, is seen in the participation of Cubans, Porto Ricans and Mexicans in the Chicago mass meeting on behalf of Filipino independence, to be held tomorrow, 7:30 p. m., at the Labor Temple, 119 So. Throop St. The meeting will be conducted in the Spanish language.

Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League, will be chairman; among the speakers will be Nemesio Felipe, of the Filipino Association of Chicago; Santiago Rivera, of the local Porto Rican colony, and Adolfo Garcia, editor of the I. W. W. Spanish language weekly, Solidaridad. Admission is free. The meeting is under the auspices of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League.

Meetings in support of the demand for complete and immediate independence for the Philippine Islands are being planned by the United States section of the league in all parts of the country, both in the English and Spanish languages.

Connecticut Tobacco Growers Want Higher Prices; Threaten Strike

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3.—A speech by Joseph W. Alsop, president of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Association advises growers to go on strike next year by planting no tobacco. The suggested tobacco strike would be for the purpose of getting a higher price for tobacco. Alsop says, a two-year's supply of tobacco is on hand and production must stop or prices will come down.

Child labor has long been one of the curses of the tobacco fields of Connecticut. Families with children move on the land during the growing season and little ones toil with big ones. There are 8,000 tobacco acres in the nutmeg state.

SHIP LOAD OF GERMAN ANTHRACITE COAL ARRIVES AT BOSTON TO BE USED TO BREAK MINERS' STRIKE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 3.—What is said to be the first shipment of coal from Germany ever recorded, arrived here on the steamer Rotterdam today. The shipment consists of 4,000 tons of Westphalian anthracite and will be used for the eastern market to make up for the shortage of coal caused by the strike of anthracite miners in Pennsylvania. It is understood that there are a number of ships headed toward Atlantic ports bearing hard coal from Europe and that soon sufficient coal will be forthcoming to supply all the needs of this part of the country.

Yet, in face of this, Mr. John L. Lewis still opposes world trade union unity.

CHILE FORCED TO DENY ITS FORMER NOTE

League of Nations Unable to Act

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, December 3.—Imperialist watchdogs for the league of nations are considerably agitated over the protest of the Chilean minister to Switzerland against General Pershing's actions in the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute.

Fearing to incur the open wrath of the United States at a time when that government is approaching the league of nations thru the back door of the world court, the British and French statesmen resent a [illegible] Chile involving them in a dispute that brings up the question of the Monroe doctrine. Thru pressure they have forced the Chilean minister to withdraw his first protest and substitute a document that is a mere statement of fact, without involving action by the league.

League is Bankrupt.

This is a plain confession of the bankruptcy of the league. If it cannot intervene in affairs that concern its own membership in any part of the world it becomes a mere debating society. Both Chile and Peru are members of the league.

League officials fear to press the Chilean question for fear American politicians will make capital of it to further estrange Geneva and Washington. On the other hand most of the Central and South American republics take the league seriously and the presence of these republics at league assemblies gives it a world wide character. But since the permanent seats of the league are occupied exclusively by the big imperialist powers they do not take a stand in the interests of the smaller nations, as it conflicts with their policy.

Europe Not Fooled.

European statesmen are not fooled regarding the real character of the Pershing expedition and the newspapers quite openly state that the United States government is there for the purpose of throttling any opposition to American financial interests.

Attorney Resents New Civil Service Ruling for School Board Jobs

Because about 20 persons on the school board would be effected, school board attorney, Frank S. Righeimer, demands that civil service employes of the Chicago public schools should not come under the same requirements with reference to place of residence that the corporation counsel holds shall apply to other city civil service employes.

Recently the corporation counsel ruled that all Chicago civil service employes must reside within the city limits to retain their positions.

SCAB STEEL CO. FIRES WORKERS BY THOUSANDS

Wages Cut Two Months Before

By A Worker Correspondent

BENWOOD, W. Va., Dec. 3.—Over a thousand wage-slaves were thrown out of the work this week, when the National Tube Co., a big open-shop steel mill, closed down for the winter. It shut down completely, shutting out thousands of workers and their families from means of keeping from starving thru the long winter months.

Two months before closing down, the mills had cut wages five per cent. This was done shop by shop instead of all at once, to save the bosses from trouble that might arise if all the workers knew their plan at the same time.

This scab company employs mostly foreign-born workers, because they can exploit them easier, as few can talk English and they don't know enough to get organized.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Five bandits drove off with two truck loads of silks from a garage in Brooklyn, after holding up and binding the owner and night manager. The "Loot" was valued at $50,000.

DAILY WORKER STILL HAS LOAD TO BE CARRIED

Only First Inroad Made on Debts

Only $266.30 came into The DAILY WORKER office the past two days, Wednesday and Thursday, to help lift the burden of debt. This put the drive forward but a few inches, when it should be carried on by leaps and bounds. Of the $40,000 necessary to make the paper secure before the new year begins, only $27,643.52 has been accumulated during the long and strenuous drive.

The Workers Party of New Brighton, Pa., leads the list today with $70.00. Other donations are as follows:

INTERNATIONAL LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' CONVENTION UNANIMOUSLY SUPPORTS ZEIGLER MINERS' FIGHT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union convention by unanimous vote, on motion of Zimmerman, ordered a telegram sent pledging sympathy and support to Zeigler miner defendants. Zimmerman's motion was seconded by Antonini of Local 89. Moral and financial support was voted also to the striking textile wrokers of Williamtic, Conn.

Objection on Minutes.

Objection to the favoritism displayed in the official minutes to administration speakers was made by Portnoy who showed by the minutes that important portions of his criticism of the credentials committee had been eliminated. Fromal protests on minutes were made by machine delegates that the record might not be in favor of the progressives after which the convention took up the report of the objections committee.

Sigman Organized Scabs.

Secretary Zuckerman of the Cap Makers' Union addressed the convention at the beginning of the sessions and went into the history of the needle trades unions. His most interesting reminiscence was that Sigman had once organized a union of strikebreakers for which he secured an I. W. W. charter.

COOLIDGE TRIES CRUSHING MINERS' UNION IS CHARGE

Wants Investigation of Cal's Moves

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(FP)—Sen. Shipstead, farmer-labor, of Minnesota, announces that immediate investigation should be made by congress in charges that the Coolidge administration is party to a plot to crush the United Mine Workers of America by aid of federal governmental machinery.

These charges were first made public by The Federated Press, in a dispatch telling of the granting of freight rate reductions by the interstate commerce commission to non-union bituminous coal. It was suggested that a reduction of rates from the western Pennsylvania field in which Mellon, Schwab, Berwind and Rockefeller are dominating figures, to the Duluth market and the New England market, was now expected. This field has recently broken its contracts with the United Mine Workers and has set up company unions, organized by a renegade union official. Last September a rate reduction was given the non-union coal fields of Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia.

On behalf of secretary of the treasury, Mellon, a lame excuse has been issued, that he is not an investor in the Pittsburgh Coal Co., which is known as a Mellon property. But he admits that for the past 20 years, until he came to Washington, he was one of the executive committee of its board, put in by his own trust company which took charge when the coal company got into financial difficulties. So, as a banker, he has dominated the coal company's policy. He still owns shares in it. And he sharply refuses to predict the resumption of relations with the United Mine Workers.

Philadelphia Mothers' League Protest Against All Capitalist Wars

By A. KREITZER.
(Worker Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—The Mothers' League met on the seventh anniversary of Armistice Day to protest against all capitalist wars in which working class youth is butchered and maimed to bring more gains to the master class.

The last war is supposedly over but yet blood is being shed between capitalist nations. Thruout the world, preparations are being made for another war, which will sooner or later break out with greater force and violence than it had in 1914.

The Mothers' League pledges itself to conduct a persistent and constructive campaign for the ending of all capitalist wars.

Road Company Returns $266,025 Easy Money

AUSTIN, Dec. 3—The American Road company which made over a million dollars' profit on road work handed out to it by the Texas highway commission appointed by the Ferguson gang in control of the state of Texas, handed back $266,025 to the state fearing that further action might involve some of the officials in a jail sentence and lead to some sensational disclosures.

Amon G. Carter, Fort Worth newspaper publisher, one of those opposing the Ferguson machine, who was asked to resign from the board of regents of the Fort Worth Texas Technological Institute for turning the institution into a speak-easy, according to "Ma" Ferguson, refuses to accede to the governor's demand.

DANISH AND NORWEGIAN WORKERS' DELEGATIONS PLEASED WITH RED ARMY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail)—The Danish and Norwegian workers' delegations, which are now in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics recently visited the barracks of the red army and the conditions in the military service were explained to them in discussions lasting several hours. The delegations expressed their satisfaction at the fact that the bourgeois sense of discipline did not exist in the red army and in its place was a comradely connection and understanding between the men and their officers. The soldiers in the red army have full political rights and receive a good all-around education. Later the delegations visited the Moscow Soviet were they studied the communal affairs of the capital.

The Danish delegation visited the Centrosoyus and delivered the greetings of the Danish co-operatives to the chairman of the Centroyus, Comrade Chintchuck. The delegation received detailed information upon the situation of the co-operative movement in the Soviet Union. The Danish delegation then visited various co-operative shops to observe the organization in its practical work.

Both delegations later visited the Kremlin. In the evening the Danish delegation left Moscow for the Donetz Basin, Kharkov, afterwards it will visit the Caucasus and will later return to Moscow.

JUDGE PREPARES DECISION BEFORE CASE IS CALLED

Papers Have Verdict Two Days Ahead

By CARL HAESSLER.
Federated Press.

By a decision, thoughtfully communicated to the newspapers two days before it was signed, Judge Denis E. Sullivan, the injunction czar of the Chicago superior court, has given a temporary knockout to the new Illinois injunction limitation law. In addition he has sentenced 9 union pickets to fines and jail. This statute, passed after one of the biggest battles put up in the legislative lobbies at Springfield by organized labor, was practically the only important law favorable to the workers that came out of the 1925 session. It restricts the rights of judges to enjoin workers on strike unless persons or property are shown in imminent danger and it has largely cut down in practise the habit of judges of issuing injunctions without hearing the other side of the case. The new law had an appreciable effect in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union victory over the International Tailoring Co. and in other union struggles since spring.

Sullivan, notorious for years because of his drastic writs, tried in vain to get a chance at the law but was always defeated by motions for change of venue. Then the present case, that of 8 strikers and the business agent of Local 195, Retail Clerks, arrested for picketing before the department store of Ossey Bros. in the Jewish district came before him. He refused a motion for change of venue because the anti-picketing injunction had been granted in April, 1924, a year before the new law. The picketing began on a large scale last October under the protection of the new law.

The judge, who has often been denounced by the Chicago Federation of Labor, decided that the injunction is still in force and that the new law, which might have superseded the injunction, is unconstitutional. He seemed especially impressed by the plea of the store owners that the pickets had cut down business 50%. This he deemed destruction of property. He knocks out the law on the ground that "to say to one class (capital) that its property may be taken from it or destroyed by another class (labor) without compensation or process is not liberty; it is inviting the tyranny of the mob."

BRITISH LABOR VOTE OF CENSURE LOSES IN HOUSE

Parliament Upholds Communist Trial

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The censure of the British government, introduced by the labor party delegation into the house of commons for its connection with the indictment and the prejudged sentence of the 12 members of the Communist Party and the Young Communist League, was voted down by a vote of 351 to 127.

During the debate, many of the labor members pointed out that this trial was not only a blow at the Communists but was a blow at free speech.

MacDonald Attacks Indiscretions.

Ramsay MacDonald, who is a labor member of parliament and a staunch supporter of the capitalist order, did not criticize the government for the prosecution of the Communists but for its indiscretions. He showed that the charge against the Communists when stripped of its superfluities was one of possession of documents for publication. He stated that the accusations that the British Communists received money from Moscow was not substantiated and that the charge of mutiny and sedition was not proved?

Secretary's Speech Causes Mirth.

Great mirth was caused in the chamber when a labor member brought out that Home Secretary Sir William Joynson Hicks, had made a speech in 1912 on the Irish question, where he declared "the people of Ulster have behind them the unionist party. Behind them is the law of the god of battles. In his name and yours I say to the prime minister, 'Let your armies and your batteries fire. Fire if you dare. Fire and be damned.'"

The home secretary in defending his persecution of the Communists, brought out that the labor government under MacDonald had arrested the Communist Campbell and that it only withdrew its charges against him because they saw that it was thought undesirable for some reason or other to prosecute him.

Communist Membership Not Crime.

Shapurji Saklatvala, lone Communist member of the British house of commons, made a short speech in which he showed that it could not in these be considered a crime to be a member of the Communist Party and that Communists had just as much right as anyone else to spread their doctrines in the army.

The debate was wound up by Sir Douglass Hogg, who was the prosecutor of the 12 Communists, accepting full responsibility on himself, in order to take the blame off the government, and declared that he considered the persecution of the Communist justified.

Recognition of Soviet Rule Is Urged by Chicago Gathering

Breeders' Association, Wednesday night, at St. Hubert's Inn, celebrating the recent Russian purchases in this country of American Rambouillet sheep.

Russians Address Gathering.

The guests of the evening were representatives in this country of the Soviet Union, including J. G. Ohsol, of the Amtorg Trading Co., and D. N. Borodin, director of the Russian Agricultural Agency in America, with offices in New York City and V. Skvirsky, of the Russian Information Bureau in Washington.

All of them addressed the gathering that was made up not only America's representative sheep, hog, cattle and poultry breeders, but also of manufacturers of products being imported by the Soviet Union, especially farm implement producers.

Attend Live Stock Show.

The Soviet representatives, as well as those who came to meet them in the evening, had spent most of the day at in the international live stock exposition at the stockyards.

By way of returning the greeting that they received, the Soviet spokesmen invited the Americans to the live stock exposition to be held at Tiflis, Georgia, to include the three Soviet Republics in the Near East, of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijain.

Altho several senators and representatives had been invited to attend, none of them appeared. Instead they sent greetings to the gathering, especially stressing the subject of Soviet recognition.

Senators Urge Recognition.

Senator William E. Borah sent a telegram saying that, "if the interests of peace, disarmament, trade and commerce, we should recognize Soviet Russia and conclude with her as soon as possible, and along the proper lines a treaty of commerce in the interests of peace and markets. Our businessmen are now at a disadvantage in competing with the business interests of other countries."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, wired that, "I can see no legitimate reason why we should not recognize Russia, whether we like their form of government or not. The people of that country have a right to say what kind of government they want, and we should recognize their government for our own selfish economic reasons if for no other."

Dwight Lincoln Presides.

Dwight Lincoln, secretary of the association, acted as chairman, telling of the recent visit to this country of the Soviet mission sent here to purchase the best breeds of sheep and hogs.

The mission recently returned to the largest purchase of the kind ever made in the United States.

King Complements Mission.

J. H. King, of Laramie, Wyoming, paid a high tribute to the members of the mission. He stressed the demand that every pressure possible should be brought to bear upon the government for the opening of trade relations with the Soviet Union.

Ohsol, Skvirsky and Borodin all emphasized the rapid economic recovery that the Soviet Union has experienced during the past few years, and held out glowing hopes for the immediate future.

Skvirsky as the first speaker gave a host of figures showing the recovery of industry since the world war, the civil wars and the blockade.

Ohsol dwelt more on the agriculture situation in the Soviet Union showing the how modern methods are being applied everywhere. He also told of the different kinds of livestock raised by the Soviet farmers. Borodin followed along similar lines, telling of the growth of Russian agriculture from early times, under czarism and at the present time.

Audience is Deeply Impressed:

That the audience was deeply impressed by the masses of statistics given them was shown by the applause given the speakers, and by the tenor of the speeches that followed. Short addresses were made by Prof. F. R. Marshall, secretary of the American Wool Growers' Association; Prof. J. M. Jones, of Texas; D. A. Spencer, of the U. S. department of agriculture, as well as other speakers who reviewed cattle, sheep, horse and poultry breeding in the United States. All the speakers claimed that the United States had the best that there was to offer and were ready to make arrangements for the sale of America's best breeds of live stock to the Soviet peasants.

Editor's Note.—The DAILY WORKER will publish extensive extracts from the addresses by Boris Skvirsky and D. N. Borodin in future issues. The speech of J. G. Ohsol is published elsewhere in this issue.

Churches Trying to Hide Their Role of Defenders of the Capitalist State

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Presbyterian Church dignitaries meet in the midst of the parasites idling at Atlantic City and put first on the order of the day, "the present spiritual condition of our church and the causes making for unrest." At the same time the National Study Conference on the Churches and World Peace opens in the shadow of the nation's capitol in Washington, starting off with a greeting from President Coolidge declaring "that the co-operation of schools, courts, press, home, governments and churches will be necessary to bring about world peace." It is the usual bunk that comes out of Atlantic City and the regular stock in trade piffle that may be expected from Coolidge every time he tries to say something.

• • • •

The Presbyterian Church will not seriously investigate "causes making for unrest." Churches have tried that before. Immediately they have found that the causes begin hitting at the pillars of the profit system, the investigation has been quickly dropped. To create the least distrust in the minds of the masses that the capitalist system is not what is claimed for it—that it is the best social system of all time that must continue into time everlasting—to deny that is considered a greater crime than the violation single or in lots of all the commandments that Moses is alleged to have brought down off Mount Sinai.

• • • •

It is a rule that the church sides with the exploiter in every strike. The rare exceptions only prove this rule. No one has heard of the churches in the anthracite coal fields uniting to insist that the strikers be granted their demands. If any prayers are uttered in the churches of the coal fields, they are for the victory of the mine barons. It is during strike times that the blackcoated churchman dives deepest into his barrel of canned sermons to stock up on dope for the strikers, telling them to be "meek and humble" before the lord. Of course, while the preacher has one eye on the sky, he has the other on the lord of profit, especially coal profits, sitting in the front row and listening happily, knowing that all meekness and humbleness on the part of the miners is strength to his side of the fight. The Presbyterians at Atlantic City are making the usual gesture that should fool no one.

• • • •

Coolidge talks of peace being secured thru the co-operation of schools, courts, press, home, governments and churches.

Yet this same Coolidge will urge the next congress to pass huge appropriations for the land, water and air services of American militarism, "to prepare" for the next war.

American imperialism instinctively demands the co-operation of the schools, courts, press, home, governments and churches for war—the inevitable next war—and not for peace.

Children are taught jingoism in the schools, the courts the press is the most faithful lackey in fomenting war paystand ready to imprison anyone assailing the capitalist state, triotism called "100 per cent Americanism", and the home is invaded as the war rages by Liberty Bond and War Saving Stamp salesmen, while super-jingoes travel in packs demanding contributions for the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Volunteers of America.

Capitalist governments are so organized, especially the American capitalist state, that the dictatorship can be quickly intensified as war breaks, while the church stands ready to bless it all, even to sending the helpless soldier hordes into the trenches to maim and murder. In the last war no country was forced to fight without the benediction of the various religions operating within its borders. This co-operation was the easiest to get; the church following the capitalist armies into war thru its chaplains attached to various military units.

• • • •

When the workers understand the fraudulent spectacles provided for them by the Presbyterians at Atlantic City and by the Washington Conference, it will not be so easy to lure them into the next slaughter house that is even now being prepared for them. They will learn to make their own class fight for the abolition of this capitalist state that moullds every possible strength, including especially the schools, press and pulpit, for its own preservation as the enslaver of mankind.

The power of the workers, victorious under Soviet Rule, is the only power that can end war and inaugurate world peace.

LUMBER JACKS HAVEN'T EVEN TIME TO EAT

Finish Breakfast on Run to Work

By A Worker Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 3.—At the Central Camp, a logging camp at Minerata, Madera county, California, conditions are certainly bad. The loggers, whose work is very hard, are poorly fed, the food being so bad that it is enough to destroy the appetite of the hungriest fellow who comes to the table. For this fare the workers are charged $1.25 per day.

The wages are thirty-five cents low, sixty-one cents high per hour; all working for day wages except the buckers, who mostly work on contract. But what the buckers are being paid I do not know. All workers within this camp are called at 5:50 a. m.; six o'clock the breakfast bell rings, and so little time is allowed for breakfast that part of the woodsmen grab their share of the grub and finish their breakfast on the run while herding to the job.

This camp is situated at a distance of four miles from the job, and the loggers come in to eat dinner at the camp. They have so little time allowed for meals that the working engine begins to whistle calling them to rush "to board on," and go back to work almost as soon as they sit down to their meals.

Quitting time in the woods is 5:15 p. m., and they are supposed to be at supper by 6:00 p. m. But the woodsmen cannot get to camp before 6:30 p. m., so they rush straight to the dining room without waiting to clean up because they are afraid if they stay to wash the grime from their hands and faces that the dining room will close and they will not be able to get any supper.

There are between five hundred and six hundred men employed in this camp during the season, and the camp is owned and operated by the Sugar Pine Lumber cmopany. This company hires men from Sacramento, Stockton and San Francisco, and any footloose rebel who can head that way is advised to get on the job, for there is a big field for organization. But this camp will probably shut down in the middle of December.

IF YOU ARE ANXIOUS TO KEEP STEEL WORKERS UNORGANIZED, THEN TRY MIKE TIGHE'S 12 POINTS

(By a Steel Worker Correspondent)

WARREN, O., Dec. 3.—After studying the report of the so-called "Council for the Organizing of the Steel Industry," submitted by Chairman M. F. Tighe at the last convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' Union, I have concluded that Tighe's method is a model of what not to do. It should be called, "How to Keep the Steel Workers Unorganized."

For the benefit of those interested in how not to organize the steel workers, I suggest that they bear in mind the following 12 points, all deduced from Tighe's report. And don't expect to get any better results than Tighe did!

Get at Safe Distance!

1. Create a fund of $30,000 or so and locate organizing headquarters either in Washington, D. C., or Denver, Colo. Get as far away from the organization center as possible.

2. Select 15 or so organizers and place them in that many cities. Of course, they must be located in steel towns, but this is not at all necessary. Any city where the "shows and movies" are up to date is just as good.

3. Print, say, 25,000 leaflets on the 8-hour day. Keep these hidden away in your office or distribute to the brothers in the building trades unions. Don't put them out at mill gates for fear this would arouse the anger of the steel barons. Anyhow, don't be particular as to what becomes of leaflets, just so they are printed.

Avoid Live Issues!

4. Never talk about strikes, wage increases, shorter work day or anything else that might interest workers. And by all means insist that this is purely an "educational campaign."

5. Keep the initiation fee high. Make it $10.00 or more. Never favor a lower initiation fee, say of $1.00. This might make it easier for the steel workers and we don't want to be rushed in organizing them.

6. Don't work at night time for the steel workers are always out in their autos. Don't expect to find the night-turn workers at home during the day time. Most of them are playing golf.

Denounce the Reds!

7. Hold mass meetings at least once each week. Hire a hall outside of the steel workers' district. Make yourself the speaker. When some worker wants to ask a question, denounce him as a "red" and immediately adjourn the meeting. Be sure to mention this in your "annual report."

8. Keep your accounts up to date. Steel workers are particular about how their money is spent. Look busy and be sure to boost your international officials at least three times per day so they can mention you in "their" annual reports. The membership enjoys this.

Solicit Stoolpigeons!

9. Invite the "press" and other "friends" of labor to your office and go over with them in detail your plans of organization. It pays to let the public know whom, when and where you are organizing. This will save plenty of personal labor and besides aid the steel workers, who like to have the meeting place decorated up with bulls, stools and select gunmen. It pays to advertise.

10. Have short office hours and always be out. To be in your office when a night-turn worker comes around, would lead the bosses to believe that it is no "educational campaign." Don't go into details with the workers and size up all applicants well. If he looks "red" be sure to pass him up. He is liable to want to help you to organize.

Beware of "Disrupters"!

11. When hard pressed for lack of argument to an intelligent worker, always yell out: "You are opposed to the union," or "You are not to disrupt our organization for the bosses." This sort or argument is a stable product and can be used often. Try it.

Do Well by the Boss.

12. Never talk amalgamation, labor party, trade union unity, or any other progressive measures. The steel workers would flock to your unions if you did! And never try to expand your influence amongst the workers. Be exclusive! Just brag your union up to the boss. Demonstrate how much a union can do for him.

After mastering all these things, in order that your union will have a decent burial, at least, get in touch with a few U. S. cabinet members and "wish them well" at least twice a year. If they try to resign, write your refusal. And always be up to snuff in waving the flag and shaking hands.

Last but not least, learn the manly labor-faking art of "putting it over." Make your annual report look like a bargain sale of energy wasted on workers who stubbornly refuse to be organized.

And always blame everything on the rank and file, the progressives or the reds!

If all these rules are faithfully observed, as Mike Tighe observed them, a complete demonstration can be given of how not to organize the steel workers and of how to make it impossible for anyone else to do so.

Time-Clock Works Overtime for Boss

By A Worker Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—A worker's time always means money for the boss; but seldom for the worker.

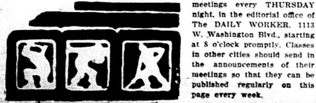
When a man comes seven minutes late in the shop where I work, he gets docked for a quarter of an hour. And he never has a chance to make it up. No matter how early he might come the next day, no worker can punch the time clock until the whistle blows.

We have to work nine hours a day and are often forced to work overtime at straight rates, with an almost sure chance of being fired if we refuse.

The few holidays that we get off are taken out of our pay, and so is the meagre half-hour that we get for a rush lunch.

Classes in Worker Correspondence

The class in worker correspondence in New York City starts Monday, December 7, at the Workers' School, 108 East 14th Street. The Chicago class is now holding regular meetings every THURSDAY night, in the editorial office of The DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., starting at 8 o'clock promptly. Classes in other cities should send in the announcements of their meetings so that they can be published regularly on this page every week.



STRIKE CALLED AGAINST FIRING ACTIVE UNIONIST

Boss 'Rewards' 17 Years of Hard Work

By A Worker Correspondent

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Whether Bertha DeGeorge, employed at the Utica Steam and Valley Cotton Mills for the past 17 years, was discharged because she is one of the most active members of the Spinners' Union or because, as the boss says, she knocked over a small clock used for testing machines, makes no difference to her fellow unionists, who have voted to call a general strike of mill workers as a protest.

The vote was taken at separate meetings of each of the four unions involved, the carders, weavers, loomfixers and spinners. Strike negotiations are in charge of Joseph R. White, organizer of the United Textile Workers' of America.

Organizer Waits on Public.

No time has yet been set, as White is calling a mass meeting of citizens in an effort to prevent actual calling of the strike thru bringing public opinion to bear upon the mill owners.

Another reason for the strike is that many of the weavers have been forced to run extra looms, according to the report.

Sister DeGeorge has worked for the company since she was 13 years of age and is one of the most active fighters for the rights of the workers.

Whether she approves of the organizer's method of setting no date for the strike, tho letting the bosses know about it and get prepared, is not known. But it is doubtful if she cares about "public opinion" so long as she has the support of the workers.

"Both" Sides to be Heard.

Organizer White, however, is so anxious about "public opinion" that he is urging the stock-holders in the mill and business men to be present at the mass meeting so that the public may hear "both" sides of the case.

COME TO WORK EVEN IF ON CRUTCHES, SAY STEEL CO. FOREMEN

NILES, Ohio, Dec. 3.—"Come to work if you possibly can, so that our department won't get a black mark." This is the gist of the instructions of Carnegie Steel Co. foremen to those workers who are injured on the job. The result is that men come to work on crutches, even, and sit around during the entire eight-hour shift, when they should be at home resting.

Accidents at the mills are never reported if a report can be prevented. Yet the offices of the company doctors are filled up Sunday mornings with those who have lost the sight of an eye or received other injuries which, in many cases, mean months of lost time.

And yet these accidents are never heard of and the newspapers, together with the company doctors, suppress all news of this, except for the accidents that create sensations. Then, such stories are told in such a way that the resentment of the worker is not aroused against their brutal treatment.

When the mill is short-handed, every possible pressure is brot to bear to force injured workers to "pitch in," with the promise that they will be relieved soon. Such relief is seldom forthcoming, however.

Number of Accidents Increase in New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A new high record of 374,000 industrial accidents occurred in New York state in 1924, says the annual report of the state labor department at Albany. Indications, says Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton point to a record equally high for 1925.

DETROIT "PROSPERITY!" MIDNIGHT LINES FORM TO GET MORNING JOBS

By A Worker Correspondent

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 3—In order to get a chance to ask for a job (and to be refused), workers stand in line at the foundry of the River Rouge Ford plant from midnight until the employment office opens at 8 o'clock in the morning.

I went around to find out about it for myself the other morning and I scarcely could believe my eyes when I saw so many hundreds of workers in line. There were three very long lines on one side of the building and opposite was another line as long, made up of workers who had come as early as the previous midnight, so they told me. Many were eating sandwiches as they stood in line, so as not to lose their places.

Very few of these will get jobs, however, as workers are being taken off now, not put on.

And this is "prosperity" in the "magic city" of Detroit!

'EXTRAS' RIOT WHEN LAID OFF AT HOLLYWOOD

Exploitation Made Easy By Job-Hunt

By L. P. RINDAL.
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 3. — Three hundred "extras" employed at the Hollywood "movie" studios nearly caused a riot here this week in protesting against their being laid off and replaced by lower-paid help. As the result of this incident, a public hearing was called by the Industrial Welfare Commission at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Only a few "stars" supported the movie bosses, while the "extras" laid bare scandalous exploitation behind the scenes,—but there is little likelihood of improvement as the boss opposition is unorganized and the "stars" are real class-collaborators.

Exploitation Rife.

However, there are very few "stars" these days. The masses of the workers are "extras" and they are always exploited, not matter what parts they play. Armies of job-hunters and career-seekers roam about the studios day and night, making exploitation all the more easy, since there is always a mob waiting to be employed.

As a recent instance, it has been reported to me that 200 "extras" of both sexes began work at the William Fox studio at 5:30 p. m., keeping at it until 4 a. m., when kicks became general and they were allowed to quit. Overtime was demanded and denied. For this ten and one-half hours of labor, wages of $3 were allowed. From this must be deducted 65 cents for commission and car-fare.

Fifteen Cents an Hour.

And the net $2.35 was refused to the workers until the next day, when they were forced to go back just to get their pay, bringing the sum-total of the time spent for $2.35 up to 15 hours,—15 cents an hour!

The eight-hour law was violated again, as usual. This "respect for law and order" is general in the movies 365 days (and nights). But only a few of the moviehands have the nerve to say so publicly.

Seeing Stars!

Thousands of high hopes are crushed in all lines of activity under capitalism; but the motion picture industry has, perhaps, more than its share of victims. People from all over creation come here with the expectation of becoming screen stars, (including Senorita Calles, the 15 years old "Americanized" daughter of the president of Mexico). They are already sparkling stars (in their minds) some place back east, west, south or north. But, when they get here, what happens?—The sunshine is about the only thing worth while to be found in the Golden State, the "oasis of abundance" for destitute job-seekers. Even the much advertised blossoms and oranges are hanging pretty—but high.

The result is small armies of job-hunters. And the stardom of Hollywood is nearly as much of a myth as the kingdom of heaven.

Negotiate Contract.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 3.—Agreement upon a new contract was reached by Illinois Traction System officials and representatives of the Trainmen's Unions at a meeting last night. It will be submitted to other company officials soon.

LABOR TURNOVER WEEKLY NEARLY TEN PER CENT

Youth Replace Old-Time Iron Workers

By WILDERMAN
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 3. — Without warning, ten workers with a long record of services were recently laid off in one day at the iron works where I am employed, and younger men put in their places at less pay.

When some of the discharged men begged the boss to give them another chance, because they had families to support, and pleaded that they would slave harder than ever, he told them bluntly that "a young fellow can turn out twice as much work for less money."

The labor turnover here is always high, averaging about 10 men week[illegible] from a staff of 100. Either the m[illegible] quit because of unbearable condition or they are discharged for "inefficiency."

As this shop isn't organized, ther[illegible] is no remedy yet for all the evils, th[illegible] all the men could be brought into [illegible] union if the union officials would star[illegible] an active campaign. Instead the officials spend most of their time fighting the left wing, which is the only section of the union interested in organizing the unorganized.

Plan New Labor Lyceum.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 3.—May 1, th[illegible] workers' own labor day, will see th[illegible] completion of a new labor lyceum, [illegible] local plans for raising the necessa[illegible] $10,000 succeed. Already $3,500 ha[illegible] been pledged, including $500 from Workmen's Circle No. 450 and $200 from the Ladies' Educational Club. The new building will seat at least 300, according to plans.

SIGMAN CALLS NAMES TO CONCEAL ISSUES AS I. L. G. W. U. MEETS

By WILLIAM LUPU
(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 3.—President Sigman of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, thru the columns of the official organ Justice, has issued a thickly sugar-coated appeal to all convention delegates.

"Delegates," pleads he, "a great responsibility is confroting you at this convention, the greatest perhape in the history of our union. You are being called upon to heal its wounds, to reunite its forces, and to rid it of all harmful and disruptive elements which menace its existence."

That Sigman is dead right in his appeal to rid the union of all harmful elements, surely none will doubt. But whether he is ready to acknowledge himself as being the most guilty and the most in need of removal from office is another question.

The progressive elements are, of course, the ones to whom Sigman and Co. brazenly refer as being destructive. But they are not afraid of being falsely branded by such putrid parasites, nor will they hesitate to continue their fight against such corrupt leadership. That they are winning is shown by the fact that this convention is held five months before its fixed date, due to their pressure.

NO ROOM FOR BUNK-PEDDLERS— IF THERE'S A W. C. ON THE JOB! DAILY WORKER IS TOLD FACTS

DEAR SIR: In reply to your inquiry, I wish to put before you, the opportunities offered by the profession of lumbering. If you are not already a logger, you probably do not realize that so many different trades are employed by modern, large-scale operations in the great forests of the Northwest. No longer is logging only a job for the man who can handle a cross-cut saw and a double-bitted axe, altho this man has an important place, as well.

The work is fascinating and wholesome. Pay is good, better, on the whole, than for similar jobs in town, because living is cheaper, and better, too. Modern logging camps are equipped with shower-baths, electric lights and recreation facilities. Food is almost always excellent and in abundance. The cookhouses of the Northwest are famous for the good tables they set.

The opportunities for promotion are great. It is a game where a capable man can work up from the bottom in a comparatively short time to the best jobs, paying as high as $500 and $600 a month. Here is a chance to show your stuff. "Pull" plays no part in selecting the personnel of a logging camp. The man who produces, gets ahead.

Few of the camps are more than twenty miles from town, and regular stage-lines operate at least twice daily. . . . .

I do not hire you myself. I am showing you how to get hired, if you can produce. I also call your attention to your opportunity. If you really want a job, and have the stuff in you to make good, you will be repaid many times over for the small cost of my valuable book. Send me a dollar today, and I'll send your copy promptly.

Yours sincerely,
J. L. BLACKBURN

The above letter wasn't written by a worker correspondent,—by no means; but it was written to one. And it happens that this worker correspondent who got the letter had previously been given one of the "fascinating and wholesome" jobs by none other than J. L. Blackburn himself, who is an employment agent turned book agent and who gets a dollar for his hokum from ignorant eastern workers who don't know the facts about the northwest lumber camps.

Three other worker correspondents have written The DAILY WORKER a close-up view of the "important place" that a worker has in the woods and the "great opportunities."

"The woods are rotten," writes one old-time lumber pack who has just "got the habit" of being a worker correspondent. "Why, the last job I was shipped out to, we had to hike fifteen miles after we left the train, and then there was a second hike up a ravine. At the head of this ravine stood our shack, its logs almost ready to crumble down. Inside was straw in the bunks, the floor covered with filth; no bull cook to keep the place clean. I never saw a pig pen as bad, and the grub was the same.

"The wages were a little more than $3.00 per day and out of that you paid $1.25 for your flop on the straw."

The story of another worker correspondent, a woman who worked as waitress, is as follows:

"I worked in the logging camps out of Aberdeen one year ago this summer and here are the conditions I found there: The hours are from nine to ten daily, with all the work piece work, and the slaves work at death rate speed to make anything. Everybody packs their beds. They operate their kitchen with half a crew and things are just thrown together.

"Timekeepers are instructed to rifle all mail, so that if a DAILY WORKER or I. W. W. publication makes its way into a camp, it is promptly destroyed. All organization is taboo. The company maintains a crew of finks and stoolpigeons. They sent in a lot of preachers to convert us and because one of the waitresses called that 'bunk,' she was fired!

"Yes, the I. W. W. once made the lumber barons furnish libraries and shower baths, but not any more. In those days, the wobblies fought the lunber kings, and now they fight each other."

Long Hours Forced on Toledo Workers

By A Worker Correspondent

TOLEDO, O. Dec. 3.—Longer working hours are being forced on the slaves in this scabby town and it has struck our shop, the Toledo wire works. The boss came around today and told us that hereafter we would work all day Saturday instead of the usual half-time, and get overtime of time and a quarter.

I asked for over time of time and a half, but the boss said no. He said that we work only nine hours straight time on week-days, while the Toledo Bridge and Crane and the American Steel Bridge work ten, and "we don't know when we are well-off."

The shop foreman asked the riveting boss to work ten hours for straight time but he said that he wouldn't dare ask the men to do this, as he knew they would refuse. So that killed one argument.

As there are about 25 men in our department, if we were to work one hour over time for straight time, it would mean putting more of our good money in the bosses' pockets.

IRON WORKS BREED DISEASES OF EYES AND LUNGS; LOSS OF FINGERS OR LEGS IS COMMON

By WILDERMAN, Worker Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 3.—Hardly a week goes by but an accident happens in our iron works and green young fellows who have been taken on at $12.00 a week to displace the older experienced workers lose a finger, or a leg, or an eye. Altho there aren't 100 workers in the shop, there are always several on the sick list.

As the shop isn't half the size it should be, the machinery and forges are crowded together so closely that the men must edge their way between the machines sideways to avoid getting caught or getting hurt by projecting steel bars and wheels.

Besides, tiny particles of metal get into the workers' lungs, which is of no great advantage to health. When, in addition, a cold wind sweeps thru the hot room, it puts the worker in a condition to see the doctor, and then he gets docked for the time he is gone.

Among iron workers, too, there is a disease of the eyes, which comes from the workers not using glasses to protect their eyes from sparks, flames and metal particles. And, of course, the worker must buy his own glasses.

And there are other needs for glasses, as the late afternoon work is done almost in darkness—so few electric lights are furnished—and the eye-strain is fearful. All day long the air is full of dust, and dust accumulates on the floor inches thick, as tho the factory hadn't been swept for months. It certainly has never been swept since I worked there.

Prosecution Fails to Reopen Its Case in Pittsburgh Trial

if the program was opposed to that of the state of Pennsylvania and was a violation of the state sedition act, why was the Workers Party allowed to appear on the ballot.

During the cross-examination Horacek explained the relations between the Communist International and the Workers Party.

Explains Class Struggle.

He then went on in simple language to explain the struggle of the workers against world imperialism. As he was explaining the struggle between the two classes in society, workers who had come to the trial to hear the case, leaned forward in their seats and listened intently.

Describe Russian Events.

He then went on to describe the events that transpired in Soviet Russia giving a scientific analysis in the simplest of words. His entire testimony and his sincerity were such that he made a favorable impression on these workers that had assembled in the court room.

In the session held yesterday, when the state closed its case, the attorneys for the defense made a second attempt to have the case thrown out due to the failure of the indictment to specify overt acts committed by the defendant.

The last piece of evidence to be introduced by the prosecutor against Koracek was the theses of the Communist Party. Every time that he came to the word bourgeois, he pronounced it "burgose" and then would chuckle and say to the jury "that word means you—and me—the useless class."

Lennon Proves Boomerang.

In the cross-examination, Attorney Marshall, who is defending Koracek introduced a blank ballot on which was Koracek's name for state auditor. He asked Lennon, the chief of the department of justice for this district at one time and who had stools placed in the labor unions here to carry on agent provocateur work, and one of the stars of the state's battery of "experts," whether Koracek had been put on the ballot legally or not. Much laughter was caused by the discomfort that the sight of the ballit caused on this steel trust tool. Lennon, in spite of all his squirmings was forced to admit that the Workers Party was on the ballot legally. This admission hurt the case of the state very much as they have tried to prove that the Workers Party was illegal.

American Legion Officer Bsfore School Board to Defend Target Practice

A fight on military training in the public schools developed at a finance committee meeting of the board of education when Superintendent of Schools William McAndrew brot in a request for a heating system in the rifle range of Wendell Phillips High school, 234 East Pershing Road.

John A. English fought the request on the ground that rifle shooting was a risky practice. It endangers the lives of students and instructors. Major F. L. Beals, supervisor of military training and physical education did not deny the charge. He said it was true that there were accidents but the target practice is guarded "as much as possible." The debate on the floor of the school board which followed brot forth the fact that the public schools are dominated by the American Legion and that military training in the schools goes merrily on to train the youth of America for the business of capitalist wars.

AS WEE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty

first of all interested in freeing all subject peoples from oppression. And no matter what England does; no matter how many clever diplomatic stunts Chamberlain pulls off, the struggle for the emancipation of the colonial slaves will go on. Nothing can prevent it. Oppression is the mother of revolt.

THE central fact in European politics today is the underground war between the capitalist powers on one hand led by England and the U. S. S. R. on the other. While it would appear that the Soviet Union is up against overwhelming odds, it has one mighty advantage. The class struggle has divided its foes. In every capitalist nations there is an army of workers, which regards its own ruling class as its mortal enemy. But for this obstacle the capitalist powers would have long ago mobilized all their available forces against the workers' republic. What the robber powers are doing now is trying to maneuver Russia into a situation which will give them a plausible reason to attack.

IT is obvious that the capitalists have given up hope of overthrowing the Soviet power by civil war only. They have always seized on every pretext to predict collapse. But the prophets are now thoroly discredited. When Leon Trotsky, then wa minister had a disagreement ove questions of Communist-policy witi the Central Eecutive Committee o the Russian Communist Party, every bourgeois liar from Riga to Rome sent dispatches to his paper telling of violent struggles between "troops following Trotsky" and troops "loyal to Zinoviev." This was all bunk and the bunk was finally exploded.

WHAT really took place was a sweeping discussion during which the party sought to correct certain erroneous political conceptions held by Trotsky. Trotsky was immensely popular among the masses. He participated in two revolutions and was regarded all over the world among the capitalists as one of the two principals devils of the age. The main devil was Lenin. The bourgeois scribblers could not understand why a man with such popularity among the masses and in the army would allow himself to be so severely criticised without taking extreme measures.

SOCIALISTS, liberals, pseudo-Communists like Max Eastman, and anarcho-syndicalists, sympathized with Trotsky—until Trotsky heard about it. He did not want such sympathy. Max Eastman wrote a book "defending" him. Max said the whole thing was a wicked conspiracy to get rid of Trotsky. Differences of opinion did not count. Nothing counted except that a magnetic personality, a splendid orator, a great organizer and a man with a record of service to the revolutionary movement was getting panned systematically, vigorously and thoroly as perhaps no other leader in the history of the revolutionary movement got panned before for purely personal reasons.

NEEDLESS to say no Communist took this position, least of all Trotsky. Those who took comfort from the differences between Trotsky and the central committee were disappointed and their disappointment has been growing ever since. They reckoned without the power of a great, disciplined, theoretically grounded, experienced revolutionary party. The members of the R. C. P. much tho they admired Trotsky voted against his political line. Trotsky admitted his error and today occupies a very important position in the Soviet government. The fiction that the central ommittee thru jealousy, wanted to give Trotsky out of the party was horoly exploded. Communist parties don't work that way.

WHILE the great debate was on in the R. C. P., stories of threatened civil war were featured on the front pages of the capitalist press. But a few days ago the following notice,—the truth of which I do not vouch for—appeared in a remote corner of the New York Times: Leon Trotsky's early return to a position of influence in Soviet affairs was indicated in the declaration of Leo Kameneff of the Council of Commissars at the Communist Party conference today. He said, "Reports that Trotsky is not on good terms with the members of the Central Executive Committee are not true: He is actively engaged in party work and at the coming party congress in December I shall vote for him as a member of the Central Executive and Political Bureau."

COOLIDGE AND HOOVER SHOUT "PROSPERITY" WHILE WAGES GO DOWN AND UNEMPLOYMENT GAINS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

How both President Coolidge and his secretary of commerce misuse statistics in order to sell their brand of prosperity to the country is suggested in United States department of labor figures for employment and wages in October. These figures show that the average wage paid by factories in October was nearly one-tenth lower than the average of 1920 while factory workers as a group are getting only about three-fourths of the total wages paid them in 1920.

Coolidge Proseprity Bunk.

"In 1920," according to Coolidge's statement to the New York state chamber of commerce, "wages were about 100 per cent above the prewar rates and the average wholesale price of commodities was about 120 per cent above the prewar rates. A steady increase in the wage index took place, so that during the last year it was 120 per cent above the prewar rate. Yet the wholesale price level declined to only 57 per cent above the prewar level. Thus as a result of greater economy and efficiency, and the elimination of waste in the conduct of the national government and of the business of the country, prices went down while wages went up. The wage earner received more while the dollar of the consumer will purchase more."

Coolidge is using the same figures which feature the annual report of Secy. Hoover, who refers to the alleged facts as "one of the most extraordinary transformations in economic history."

Manufacture Good Yarn.

Both Coolidge and Hoover contrive to set up this "transformation" by contrasting the price level of goods produced by farms, mines and factories with union wage scales paid in such industries as building construction, printing and street railways. But the facts, based on federal figures, are that with the exception of coal miners the average producer of goods covered by the wholesale price index is getting considerably lower pay than in 1920.

The average factory wage in 1920, according to the department of labor, was $29.60 a week. In October, 1925, the department shows it as $26.90. Coolidge might have pointed with some justification to the increase of about $1 over October, 1924. But wholesale prices also advanced over 7% in those 12 months. The striking contradiction to Coolidge's figures is the average wage decrease of $2.70 a week from 1920.

Total Wages Smaller.

Of even greater importance in terms of the wage earner's prosperity as a class is the decrease of $350,000,000 a month in the total distributed in wages in 1925 compared with 1920. The total wages paid all factory workers averaged about $1,350,000,000 a month in 1920 and only $1,000,000,000 a month in 1925. The workers evidently get materially less to spend.

The major part of this huge drop in factory wages is due to a decrease of 1,626,000 in the number of workers employed. This sharp drop in the number of jobs available is neglected in Coolidge's hurrahing for prosperity.

The exact position of the large section of the population dependent on factory employment in October 1925 may be defined by the following figures. Average factory employment in the first 10 months of 1925 was 30,000 more than in the same period of 1924. This means that an average of $23,000,000 more in wages was paid monthly in the first 10 months of 1925 than in the same period of 1925.

1,626,000 Unemployed.

But the number employed is still 1,626,000 short of the average number employed in 1920. The total distributed as factory wages this October was approximately $318,000,000 short of the monthly average in 1920.

Emergency Call!

To All Members and Friends of International Labor Defense:

Two big cases are scheduled to come to trial on November 30th. The Pittsburgh raid case of 10 workers and the Zeigler frame-up case of 15 union miners. The lawyers in each of these cases will not proceed with the defense unless we have the money.

FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS MUST BE RAISED BEFORE DECEMBER 15TH

We call upon all members of the I. L. D. to rise to the test and raise this sum. Contribute all you can and get your friends and neighbors to contribute.

POLISH PRIEST STAGES WHITE GUARDIST SHOW

Tells Fable of Rescue of Hero

The white guard archbishop, John Cieplak, who has been in Chicago a few days, is still the center of a deliberately staged show among the Polish residents of the city. This creature who was convicted of receiving bribes from French and Polish spies who were planning campaigns of assassination in Soviet Russia and who was released because he was held in such contempt that the Bolshevik government refused to give the white guardists an excuse to make a martyr of him, is pictured in the capitalist press as a great hero.

Stage Performance.

Yesterday at St. Anne's church, W. Eighteenth and S. Leavitt street, in the Polish diartict, a fake story was concocted for the purpose of bewildering the spectators. A certain forlorn creature of Polish extraction walked up to the archbishop in the church and the two embraced and in general made a holy show of themselves.

To reporters present they related the plain lie that the priest had rescued the other man from a Russian prison whence he had been committed while a soldier in the Polish army. Nothing of the sort ever happened. The record of Cieplak is known here and he never showed anything but the white feather; a snivelling, crawling, disgusting old man, whose whining, cringing posture merited only contempt.

The show staged at St. Anne's is on a par with the other performances of the catholic peddlers of black magic. When "pilgrims" journey to the so-called "shrines" of St. Anne, in Canada and at St. Anne, Illinois, the flop houses of West Madison St. are canvassed to obtain supernumeraries for the show. Perfectly healthy men are given crutches on which they hobble to the shrine, kiss the toe bone of St. Anne, the grandmother of god, and then throw their crutches away and walk out, where they collect their pay for the performance from pious priests, who have to resort to fraud in order to keep the suckers buying magic from them. The Cieplak performance is one with this sort of thing.

Whites Bomb Homes

ST. LOUIS—(FP)—White terror among Negro families in St. Louis continues. After an unsuccessful protest to the owner against the letting of a four-family flat to Negro families, a white mob bombed the building, tearing away the front portion of the structure and breaking every window. The three Negro families who still live there narrowly escaped death or injury. This is the second time the place has been visited by bombers. Following the first blast, one of the families moved out.

Chicago Gets Glimpses of the Agricultural Situation in the Soviet Union

Speech Delivered by J. G. Ohsol of the Amtorg Trading Co.

THE importance of agriculture in the Soviet Union can best be gathered from the fact that from 132 million inhabitants of the Union over 100 million are engaged in agriculture. Furthermore as against two billion dollars worth of property in the industry of the Soviet Union, there are three and three-quarter billions worth of improved farm property in the hands of the Russian farmers, exclusive of land.

The import and export program of the Soviet Union for the next fiscal year calls roughly for one billion gold rubles imports and one billion gold rubles of exports. Of those imports about 20% is contemplated to benefit agriculture, viz: eighty-five million gold rubles worth agricultural machinery, (during the fiscal year ended September 30, 1925, there was imported thirty million gold rubles worth).

OF the total exports the products of grain farming are to constitute 42%, products of the live stock industry 14%, and special products such as flax, hemp and various oil seeds 8%, making altogether about 70% of the total.

During the fiscal year ended September 30, 1925, the missing grain exports were replaced by such items as petroleum, and other products of the mineral industry, also by increased exports of lumber, furs, etc. It must be emphasized that Russia is making great progress in diversified farming, having learned the lesson that exclusive grain farming is too risky on account of the vicissitudes of climate and weather.

Among the other branches of agriculture which the Russian government is trying to develop, is live stock raising, particularly sheep breeding. Sheep breeding is to serve a double purpose. First, the sheep are to "lick the tongue of the desert," which is projecting itself from the planes of Central Asia into south-eastern Russia, north of the Caspian Sea and south of the Ural mountains. Second, it is to supply the rapidly growing Russian wool industry with improved types of wool.

Old Russia even under the princes knew how to make coarse woolens. Peter the Great tried to develop sheep farming in the Ukraine. From 1805 up to 1880 Russia was importing Merino sheep from Spain. By 1880 she counted about fifteen million heads of fine fleeced Merino. Competition of Australia and South Africa, however, coupled with the rapid colonization of southern Russia cut down the size of the sheep flocks of czarist Russia.

THE extensive wheat farming which was stimulated at that time with a view to increase wheat exports, decreased the sheep flocks to such an extent that Russia began to import Merino wool. After 1907 when the agrarian laws promulgated by the czarist Prime Minister Stolypin, created small individual holdings out of village commons, th enumber of sheep flocks owned by the peasants decreased still more. By 1921, after the world war and the civil war, the total sheep flocks of the Soviet Union had decreased to forty million head. From that year on, however, owing to the effective means adopted by the Soviet government for the extension of sheep farming, the number of sheep increased very rapidly. At the present time the total number of sheep in Russia is estimated by Prof. Ivanov at eighty million head of which there are about 700,000 Merino sheep of various degrees of purity.

Of course the types of Russian peasant sheep are mostly of low inbred variety with a very poor grade of wool unsuitable for the manufacture of high class woolens and worsted. To improve the quality of these sheep and of their fleece, the Soviet commissariat of agriculture decided to import several thousand Merinos of the Rambouillet type from the United States of America.

Two representatives of the commissariat of agriculture, Mr. M. S. Pereferkovitch, manager of the animal industry division, and Professor M. Ivanog, expert in sheep, came to this country and made a hasty survey of the sheep flocks of the Rambouillet in Ohio, Wyowing, Colorad oand Oregon during September. Thanks to the hearty co-operation of the Rambouillet Sheep Breeders' Association, and especially ownig to the effective assistance of its capable secretary, Mr. Dwight Lincoln, they were able to select within a month's time a very high grade flock of sheep.

The first shipment of those sheep consisting of 1,200 head left on board the steamship Ardenhail on October 24th, reaching the port of Novorossisk on November 20th. The sheep withstood the severe Fall storms very well, only nine having perished, but twenty-one lambs having been born on the way and several hundred pairs of newly weds completing their first honeymoon trip.

THE other steamship Vestvard with some 1,600 head of sheep on board left New York November 7th, and landed at Novorossisk on November 30th. These sheep are to be distributed among government and co-operative sheep farms in the Ukraine, Northern Caucasus and some in Siberia. Some rams are to be used to improve the sheep flocks of the local farmers. We hope that those American rams will be accorded full recognition by the Russian peasant sheep.

Of equal importance is the hog industry in Russia at the present time. While the number of hogs in the European part of the Soviet Union was nineteen and a half million in 1916, it had been reduced to nine million by 1923.

By the end of 1924 the number of hogs was again near seventeen million.

Bacon factories have been established at various points in Central and South Russia, to cure bacon hams for export.

Dairying is likewise being developed at a rapid rate. The pre-war export of butter from Siberia was about 75,000 tons per annum. In 1920 it fell to 1000 tons. Since then it has been rising every year and during the six months ended December 31, 1924, fourteen and a half thousand tons of Russian butter were exported to Western Europe. During the present fiscal year the butter output is to be doubled.

THE cultivation of sugar beet is increasing yearly. While in 1923 500,000 acres were under sugar beet cultivation, during 1925 over 900,000 acres were thus cultivated.

Last but not least there is a noticeable development in grain farming. Figures for the crop years of 1923, 1924-1925 show the following gross harvest of all grains:

2, 122,000 bu.
(50,541,000 metric tons)
1924
1,921,122,000 bu.
(45,741,000 metric tons)
1925
2, 775,000,000 bu.
(65,500,000 metric tons)

It is to noted that not only the sown area for 1925 was 6 per cent larger than the sown area for 1924, but also the yields were larger, giving 1044 pounds per head of the rural population while in 1924 they were only 720 pounds. The average yields were:

For rye, 12 bushels per acre; for wheat, 12 2-3 bushels per acre; barley, 18 2-3 bushels per acre; oats, 24 bushels per acre; corn 22 bushels per acre.

The estimated commercial surplus of grain for 1925 is between four hundred fifty million bushels.

THE surplus grain available for domestic and export trade is fairly widely diartibuted among the various groups of Russian farmers. It should be noted, however, that two-thirds of this commercial surplus is in the hands of twenty-two per cent of the farmers.

Fear has been voiced in several quarters that the Soviet Union may unload large quantities of cheap grain on the world's markets. Anyone familiar with hte present day conditions in Russia will realize that this is not so. While the farmers of hte Soviet Union may desire to compete thru the higher quality of their grain, they are not disposed to be competitors on the basis of cheapness.

It is well to recall in this connection that Russian settlers introduced the drought resisting Crimean wheat known as Turkey Red into Kansas, and that Russian farmers from Kherson introduced into Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska the well-known Wisred or Sixty Day variety of oats.

It must also be borne in mind that the Russian farmers are far better organized than farmers in several other countries. Let me state right here that Agricultural Producers' Societies in European Russia, exclusive of Siberia, Caucasia and Khirgisia and Ukraine have 29,000 unions with over three million nine hundred thousand farm members; with Ukraine included this membership will reach five million mark. The capital of these societies is 28 million gold roubles. The consumers co-operatives embrace over ten million members in their ranks. These consumers co-operatives have a capital of 32 million gold roubles, and they are distributing at the present time about 70 per cent of the entire output of the textile factories of Russia; from 40 to 50 per cent of the entire sugar output, 80 per cent of the salt output, and about 45 per cent of the domestic output of metal goods.

THESE organized farmers try to obtain the best possible prices for their products, as do the farmers in any other country.

Furthermore these Russian farmers are now steadily adopting modern methods of farming. Tractor farming has made great strides in the arid regions and in the south of Russia. Some ten thousand tractors have been exported to Russia since May 1st, 1924, from the United States alone thru the Amtorg Trading Corporation.

As a result of the revolution, Russian farm labor is enjoying much higher standard of living than before the war. Russia therefore is no longer to be considered a country of cheap farm labor or of cheap farm products. Rather the other way, the Russian farmers are eagerly hoping that the world grain markets should be stabilized at such levels, as to make further impprovements in agriculture remunerative.

PERMIT me, on behalf of the departed representatives of the Soviet Commissariat of Agriculture, to express their and the Russian farmers' deep gratitude to the American farmers for the effective aid tendered during the famine year, 1921, thru the American Relief Administration. Let me congratulate the Rambouillet Sheep-Breeders Association for their helpfulness and business efficiency in selling their splendid sheep, which are now finding their way to Russian farms.

The Trans-Caucasian Republics of the Soviet Union extend an invitation to American agriculturists and farm machinery manufacturers to participate in the Caucasian agricultural exhibition, the first of its kind to be held near the city of Tiflis during March and April of next year.

The Trans-Caucasian Republics are located in the Near East where west meets east in a peaceful way on the and Asia. Let us hope that the forthcoming Tiflis exhibition will not be overlooked by Americans.

FROM BOSTON TO PHILADELPHIA

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 3.—The Philadelphia convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, now in session, can only be properly understood when one keeps in mind at all times the Boston convention and the past three years of internal struggle.

The onlooker who knows nothing of this background, who is not familiar with the treacherous record of the officialdom, who does not know the tricky methods and machine manipulation which gave the Sigman gang a majority of the delegates—to such a person, looking only at the first sessions in Philadelphia, Sigman and his lieutenants would appear as the champions of tolerance, of peace and unity.

In the Boston convention, seventeen months ago, the same Sigman officials had an entirely different attitude. They spent almost the whole time of that convention in throwing out left wingers. Towards the fundamental issues raised by the left wing—amalgamation, the labor party, recognition of Soviet Russia, the shop delegate system, proportional representation, repudiation of class collaboration, for militant leadership in the struggle against the bosses, for organization of the unorganized, etc.—the Sigman machine in Boston was absolutely, unbendingly, opposed.

But here in Philadelphia, Sigman's lieutenants scramble for the floor in order to "beat the left wing to it," in presenting a resolution, for instance, demanding the freeing of Gitlow. There is no doubt they would be willing to vote for many of the fundamental left wing demands, if thereby they thought they could get back into power again, if the left wing would agree to put Sigman in the saddle the next two years.

"But why," asked a reporter from a capitalist paper, who is covering the convention, "if Sigman has a majority of the delegates, does he have to pretend to believe in these measures or any of them, in order to get back into power? Could he not do the same thing here as in Boston if he so desired?"

There is no doubt that, with the majority of the delegates, Sigman can (and may) force his own way thru this convention. But he will not find it so easy as in Boston, and certainly it cannot be done with even the amount of success he had in Boston. Why?

In Boston, 17 months ago the same forces met. At that time the left wing had about 50 delegates, representing, conservatively estimated, forty per cent of the membership. The Sigman and allied forces had some 250 delegates, representing about sixty per cent of the organization. With the left wing in the minority, the Sigman forces were ruthless. Delegate after delegate was unseated. The first ten days were spent in speeches and expulsions. The T. U. E. L. was declared a dual union. The convention adjourned with the understanding on the part of the Sigman crew that the left wing was dead and buried, and must be forgotten.

But it didn't work out so simply. And that is why Sigman wears a different countenance in Philadelphia. This convention, coming as the result of the Boston convention, should be an example and a warning to the leaders of all those unions (and especially to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers) who are now beginning the expulsion policy against the T. U. E. L. and Workers (Communist) Party members, as Sigman did a few years ago.

Yes, Sigman has a majority of the delegates. But he doesn't seem so happy about it as he might be. Nor does he seem to know just how to handle the situation. He has a majority of the delegates—but they represent only about twenty per cent of the membership of the union. So that is why in Philadelphia Sigman's attitude is so different from that in Boston only 17 months ago, why he now talks of peace, harmony and brotherly love.

The credentials committee has reported. The left wing had contested a number of delegates. The Sigman forces contested even more of the left wing delegates. Yet the credential committee (majority report) moves to seat all delegates and leave the contests to the appeals committee. But the left wing has a minority report. This fly in the ointment of Sigman's "majority," in the person of Hyman, challenges Sigman to try to put anything like that over on the membership.

The nature of the Sigman majority is illustrated by the objections they entered against the left wing delegates. They challenged the entire left wing delegation of Locals 2, 9 and 22. They did this in order to stop the left wing from exposing the shady deals by which the Sigman delegates were brought to the convention. They tests to the appeals committee which propose, for this purpose, that all delegates be seated and leave the conmeets on the last day of the convention. Thus they would hide their corruption by keeping the discussion from the floor of the convention, by seating all delegates on the plea of unity.

Majority Is Machine Built.

That the left wing should come back so strong, in such a short time after Boston, in spite of the terrific persecutions, with a majority of the membership now supporting them, is a very discouraging thing for the reactionary machine. They are, however, still fighting. "Bill" Green and John L. Lewis will be here to help them in their struggle. They have a machine-built majority in the convention. But the left wing knows the real relation of forces. They cannot be bluffed. They forced this convention on Sigman. They are determined to force many other things in the interests of the membership in this convention in spite of the paper majority of the Sigman machine.

FROM WHITEWING TO MAYOR

LONDON—(FP)—To preside over the bosses who fired him from his job some time ago is the pleasant duty of C. E. Taylor, new labor mayor of Shoreditch, one of the London wards. Taylor was up to a few years ago employed by the Shoreditch municipal council as a streetsweeper and scavenger, and was fired because a member of the council recognized him as an active labor agitator.

Municipal elections in England, as in Germany, have brought sweeping labor victories. Labor has gained at least 184 seats throughout England, and in London alone it now controls eight bonoughs or wards, covering the whole east side of the city.

Two New Sailor Unions

LONDON—(FP)—Two new unions for British seamen are announced as an outgrowth of the recent strike. The United Seamen's union is formed in London by some of the strikers, and an organization calling itself the Federated Seamen's Union of Britain and Ireland is also announced. The seamen are one of the weakest sections of British organized labor, only about 15% organized, and even these are divided into rival unions. While the rest of British labor is maintaining its wage standards, the seamen have recently had to submit to a $5 a month cut, arranged by the officials of the largest seamen's union, the National Sailors & Firemen's union which, like its rival the Amalgamated Marine Workers union, is affiliated with the Trades Union congress.

Astronomer Is Going Blind After Piercing Heavens for 38 Years

Thirty-ight years of peering into the mysteries of the heavens thru the lens of a telescope have taken their toll and Prof. Edwin Brant Frost, world-famous astronomer, is going blind.

This tragic climax of his devotion to science is revealed in the second volume of the annals of Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern University, off the presses today.

A single phrade, "he has almost completely lost his eyesight," in the dedication of the book to Prof. Frost, who since 1905 has been connected with Yerkes Observatory at William Bay, Wis., laid bare the story.

Get After Nonunionists

LONDON—(FP)—Flag days as a union organization method have recently been tried in England by the National Union of Railwaymen with success. To ensure 100% union organization on the railroads the union had its organizers give flags with the union's colors only to those in good standing. For the London area 50,000 flags were used, and practically 100% results reported from most of the big freight yards. An extension of this campaign to the transport workers under the jurisdiction of the Transport & General Workers Union is under consideration.

The Agricultural Crisis in Iowa

For months reports of acute distress in the agricultural states have been alternately affirmed and denied in the capitalist press and by the government. As the corn crop is now being marketed for Iowa, one of the greatest of the corn states, the real situation comes to light. The condition of the Iowa farmers is so alarming that it has reached Washington and forced Secretary of Agriculture Jardine to hasten to Chicago and try to obtain temporary relief for the farmers from the bankers.

The price the farmers were obtaining for corn has dropped 100% in 13 months. Its price was $1.01 in October, 1924; 98 cents in August of this year; 70 cents in October, 1924; 98 cents in month of November it ranged from 60 cents down to 50 cents.

A number of small banks that advanced short-term loans to farmers to enable them to hold their crop until the market price rose, have already gone out of business as the price steadily fell. In many places whole counties are now without banking facilities.

Now comes Jardine with a conference to "aid the farmers." Two corporations are to be organized with a combined lending power of $5,000,000 to assist the farmers in marketing their crop. The personnel of the magnates arranging the details of the organization is not calculated to arouse sentiments of elation in the breasts of the farmers of the corn belt. There is John C. Shedd, of Marshall-Field & Co., also F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co.; L. A. Carlton of Swift & Co.; B. A. Eckhart of the milling concern that bears his name; besides the packing house and harvester trust bankers of LaSalle street.

The Jardine combine means that not only the corn, but other agricultural products, including live stock will be mortgaged to the big bankers. For the small independent bankers in Iowa it means extinction. If they are permitted a nominal existence it will only be as agents, clerks, for the big bankers. While the present acute crisis may be overcome it means the heavier mortgaging of the farms as a prelude to an exodus of the small farm owners. The history of Minnesota in 1923 will be repeated in Iowa as thousands of families will be driven from the soil and into industry to swell the ranks of the unskilled laborers.

Its political reflex will mean a revival of the agitation for agrarian reform and eventually a swing toward independent political action.

Were it not for the treachery of the scoundrels at the head of the labor movement of this country a labor party would now be in existence that could take advantage of the farm situation to mobilize the thousands of middle-west farmers as allies in the struggle against big capital.

This situation is one more reason why every effort must be put forth by the class conscious elements of the working class to create a party that can lead these expropriated farmers. Standing alone they cannot maintain a political organization and will sink into the confusion of futile agrarianism, instead of realizing the fact that their interests are bound up with those of the industrial workers in the cities.

German Anthracite

Every struggle of the working class against the employers of this country reveals the devastating effects of the treachery of the reactionary officialdom of the American labor movement. The latest salutary lesson to this effect was the arrival of the German steamer Rotterdam at Boston with a shipment of 4,000 tons of Westphalian anthracite. It is the first shipment of such coal from Germany. It is here because the miners of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania are on strike.

Mr. John L. Lewis, the labor lieutenant of the capitalist class, whose machine is in charge of the strike, is part of the same corrupt officialdom that at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor, assailed A. A. Purcell's plea for world trade union unity.

Unity of the labor movements of the world would prevent the miners of anthracite in Germany scabbing on the miners of anthracite in the United States.

It would also prevent the transport workers permitting a shipload of anthracite leaving port in Germany during the strike here. In fact unity of the world's workers would be a crushing blow to the capitalist class of the world. That is why fakers of the Lewis type fight against it. Their job is to keep the workers helpless before the capitalist class.

Black-Jacking Chile and Peru

Under the guise of establishing peaceful relations between Chile and Peru "Black Jack" Pershing is valiantly striving to prevent a peaceful settlement of the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute in order to bring about disorders that will furnish an excuse for permanent occupation of that territory by the armed forces of this country.

All the Coolidge clap-trap about peace and order emanating from Washington is calculated to befog the real issue. Every tyro in the realm of politics knows that the United States government is not a peace-loving outfit. Pershing was sent into that territory to add lustre to his name: he is there to black jack the inhabitants into helplessness so they will be forced to submit to plundering by American capitalism.

His deliberate procrastination in carrying out the promised plebiscite is for one purpose only—to make the territory safe for the imperialist brigands of the United States.

Mr. Winston Churchill says the world will be ruined if the reds get control of it. His world, unquestionably. But that sort of world can easily be sacrificed in order that the workers may create one of their own.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine came to Chicago to learn from bankers the "true condition" of the Iowa farmer. He never thought of going to Iowa and consulting the farmers.

Sigman in the Role of Fascist - -

By H. M. Wicks

WHILE his henchmen were using every low device known to organizational tricksters to obtain a fake majority at the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, now being held in the city of Philadelphia, Morris Sigman, president of that organization, and S. Yanofsky, editor of the official organ, published editorials on democracy, orderliness and loyalty in the organization.

So unspeakable has been the performance of Sigman since he succeded to the office of the discredited Schlesinger that he has incurred the hatred of the overwhelming majority of the membership. When the rank and file perceived the manner in which they were being betrayed into the hands of the bosses in the ladies garment industry they started a movement to save the union from becoming the open adjunct of their class enemies. When the spokesmen for the rank and file, the leaders of the left wing, demanded a policy that would benefit the workers, Sigman fought against them, first by threats, then with open terror. A wholesale policy of expulsions was initiated. When whole locals went over to the left wing gangsters fairly swarmed around the headquarters trying to batter their way in and forcibly expel the duly elected officials of these locals. So much for the democracy of Sigman!

Fear the Left Wing.

REALIZING that the left wing could not be crushed and that the membership of the other locals were swinging to the left, Sigman agreed to a peace pact with the three expelled locals. But it was only an armistice; not the end of the war. What he could not achieve last winter by force he now tries to achieve by a combination of force and puerile lies.

In a series of articles in "Justice," the official magazine of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, the Sigman machine discloses itself in a new role. Instead of assailing openly the left wing and the Communists as it did during the open fight it now tries to present "serious" arguments against them. It now fears and respects the power of the left wing.

Freedom and Light.

NO longer able to advocate brute force it now resorts to the typical yellow socialist palaver about freedom and light and truth.

It dare not advocate extermination of the left wing as it once did, so it now tries to defeat the left wing program by the most amazing misrepresentation.

It opposes a labor party, one of the basic demands of the left wing, on the grounds that such a party would violate the freedom of the membership of the union to choose for themselves the party they affiliate with. The editor of "Justice," says that a labor party embracing all the workers would be a distinct violation of their political beliefs. In the next paragraph he lets the cat out of the bag by declaring that among the membership are "avowed socialists who might consider such a plan for 'a labor party embracing all the workers' as a Communist ruse to break up further the socialist political organization."

That is precisely the point! This despicable machine, bound through illicit relationship to the odious Abe Cahan's Jewish Daily Forward, gets its inspiration from that polluted source. The Forward, in turn, is an expression of the murderers of the working class of Europe, the social-democratic heroes and kings' ministers, the Vanderveldes, Scheidemanns, Tchernoffs, Dans, Abramoviches and Noskes. Just as these swindlers in Europe scorn the united front of the workers of Europe but form the closest alliances with the capitalist ravagers in all countries, so the Cahans, Schlesingers and Sigmans who infest the needle trades of this country resist the united front demand for an all-embracing labor party, but support the socialist party in its treachery to the working class.

As they dare not permit their readers and members to learn the real character of the labor party demand of the Communists, they distort the nature of such a party by declaring that "if all the workers are to belong to one political party, that whoever would venture to belong to another political group or school would by the nature of this resolution be ipso facto discriminated."

Everyone familiar with the structure of an "all-embracing labor party" knows full well that it does not mean forcing all the workers to follow one school of political thought in the labor movement.

Such a party would be based upon the trade unions and working class political parties. One of the fundamental demands of the Communists is that such a party must permit varied expression of political opinions. Within such a party the Communists would be free to carry out their propaganda and endeavor to convince the other groups that our program is correct; the socialists would have the same privilege, likewise the S. L. P., the proletarian party, and such other minor political groups as may now exist or come into being.

Opposing a labor party on the basis of the objections of the Sigman machine is nothing more nor less than plain trickery and dishonesty.

World Trade Union Unity.

ON much the same sort of argument the Sigman publication denounces the demand for world trade union unity. First starting out to whitewash their own unspeakable record of thuggery by accusing the Communists of having, in the recent left wing warfare in New York, tried "to root out every shred of unity in our midst and to break down feelings of unity in though and action," the objections to trade union unity conclude with an apology for fascist unions. In plain words, printed in the English language on page 4 of "Justice," for Friday, Nov. 27, 1925, appears the following sentence:

"How, for instance, would such a scheme for the 'unity of the workers all over the world' be accepted by the fascist workers of present-day Italy, or similar large groups in almost every country of Europe and America?"

Just because the fascist brigands and assassins of the working class in Italy object to world trade union unity that is an excuse for Sigman to resent its advocacy. Thus is revealed the real character of the gangsters who make up the bulwark of the Sigman machine. By their actions in the New York affair they were proved to be fascists in practice. We now have the theoretical justification of fascism in the official organ, under the guise of an "impartial, theoretical" discussion of convention problems.

World trade union unity is essential because there are fascist groups in every country on earth trying to crush the workers so they will be helpless before the capitalist exploiters. We do not want unity with such organizations, but against them. Against the methodical, organized murder of the working class we raise the slogan of solidarity of all conscious elements that are willing to fight for the elementary demands of labor against the capitalist class.

The official organ of the I. L. G. W. U. entirely ignores the necessity of world trade union unity in order effectively to mobilize the colonial slaves whose industrial products flood the world market, enabinig the capitalists of the home countries to beat down the wages of their workers. It ignores the necessity for unity of action to prevent coal miners of Germany, Wales and other parts of the world producing coal to break strikes of American miners, and vice-versa. Its sole objection is that the fascist workers (?) might object.

Such loathsome scoundrels; such vile renegades!

Recognition of Russia.

SIGMAN and his machine sink far below most of the labor fakirs in America when they discuss the question of recognition of Soviet Russia. Here, in the same column, on the same page, where the wishes of the fascisti are considered a bar to world trade union unity we see the following regarding recognition of Russia:

"It is our belief that no person who regards human freedom as the greatest conquest of our civilization, can recognize the Russian government, which is the embodiment of the greatest tyranny of our day and the most outspoken violator of the idea of human freedom."

Nothing in all the volumes of filth spewed forth from the lie factories of Riga, Berlin and Paris, has surpassed this vile statement.

In this one screed is revealed in all its hideousness the real attitude of the Sigman machine. It denounces the only workers government on the face of the earth, a government a thousand times more democratic than the most democratic bourgeois government, as a monumental tyranny, while expressing grave concern over the opinion of the black-shirt hordes of Mussolini who crush with the greatest excesses of frightfulness every vestige of effective labor organization. For two years this has been the practice of the Sigman machine. The theory has now been worked out as an argument against the left wing demands.

Every left-winger in the organization should carefully preserve the issue of November 27, and explain its implications to the membership. Against the proletarian revolution it espouses fascism; against world trade union unity, universal scabbery; against an all-embrcaing labor party, the infamies of the second international.

Sigmanism, as formulated above, may contrive to prolong its existence by fascist methods or, failing in that, by the manipulation of fraudulent delegations, but it must go and that soon for it it a blot upon the labor movement that can not be tolerated.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

(The fourth instalment of "Labor in the Far East" deals with the two currents in the mass Shanghai strike the national anti-imperialist current and the labor current. The preceding instalments were as follows: 1. The workers' strike becomes the backbone of the entire nationalist emancipation movement. 2. The revival of the Chinese labor movement in 1924. 3. The textile workers and their struggle against the capitalist offensive.)

• • • •

ARTICLE IV.

By L. HELLER.

THE distinctive feature of the mass mass Shanghai strike that has been carried on fully three months, a fact unparalelled not only in the history of the young labor movement of the East, but in the entire world trade union movement, is that in it two currents, a nationalist and a labor, merged into one powerful stream.

It will be recalled that in the early days of the strike both the workers and the business men joined in it. Not only were the big Chinese shops and banks, employing wage workers closed, but the small shops that have no hired employees were shut as well. This general strike lasted upwards of three weeks.

On June 25, the business strike, by agreement with the Trades Council, was discontinued. Only the workers of the British and Japanese establishments continued to strike. This is in itself a sufficient indication of the national, anti-imperialist character of the strike.

Even more striking was the national character in the 17 demands that were put forward at the beginning of the strike. Among these demands we find: The restoration of the concessions, abolition of extraterritoriality, and of the consular courts, and a number of other less important demands, having as their object, the abolition of the privileges enjoyed by aliens in China and the restoration of the independence and sovereingty of the country.

HOWEVER, the same list includes purely labor demands, such as, recognition of trade unions, higher wages, better conditions of labor, etc. In this combination of far-reaching nationalist and moderate labor demands, both aspects of the strike, the nationalist and labor, found expression. And it is clear that at first the main current was the nationalist anti-imperialist current, the striking workers were an army fighting for the interests of the nation as a whole. No wonder the entire nation supported it.

The entire nation, yet with some reservations. One section of the big business men, organized in the Shanghai chamber of commerce, very soon manifested an inclination to make peace with the imperialists and liquidate the strike. This section had too many interests in common with the foreign capitalists, as well as a common fear of the success of the labor movement. But with the exception of this influential but small group the masses of the petty and even middle city bourgeoisie stood up as a wall around the working class, creating an atmosphere not only of sympathy, but of active material assistance as well. Therein lies the secret of the scope of the movement, on the one hand, and of the steadfastness and duration of the strike on the other.

The longer the strike continued, the clearer it became that the basic nationalist objects moved forward at the beginning of the strike, and given expression in the 17 demands, by their very nature, could not possibly be won by any strike, no matter how solidly and long continued. The return of the "leased" and in reality seized territories and concessions like Shanghai, which are of tremendous importance to the imperialists as a Pacific base, can be achieved only thru an armed struggle of all China, thru a victorious war. The strike movement, however was limited only to Shanghai and Hongkong. In the rest of China despite all the sympathy and the general rise of the nationalist movement, the strike wave remained unorganized. The demonstrations of the workers and students had a sparodic character and were easily put down by the cruel measures taken by the imperialist and their Chinese lackeys. Such was the case in Hankow, Tientsin, Tsintao, Nankin, etc.

HONGKONG in the south, and Shanghai in Central China were in the long run left to their own fate. The strike movement appeared to have entered a cul-de-sac. Some change was necessary, some new basis, the adjustment of the objects to the isolated character of the strike. It was here in this second phase of the movement, that the other, labor side of the strike revealed itself. Leaving the force in the national slogans as the militant cry of the national struggle, urging on to the defence of these demands all the forces of the nation, and placing the responsibility for the continuation of the national struggle upon the Pekin and Canton governments. The Shanghai Labour Council moved to the fore, not the national, but the labor demands: Trade union recognition, higher wages, the reinstatement of all strikers and some others. The national demands were reduced to questions of local significance, such as the mixed court, the equalization of the rights of the Chinese and the foreigners in the foreign settlement. This again opened up the possibility of maneuvering, negotiating, compromising.

RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS CALLS ON AMSTERDAM FOR FIGHT AGAINST FASCISM

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 3.—The Red International of Labor Unions calls upon the Amsterdam International Federation of Trade Unions to make a united front against the recent attacks of the Italian fascisti on the trade unions in a letter sent by Losovsky to the secretary of the Amsterdam International:

"The Italian trade unions, built up as the result of decades of work and struggle have been destroyed by fascism. The fascist corporations have occupied the rooms of the unions. The police and the fascist mobs have realized the monopoly of the fascist trade unions.

Make Noose for Workers.

"The Italian industrialists are utilizing the destruction of the unions in order to fasten the noose still more tightly around the necks of the workers. The Italian proletariat is in a very difficult situation and the aid of the whole international proletariat is absolutely necessary in order to call the fascist bands to a halt.

"The International Federation of Trade Unions and the Red International of Labor Unions are equally interested in assisting the Italian unions.

Propose Common Action.

"We propose common action in all countries against the unequalled terror of the fascists. There is not the slightest doubt about the urgent necessity for such action and we therefore propose a commencement of the work with united forces for the struggle against the destruction of the Italian unions. We should be grateful to you if you would inform us in what way you think this common action to assist our Italian brothers should be organized. We declare now our readiness to make all efforts to remove possible hindrance which may occur in our common struggle against fascism."—Signed: Losovsky.

Workers of All Trades Determined to Stand by I. L. D. in Gitlow Fight

(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The Paper Plate and Bag Makers' Union, local 107, Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers International, at its regular meeting at Grand Mansion Hall, 7? Ludlow street, unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the convicting of Benjamin Gitlow.

Denouncing the recent decision of the United States supreme court as a move to deny the right of freedom of speech to the labor movement, the resolution says in part:

WEREAS, the sustaining of Gitlow's conviction by the United States supreme court supplies a precedent which will mean the railroading to long terms in prison of many other well known fighters in the ranks of the labor movement and will make easier the suppression by the capitalist controlled government of all and any working class organizations which dare oppose their open shop rule, therefore be it

RESOLVED that we protest against and condemn the action of the United States supreme court; demand the repeal of the criminal anarchy law and will work to that end; record ourselves as in support of the International Labor Defense in fighting this case and call upon all labor bodies and working class organizations to take the same stand.

NEGRO POLITICIANS APPEAL TO COOLIDGE FOR CONCESSIONS TO HINDER WORKERS' ORGANIZATION

By HAYWOOD HALL.

The world-wide reaction of the capitalist press to the American Negro Labor Congress has amply demonstrated the significance and importance of that organization. The American Negro Labor Congress has succeeded in forcing the "race problem" to an uppermost place in the national mind. In other words, it has called for a showdown on the part of the big political bosses and the self-styled leaders and protectors of the inherent rights of the Negro masses under whose moral, spiritual and political guidance they have been for so many years. It has asked of these emissaries of big business and also of their henchmen, the Negro politicians, the "good man Fridays" who have capitalized on the exploitation of the Negro masses, what are they doing to deserve the further confidence of these Negro masses?

Mission Appeals To Coolidge.

Whereupon a group of these self-appointed leaders, under the leadership of one, Melvin Chisum, field secretary in recent years of the National Negro Press association; veteran of many shady deals; erstwhile promoter of bogus stock companies that were instrumental in filching the working class of his race out of many of their hard-earned dollars and whose questionable career in the field of Negro journalism has been highly enlivened by many charges of slander; went to the white house to interview President Coolidge in behalf of the "Negro people of the United States."

It should require no great amount of mental exertion to lay bare the opportunistic character of their enterprise. This charlatan, Chisum, and others of his ilk merely seek to capitalize upon the interest aroused by the American Negro Labor Congress and regain the fast ebbing confidence of the Negro masses. To bring the once docile and long suffering flock back into the fold is the task to which these shepherds of depravity have set themselves. This group, recently formed under the pretentious title of the National Political and Economic Conference has been highly acclaimed by the Negro petty bourgeois press thruout the nation. In their plea for executive aid for the abolition of discrimination in the various branches of government was embodied a veiled warning to the republican party, the delegation stated that "while in the past, the black race has usually aligned themselves with the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt because of their belief in the principles set forth in its platform, we thot it advisable to say to the party leaders that if they expect the black race to continue in the practice of their part fealty, we shall expect full participation in all that pertains to party activities." (Bold type mine.) And we might also add, the spoils accruing therefrom.

Look For Jobs.

Altho this group went up to see "Silent Cal" ostensibly on the program of racial welfare and betterment we have no doubt that their mission was "successfully" terminated as are the usual run of these pre-election crusades by the throwing out of a few mediocre jobs as campaign spellbinders by the chairman of the national republican committee.

This charlatanism amply demontrates the true character of a certain type of leadership now obtaining in the Negro race.

It is interesting to note that as a result of the interest aroused by the American Negro Labor Congress, conciliatory movements are daily springing up thruout the country in an attempt to stem the rising tide of unrest manifesting itself within the ranks of the Negro masses.

Newspapers hitherto hostile or indifferent to the Negro are adopting a more friendly tone. All are extremely solicitous in "keeping our blacks from turning reds"; some even go so far as to admit that it is thru their negligence in regard to the welfare of the Negro that is responsible for their unrest and to insinuate that in the future they must do better.

To Fight Negro Workers.

Basing our deductions upon the matter that has come before us since the congress, we are ready to predict that many conciliatory movements fostered by the ruling class will now arise for the purpose of counteracting the "pernicious red propaganda."

The Negro petty bourgeois leaders will again divulge the inate parisitism of their class by adopting the role of mediators, a role, the character of which, will at same time, bring some advantages to themselves.

WAR DEPARTMENT FLATLY REFUSES TO RECONSIDER PAUL CROUCH FRAME-UP

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALCATRAZ, Cal., Dec. 3.—Paul Crouch, Communist ex-soldier imprisoned here, has received a flat refusal from the war department to his request for an investigation of the illegal manner in which he was tried by general court-martial and given a sentence of 40 years at hard labor. The war department has declined to give Crouch the opportunity of presenting new evidence.

The Communist ex-soldier offered to prove that his trial was a prepared farce and that the charges against him and Trumbull were manufactured for the purpose of preventing soldiers from expressing sympathy with the workers' cause and the only workers' country—the Soviet Union.

It is obvious that something was wrong when a sentence of 40-years was reduced to 3. It is evident, even from the viewpoint of the war department (after a bombardment of public protest), that the court martial had a perverted and distorted sense of justice. But like the Tea Pot Dome incident and other crimes of the master class, it must not be investigated. The masses must not be shocked by an expose of this bosses' crimes.

SIG[illegible] MACHINE CLASHES WITH LEF[illegible]ING OVER COMMUNISTS IN UNION AT I. L. G. W. U. CONVENTION

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Dec. 4.—A near riot lasting ten minutes broke out when a machine delegate from Cleveland objected to Rubin of Local 2 speaking in Yiddish against the unseating of Marks. Sigman opened the session this morning by speaking on the introduction to the Executive Board's report. He took the occasion to make a veiled attack on Judick and the Freiheit, because of its criticism of his policy.

The objection to delegates became the order of business on the conclusion of Sigman's weak speech and the case of E. Marks of Local 2 was taken up. The case against Marks appears to be that he, during the Palmer raids, denied membership in the Communist Party.

The joker in the proceedings is that the charge against Marks is preferred by bitter enemies of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

The guiding rule of the Sigman machine in such cases seems to be that if one is a bad Communist he should not be taken into the union, but that if one is a good Communist one should be kicked out. Marks will be seated after the machine speakers have vented their spite on the Communists. Antonini led the attack on the Communists.

The demand for the severance of all relations with the civic federation will be made by I. L. G. W. delegates at the next A. F. of L. convention if resolution thirty signed by 17 delegates of the largest locals passes. The question comes up on the initiative of the left wing after many years.

The resolution so far introduced, if passed, will put the I. L. G. W. far in the van of the American labor movement.

There are three resolutions against immigration restriction, three endorsing the International Labor Defense, for recognition of Russia and the sending of a trade union delegation there, one for freeing Gitlow signed by many delegates, two resolutions for the 44-hour week, one for May first as an obligatory holiday, two against the expulsion policy, three for a labor party, one each against child labor and military training camps, two for the shop delegate system, one against class collaboration which outlines a complete program of struggle, three for amalgamation and one for support of The DAILY WORKER and the Freiheit.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

"MAJOR" GEORGE L. BERRY has announced his candidacy for the presidency of the International Printing Pressmens' and Assistants' Union to succeed himself. No doubt he will. The only novel feature of the election is that Berry after treating the union for several years as his own personal property should go to the trouble of seeking endorsements from the membership. Having already secured the sanction of the employing printers there is no reason why the "Majah" should waste good ink singing his own praises in the columns of his own journal which is considerably subsidized by scab ads.

THE hide of a rhinoceros is delicate compared to the intellectual skin of "Majah" Berry. But nothing is impossible and readers of The DAILY WORKER, particularly in Mr. Berry's personal union, will be interested to learn that the series of articles that appeared in this paper some time ago, in the nature of an autobiography of Mr. Berry, got on the inside of that worthy's skin.

IN the November issue of the American Pressman, George offers himself and his international crew of strikebreakers for re-election. Speaking for the gang, Mr. Berry declares "we are desirous of continuing the great work in which we are now engaged." For the benefit of those not in the know, Mr. Berry's principal visible means of support is strikebreaking, with the sanction of the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor.

HAVING proven his good intentions, the "Majah" sailed into the Communists. But for a few "un-

LEFT WING FORCES SIGMAN TO SEAT DELEGATE FROM LOCAL 38

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—The question of seating one lone delegate, Rea, a member of Local 38 and the editor of La Frustra, a little anarchist sheet, in the afternoon session of the convention showed the inner weakness of the machine better than any development to date.

Rea himself played an unimportant part, but the struggle between Ninfo and Antonini which he aroused brought delight to the progressives. The charges against Rea seem to have arisen out of the criticism of Ninfo carried on by La Frustra and resulted in the expulsion of eight members by Ninfo. The case was clearly a political one and without endorsing the views held and opinions expressed by Rea, the progressives were in favor of his being seated.

The bitterness of the struggle for power between Antonini and Ninfo, altho no basic difference on policy exist, came to light when Antonini took the floor and opposed the credentials committee report unseating Rea. Hyman followed and urged that Rea be seated.

"Blackest of Black."

Zack, a member of Local 38 himself, brought loud and prolonged protests from the Ninfoites when he characterized Ninfo and his official family as "the blackest of the black in our international." Demands that he withdraw the statement were made and the uproar continued until quieted by Sigman, who then renewed officially the demand for a retraction.

"That statement is my opinion and I will not retract," said Zack. "I stick to it altho I want it understood that it does not apply to the members of Local 38 who are workers." Sigman

FINNISH BUREAU UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED: FOR BOLSHEVIZATION

The conference of the Finnish section of the Workers (Communist) Party opened last Sunday and closed its work on Thursday night with the unanimous election of a bureau of 13 members and an appeal to the membership of the Finnish section for loyal and energetic support of the bolshevization of the party thru reorganization.

The convention, which had on Tuesday unanimously accepted the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee, discussed the various problems of the Finnish section in relation to the work of reorganization during the intervening days. Resolutions were adopted for the guidance of the branches of the Finnish section in relation to the membership coming into the shop nuclei and street nuclei and the work of the workers' clubs. The latter is an important problem for the Finnish section, in view of the fact that most of the branches maintain large headquarters, halls, which are the center of social, dramatic and athletic activities for the membership. The problems in connection with these phases of the activity of the organization have been solved in such a way as to lay the foundation in building even a stronger movement among the Finnish workers and at the same time drawing the membership into the work of the party thru the shop nuclei and street nuclei.

Elects Bureau.

The bureau elected consists of thirteen members and three candidates. This bureau consists of Janhonen, Massachusetts district; Sjoman, New York district; Karhu and Matt Wick, Ohio-Pennsylvania-Southern Michigan district; Puro, Burman, Sulkannen, Maki and Wilkkula, who will be located in Chicago and constitute an executive council which will carry on the work between the sessions of the whole bureau; Corgan from the Mesaba Range; Tenhunen and Heikkinen from the Minnesota-Wisconsin territory, and Parras from the Washington-Oregon-California territory. The three candidates are: Comrade Tini Hyrskymurte of California, Comrade Luoto from the Rocky Mountain district, and Comrade Nieva from South Dakota.

The convention adopted a manifesto addressed to the membership of the Finnish section, urging every member to become a member of a shop nucleus or street nucleus of the party during the reorganization. The manifesto points out the need of bolshevization of the Workers (Communist) Party and that the Finnish membership must support

Finds Gold Nugget.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 4—Excitement ran high here following the discovery of a gold nugget weighing 43 ounces by C. B. Nelson, a prospector. Nelson discovered the large nugget on the Kantishna river, about 60 miles west of Kobe. The nugget is valued at $731.

NUMBER CAUGHT BY RAGING FIRE MAY REACH 60; RESCUE SQUADS FEAR ALL DEAD FROM BLACK DAMP

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOULDER, Colo., Dec. 4.—Twenty-five miners are entombed in the Cardinal mine, 18 miles south of here with little hope entertained of their being rescued alive, according to a report reaching here at noon today.

The men were trapped when fire caused by defective wiring blocked the exits.

A later report states that the number now believed caught in the mine was between forty and sixty. The danger to the entombed men lies in the fact that the fire is raging in the tunnel, which is a mile and half long may draw out all the air, causing fatal "black damp."

It is thru this entrance that rescue, if rescue is possible, must be made and little hope is expressed that an entrance can be gained until late tonight.

Rescue Crews Arrive.

The fire starting between 8 and 8:30 this morning was soon beyond control of the men working at the mouth of the mine and alarms were sent to Nederland and Boulder for assitance. Superior, Colo., another mining town responded to appeals for help, rushing a mine rescue car stationed at that point to Boulder where they will be rushed by high powered automobiles to the scene of the disaster.

Fire Chief Healy of Denver immediately rushed a crew equipped with gas masks and fire fighting equipment to the stricken mine. More than 300 miners from adjoining camps have been organized into rescue squads.

All Shut Off.

The compressor and fan houses, the latter supplying fresh air for the tunnel was completely destroyed at a loss estimated between $10,000 and $15,000.

The working crew of the Cardinal tunnel, which is a gold and silver mine, is composed of sixty men, according to information received from Nederland. Whether all of these men were in the mine at the time of the fire could not be learned.

William Bryant, a miner who was at the mouth of the tunnel when the blaze started was badly burned.

So far as can be learned there has been no explosion in the tunned and officials are holding out hope that the men possibly are still alive.

All Hope Is Gone.

BOULDER, Colo., Dec. 4—Hopes of saving any of the men entombed today in the Cardinal mine, 18 miles from here, were further dashed late today when smoke was discovered pouring in dense volumes from an abandoned air shaft, 3,700 feet from the entrance.

Persons familiar with the workings of the mine expressed the belief that if the men were caught between that airshaft and another at the extreme eastern end of the tunnel in which they were trapped, all have been suffocated by now.

Altho company officials continue to assert there were only 18 men in the mine to the best of their knowledge other estimates varied widely, running as high as sixty.

LOCARNO PEACE PACT ENSLAVES GERMAN TOILERS

Communists Expose Imperialist Aims

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, (By Mail).—The Interparliamentary Communist Congress which is holding its sessions here spent its second day in the discussing of the alliance of American and English capital in the Locarno peace pact for the exploitation of the subjugated peoples in Europe and of the colonies.

Comrade Treint spoke upon the altered European situation in consequence of the Locarno pact: the groupings of the capitalist powers, the strengthening of Germany, the weakening of France and the attachment of Germany to England. The Locarno pact is also of the greatest importance for the colonial question which reacts once again upon the constellation in Europe. The Locarno pact prepares the attack upon the Soviet Union. Locarno is it is true the introduction to a temporary understanding between America and Great Britain, but at the same time it means the preparation for the conflict between the imperialist contradictions of America and England on other fields.

Fight Locarno Pact.

Comrade Heckert stressed in his remarks the fact that America was the initiator of Locarno which will result in a temporary understanding between American and British imperialism in order to mobilize all capitalist forces against the Soviet Union the existence of which is a permanent threat to

We Must Finish the Job for Our Daily!

To All Party Branches, Party Members, and Party Sympathizers:

The party and supporters of The DAILY WORKER have raised $28.926.88 during the past ten weeks to keep alive this weapon of the working class revolutionary movement. The work done to save and insure The DAILY WORKER for the coming year, is a tribute to the loyalty to the revolutionary movement, of the members of our party and the sympathizers who aided in the work. The support given The DAILY WORKER enabled it to survive the crisis which threatened its life. The facts of the situation of The DAILY WORKER were frankly told to the membership of the party and the sympathizers with our movement and the response given showed that they realized the seriousness of the situation and were determined to save The DAILY WORKER for the party.

The goal which was set for The DAILY WORKER fund at the beginning of the campaign was $40,000. This was the amount needed to overcome the crisis and put The DAILY WORKER in a position so that it would not need again to appeal for donations and contributions for another year. With this total sum at its command, The DAILY WORKER would be in a position to liquidate its pressing obligations to creditors and have some freedom to mobilize its forces for a subscription campaign and increase of its circulation and support, which might in the future place it beyond the need of appealing for donations.

The funds raised is still $11,000 short of this total of $40,000. The party has determined to ask the members and sympathizers with our movement to complete this fund by December 15th. On that date The DAILY WORKER campaign is to be closed. It must be closed with the total of $40.000 registered as the sum collected for The DAILY WORKER fund.

There remains a period of ten days to raise the amount needed to complete the fund. Every branch of the party, every party member and every sympathizer with the movement is urged to use these ten days to drive up the total contributions to The DAILY WORKER fund to the $40,000 mark. That means that at least $1.000 must be raised each day during these ten days.

There are in the hands of many members of the party and sympathizers The DAILY WORKER fund coupons. Each member and sympathizer who has one of the SAVE THE DAILY WORKER coupon sheets, should make every effort to sell the balance of the coupons by the 15th and then promptly send the remittance to The DAILY WORKER. The branches of the party which still have funds collected from the November 7th meetings, or special affairs for the benefit of The DAILY WORKER, should rush these in to The DAILY WORKER. The efforts to raise funds thru the party branches and other units of the party should continue and the largest possible donations sent in by the 15th of December.

Comrades, the difference between the situation if The DAILY WORKER fund is not driven up to the total $40,000 will be, whether The DAILY WORKER shall limp along on the verge of a crisis, with possibilities or having again to appeal to the membership in the near future, or whether we shall begin the new year with a secure foundation and the road clear for a struggle to make The DAILY WORKER self-supporting by increasing its circle of readers.

We ask you to make it posible for The DAILY WORKER to face the new year with confidence and assurance that in place of going down under the difficulties which a working class newspaper must face, it will be in a position to strengthen itself, to increase its influence in the working class movement, to build itself as a secure instrument for service to the revolutionary movement in the United States. The party can give The DAILY WORKER the assurance, if the latter will be the case, by making the last ten days count to complete the $40,000 fund.

COMRADES, INTENSIFY THE CAMPAIGN FOR THE DAILY WORKER.

SELL AND SEND IN YOUR REMITTANCE FOR THE DAILY WORKER COUPONS.

RAISE MORE FUNDS THRU YOUR BRANCHES. MAKE THE REPORT OT THE FUNDS LEAP UPWARDS BY AT LEAST $1,0000 A DAY.

Fraternally yours,
C. E. RUTHENBERG,
General Secretary.

scrupulous Communists nestled in the great city of Chicago" there would be no opposition to his candidacy, modestly declares Mr. Berry. The Workers Party would be pleasantly surprised if it had as many members on its rolls as there are members in the Pressmens' Union, who would like to see Berry under the monument that covers the dust or what may or may not be the "unknown soldier." So much for the "Majah's" popularity in his own union.

LABOR fakers, as a rule are not noted for intellectual attainments but some of them make an effort to reach some degree of literacy. After assailing The DAILY WORKER insinuatingly, George says: "We do not seek the support of any person who believes that the government of the United States or the government of Canada should be overthrown or destroyed. We do not believe there is a corporal's guard in our organization who hold such opinions and it is because of this that we seek renomination and re-election to the offices which we now hold and those to which we aspire, believing in the great American traditions of freedom, free from autocracy of Sovietism or autocracy from selfishness." (Emphasis ours—T. J. O'F.)

NOW we know why the average labor faker aspires to office in the trade union movement! To save this and neighboring governments from being overthrown! If Berry whispered this in the vicinity of a Missouri mule's tail, his face would be decocrated sufficiently to enable him to pose as a wounded hero of the world war and perhaps give him an excuse to apply for the title of general. Berry's only regret for the year, is the action of members of the union in Chicago in striking against open shop conditions in a big printing plant. But Berry "fixed" the strikers, and he made no distinctions between conscious radicals and ordinary non-political trade unionists.

THE pressmen will gain nothing by railing against Berry. They must learn to fight him effectively. They must organize. Of course he is a political crook, but that is the business of the reactionary leadership of the American Federation of Labor. They are the "labor" wing of the capitalist government. Berry knows quite well that there are no Communists in the rebellious local of Chicago. If there were and if their policies dominated, there would not be any foolishness such as resorting to capitalist courts for injunctions even against such a capitalist flunkey as Berry.

WHEN the members of Pressmens' Union No. 3 deposed a tool of Berry's as president, they replaced him with one of the most bitter Communist haters in Chicago, a fake progressive who expected to carry favor in certain quarters by denouncing the Communists. This lickspittle policy never gets the workers anywhere.

THE pressmen were licked by Berry and the bosses because they expected to win by playing a lone hand. If they are to get rid of Berryism in the future they must have both a policy and organization and not depend on the futile method of using "strong" language on the "Majah."

CLEVELAND, O., Doc. 4.—The East Liverpool committee of the International Labor Defense will hold a mass meeting Sunday, Dec. 6, in the afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Trades Council Hall. A large attendance is expected at both meetings.

informed Zack that he would not be allowed to continue until he retracted, but as Zack proceeded to elaborate upon the low regard in which he held Ninfo as an official, Sigman, after another interruption in the form of a weak five-minute speech explaining why he would not go thru with his previous mandate to deprive Zack of the floor if no retraction was made, allowed Zack to finish his speech. It was an embarrassing position for the president of one of the largest international unions.

Sigman Retreats.

Confronted with a division of his forces while the left wing maintained an ominous and eloquent silence speaking louder than words during his controversy with Zack, Sigman beat a not very graceful retreat. Facing a situation in which the whole expulsion and suppression policy was being aired while the individual involved was sure to be seated the machine became "good sports" as they expressed it.

Portnoy and Wishnevsky explained that the seating of Rea was no favor but part of the policy of the progressives, altho they took no responsibility for the acts or utterances of Rea. Certain of defeat on this issue the machine speakers became ardent advocates of amnesty and toleration. It is probable that as a result of this discussion the expulsion policy has been dealt a blow from whcih it will not recover.

Rea was seated by a vote of 111 to 71.

Invite New York Shop Chairmen.

The shop chairmen elected at the Cooper Union meeting have been invited to the convention. An attempt was made to combine the motion to do this with an invitation to Ashpiz, provisional managers for Local 2 appointed by the machine during the New York struggle, but the motion was divided, the shop chairmen being invited unanimously while 101 votes were cast against the invitation to Ashpitz.

Machine Seats Slugger.

At the end of the morning session after several hours of bitter debate Dolnick of Chicago, charged with slugging and running a corporation shop, was seated by a vote of 147 to 107.

Settle Suit.

A suit for 50,000 damages, based upon the finding of a dead mouse in a bottle of root beer served to Jack Taylor of Harvey, Ill., in a soft drink parlor in that town, was settled in chambers by the Hydrox Company of Chicago as the suit was called for trial.

HORACEK FOUND GUILTY UNDER SEDITION LAW

Prosecutor Plays on Jury's Prejudices

BY ELLA REEVE BLOOR.
(I. L. D. Press Service.)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—The jury in the case of Edward Horacek, active member of Machinist's Union here charged with a violation of the Pennsylvania state sedition law, found Horacek guilty on counts seven and eight of the indictment, charging him with the distribution of literature, etc., and of membership in a party tending to teach sedition etc., after it had been "deading" one and a half hours. He was found not guilty on all other counts. Bail has been renewed for Horacek and the case will be appealed to a higher court.

Fight to Higher Court.

The case of the other eight who are also charged with violation fo the same law will not come up until the Horacek case has been fought in the highest court of the country.

The jury which tried Horacek was composed of a number of aged women, a foreman, and business men. The personnel of the jury was published in an earlier issue of The DAILY WORKER.

Plays on Prejudices.

The prosecutor in the trial of Edward Horacek, accused of a violation of the state sedition act, made a most inflamatory speech before the jury denouncing the "reds", Bolsheviks, the Russian revolution and Lenin, playing on the prejudices of the jury to return a verdict of guilty. Thruout his entire speech he made a grand stand play to the jury on their 100 per cent Americanism.

In referring to Horacek, he launched on a tirade, declaring that if he did not like America, he could go back to Bohemia where he had come from and that Horacek would never receive the enormous salary in Bohemia that he was now receiving.

Workers Party on Trial.

Following the display of ignorance by the prosecutor, Judge Prather in his instruction to the jury, said that the burden of the proof lays on the programs of the Workers Party as to whether admitted membership in the Workers Party means advocacy of sedition. He also instructed the jury to examine what the Communist International was and the relation of the Workers Party to the Communist International. In his instructions the judge actually placed in the hands of the jury the question of deciding whether or not the Workers Party is illegal or not. It is not so much a trial of Horacek as it is of the Workers Party in Pennsylvania.

After his instructions the jury adjourned to an adjoining room to decide as to the verdict to bring in.

Merrick's Cowardice.

Fred Merrick was brought into court and asked if he was a member of the Workers Party.

Merrick answered "No. Not since July."

"Will you renounce future activity in the party?" was the next question put to him.

"I will," he answered. "I have gone into business in Parkersburg."

The judge then questioned him as to why he had given up his activities in the Workers Party.

He answered "I realized the hopelessness of my own activities."

For this cowardly action on his part the judge paroled him, with Attorney Marshall assuming costs and responsibility for Merrick. Bitter resentment was felt by many of the workers in the court-room when they saw this cowardly surrender and renunciation.

Will Be Expelled.

Fred Merrick, who was the district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party in the Pittsburgh district about a year ago and who had for the past year deserted activities in the party, was instructed by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party to plead not guilty and to fight this case to the end. By his refusal to do so, Fred Merrick will undoubtedly be expelled from membership in the Workers (Communist) Party.

Read Party Manifesto.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—The entire manifesto, "United States Today", issued by the Workers Party in 1923, which analyzed the great strikes of that period, was read to the jury by attorney Marshall in his speech in defense of Edward Horacek, active member of the Machinist union and now on trial for alleged violation of the Pennsylvania state sedition law.

State Twists Meaning.

During the trial the prosecution has read excerpts from this manifesto and has twisted and contorted the meaning in such manner as will serve their purpose. By reading the entire manifesto to the jury, the defense is establishing the "veracity" of the stools who testified for the state.

Marshall brought out Lincoln's contention that the people in America had the right to change the government and that if it did not serve the interests of the people they had the revolutionary right to dismember the government and replace it by one that would represent them. He pointed out that the Workers Party was trying to organize the workers in this country for a political change and that they were perfectly within their right to do so.

He then caused the prosecutors much discomfort, when he brought out that the Workers Party in America was not the only ones that were looking towards Soviet Russia to lead them out of this maze of injustice and wrong. He showed there many others who were looking toward Russia.

The attorney went on to prove that not a single act, word or deed had been proven which would show Horacek working for the overthrow of the government and all the witnesses the prosecution had been able to produce were city detectives and former department of justice agents.

Raps Lennon.

He characterized Lennon, the former department of justice head, who placed stool-pigeons in the labor unions here to spy on their activities and to commit acts of provocation, as "the little man" who brings the same stack of papers to every trial using them in his attempts to have defendants in different trials convicted. The attorney brought out that three of the books and some of the papers that Lennon had introduced as "evidence." had never been seen by the defendant Horacek and that Horacek had been pulled out of his bed and arrested and that the entire charge was based on falsehood.

In the cross examination of Horacek, before the defense rested its case and the final plea was made by the defense attorney, the prosecutor asked Horacek whether he and his party would use the same methods as were used in Russia at the time of the revolution to effect a political change in the United States.

Horacek showed that it is impossible to say what the workers in America will do. He showed that the workers will follow in the path of the Russian workers, who established the first workers' and farmers' government, and declared that time alone could tell what methods would be used to attain the aim sought.

Increase British Bank Rate As Gold Supply of England Is Threatened

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, American capitalism again demonstrates to its rival, British capitalism, that it is by far the stronger of the two. This voracious beast that travels the world over, to satiate its profit hunger, snaps its challenge to the lean lion in London, that no nation must dare oppose America.

• • • •

When Great Britain reached an agreement to pay its war debt to the United States and then, with a great show of courage, returned to the gold standard, that was a challenge to new struggles in the world's commercial rivalry.

But the bold front of the British suffers another setback. London has been compelled to increase its rediscount rate, at one jump, from four to five per cent, in order to stop "the empire" being bled of its gold. The increase iin the bank rate was made absolutely necessary by the heavy drains on anemic British capitalism. The outflow has aggregated more than $933,000,000 since the Bank of England reduced its rate to four per cent last October, while its gold reserve is $48,500,000 lower than when England returned to the gold standard last April. The British must therefore close their gates against the exit of this precious basis for their currency. But that only weakens British imperialism in its fight for foreign markets, in its attempted "conquests of peace" over other nations, that are now compelled to turn their exclusive attention once more to the United States as the sole creditor nation.

• • • •

As if to taunt the British lion, Wall Sreet refuses to advance its rediscount rate by even a fraction. It is indicated that the order to make no change, altho this could easily be done and had in fact been announced, came directly from Secretary of the Treasury "Andy" Mellon, chief spokesman of the American dollar in Coolidge's cabinet. The American bank rate remains at 3½ per cent, a full 1½ per cent below the British.

• • • •

Thus England, altho she may parade as the chief instigator of Locarno "security" pacts against Soviet Rule, is nevertheless the helpless puppet of American capitalism.

The weekly report of the federal reserve system for the New York district shows that in spite of the wild wave of speculation and the giant loans made, yet the total loans of the New York bank have declined $4,924,000. Reserves and deposits at New York increased $3,565,000 and $14,236,000, respectively during the past week.

This is the power that the possession of one-half of the world's gold supply—$4,500,000,000 out of $9,000,000,000—gives to American finance. It was necessary to force the Locarno compact upon the capitalist nations of Europe, so that the American gold surplus would not only find a safe and "peaceful" spot for investment, but also an opportunity to collect the interest on the investments made. Of course, this ncessitates the enforcement of "industrial peace", within the various nations, resulting in an alliance between the American dollar and the different national governments to keep the workers in servile submission to the bitter exploitation forced upon them in order that the demands of the American shylocks may be satisfied.

Thus British capitalism, with the various national capitalisms upon the continent, may be helpless in the grip of Wall Street rule. But beyond lies the as yet slumbering power of the discontented and revolutionary workers, who are developing strength to tear down not only the dreams of Britain's Lombard Street, of the French Bourse and the financial districts of the European capitals, but of New York's center of finance as well. And back of these battling revolutionary workers stands the power of the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union, the bulwark of the world revolution.

At this writing the United States may furnish the world with its dominant imperialism. But the awakening of the oppressed everywhere will result in the creation of a power against which even the American dollar cannot stand, but before which its rule must collapse and fall.

CHICAGO DETECTIVES APPLY THIRD DEGREE ON 10 YEAR OLD YOUTH

After keeping a 10-year old youth awake all night and applying the third degree, the Chicago detectives claim that he "confessed" that his mother and not rival bootleggers killed his father, John Scardina.

The mother is now lodged in jail and the dicks who applied the "gold fish" methods on the 10 year old youth claim that they have a "confession" from her that she killed her husband in a quarrel over another woman.

The young lad was kept awake all night, with detectives being changed off every so often, questioning the young lad and trying to force a "confession" from him that his mother killed her husband.

the first step toward bolshevization in relation to the reorganization of the party and make the large Finnish membership a loyal part of the bolshevized party. This manifesto is a ringing declaration against the tendencies in some quarters of the Finnish section, expressed particularly in the Minneapolis resolution, which took a position against reorganisation. The Minneapolis resolution and those responsible for it, Severi Alanne, Vilho Bowman, and others, were unanimously condemned.

Co-operate With C. E. C.

The seventeen delegates, together with the editors and business managers of the Finnish papers, who constituted the convention, worked in close co-operation with the representatives of the Central Executive Committee, Comrades Ruthenberg, Cannon and Lovestone, during the whole period of the convention. All the delegates expressed the belief that the results of the convention will be closer co-operation in all phases of the party work by the Finnish membership.

Comrade Ruthenberg addressed the convention just before adjournment, summarizing the work of the five-days session as follows:

United Organization.

"The Central Executive Committee representatives are of the opinion that in this convention we have laid the foundation for the development of a bolshevized Finnish Section, part of a bolshevized Workers (Communist) Party. The enemies of our movement has been looking forward to this convention hoping there would be some sort of disruption or split which would yeaken the Communist movement in the United States. The hopes of the social democrats and two-and-a-half internationalists have been disappointed thru the work which you have done. We believe that we have cleared away the misunderstandings that existed among the Finnish membership in regard to reorganization. The Central Executive Committee representatives feel that thru the relationships established in this convention with the leading comrades fo the Finnish Section, we have the groundwork for close co-operation and continuous aid by the Central Executive Committee in helping the Finnish comrades to solve the many problems which are raised in the work of reorganization. The result of this work will be a powerful section of Finnish comrades organized in the Finnish fractions of the party, and around them a broader mass movement in the workers' clubs than has ever existed before.

"Our party has come out of this convention stronger than it ever has been. We will work together in building up a powerful Communist Party in the United States which, in the days to come, will be able to meet the capitalist enemies in open battle and win the struggle for the Soviet Republic in the United States."

For Bolshevized Party.

Comrade Koskela, chairman of the convention, replied to the speech of Comrade Ruthenberg and said:

"In the name of this convention of the Finnish Section, I wish to express the endorsement by the convention of the views expressed by the representatives of the Central Executive Committee. The delegates to the convention have found, in the co-operation of the Central Executive Committee representatives, a great aid in their work in finding solutions for the problems which spring out of the work of the organization. We thank the members of the committee of the Central-Executive Committe for their co-operation and assistance. We will go back to the membership of the Finnish Section and inform them about the work and views of this convention and we believe that they will respond to the work of this convention and give their loyal support to the reorganization and take part in the Bolshevized Workers (Communist) Party of America."

LOCARNO PEACE PACT ENSLAVES GERMAN TOILERS

world capitalism. The complete defeat of the European proletariat and the colonial peoples would then inevitably follow. The German bourgeoisie had sold itself to the highest bidder.

W. (France) declared that America had played a decisive role in the preparation of the Locarno pact. America is interested in a pacification of Europe in order to secure its loans, she is also interested in securing Germany against the offensive of French imperialism. England is striving to make an end of the French ascendancy upon the continent and Locarno represents a success for her in this policy. The French bourgeoisie is in retreat. The German bourgeoisie accepted the pact under the double pressure of Anglo-American capitalism. Locarno is responsible for illusions of a pacifist nature both in Germany and in France. Germany received no concessions in Locarno. England's aim is to alienate Germany and Russia. The Locarno pact demands a speedier establishment of the united front of the working class.

A Polish comrade declared that the Locarno pact and the coming entrance of Germany into the league of nations means certain advantages for Germany, particularly in the question of the eastern frontiers.

For Eight-Hour Day.

Comrade Heckert and Comrade Piquemal spoke upon the eight-hour day and the Washington agreement. Heckert declared that the Washington agreement was a maneuver on the part of the bourgeoisie to appease the working class. The ratification and the carrying out of the agreement by the bourgeoisie is being sabotaged by the reformists. The speaker described the abolition of the eight-hour day in Germany and the attitude of the Amsterdam Trade Union International to the question. He spoke further of the English trade union movement and its struggle for the maintenance of the eight-hour day and for the unity of the trade union movement. The Communists must place themselves at the head of the struggle for the eight-hour day, they must take part with all possible energy in the campaign for the eight-hour day from Nov. 15 to December 15. We must, however, make it clear to the workers that only the mass struggle of the proletariat can bring about an improvement in the conditions of work.

Show Up Washington Agreement.

Comrade Piquemal declared that the Washington agreement was a great swindle. We must intensify our methods of struggle to win the eight-hour day. We must inform the working class of the whole history of the Washington agreement. In parliament tho we can stand for the Washington agreement, we must however, expose the attitude of the reformists in this connection. The establishment of the eight-hour day by law is impossible, it can only be won by the mobilisation of the masses.

The following comrades took part in the discussion which followed. Overstraeten who discussed the question of the ratification of the Washington agreement in the Belgian parliament, the Polish Comrade, Welti, and Raedel.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Did the ill-fated naval collier Cyclops buckle and sink to her lonely grave with her human cargo of 290?

Naval experts were asking themselves this question today as a result of an accident to the collier Orion, which forced her to put back to Hampton Roads naval base in a sinking condition. The Orion was a sistership to the Cyclops.

Some officers expressed the opinion today that the Orion's mishap may reveal the secret of the greatest of all American naval mysteries, the loss of the Cyclops.

Sister Ship Vanished.

The Cyclops sailed from South America in March 1918, with a cargo of manganese. He had aboard 290 persons, officers, passengers and crew. Nothing more was ever heard of her. She disappeared as completely as if a magic hand had brushed her from the world, leaving not one trace of her going.

The seas were combed, ports were searched, every clue followed intently, but never a trace was found of her, not even a spar of a drifting life preserver.

For some years, it was suggested that a German submarine had sent the collier to her doom, or that she had struck a submerged mine. Inquiries were conducted in Germany after war, but no German sub commander could be found who could throw any light on the mystery.

Yesterday her sister ship, the Orion, sailed out of the Roads with a cargo of coal. Her structure buckled in a heavy sea and she raced back to port with her forward tanks flooded and almost sinking.

The same defect, some officers believed today, may have buckled the Cyclop's structure and sent her to Davy Jones' locker.

Pepperell Weavers Refuse to Work Under Multiple Loom System

BIDDEFORD, Me.—(FP)—Weavers of the Pepperell mills, organized in the American Federation of Textile Operatives, are striking again against the multiple loom system. The 3,500 workers fought the introduction of the system by which each worker's work is more than doubled. In the previous strike the workers finally went back to try out the system and now definitely refuse to accept it.

Pullman Porters Conduct Organization Campaign

ST. LOUIS—(FP)—Pullman porters in St. Louis are organizing. "Men, you have nothing to lose, nothing to fear. Your movement is the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. You have the solid support of organized labor generally. White men organize, why not you?" reads a campaign circular. The Negroes are angered at the Argus, a local Negro newspaper which in return for a large advertisement from the Pullman company published an attack on the union.

Carpenters Get Raise.

DALLAS, Tex.—(FP)—Union carpenters in Dallas are about to sign a negotiated agreement with the contractors association which will increase their wages from $8 to $9 per day of 8 hours. This will affect 1,500 workers.

WARD BAKING SLAVES HELP PRESIDENT BUY AN OPERA BOX SEAT

NEW YORK —(FP)— Dec. 4.—Business is so booming for the new $400,000,000 baking merger, General Baking corporation, that its president Paul H. Helms can pay nearly $200,000 for a box in the "diamond horseshoe" of the Metropolitan Opera House. Helms, who has not announced a wage advance for his many baking employes, purchased the box from the August Belmont estate and becomes owner of $200,000 equity in the $7,000,000 opera house property. Costume alteration hands are still striking against the Metropolitan for abrogation of the union agreement.

Operators and Union Heads Discuss Use of Machinery in Mines

Representative of Illinois miners will meet with mine owners at the Great Northern Hotel to open negotiations that may lead eventually to machine operation of Illinois coal fields.

The operators, at a meeting presided over by President Rice Miller of Hillsboro, made a preliminary survey as to the use of electric machines in the Illinois coal mines.

"Call Off Spies, Let Business Take Care of Itself," Wails Senator

In a speech before the Western Canners' Association in the Hotel Sherman here, former Senator James Hamilton Lewis called upon President Calvin Coolidge and congress to call off the 65,000 "spies" that the government maintains to probe into business and to call off all the commissions the government had investigating business ventures and let business take care of itself.

"Aiding" Disabled Vets.

MONTREAL—(FP)—When unemployed ex-soldiers were forming parades and storming restaurants, the Montreal newspapers discovered a plan to help the men whose wounds made them unfit for hard labor. They collected funds to build little street stands from which the disabled could sell newspapers and magazines. The street corners blossomed with red boxes. A lot of old newsvendors, unable to meet the competition, went to the poorhouse. Recently the city council, at demand of the bookstores, forbade the sale of magazines on the streets. The newspapers did not rally to the defense of the disabled.

Yellow Swallows Checker Taxi.

SAN FRANCISCO—(FP)—Of two remaining taxicab companies operating in San Francisco, the Yellow and the Checker, the unionized Checker will be absorbed by the Yellow, which employes nonunion drivers. The taxidrivers union will probably have a big fight on its hands to unionize the Yellow in San Francisco.

Want Wage Increases.

ST. LOUIS—(FP)—Union taxicab drivers of St. Louis are seeking a wage increase from $28.50 a week to $30 and one day a week off instead of two days a month. Funeral drivers, members of the same union, receiving $30 a week, are asking for $35. St. Louis taxi drivers are 100 per cent unionized, and even Yellow cabs operate union.

TEXAS TEXTBOOK CONTRACTS ARE NOW CONTESTED

Graft Charges Fly Thick and Fast

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 4. — Text-book contracts worth approximately $600,000 and made by a subcommittee of the state text-book commission without "the advice or consent of the attorney general," and with Governor "Ma" Ferguson as chairman, promises to reveal some more juicy plums being handed around in the state to sympathizers of the "cliques."

Attempts are being made by the attorney general who is on the "outs" with the machine in power to force the American Book Company, publishers of text-books, to hand back a deposit of $25,000 and cancel a six-year contract with the state. This company had bid the highest price on school text-books, but was able to "land" the contract.

Prominent Politician Forces 15-Year Old Girl Into Marriage

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4—A 15-year old girl found beneath a porch in the southwest section of Miami attired only in her night clothes, told a story of a forced marriage at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., that may lead to the arrest of a prominent public official of that city, 23 years her senior.

Teachers Fight for Increase in Wages

NEW YORK, —(FP)— Dec. 4.—New York teachers will find the Teachers' Union leading the renewed fight for increased wages by state legislation. The New York City teachers were sorely disappointed when the board of estimate dropped the $5,700,000 put in the budget for teachers' wage increases. The Teachers' Union urges teachers to rally behind the joint salary committee which is working out revised schedules for the Ricca bill which passed the last legislature only to be vetoed by Governor Al Smith on the ground that city authorities should act.

To Make Actors Work Sunday.

NEW YORK —(FP)—Dec. 4.—Theatrical managers are trying to restore New York's Sunday shows by pressure upon Actors Equity Association whose agreement with the managers prevents Sunday performances by actors and actresses. Movies and vaudeville are not affected by the Actors' Union agreement. The Lord's Day Alliance enters its protest against possible breaking of Sunday closing laws in New York towns by Sunday shows.

Darrow Discusses Negro.

NEW YORK —(FP)—Dec. 4.—Residential discrimination against Negroes will be discussed by Attorney Clarance Darrow in Harlem, New York's Negro city, on Dec. 13. Darrow will speak of the issues raised by the trial of 11 Negroes in Detroit whom he defended from charges of murder committed by an unknown while the Negroes defended the home of one of them from a white mob.

World Trade Union Unity.

MONTREAL — (FP) — Addressing the annual convention of the Quebec Labor party, Pres. A. R. Mosher of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad employes strongly upheld independent political action on the part of labor, and advocated affiliation of labor unions with the Canadian Labor party. The convention adopted a resolution favoring an all-embracing world international of labor along the lines laid down by A. A. Purcell of the British workers.

NEW YORK DAILY WORKER BUILDERS WILL HIKE TO JAMAICA WOODS SUNDAY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The New York DAILY WORKER Builders Club has arranged a HIKE to Jamaica Woods for this Sunday, Dec. 6. This was postponed twice on account of meetings of the Young Workers League and the Junior Pioneers, and it is expected that this time both organizations will turn out in force to co-operate with the DAILY WORKER Builders to make this the most successful event of the season.

There will be miles of hiking thru the woods. There will also a camp fire, and potatoes baked in a hole in the ground and roasted marshmallows and roasted apples and all kinds of good things to eat (altho it is advisable for everyone to bring a little lunch along in case the commissary department again goes astray). By special arrangement with the weather department there will be no rain this time, so as to enable the hikers to play all the games that had been planned for three weeks ago.

The meeting hour is ten o'clock. Be on time at 108 E. 14th St., or be at the end of the B.M.T. line in Jamaica at 168th St. at 11 a. m. Then follow the crowd and enjoy the fact that you're alive.

PHILADELPHIA WORKERS PARTY OPENS CLASSES IN COMMUNISM

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 4.—Along with the general program of Bolshevizing the party, Philadelphia has made a definite beginning in the educational work. The slogan "Into the Classes," is being put into practice as more and more of the membership realize that the most essential need for a Communist party is a membership well grounded in the theory and practice of Leninism.

The method of education to be employed in the classes will not be the old, worn-out, lecture method. Neither shall the classes confine themselves to the use of one textbook as in the past.

Students will be assigned specific subjects in the form of questions which they must study up out of the books, pamphlets, and such other material as is given for reference, thus giving the students a stimulus for reading revolutionary literature and studying independently.

The following classes have already been launched:

Fundamentals of Leninism Class has been successfully launched and meets every Saturday afternoon, 3 p. m., at 521 York Ave. This class is led by Comrade Morris Yusem. The principal textbook used is "Stalin's Theory and Practice of Leninism."

Elements of Communism—beginning Dec. 9 at 505 Reed St., with Comrade Ball as class leader. Every Wednesday.

Elements of Communism—beginning Thursday, Dec. 17 at 2006 Susquehanna Ave., with Comrade Ready as class leader. Every Thursday.

Elements of Communism—at 4035 Girard Ave. every Thursday evening, with Comrade Sklaroff as class leader.

Class in English to begin Monday, Dec. 6 at 521 York Ave., with Comrade Winner as teacher. Every Monday, 8 p. m.

Definite announcements will soon be made on the Trade Union History Class for which preparations are being made.

Comrades from all units in Philadelphia must immediately register with the agitprop organizers of the branch or nucleus.

All the above classes will begin promptly at 8 p. m. and comrades are urged to come in time.

Pressure on Germany

After several days of conferences between German potash manufacturers and British bankers on one side and the American state department and Wall Street bankers on the other a request for a $26,000,000 loan for that industry to be floated in the United States was turned down.

The excuse of statesmen at Washington was that the German producers would not guarantee American consumers against a raise in prices. This is palpably camouflage. Finance capital invests in industries for the purpose of deriving monopolistic prices. As Marx well said, one cannot take the opinions of statesmen regarding their governments at their word any more than it is possible to believe what an individual says of himself.

Before Locarno the bankers of Wall Street were pouring money into German industries. Possibly they will pour more money into that country. But not until Germany is brought under pressure and forced to take a step away from the pact of Locarno, where Britain contrived to make that nation a vassal of its imperialistic aims. The United States bankers do not view with favor the German nation, into which it has poured billions of dollars, being used by Britain, because in the last analysis it means another ally of England against the imperialistic aims of Wall Street.

Hence pressure will be brought to bear upon Germany until the government of that nation realizes its obligations to the banker of the world.

England launched the Locarno conference in the hope of creating a "security pact" against the spread of Bolshevism—which means against the Soviet Union—but the intensity of the struggle for world supremacy between the imperialist powers and the contradictions arising therefrom prevented the desired consummation. While not abandoning its designs against Russia, Britain is learning that it must reckon with its imperialist rival and the potash conference proves that its rival is ruthless.

Germany is learning that it cannot become the ally of a power challenging the supremacy of the United States in every part of the world and still hope to have access to the gold hoards of Wall Street.

The refusal of the potash loan means that pressure is being brought on Germany to force her away from the influence of Britain.

Brookhart's "Fraudulent" Campaign

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, whose right to sit in the United States senate is being challenged, is accused of waging a campaign of fraud to secure votes in the last election. The fraud consists in the fact that he ran on the republican ticket, while the official republican machine urged support of a democrat, one Steck, against him. A Des Moines reporter testified before the senate committee hearing the contest that Brookhart and the late LaFollette had a joint campiagn manager in Iowa.

Only republicans of the Cal Coolidge stripe could resort to such absurdities. We presume the democrat, Steck, is a republican because he was supported by republican newspapers, and that the republican, Brookhart, is not a republican because the newspapers did not support him. Foolish as this may seem there is method in the madness of the administration supporters in thus preferring a democrat to Brookhart. The Iowa senator is one of those irreconcilables who will line up with the Borah bloc against the administration proposal that this country enter the world court, while Steck, as a democrat, will support the proposal. If Brookhart can be eliminated on the charge that he is not a regular republican, it will remove one more obstacle to the administration scheme to enter the world court. Unquestionably Borah will fight to prevent the unseating of one of his supporters.

Brookhart, like the rest of the LaFollette crew, is endeavoring to serve the interests of the small bourgeoisie while remaining in the ranks of the republican party. His professed radicalism, like that of Borah, fools many workers and farmers, who know they have nothing to expect from either of the old parties.

The utter futility of the radical bloc in the republican party is becoming apparent to all. Its collapse will aid those forces driving toward a labor party in this country.

G. B. S. in His Dotage

George Bernard Shaw, fabian scoialist and founder of the "smart aleck" school of literature, is being featured again by the Hearst papers as a renegade Communist. In fact the Chicago Herald-Examiner dubbs him "England's most famous Communist" and then proceeds to speak of his spectacular "about face," thus branding him a renegade and apostle. That is certainly not flattering to Shaw, who never professed to be a Communist.

The Shavian attack upon the Communist International and his infantile babbling against the Soviet Union contains nothing more than the exploded legends woven by the lie factories of the white guard press. He cannot even rise to his customary literary level when he talks of Bolshevik gold to British Communists, the Zinoviev letter and other myths. Shaw, like Wells and other literary fabians, dislikes the Bolsheviks because they refuse to take fabianism seriously. They listen to the advice of the muddle-heads and then follow their own course.

As a novelist and playwright Shaw sometimes exposes the bourgeoisie very well, but when it comes to discussing political subjects his knowledge does not transcend the low level of the Hearst publications that syndicate his fiction as political argument.

It is appropriate that the strikebreaker president, Cal Coolidge, have a house built for him on the roof of a scab hotel in Chicago for his accommodation here during his visit next Monday.

If the fight between Borah and Coolidge over the world court goes much farther they will need a court to settle the fight here.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS' COMMITTEE DEMANDS LEWIS LEAD NATIONAL MINE STRIKE AGAINST OPERATORS

By ALEX REID

Secretary Progressive Miners' Committee.

The refusal to accept the Pinchot peace proposals by the hard coal barons in Pennsylvania prove that they are determined to wreck the miners' union. The miners' officials had accepted the Pinchot offer notwithstanding the fact that it meant arbitration of the miners' meager demands and a reversal of the Lewis oft-repeated policy of "no arbitration of the miners' lives and happiness."

The reasons for refusal of the Pinchot offer are interesting and amusing to the initiated but the progressive miners have pointed out that unless the Lewis bureaucracy changed its tactics in the strike, the operators would not only deny them the check-off, but would make an effort to totally destroy the union.

Out to Crush Union.

The statement now made by the spokesman for the hard coal owners, that they will not accord any further recognition to the union, and a categoric denial of the other points offered by Pinchot as a basis for settlement, places the owners squarely before the miners as determined to wreck their union.

Let it be said now that the acceptance of the Pinchot offer by Lewis and his gang of treasury leeches in the anthracite was a brazen effort to cover up the results of a treacherous policy that has aided the operators against the miners themselves.

Nova Scotia Repeated.

The policy pursued in Nova Scotia—the keeping of maintanence men on the property during the strike, which action aided the "Beast of Besco" to defeat the miners, is again doing the work, this time in the hard coal, where the maintenence men are repairing and caring for the coal company property.

This has placed the operators in a position to be able to notify Pinchot and the Lewis gang that they repudiate any offer of settlement on any basis other than their own.

The progressive miners pointed out sometime ago that Lewis must pull out the maintainence men in the anthracite and call a national strike to save the union, and we venture to say now, that had the union officials done so, the Pinchot proposition would have been more favorable to the miners and would have been gladly accepted by the hard coal owners.

Lewis stands in a position today as the head of a labor organization with an opportunity seldom given to any labor leader. Lewis has the power at this moment to make the United Mine Workers' organization the greatest fighting unit in America,—the power to concentrate the full power of the miners of America in one gigantic struggle for the miners' wages, working conditions and union to break the open shop drive and organize the unorganized miners in the United States.

Is Lewis a Leader?

Is he big enough to meet the emergency? Some honest but sadly deluded miners feel he is, and think he will bring out the entire industry to support the hard coal diggers and save the Jacksonville agreement.

Had the miners militant leadership at this time, which would call a national strike, one of the greatest victories known in the history of American labor would be the result.

Would Bring Out Non-Union Fields.

158,000 hard coal miners supported by 300,000 union soft coal miners would not be on strike 24 hours until the non-union fields were with them and victory assured. And what a victory would be, the organization of the non-union fields of West Virginia and Kentucky!

Lewis stands at the crossroads. Will he take the road to victory thru a national strike, with crowning glory for himself, or the road to defeat and contemptible, well-deserved oblivion thru a partial strike and arbitration.

The progressive miners' demand that Lewis call a national strike. We pledge our one hundred per cent support to make it a success.

We demand no arbitration!

We demand a national strike!

We demand a strike of the maintenence men!

He will like it! Give your union brother a sub to The DAILY WORKER.

NEEDLE WORKERS OF LOS ANGELES IN UNITY MEET

Must Unite Against Unemployment

(By Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 4—The conditions of work in the tailoring shops of Los Angeles are miserable and unbearable. Wages are small, work is toil, sweat and slavery. The constant fear of getting "laid off" is eating up the courage and destroys the self-respect and independence. We have to work with all our fervor and energy to hold on to the job.

Each Jobless One a Threat.

The steady stream of jobless, hungry workers constantly knocking at the door is being used by the boss against those at work. Only by undermining conditions and wages one is getting his right to work. Whenever a jobless tailor knocks at the door we feel that our gains and achievements, that our places are in danger.

Brothers and sisters! How long are we going to stand for such miserable contemptible conditions of work? How long are we going to tolerate them, to suffer and to wait? Let us organize our union and improve our working conditions. Let us unite our scattered forces and use the power of our united efforts to protect each and every one of us.

The time is ripe, the hour has struck for such splendid work now! Let us not loose any time at this opportune moment! We must "hit the iron while it is hot." Our only power is unity!

Call Mass Meeting.

The sentiment among the tailors of Los Angeles is for an organization. The Needle Trades Council, a voluntary organization composed of all the needle trades locals of Los Angeles, is calling all the workers in men's tailoring industry, to a mass meeting which will be held on Wednesday Dec. 9, at 7:30 p. m. in the union headquarters at 224 S. Spring St., Room No. 218. Good speakers will address the meeting.

PAT TOOHEY SPEAKS IN WASHINGTON ON COAL MINE STRIKE MONDAY

Pat H. Toohey, leader of the progressive miners in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania, will speak here Monday evening, Dec. 7, at 8 o'clock at the Workmen's Circle Hall, 1337 Seventh St., N. W., on the problems confronting the striking coaldiggers in the Pennsylvania fields.

Toohey's tour is coming to an end. Philadelphia will be the last city in which he will speak in the present tour. He will then return to the anthracite fields to carry on his fight there.

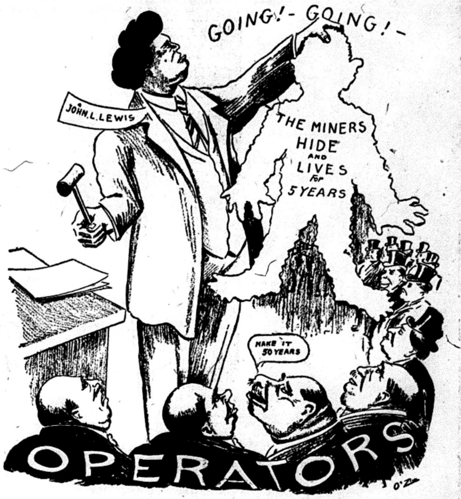
Lewis Deals With a Cheap Crowd



DETROIT WOKE UP BY STRIKE WON IN A DAY BY "EXPELLED" LOCALS OF CARPENTERS' UNION

By A Worker Correspondent.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 5.—Union recognition and a thirty cents hourly raise was won today for carpenters employed on a prveiously open shop job by an eight-hour successful strike engineered by two "expelled" unions of the Brotherhood of Carpenters of America.

As a result of this vindication of class struggle as the only method by which the workers can achieve better conditions, six members of the brotherhood transferred to the "expelled" locals and a dozen candidates were written up. Thus further discredit is put upon J. Sharrock, the kept-president of the district council, who forced the two militant locals out of the council by unscrupulous machine tactics.

Paid Officials Refuse to Act.

Tho the union scale in Detroit is $1.15 an hour, the open shoppers are generally paying 85 cents. On one such job, employing about twenty men several of Sharrock's men were working who reported conditions to Sharrock and his agents and requested that something be done. Tho this job is centrally located and there are eight paid officials to look after the few jobs controlled by the Brotherhood (at least an official a job); nonetheless, they found themselves unable to visit this job.

"Expelled" Locals Lead Strike.

When the business agents of the two "expelled" locals in Detroit, Reynolds and Kaller, came on the job and sounded out the men, they found a readiness to strike and a need of leadership. Yesterday morning a strike was called and a picket line thrown around the job. All except a few of the carpenters readily downed tools and these hesitating few were assisted in making up their minds by many willing hands.

By 9:30 a. m., every carpenter and carpenter's tool was off the job. By noon, the boss-builders could see a 30 cents per hour raise for the carpenters but couldn't see union recognition,—or what they termed "union domination." However, by 4:30 p. m., they agreed to all the union's demands and it was agreed that the men should be written up between 8 and 9 this morning. At 9 a. m. the job started 100 per cent union.

Disgust for Fakers Shown.

Following this, six members of the brotherhood transferred to the two "expelled" locals and a dozen candidates were written up. Many carpenters belonging to locals which Hutcheson has not yet expelled dropped around to view the novelty of a carpenters' strike in Detroit, and expressed their dusgust at Sharrock and other parasites whom Hutcheson has wished on the Detroit organization.

One not "expelled" volunteered the information that while the strike was in progress, some of the "organizers" (so-called), were busy clipping out and piecing together one of the brainteasers which the capitalist press publishes to keep morons out of mischief.

"Defeat" Tradition Broken.

It is not expected that Hutcheson will learn anything from this event because hungry, under-paid carpenters aren't made of the stuff he's interested in. But when the yellow-faced, rat-souled Sharrock calls "red" at those whom Hutcheson's tyranny has driven from the organization, the rank and file may begin to believe, after having seen the "reds" in action, that some "red" blood is needed. In any event, the tradition of defeat which has cursed the carpenters of Detroit has been broken. The first victory will bring many more to come.

Reminders for Cleveland

English Classes Organized.

Classes in English—one for beginners and one for advanced students are being formed. The first session will be held on Sunday morning, Dec. 6, at 10 o'clock at the district office and are open to both members of the party and the Young Workers League and sympathizers. Registration is taking place at the district office, 5927 Euclid Ave.

Trade Union Class.

A class in trade unionism will begin on Sunday morning, Dec. 6, 10 o'clock at the district office. This course will deal with the history of the American labor movement and be succeeded by a course of discussions on the tactics of the Communists in the trade unions. This course is most important for all comrades, both those now in the unions and those who by party decision will be obliged to join without further delay. This course is open only to party and Young Workers League members.

Trade Union Developments in the Asiatic and Pacific Countries

By A. LOZOVSKY.

THE fight for the unity of the international trade union movement and the creation of a united International embracing the workers of all Continents, has up to recently encountered a great obstacle in the arrogance of the European labor aristocracy. Until the war Europe possessed the financial, industrial and political hegemony of the world—a fact which found expression in the leading bodies of the socialist and trade union movement, upon which the Internationals were based and which were entirely limited to Europe.

These remnants of pre-war psychology dominate up to the present the minds of the leaders of the reformist labor movement who do not like going beyond the confines of Europe. They intentionally refuse to understand that enormous upheaval which has come about as a result of the war, of the October revolution and the rise of real world Internationals, the Communist International and the Red International of Labor Unions. It is only recently that international reformism has designed to cast a glance at the East, because the labor movement of the East is assuming a revolutionary character and disturbing the plans of international reformism.

In the meantime the labor movement is growing in every corner of the earth, and a number of international tasks are arising, which can only be solved by common international action. In connection with this a whole number of projects have recently arisen which are highly characteristic of the attitude of the labor movement of the new countries on the stage of international politics. Of such projects there are at present three:

1. The prominent Japanese reformist Bundshi Susuki (a Japanese bourgeois paper describes him as "Our Japanese Gompers") spoke at the Conference of the International Labor Of- the unions of India regarding the con- fice, which is affiliated to the League of Nations, with representatives of vening of a Pan-Asiatic Labor Conference. According to the proposals of Susuki, this Labor Conference is to be participated in by representatives of the trade unions of Japan, China, Persia, Siam, Afghanistan, Baluchistan, the Philippines, India, Egypt, Palestine, and Turkey.

2. The Trade Union Council of New South Wales has taken up the initiative is calling a conference of the trade unions of the Pacific countries for the 1st of May 1926. As the Australian "Daily Standard" reports, the secretary of the trade union council, Garden, (he took part in the II. Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions) has sent an invitation to the labor organizations of China, Japan, Canada, the Philippines, the Hawaii Islands, Singapore, India, South Africa and the United States, in which invitation it is pointed out that this conference is called to "discuss the questions of the Pacific."

3. The same Australian newspaper, the "Daily Standard", reports that the Executive Committee of the Australian Labor Party has decided to arrange a conference to be held in Honolulu in November 1926, of the representatives of the countries of the Pacific. To this conference there are to be invited representatives of those trade union workers and kindred (!) organisations of all countries of the Pacific who stand for the maintenance of peace.

ANTHRACITE MINER: "SO THIS IS PEACE!"

All these three projects deserve serious attention, while it must be remarked that the character of the three undertakings, in spite of the scantiness of the news, is quite clear.

With regard to Susuki's proposal, this means nothing else than the creation of an Asiatic International, and in this respect the Japanese reformist is following the footsteps of Gompers, who for his own purposes organized the Pan-American Federation of Labor, and of the leader of the English railway workers, Cramp, who a few months ago put forward the idea of the creation of a Continental International.

Bundshi Susuki at his interview with the representative of the "Japan Advertiser" said nothing regarding a colored International. He only intimated that he had decided to convene an Asiatic Labor Conference when the "labor unrest in China has subsided", and its aim is "to raise the level of the Asiatic workers, so that they will be better prepared to take part in the work of the International Labor Office." But as a matter of fact, Susuki is not arranging his projected Asiatic Conference for this purpose. The "Daily Standard" adds the following words of Susuki regarding this Conference:

> "We representatives of the colored workers have decided to create a colored International as a counterpoise to the white International."

Susuki's projects therefore, go much further than the revival of the internationalism of the International Labor Office: he wants to have his own Asiatic International. What will be the political tendency of his International?

Judging from the fact that it was Bundshi Susuki who instigated the splitting of the trade unions of Japan and the expulsion of the revolutionary elements from the Japanese Labor Federation, we see that for him it is a question of setting up the new reformist International as speedily as possible in order to fight against the revolutionary labor movement of Asia. It is not for nothing that Susuki is making preparations to convene this conference immediately the "labor unrest in China has subsided." When it is further remembered that Susuki entirely forgets the existence of the trade unions of the Soviet Union which is also bordered by the Pacific Ocean, then the color of this Pan-Asiatic project will not differ from the child of Gompers: the Pan-American Labor Federation.

The project of the Australian Labor Party for the convening of a congress at Honolulu of "all trade union workers' and kindred organizations of the countries of the Pacific" has a somewhat different but likewise unique character. Here is to be seen an open attempt to convene a pacifist congress, for otherwise there would be no sense in giving expression to such a vague term as "kindred organizations." The congress has as its object to bring together the supporters of peace in the countries of the Pacific, and as there are many supporters of peace among the bourgeoisie who have set up all sorts of pacifist societies for this purpose, then it is obvious that these "kindred organizations" will have a place at the congress. It is apparently, therefore, a question of a Pacific edition of the International Peace Conference at the Hague in December 1922, where there took place a fraternizing of international reformism and of bourgeois pacifism. But we are still awaiting particulars regarding this project.

The third project—the convocation of a congress of trade unions of the countries of the Pacific in Sydney—seems to us to deserve the most attention. To this congress only trade union organizations will be invited, and these will discuss the common questions of the countries of the Pacific. Although we possess no detailed information regarding the agenda of this approaching congress or regarding the proposals to be submitted to it, we consider such a beginning as very useful. Such a congress could serve as a stage in the struggle for the united international and for the unity of the international trade union movement, if the conveners invite the trade unions of all countries of the Pacific and realize that the questions of the countries of the Pacific not only concern the workers of this or that country, but also the whole of the international labor movement.

No matter what attitude is adopted to these projects, one thing is clear: they all mean a new era in the development of the international labor movement. The fight of the Communist International and the Red Intrenational of Labor Unions against European narrowness, for the unity of the labor movement of the whole world corresponds with the requirements which have become historically ripe. There will be still much confusion, deviations and many attempts to create continental and colored internationals, but all this must not mis- of the new countries, will compel the lead us. All these attempts, which express the growth of the enterprise labor movement of Asia, and also of Australia and the countries of the Pacific, to overcome their own narrowness and to weld themselves into a united, fighting trade union International based on the class struggle.

Drive Against Left Wing in Trade Unions

By WM. Z. FOSTER.

WITHIN the past two years a comparatively new phenomenon has made its appearance in the American labor movement. This is the expulsion of members from the trade unions because of their political opinions and for activities in accordance with these opinions. In the past there have been many struggles between the reactionaries and the revolutionary wing of the movement and the utmost bitterness has prevailed between the two factions. But almost never was the weapon of expulsion used in a general way in these struggles, save in the cases where there was open advocacy of secession, and even this was winked at in many cases. As a general rule the fight remained pretty much in the realms of verbal argument, however bitterly this may have been carried on.

But, as stated, in the past two years the expulsion of members from the unions, and consequently often from their jobs, has come to be looked upon and applied as a regular weapon against the left wing by the reactionaries. The difference is that where expulsion was once practiced more or less spasmodically and in isolated cases, it has now become a settled means of warfare by the controlling bureaucrats in the unions.

The union that has the shame of having first applied expulsion against the left wing is the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which began the policy two years ago under the leadership of Sigman. Unable to beat the revolutionary elements otherwise, Sigman, aided by his lickspittle, Perlstein, thot to get the best of them by driving them out of the union altogether. Brutally he expelled many of the leading left wingers from the organization in Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland and elsewhere, merely for membership in the T. U. E. L., with disastrous effects upon the union.

These destructive tactics of Sigman received a blessing from Gompers himself at the Portland convention of the American Federation of Labor in 1923, where with the most elaborate stage setting and in the fullest glare of publicity, he expelled William F. Dunne from the convention. Dunne was a regular delegate from the Silver Bow, Montana, Trades Council, and the only charge against him was that he was an avowed Communist. Dunne's expulsion was the signal in the trade union movement generally for the use of the weapon of expulsion against the growing left wing, and the reactionaries have not been slow to take the hint. Since then, in union after union, this policy, which is contrary to the basic principles of labor solidarity, has been applied.

Lewis in the miners' union has made drastic application of this mean. He immediately outlawed the Trade Union Educational League as a "dual union," and expelled Tom Myerscough and other miner leaders of it. He crucified the militants in the Canadian districts. Farrington of Illinois has followed this up by the expulsion of Thompson, Watt, and others. Throughout the whole organization a reign of terror has been set up against the left wing and every manifestation of it has been driven underground upon pain of expulsion.

Hutcheson of the carpenters, not to be outdone by his crony Lewis, has expelled two-thirds of his organization in Detroit for sympathies with the Trade Union Educational League. In Los Angeles, with the cooperation of the police, he got rid of more militants. And his latest maneuver has been to bar Rosen as a delegate from the New York district council of the carpenters because Rosen ran against him on a left wing ticket in the recent national elections.

In the electrical workers a number of militants have been expelled, and in the painters the intention to do the same has been shown by the adoption at their recent convention of an amendment to their national constitution providing for the exclusion of "members of the Communist Party who oppose the principles of the A. F. of L."

WILLIAM Z. FOSTER.

In the machinists' union, under the yellow socialist Johnston, an early stand was taken in this game by expelling a number of militants in Toledo, Ohio, for membership in the T. U. E. L. At the ensuing convention Johnston managed to save his skin and to hang on to his job. Now, claiming the action of the convention was an endorsement of the expulsion policy, he has issued a ukase demanding the wholesale expulsion of members of the Workers Party and members of the T. U. E. L. throughout the entire union.

The fur workers was also the scene of an active expulsion campaign, with interesting results not figured on by the reactionary, Kaufmann.

And now we have the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, which so long passed as a left inclined union, showing that here, too, the reactionary bureaucracy refuses to be outdone by the reactionaries in the miners, machinists, carpenters, et al, and is expelling militant left wingers on the usual pretexts. Other unions are following the same program in a more or less desultory fashion. And along with this campaign has gone a further systematic terrorizing of the left wing in the unions by refusing to let the militants run for office, by placing heavy fines against them upon all sorts of flimsy pretexts, etc.

A number of central labor councils have also put into effect the expulsion policy, insofar as their limited authority permits them, by refusing to seat as delegates the Communists who have been elected by the affiliated local unions. The chief offenders in this respect are the councils in Minneapolis, Seattle, and Los Angeles. It is noteworthy that these are all left wing strongholds. The reason for the sharp application of the expulsion policy in these places is twofold, first, the necessity of the bureaucracy to fight the left wing with all the means in its power, and, second, the presence of all sorts of renegade socialists who are the most willing and unscrupulous tools to lead this fight of the reactionaries.

So far in the Chicago Federation of Labor the expulsion policy has not actually been applied. The leaders of the Chicago Federation, Fitzpatrick and Nockels, who long posed as radicals, work more insidiously. They conspire privately with the controlling fakers in the local unions to prevent left wingers coming as delegates. In addition they are carrying on publicly the most contemptible fight against the Communists. It is noteworthy that Green, in one of his latest fulminations against the left wing, used verbatim the lying arguments contained in a circular recently sent out by the Chicago Federation of Labor.

At the recent American Federation of Labor convention the expulsion policy once again got the support of the united labor bureaucrats. And in his Detroit speech a short while before the convention, Green declared for an open war upon the Communists. He said:

> "Organized labor will not and cannot tolerate Communism or Communists. Members of organized labor are either trade unionists or Communists. They cannot be both. In view of the fact that the Communists have challenged and are challenging the hosts of organized labor and by every means at their disposal are seeking to secure supreme control of the trade union movement of America, we, the loyal members and officers of the organized labor movement will strike back and strike hard. We will neither rest nor cease our efforts until Communism and the Communist philosophy and those who represent it are driven from the ranks of organized labor."

What is the basis for this expulsion policy which is now being used so violently against the left wing? The cause of it has two roots. The cause is to be found in the improved fighting policies of the left wing within the last few years, which makes it necessary for the reactionaries to proceed to more drastic measures of struggle. The second is to be found in the turn of the labor bureaucracy more sharply than ever towards class collaboration, which weakens their control over the organized masses, and which throws them into the imperative necessity at this time of destroying the influence of the left wing at all costs, regardless of the means used.

As to the first proposition: For many years the left wing, because of its infatuation for infantile ideas of dual unionism, was a negligible factor in the trade unions. The reactionary bureaucracy had plain sailing to control the masses for their policies—the opposition of the yellow socialists being never very vital. Hence there was little or no need for an expulsion policy, except in special occasions where more or less spontaneous local revolts occurred. But now the situation is fundamentally altered. The left wing, despite all its failings, has learned how to fight in the unions. It has almost fully recovered from the dualism which hamstrung it for so long and it has learned the main principles of left wing organization in conservative trade unions. Moreover, it no longer wastes its time in these unions, as it once did, in an empty, negative criticism of the organizations and their officials in general. Now it has a practical program for the revolutionizing of the unions. It takes the lead, so far as its all too weak resources will permit, in the everyday struggles of the masses. It contests the union elections against the reactionaries. In other words, it is now engaged in a real struggle against the bureaucrats for the leadership of the unions. The effectiveness of these new tactics of the left wing was graphically demonstrated by the tremendous sweep of the amalgamation movement. The reactionary bureaucrats, confronted with the new menace of an organized left wing that has learned how to fight for control of the organized workers, had to strike back quickly and hard. The expulsion campaign was their answering tactics.

Now as to the other phase of the expulsion policy: The great defeat of the trade union movement in the historic struggle of 1920-23 demonstrated clearly the burning necessity for the trade unions to consolidate their ranks, to organize a labor party, and generally to adopt a more militant policy of struggle. But the bureaucrats controlling the unions absolutely refused to learn this lesson. Instead of developing the power of resistance of the unions as against the employers and adopting a policy of an offensive, they proceeded to hoist the white flag of surrender, and accordingly began to work out and apply the various new schemes of class collaboration, such as the B. and O. plan, workers' insurance, labor banking, etc., which are tending to degrade the trade unions into little better than company unions. But such a policy was not without its hazards for them. It had to be fairly rammed down the throats of the rank and file of the unions, who, for the most part, although not yet ideologically advanced enough to penetrate the real meaning of the new schemes of class collaboration and to develop a real opposition to them, nevertheless refuse to accept them in place of a policy of militant action and the substantial results which such a policy brings. They want amalgamation, the formation of a labor party, the organization of the unorganized, and at least some semblance of a fighting program. This creates a situation highly dangerous to the bureaucracy. The rank and file are susceptible to the propaganda of the left wing. Hence a basic condition for their control of the unions and for the continuance of the class collaboration program recently so highly developed is to crush the left wing at all costs. This cannot be done by argument and ideological struggle. Consequently the resort to force through the expulsion policy and the many other harsh disciplinary measures that are being used against the militants in the various unions.

What shall our policy be in this situation? How shall we successfully defeat the expulsion policy of the reactionaries and reach the rank and file with our message? The fate of our work in the trade union in the present period depends upon our correctly solving this problem.

The first and most important step to its solution is the mustering of the full available forces of our party for work in the trade unions. There still remains much to be done in this respect. A very large proportion of our membership do not yet belong to unions, and of those who are members only a small percentage are really active. These conditions must be remedied at once. A persistent and insistent campaign must be carried on to the end that every proletarian member of our party is at the same time a member of a trade union. We must make our members understand once and for all the truth of the statement in the recent letter of the Comintern and Profintern to the effect that no worker in an industrial country like the United States can really be a Communist unless he is a member of a trade union. And we must see to it that our members not only join the trade unions but become active in them. The only Communist in the trade unions who is worth his salt to our party is the one who militantly and intelligently fights to put its program into effect and thus to extend its influence over the masses. This development of our full party strength is the first and foundation step, not only for combatting the expulsion policy, but also doing any successful work whatever in the trade unions.

A special feature of our fight against expulsion must be a flexible attitude towards the expulsion orders now in force in the unions, whether they be in the shape of constitutional amendments, as in the painters, or instructions from the executive boards, as in the machinists. In the trade unions there are organized proletarian masses, contact with whom is vital for the success of the revolutionary work of our party. This contact can best be maintained only if we are members of the unions. Hence we must put up a militant and intelligent struggle to remain within the unions. If we can do this openly as members of the Workers Party and the Trade Union Educational League, all the better. But if the opposition is in such a desperate frame of mind as to use the expulsion policy and is in a position to apply it effectively, then we must be prepared to deny our membership in these organizations rather than be expelled from the unions.

Such a policy means the occasional swallowing of nasty pills in the way of signing the various statements that are put up to us by the reactionary officals in the hope that our revolutionary gorge will rise against them to the extent that we will not sign them, and thus make our expulsion all the more easy. A type of such statement was that recently gotten out by the carpenters district council of Cleveland, which reads as follows:

> "I, the undersigned, do hereby promise and agree that I will observe and comply with all the rules, regulations, and laws of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and that I will in no way affiliate with, or give support, assistance, or comfort to, the Trade Union Educational League,

"Red Imperialism" - Where Should We Seek the Real Militarists?

By a RUSSIAN AUTHORITY.

AS to the numbers of armed forces at the disposition of the various states we are in possession of statistics which are based on both our own and on foreign statistical publications. In comparing these figures with the numbers of armed forces of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, we obtain a clear and completely objective proof of where we may seek the real culprits of milarism.

Let us consider these facts and figures.

You know that in 1914, just before the commencement of the imperialist war, the bourgeois press of the Entente countries, in inflaming the patriotic sentiments of their populations, asserted that it was only necessary to smash German imperialism and that the burden of militarism would then disappear.

What do we see in reality?

In 1913 when prewar militarism was in full bloom, there were 5,759,000 men under arms in the most important countries. In 1925 there are 5,232,000 men under arms without counting a number of states which have newly sprang up (for example, Irak Syria, Arabia proper, Northern Morocco, and others) and not counting one million soldiers (at a minimum) which are kept under arms at the disposition of the various tuchuns of the Chinese provinces which do not acknowledge the authority of the central Peking government.

If we reckon that this prewar figure 5,759,000 included firstly, the 1,129,000 soldiers which belonged to the states vanquished in the imperialist war (Germany, Austro-Hungary and Bulgaria who now have 198,000, that is, 931,000 less than before the war) and secondly, the 1,350,000 soldiers of the former czarist Russia instead of the 562,000 army of the Soviet Union, we will see that the victorious and neutral countries have increased their armies by 1,192,000 men in view of the new discord which is developing.

If we examine the military budget of the most important states for the same period, we see exactly the same picture. In 1912 the military budgets of the most important countries (including czarist Russia) amounted to 4,744,000,000 rubles. The expenditure of the same countries in 1924-25 amounts to 5,300,000,000 rubles, that is, an increase of 556,000,000 rubles.

If here also we reckon the considerable decrease in the war budgets of Germany and the Soviet Republics, we see that the expenditure of the remaining states has increased by 1,442,000. These two pieces of information are sufficient to prove how false the speeches of bourgeois pacifists ring when they talk about decreasing the burden of militarism in bourgeois countries artef the defeat of Germany.

Let us consider naval expenditure separately. In 1913 the naval budgets of the seven big naval powers amounted to 100,500,000 pounds sterling (1,005,000,000 rubles). In 1925 it equalled 230,600,000 pounds sterling (2,306,000,000 rubles). This a fairly striking difference. During the same period the naval budget of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics was reduced to 3,400,000 pounds sterling (34,000,000 rubles) as against a 26,000,000 pound (260,000,000 ruble) naval budget of czarist Russia in 1913.

The shipbuilding programs of the most important bourgeois states are in full concordance with this state of affairs. Despite the agreement for the limitation of naval armaments at Washington in 1922, in reality the very same, if not a greater ship-building fever is proceeding, the only difference from the former being that instead of the large battleships, which are now prohibited, ships of smaller tonnage are being constructed (cruisers, destroyers, submarines, etc.) and also naval air fleets. One may judge as to the extent of such armaments from the following:

DURING the present year the five strongest sea powers (Great Engain, United States, France, Japan and Italy) are building 87 ships of different kinds and 181 further ships are projected, making a total 268. As far as the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics is concerned, unfortunately we have not constructed and are not constructing one single ship, and up to the present have restricted ourselves to repairing those that already exist.

Air Forces.

The statistics on aerial forces give the same picture. At the present time the military air forces of the most important states are as follows: France 6,114 aeroplanes, Great Britain 3,460, Italy 1,700, United States 3,800, Poland 498, Roumania 257.

I will remain silent in respect to the numerical strength our our red airfleet, but I will say one thing, and that is that unfortunately there is not much difference between the strength of our air fleet and that of our immediate western neighbours.

The numerical strength of the red armed forces, not counting the navy, amount to 529,000. This is 183,000 les than France, and 17,000 less than our immediate western neighbors (Poland, Roumania and the Baltic states) taken together.

There are still a few more figures which prove the "growth of red imperialism."

For every 10,000 inhabitants the U. S. S. R. has 41 soldiers, Roumania and Poland about 100, France without the colonies 200, and so forth. In other words the Western European states have from three to five times more men under arms than we. In relation to the territory, for every thousand square kilometers, there are 27 soldiers in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics; while there are 560 soldiers per thousand square kilometers in Roumania, 700 in Poland, etc., that is to say, 25 times more than we have Finally, whereas the cost of maintaining the army works out at less than 3 rubles per inhabitant in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, it reaches 7 rubles in the Baltic states, 11 rubles in Poland, and up to 14 rubles in France.

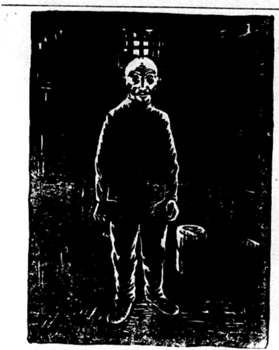
The figures I have cited should prove with convincing clearness that there can be no question of "red imperialism." Both absolutely and relatively we are spending less on military needs than any of the large bourgeois states, and relatively we are spending much less than even the smallest bourgeois states. This is the truth of the matter as regards our "Red Soviet Imperialism."



GERMAN WORKER IN PRISON: "SO 'WE' HAVE SIGNED THE TREATY OF LOCARNO!"

THE DRIVE AGAINST THE LEFT WING IN TRADE UNIONS

or any similar or kindred organization.

"I further agree that I waive the right, benefit, or privilege of ever representing a local union of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America in any way, shape or manner as an officer, delegate, or committeeman during my membership in such organization.

"In suscribing to the above I do so of my own free will and accord and agree that if I should violate said agreement or pledge, it is understood that my membership in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America be forfeited without complaint by me."

In such cases we must bear in mind the advice of Lenin and Zinoviev and sign a dozen such statements if necessary to our maintaining membership in the unions. This does not mean however that we must adopt a policy of indiscrimately denying membership and of signing such statements. On the contrary, each case must be separately considered. In those unions where we are strong the bureaucrats can never enforce such reactionary measures. At all times we must function in the unions, and we must fight for the right to do this frankly and openly. Only where we are actually confronted with expulsion shall we adopt the expedient of denying membership as a weapon in defense of our right as workers to belong to the trade unions.

The program of expulsion is a policy of desperation. It cannot succeed. Brutal suppression of the left wing cannot serve as a substitute for the powerful organization and militant program imperatively demanded by the workers in their struggles against the employers. For a time however, in spite of the mustering of our forces and denials of membership, it will hinder us by resulting in the comparative isolation of many good comrades. But if these expelled members follow the Comintern policy, by refusing to start rival unions and by waging a militant fight for reinstatement, identifying this fight with the burning needs and struggles of the unions, and cooperating with the organized left elements in the unions they can eventually break this isolation and force their way back into their organizations.

To defeat the left wing by a policy of expulsion is impossible. The masses must build their unions and give them fighting policies. This can be done only under left wing leadership, and the organized masses are bound to accept such leadership despite all the efforts of the reactionaries to divorce them from it. Never was this more effectively demonstrated than in the needle trades. Sigman and Kaufmann tried the expulsion policy and the reign of terror method against the left wing, with results that are now a matter of history. And as the expulsion policy failed in the needle industry so it will fail, sooner or later, in all the industries. The left wing cannot be destroyed by expulsion, nor can its progress be stopped by it. The left wing has the program which corresponds to the needs of the trade union masses. That is the deciding factor in the situation.

Who Gets the Increase of Wealth in United States?

AN analysis of the first 185 stock quotations on the New York stock exchange as of Nov. 28, 1925 as compared with the quotations of the same stocks a year ago brings out the astounding fact that their total value increased on the average more than 33 per cent. Being that the value of the shares of stock is not determined by the actual amount of money invested but the amount of divident paid per share the increase in value of stocks signifies therefore either an increase of exploitation of the workers or a proportional increase in the number of people employed. As seen from the table submitted below the former proves to be the case:

	1924	1925
Value of stocks	100	133
Employment	100	104
Pay rolls	10	104

While employment and pay rolls increased only 4 per cent the returns on stocks increased 33 per cent. In other words prosperity in the U. S. signifies higher return on capital and keener exploitation of the workers. It is a well known fact that the exploiters on their own hook do not increase the wage-scale and that only the organized strength of the workers as expressed in their union organizations can compel the bosses to disgorge some of their plunder.

The question in costs is what does the Gompers bureaucracy which now has a stranglehold on the trade unions do for the American working class whom they are supposed to be representing? An analysis of the organizational strength of the A. F. of L. shows that the leaders are falling down on the job. The total membership of the A. F. of L. for the year 1925 shows an increase of 11,500 but being that the membership in the building trades increased by 24,400 the actual membership in the other trades decreased by almost 13,000. The stock quotations figures as well as those for employment and pay rolls given above pertain to industries outside the building industry; in other words while the exploitation increases the organizational strength of the A. F. of L. is falling down. The claim of the union bureaucrats that prosperity in the country brings with it increase in union membership and higher wages no longer holds true. With the continual concentration of wealth as shown by the income tax returns for 1924 on one hand and the class collaboration policies of the union officialdom on the other hand, the share of the American wage slaves in the total wealth produced is clearly on the decrease.

That worker next door to you may not have anything to do tonight. Hand him this copy of the DAILY WORKER.

FLYING OSIP - - By Ivan Kasatkin

(Copyright, 1925, by International Publishers Co.)

ONE evening in May, having arranged for our wounded at the depot, we established ourselves on a meadow, waiting for kasha, when suddenly from the direction of the forest, he appeared—Flying Osip!

"Brothers, it's Osip!" rolled over the meadow—"Flying Osip!"

"Where? Where?" The newcomers among the guerilla-fighters turned their heads eagerly. "What Osip?"

"Open your eyes, not your mouths! There!"

"And really, it's him!" cried one of the old-timers; he jumped up, stuck his spoon in back of his boot-leg and yelled:

"It's him! Osip! The flying devil! . ."

"I tell you, it's him."

"Still alive! True chip of the Urals!"

"Well, brothers, if Osip's turned up there'll be something doing!"

"You don't catch Osip coming for nothing!"

"I tell you, if he's turned up! . . ."

A tall man, clad in a muzhik's coat, was approaching along the embankment, swerving aside from the piles of torn-up ties and rails of the demolished road. The skirts of his coat were stuck like wedges behind his belt, and his dingy, rust-colored cap with the visor was thrust forward on his head. One could see by his worn-out, bast shoes that the man had walked many a mile.

Coming up close to us, he slowly took off his cap, bowed to either side, and a weary smile flitted across his pock marked face.

He asked hoarsely:

"Ours?"

"Whose then? You rum guy!"

"Osip, don't you know us?"

"We spotted you way, way off!"

The man again smiled wearily, with a simple-hearted smile. He passed his dark palm over his face as if brushing off cobwebs, and unexpectedly asked in a firm voice, in military fashion:

"What detachment? Whose?"

Eagerly, interrupting one another, we named our detachment, explained our posiiton and the disposition of the enemy forces.

And the fellow with the spoon in his boot-leg, pressing forward until his nose almost touched the other's, yelled as if across a field:

"Osip, lad! Have you forgotten? Didn't you lead us in the flanking movement at Sabanov! And we struck the enemy in the rear so that . . . Gee! . . ."

"Smashed 'em to smithereens!"

Leaning wearily against a wagon, and twisting his matted beard around his finger, Osip shook his head, as if wishing to say: "I don't remember, somehow."

"At Sabanov. . . . Wait. . . ." He began to rub his nose on the outside, where the nostril was torn away. "Isn't Sokolov in your detachment? Kirsan's his given name?"

"There, you know us all right!" eagerly cried the one with the spoon in his boot-leg. "Where else should Kirsan be! Sure he's with us!"

"Sokolov's with us!" the men shouted from all sides, surrounding Osip. "Sokolov's here! Only, as it happens, he's wounded. Last night. Badly! He's at the depot, is Sokolov!"

Jus then the wagons with the large caldrons of kasha came up. Pans began to rattle. The boys rushed to the caldrons, and the cooks, swinging their ladles, shouted:

"Get in line, get in line! Look sharp, or you'll get scalded!"

Osip twisted his beard around his finger and started toward the depot. He refused even the hot kasha.

"He's off to wake up old wounds," said one of the old-timers, carefully holding his palm under the spoon that was on its way to his mouth.

"Sokolov, boys, was an eye-witness when Osip's family was completely wiped out. The Whites did the job. That's why he remembers Sokolov. No wonder! They were neighbors. . ."

"Sokolov will die," said a callow youth, blowing on the steaming kasha, his eyes bulging out. He stuffed the kasha from the spoon into his mouth, burning his tongue, and added, "A bullet hit his lung, khlear thru his back."

"Look out; you'll choke, you 'khlear thru'," mimicked a neighbor. "Swallow it first. . . ."

Osip soon came out of the depot.

Sokolov was unconscious. The ride in the wagon had shaken him up. The nurse who was there on duty asked them not to disturb him.

Osip sat down on a tie and lowered his head as if meaning to doze off. They gave him a pan of kasha. A few of them tried to address questions to him. But pushing the kasha aside, he suddenly arose, as if he had all at once recollected something.

"I have to go to headquarters. Where's headquarters?"

"Eat some kasha first! What a fellow! . . ."

"I can't! Matter of business," Osip grumbled in his beard.

And one could see that he was hundry. While we were putting the hand-car on the track to bring him to headquarters, he greedily swallowed a few handfuls of kasha, scooping it up with his fingers.

On the platform of the hand-car—we had barely started—Osip fell asleep, his head lowered between his knees.

II

Meanwhile it grew dark. Stars appeared. June-beetles buzzed like bullets over our camp. The men stretched themselves out on the meadow. Here and there little, golden gleams of cigarettes flared up.

In the forest a bittern was booming, as if into a barrel.

"Yes, there are all kinds of men. . ." sighed a Uralian, Babushkin, who came from Sokolov's district. "It's a year and a half now that Osip's been looking for death. . . . But she won't take him! He dashes from front to front, throws himself forward, straight into the fire . . . she won't take him! Did you notice the mark—the torn nostril? That was when the Whites caught him once, right in their headquarters nearly. They buried him up to his neck in the ground for a whole day. . . And they stuck a rusty nail in his nostril, and just like that . . . ripped it out with the flesh."

"You say he's looking for death," interrupted one of the youngsters, "and what the devil does he want death for? You've got things twisted, uncle."

Babushkin kept silence for a while, gazing at the crescent that was entangled in the tree-tops.

"Sometimes even death is sweet," he said after the pause. "Only, it's hard for some men to find it. Just for spite, death won't take one who doesn't fear it. And he who tries to hide from it, —you turn round, and there he is, lying under a bush, his eyes staring upward, poor soul . . ."

"Say, uncle, just tell us straight. . . . About Osip! Why is he called 'Flying'?"

"Well, that's what I'm telling you; he flies from front to front, looking for death, and she runs from him. . . . Understand? That's the kind of a man he is: he goes plump in the midst of the enemy, finds out everything, sniffs out all their plans. And when it comes to battle, he's the first everywhere, in front of all, like a wild beast. . . . And when resting—you see how it is —we laugh and make merry, but he, Osip, is blue. . . . He sits somewhere in a corner alone, and you can see that he's sad. And when he's sad, then he likes most of all to play the guitar. Of course, he don't know how to play—he picks at the strings. He lowers his head all the way down and just keeps strummin' quietly. Then you'd better not bother him. Once I sat next to him—I look—tears are rolling from his eyes . . . Hey, seems to me you're snoring!"

"N-n-no . . . only . . . those who are tired. . ."

"You just keep on telling the story. Semakov, Mitka, give me a pinch of 'backie. Ah, he's asleep—the devil!"

"And it's really time to sleep," Babushkin yawned lazily. "And Osip, I tell you, is a man of gold. A smart one. He's a teacher; one of the village teachers. When the Whites showed up around here, he, you must know,—he raised the whole Ural district against them. And when ours retreated, the others went wild—uh! And they started to slash, you may say,—even the babes. . . . . Workmen perished by thousands. They used to put out their eyes, drive nails into their brains. When they caught any of 'em in the woods they would hang 'em right there on the trees. That was when they found out what kind of a bird Baev was . . . Osip's name is Baev . . so right off they wiped out his whole family, that is, the wife and the little ones. When Sokolov starts to tell about it. your hair stands on end . . ."

Babushkin pressed down the tobacco in his pipe with his finger-nail, and struck a match. The feeble light flared up and for a moment illumined the darkness around. The boys were sleeping in every possible position. Only Vasyaga Grach, the youngest, resting his face on his palms, looked with wide-open eyes straight at Babushkin's beard.

"Say, uncle," Vasyaga said in a low and pensive voice, "that Osip is sort of strange. . . He's terrible. . . He twitches his torn nostril and his eyebrow . . . and he seems to grin . . . I've noticed it. He's like a demon. He's ferocious!"

"What?—he!—ferocious! . . . He's like a babe, Osip is. He's got the soul of a saint, lad. You couldn't find a kindlier man. Of course, he's pining . . . that's about his family. He would like to die, but even death respects the brave. But you're right. He is like a demon. Or a wild cat that lives in the woods. And just watch—he'll spill a lot of blood yet . . . of those . . ."

And Babushkin fell to snoring. Vasyaga stretched out at full length, put his hands under his head, and gazed and gazed at the crescent that had already risen high.

In the forest a bittern boomed intermittently. Over the meadow, over the sleeping men, mosquitoes droned piteously; June-beetles hummed . . .

III

The housewives of the village where we stopped had not slept, it seemed, all night; in the morning they brot us a mound of stuff cooked, fried, and what not . . .

For us this is a holiday after the wilderness of marches and fighting. We walk like heroes thru the village. Girls and women peep out of the windows and gates, and invite us with smiles and waving hands for a treat.

"Come in; try some of our eats!"

"Ah, it's hunger and tired limbs you've had!"

"The samovar is on the table. . . Step in!"

And toward noon neighboring muzhiks arrived with carloads of all kinds of supplies. Hundreds of people gathered—old and young, women and children. They surrounded us in crowds. "Some lads, those Uralians!" We can see at once that their hearts are with us and not with the enemy.

We look at them, and then, smiling from ear to ear, husky lads come over to us and ask:

"Where can we step in here?"

Volunteers, you understand, sons of——. I don't know where they come from, but each carries a new rifle on his shoulder; they're oiled, in fact, and just shine. Some, we notice, show a red ribbon on the bayonet. . .

Ah, blast their hides! Noise, commotion, laughter. . .

"Look, boys, look at the old fellow!"

"Hey, pop—you going to the war?"

"Well . . . I've sharp eyes, mother!"

"Hey, girls, stand aside, we'll tear your sarafans!"

We look up and we see our brave lads rolling out a machine-gun. A pug-nosed fellow wipes the sweat off his face with his hat and says:

"Show us where to stick in this spouter!"

"Come on, right here!"

"Oho-ho-ooo!"

"Some brute!"

"Never mind, he'll sneeze it out on our hills."

"He'll cackle, all right!"

"He's had a long rest under the straw in a barn!"

"He! he! . . . Now look out, kondra-revolution!"

And in the evening Osip came from staff-headquarters with the news: "Get ready for the offensive quietly; we start in a day or two."

Well, that's all right—a scrimmage is nothing new to us.

And Osip, you know, mounted on a bay gelding, in a leather coat and boots, and at his side a long, long revolver. But the dingy, rust-colored cap remained unchanged, its crown completely flattened in.

The repair-brigade, on hand-cars loaded with implements, rushed off somewhere. Our Osip is a real hero, turns up here and there like an ace, gives orders and all that . . . Quite a different man from yesterday's Osip!

Night fell, but few of us cared to turn in to sleep. The young folks scattered among the nooks here and there. In the houses—lights, feasting, chatter, this and that. . .

The crescent-moon was already high, and the bittern boomed again in the forest; the nightingales, too, were not letting their chance go by. And we—some behind the hedge, some at the gate, and some just in the corner—cooing with the girls, in pairs. Ah, what great girls they are!

And there, on the meadow, a three-decker accordion was going strong, and our boys stamping away, now the komarinski, now the barynya.

IV

And all that time, at the depot, leaning over the fatally wounded who were lying on the floor, Flying Osip implored, hissing like a goose:

"Sokolov, friend . . . I see you're about to die. . . . Tell me for the last time, about mine. . ."

The crescent-moon was gazing into the bullet-drilled window with a greenish, smoky light, throwing on the floor the shadow of the window-frame. The wounded moaned and raved in many voices.

Sokolov was silent under his coat. In his throat, or somewhere inside, something was rattling and gurgling. His face appeared dead and green by the light of the moon. . ."

"Sokolov . . . friend . . ."

"Don't torture yourself," gasped Sokolov.

"I need it . . . do you hear? . . . I need it!"

Osip, bending down until he was on all fours, leaned still lower over Sokolov and began to tell him in a hot, penetrating whisper how he had just been in the enemy's rear, in the very capital of the Ural, had found out, sniffed out everything, so as to strike them squarely on the head . . .

"And from there, not sparing my head, I made my way to Isetsky, to the site of my ruined home. It was night. . . . I crawled over to my house. I looked thru the window. . . . Empty, quiet. . . . And it hurt so. I almost screamed with pain. I kissed the window, do you understand, kissed the porch . . . and the ground near the porch where the villains . . . A-a-ah!"

Osip grabbed his head, swung it to and fro, became silent for a moment, moaning as if with the toothache, and again said to Sokolov:

"Friend, for the last time . . . How did it happen? Don't spare me. Tell me everything, everything! . . ."

And Sokolov, with rattling gasps and long pauses, began to tell how the Whites had burst into the village, how they found out thru various tale-bearers that Osip was the head man in everything in the district, and how they broke into his house.

"I did not see, I don't know what happened in the house. Only, they dragged your wife, that is, Natasha, out on the porch. I see she is all in tatters, breasts bare. . . The little one is in her arms and Vasyatka clings to her skirt, bawling all the way down the street. . . . The little officer happened to be a quick-tempered fellow, he complains that the brats interfere with his questioning this bitch. . . He turns to a soldier and shouts: 'Stick 'em both on a bayonet!' The soldier started back, wouldn't do it. I see him now before my eyes. a red-haired fellow, and his eyes go blink, blink. . . The officer struck him one, landing square on his freckled face . . . He grabbed the little chap and banged him against the fence, like a fish . . . And the soldier, as if in fright, stuck Vasyatka with a bayonet, so to say. . . . Then your wife, Natasha, began to scream in a horrible voice, and like a vulture she jumped at the officer, grabbed him by the throat . . . with her hands and teeth . . . O-o-oh!"

Sokolov choked. He tries to catch his breath and something boils and rattles in his chest . . . Osip still bends over him, his head lowered stiffly, and he trembles with a rapid shuddering, a sudden twitching, and his clenched hands rest on the floor.

"He, the son of a——, grabs Natasha by the hair with one hand . . . and the other hand, I see, reaches for the revolver. Vasyatka is struggling at his feet; he keeps pulling his trouser leg and he's all blue from the strain . . . The officer shoots downward under his feet. Vasyatka fell in a lump and rolled down the steps, his little hand stretched out, his shirt turning up . . . Even the soldiers turned away. . ."

Sokolov held his breath for a long time, and grabbed the blanket with his fingers, as if listening to something within himself.

"In his rage, he wanted to shoot her; it would have been much better. But then . . . the devil got two more. . . Blue uniforms with gold ing, braid on their breasts. One had glasses, again, he didn't have 'em, so to say; he had a ass in one eye. . . They grabbed Natasha, put with her face down. . . Then the two sat on , tore her clothes off, and began to flog her th the nagaika. . . But she broke loose, I don't ow how. . . And then she struck the one that had glass in his eye straight in the mug. . . He got ld. . . He yells to the soldiers in a shrill ice. 'Sharpen a stake, you sons of——!' And self he grabs a birch-stake that was by the od-pile near the fence. . . . 'Point it,' he yells, od and sharp!'"

Sokolov, obviously excited, began to swallow greedily, like a fish thrown on the sand. His es filled with tears and glistened sharply in e moonlight that fell thru the window upon the or.

"And then . . . the sons of——dug the stake to the ground with the point up. . . They tore off Natasha's clothes to the last rag . . . And stuck her naked, alive, on the stake. . . Do you understand? They put Vasyatka and the little one at her feet. . . And she stayed there for two days on the stake, horrible, blue. . . They wouldn't let her be taken down. People burst into tears at the sight of her . . ."

Sokolov turned away. With hooked fingers he grabbed the edge of the pillow, and an ominous wheezing came from his chest due to the burning pain of the disturbed wound between the shoulder-blades. . .

Osip was sitting on the floor, with his head lifted up, like a huge, shaggy dog. ready to howl. . . . He looked wild and terrible in the moonlight. He was trembling with a rapid shuddering, like a dog,—his beard shook, and his teeth showing thru his beard, chattered with swift tremors, clenched, and chattered again. . . His eyebrows twitched in strange bewilderment, in unbearable sorrow.

V

Overnight the line was put to rights. The test locomotive woke up with its merry hooting. We look and see that an armored-train, a "beetle," as we call it, was there too. Well, we started forward, Osip with our detachment, and at the very head.

The staff kept turning to him all the time.

Well, what is there to tell? Of course, we cannot even understand how and what. . . But it seems there were no preliminary attacks. It seems that we cut into the very center of the Whites. It was night-time. Again—that's more than we, just rank and file, can understand—but toward noon we had finished the job and were snoozing in camp.

And our Flying Osip was attending to the captives. He was very strong on sparing captive soldiers. He would say a word or two to them and tell them to think it over. Well, and the lads straight off beg to shoulder rifles; they become ours.

But with their officers he had his own way. Don't you dare kill an officer, but by all means bring him to Osip. And he takes his long, long revolver, and—square on the bridge of the nose—bang! And walks off without turning back. Only, his eyebrow trembles a bit and his torn nostril twiches. . . . And sometimes he would drag thru his teeth:

"D-d-dog!"

And he had another way with him: when we came to rest in a little town or a village, then, you could be mighty sure of it, he wants a guitar. We—you know,—some go after the girls, and some hang around the eats—but for him—give him a guitar. Once, fools that we were, we gave him a balalaika. He silently pushed it aside—no good.

He would sit down somewhere, on the porch or on the logs, and, pulling his dingy old cap low down over his eyes, would begin to pinch the strings: trin-tren, tren-dren. . .

He would forget himself, let his hand drop, and his head would sink lower and lower on the guitar. . .

And at such times, tho it sounds strange—we were afraid of him. We were afraid, and we were sorry for him to death. Just think—what a terrible, inhuman load hangs over his head, if one rightly understands.

The Fascist "Amnesty" in Italy

By A. CHIARINI.

THE results of the amnesty which the Italian government timed for the 25th year of the king's reign are being felt more and more every day. The prisons which were cleared of the criminal elements and fascist hooligans which even a bourgeois government should have at least given a light sentence, are now becoming more and more filled with revolutionary workers, and primarily Communists. The persecution of Communists and all revolutionary workers in general, mass arrests, exceptional measures and extraordinary decrees against any kind of workers' unions whatsoever which are not under fascist control, are becoming more frequent every day. It would appear that the fascist government is even annoyed by the fact that thanks to parliamentary immunity, a few prominent Communists are still at large, and therefore charges are now being brought up against them to provide a plea for their imprisonment.

The cynical fascist "amnesty" loudly heralded as being "for public pacification" was widely advertised. On the one hand it was a kind of expression of devotion of the fascist government for the king, and on the other hand it was of a demagogic nature to show the wide masses that fascism also is not devoid of "generosity" twards political prisoners.

Whereas former amnesties served as a stimulus for individual fascists to commit their unpunished crimes and acts of violence against the workers and peasants, this last amnesty has opened the doors wide to all fascist cut-throats whose crimes even bourgeois justice had been unable to leave completely unpunished in face of public opinion.

With regard to the workers and peasants languishing in prisons, it would seem at a first glance that now the iron doors of the cells had been opened wide before them: 1,600 political prisoners were liberated as a result of the amnesty, but they had hardly time to look around when a section of them was once more seized and clapped into jail, while the others who succeeded in dodging this recent lot of theirs were compelled to go away from their "homes" and live as political refugees in centers where they are not known and where the keen eye of the fascist "troopers" and police had not yet succeeded in honoring them with their attention. It is sufficient to say that during this last month of "public pacification" of the fascist government, another 2,000 revolutionary workers were again imprisoned. And whereas before the amnesty the average number of permanent political prisoners fluctuated frmo 8,000 to 9,000, it now reaches about 11,000.

In addition to these permanent prisoners of capital, many of whom are condemned to imprisonment for life, thousands and thousands of workers suspected of being "Soviet" revolutionaries have been compelled to pass thru the school of the fascist prisons, even if only for a short time. In reply to Comrade Gramsci's question in parliament as to why these arbitrary mass arrests were being undertaken, Mussolini cynically stated: "We are arresting you in order to become acquainted with you." And this "acquaintance" which not thousands, but already tens of thousands of comrades are being subjected to, will cost the working class of Italy very dear. This is all quite apart from the conditions inside the Italian prisons, the deprivation of wages, and the state of terror in which the families of the prisoners are kept. What is more, the the arrested workers who are liberated are put on the black books of the police, the bosses and the fascist "troopers." This means that on the slightest pretext and even without any pretext they can be once more seized and thrust into jail, that it is with great difficulty that they can find any work, while they will also meet with persecution on the part of the local fascists. These workers are compelled sooner or later to emigrate from Italy or to be put in the position of political refugees within Italy itself; in places where they are not yet known and where the hand of reaction has not yet been able to reach them.

It is obvious that under such conditions, the problem as to thousands of political prisoners, of their unfortunate families, and of the thousands of political refugees resulting everywhere from the fascist regime, faces the Italian working and peasant masses in all its gravity.

Already at the present time the Italian section of International Red Aid has about 150,000 members. But the society has not yet been formed everywhere, and its membership would be much larger if the very fact of belonging to this society of aid to class war prisoners were not considered as a crime and punished by the legal and illegal fascist laws. Cases of persecution and ill-treatment of workers and peasants only because of their being known to conduct actvities in favor of the International Red Aid, or simply thru an I. R. A. membership card being found on them, is a frequent occurence in any large or even small center in Italy.

In certain localities activities of the International Red Aid are openly forbidden by a police decree. Recently, for instance, Comrade Serrati, one of the most important I. R. A. leaders in Italy, was handed a decree by the Milan police prefect which forbids in Milan and the province the existence or undertaking of any activities whatsoever on the assumption that "the I. R. A. is in contact with revolutionary organizations." In small centers the prohibition of I. R. A. activities amounts in simply terrorizing those who show any activities in this direction, or who even show their sympathy. In spite of this, the Italian section of the I. R. A. has already displayed a very considerable activity and has done a great deal in solidifying the workers' and peasants' united front of struggle with the white terror and in aiding its victims.

The black cloud of reaction is once more forcibly hanging over workers and peasants of Italy. The persecutions of Communists and of all revolutionary workers in general creates extremely difficult conditions of life and struggle for the workers and peasants in Italy.

Under these conditions, however much the fascist government may publish "amnesties," the number of political prisoners and of persecuted workers will continue growing, and the Italian section of the International Red Aid is now the mass organization which is actively and fearlessly rallying the workers' and peasants' front against the white terror and is stretching out its fraternal hand to the revolutionary captives.

Reply of Filipinos to Gov. General Wood

By CIRILO MANAT,
Ph. B. Law School, University of Chicago.
Chairman, Filipino Independence Committee of Chicago.

GOV. GENERAL WOOD is truly a man of character. And in the words of Mr. Bell, "He has magnetism. He has brains. He is not only a military man, but also a thinker and a statesman."

Nevertheless, his counsel will not be gulped and swallowed en toto by the Filipino people, unless they forget their long struggle for justice, their investment of blood and sacrifice, of life on the sacred altar of liberty, enriched and hallowed by the memory of their heroic dead. Allow us then in behalf of truth and justice to throw the light of reason upon the seamy but honeyed masterpiece of General Wood.

Boiled to a nutshell, his recent utterances may be summed up thus: "In behalf of christianity, I am opposed to giving absolute independence to the Philippines, not only now but for all ages and for all times."

In his own words, America must stay in the Philippines "indefinitely." If the Philippines is near America (as is Cuba), he would be willing to have the Filipinos try liberty. In other words since the Philippines is eternally and permanently located in the Orient—far from America—he would not be willing to have us try liberty.

WHAT are the reason given by Gen. Wood to justify his conviction? "Because," he says, "strife, disorder, and bloodshed would be the immediate results of Philippine Independence." What a rabid prophet of disaster! What an inconsistent critic is General Wood! In one breath, he says the future is replete with disaster, and then in the next, he says: "I have visited 50 centers of life and motored extensively in the rural regions. I carried no arms. Not a weapon of any kind was needed in my party."

Wherefore, we ask General Wood, where will this foretold disaster come from? We can not believe that we can be peaceful now if tomorrow we shall cut each other's throats. We believe, and it is reasonable to believe, that we shall remain peaceful hereafter as we have been in the past. Allow us to remind our ardent benefactor that America too had strife, disorder, and much bloodshed during the civil war. If so, why expect too much of the Filipinos?

IN the next place, he argues that since the work America set out to do is only begun, because the Filipinos are still in their backward condition, America should stay in the Philippines indefinitely. Is General Wood honest? Terribly honest. If so, he must have forgotten his report, page 20, to the late President Harding in 1921 that the progress which has been made in the twenty-three years of American occupation is extraordinary. This report made President Harding say that the progress of the Philippines is without a parrallel in the history of the world.

On page 21 of the same report, General Wood declares that altho Oriental in blood and birth, they (the Filipinos) are essentially Western in religion, in form of government, and in ideals and aspirations. This was in 1921, a year after the Harrison administration. If then we are backward today, the direct, immediate, and irresistable cause must be General Wood himself. In other words, Filipinization before his regime was not a great folly as he would have you believe, for, if it was a great folly no good results would have followed it. If we are backward now under his regime, it is because he has assumed the role of a Louis the XIV and has usurped the constitutional perrogatives of the Philippine legislature. If we are non-constructive now, it is because he vetoes every constructive measure our legislature proposes, the most notable of which is his veto of the appropriation bill for the extension of education thruout the land. It is because he wants to gamble the natural resources of the Philippines to Wall Street. It is because he wants our national bank, our railroads, our sugar centrals, our mines, our rubber, farmlands, all managed by the American capitalists. It is because he is Americanizing us as he sees fit. This is more pernicious and criminal folly, when it is imposed upon and against the will of an alien, foreign people. Such Americanism as is preached by this grandiloquent exponent of imperialism is a carcinomatous cancer to democracy.

WHAT is the noble work, with all its investment of blood and treasure and twenty-five years of idealistic labor, set out by America that is today only begun? "To found a christian Filipino nation that will insure the deployment of christianity for the regeneration of the world."

This utterance is highly commendable. It is the expression of the noblest and loftiest. But why should America, the mother of liberty as the term is understood in the world today, impose upon the twelve million liberty-loving Filipinos a foreign government, deriving its power not from the consent of the governed but from the United States congress—a legislative body in which the Filipinos have no voice—just to insure the deployment of christianity?

We are surprised to see General Wood sounding the clarion call to such declaration of policy. No president of the United States ever thought that it is America's duty to humanity to christianize the world. The Filipinos may well ask the American people to scrutinize Gen. Wood's declaration of policy. It should not be forgotten that to declare this principle, he ought to be a president of the United States.

Moreover, the United States constitution itself insures religious liberty. The principle is well settled and long established in modern democracies that the church and the state are and ought to be distinct and separate. And yet, here comes, the apostle of christianity, Gen. Leonard Wood, in his military garb and imperial regalia, telling us that it is treason to give political liberty to the Philippines to the detriment of the torch of the christian faith. To him the result would be lamentable! What a jejune jeremiade! The doctrine that church is paramount and supreme over the state belongs to the dark and middle ages. It is outworn and has no place in our modern world. We claim that it is treason and a crime to civilization to disregard the righteous cause of the Filipino people, just because christianity needs to be deployed.

IF the constitution of the United states is right, the Orientals have every right and liberty to remain pagan if they want to. The Filipinos are ninety per cent christian. We challenge General Wood to show a better nation of devout christians. We are, as he says, peaceful. We practice the ten commandments. Rape, adultery, burglary, divorce, murder, etc. ad infinitum are almost unknown in the Philippines. These are the antithesis of christian virtues and yet they abound in the Occidental world. The other Orientals are not ninety per cent christian. But can the western world deny that the Chinese have far superior virtues than those who talk of christianizing the world?

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST - By L. Heller

(Editor's Note.—The fifth instalment of Labor in the Far East tells us of the victory of the workers and the losses of the imperialists. What went before: 1. PART V.

THE first results were extremely favorable to the fighting Shanghai workers. Such points of the settlement between the Chinese Seamen's Union and the Japanese shipping companies, as the reinstatement of all the strikers, the payment of wages for the entire period of the strike, the forthcoming negotiations for wage advances, signify an indisputable and important, tho not complete, victory for the Chinese seamen. The Textile Workers' Union apparently came to a similar agreement with the Japanese textile companies (full information is not available at this writing).

The negotiations on behalf of the Japanese company which were conducted by the Japanese general council, granted these concessions. The "paradise for employers" mentioned in the report of the British consul is apparently disappearing in China. The Chinese worker, whom the Japanese capitalists could only recently mercilessly exploit without meeting resistance, whom the Japanese foremen could beat and intimidate with impunity, had begun to rebel. Worse than that, he even set up trade unions, formed councils and federations that must not only be recognized, but which even force one to retreat.

This victory of the Chinese workers is the more obnoxious to the Japanese bourgeoisie, that it will undoubtedly be reflected in Japan itself and strengthen the revolutionary wing of the Japanese labor movement.

WE do not know the exact losses sustained by Japan in the three months of the strike and in the boycott of her goods. As has already been mentioned the 1919 boycott resulted in the trade between Japan and China being reduced by 40%. The losses caused by the present strike and by the much more effective boycott are undoubtedly incomparably larger. This, apart from the general political motives, lie at the root of the present Japanese "leniency."

Japan's decision to seek a reconcilliation with the Chinese workers thru serious concessions greatly weakens the position of the British capitalists in the strike. The losses sustained by Great Britain are tremendous. This is seen in the drastic falling off of the exports of the Lancashire textile industry, in the complete paralization of British shipping in the Pacific. Each day of the Hongkong strike alone, according to the Hongkong correspondent of the London Times causes a loss of 250,000 pounds; the Hongkong losses for the two months' strike are equal at least to 15 million pounds. Wholesale bankruptcies have become the order of the day in Hongkong, and even the most solidly established firms are experiencing serious difficulties and cutting down their forces. Panicky Hongkong has been bombarding London with telegrams demanding immediate military intervention in Hongkong, the crushing of the Chinese Bolsheviks, of the Moscow "bandits" who have seized power in Canton, who destroy civilization and culture, lead China to its doom, etc. But London is "reluctant." True, fresh troops have been brought up to Hongkong from India, a special warship loaded with hydroplanes arrived from Malta. Still, London is practically inactive. Moreover, London is actually preparing "treason" and seems to be inclined to compromise, to make concessions to the "rebellious slaves."

Comrade Frunze

(An Appreciation of the Late Commissar of War of the Soviet Union, written at the time of the overthrow of Baron Wrangel in the Crimea.)

By A. VORONSKY.

HE is well known to the workers, peasants, red army men and citizens of the Ivanovo-Voznessensk industrial region. He is not only well known from our days of revolt, but he is also well remembered from those days which have already receded far into the realm of the past.

In January 1907 on the outskirts of the town of Shui, a group of underground Bolshevik revolutionaries encountered by chance a police-sergeant by the name of Prelov a devoted bloodhound of that section of the gendarmerie whose work it was to exterminate internal enemies.

One of the group observed that it would be a good thing to remove the police sergeant or something similar. At that, another got down on one knee, drew out a Mauser and fired. The bullet missed fire. The sergeant turned round quickly and also opened fire. The comrade who had fired at the gendarme was unable to return the charge as the cartridge jammed in his Mauser so there was nothing for it but to bolt. The one who fired went under the nickname of Arsenia. He was a young student. He had radiant eyes and limped with one leg because in 1905 he was lassoed during a pogrom and dragged for one verst by savage drunken Cossacks.

It could hardly be said that the shooting of this police sergeant had been seriously thought out. All the more so as the firer was far from being a terrorist, and belonged to the Bolshevik social-democrats and participated in mass political work.

On March 24th, 1907, one of those whom the gendarmes and police had so long sought for was arrested in a conspirative apartment in the town of Shui. He was arrested with two Mausers in his hand; he had wanted to fire, but decided not to as there were children and other people in the house. He was called Arsenia, but that was only a pseudonym; his real name was Mikhael Frunze.

How deep this young underground worker was to the Shui workers may be gathered from the following. The news of the arrest of Arsenia spread over the whole town in a flash. The factories came to a standstill. The workers left off work and huge crowds went to the prison and demanded the liberation of Arsenia. The terrified police inspector was only able to appease the crowd by cunning and false promises and afterwards dispatched Arsenia to Vladimir in great haste. This incident was an interesting picture. The cold steel of bayonets of a whole company of soldiers flashed. File after file of the grey ranks swung by in measured steps. They were accompanying the one and only—Mikhael Frunze. He was worth a guard of honor.

After a [illegible] months during a certain trial, the police sergeant, Prelov, who was there as a witness chanced to meet Arsenial, who was also a kind of witness in the court, and thereupon announced that this was the man who had fired at him. They recorded the deposition and Frunze was faced with the death penalty. Frunze meanwhile was imprisoned. In prison he continued assiduously to study the Italian language, and the syndicalist movement. . . .

The trial came off, and the death sentence was pronounced. The Italian lessons ended but he began studying English, I believe. Who knows, perhaps it may soon be necessary to go to England of Italy? Is it worth While for a young eager student to go to Italy or England? Of course it was, very much worth while. . . .

The sentence was commuted. The prosecution protested. Once more the article on the death sentence, again a trial. And the police sergeant tried hard. According to a witness V. G. Korolenko ("Russian Wealth," No. 10, P. 134) he had a witness brought from Shui to Vladimir at his own personal expense and personally conducted him to the prosecutor of the Vladimir court. He was very zealous in destroying sedition-mongers.

The sentence was again commuted. Once again the plaintiff protested . . . And thus time went by. This affair dragged on for not less than two years. For two years his fellow prisoners saw the strong young form, for two years unwillingly they were engrossed in him, and for two years this vile strangulating noose hung over him. For two years he supposed that it would be necessary to go to England or to Italy. But what kind of a journey abroad would it be without understanding the languages? What great foresight on the part of those who study languages prior to going abroad?

Among people condemned to death two types may be distinguished it is extremely difficult to look at the one, while with regard to the others feelings are more involved and the sentiment of pain is replaced by proud consciousness that they know how to die bravely. To this latter type Frunze belonged.

His trial ended in exile. For six years he had to sit in the Vladimir Central Penitentiary. Under these deadening, damp, gloomy and hermit-like conditions, Mikhael aroused the thoughts of his comrades, did not let them pine for human sympathy, and brought assuagement into this perturbed, nerveracking atmosphere of these joyless prison days. . .

Those days were the hey day of all kinds of outrages and illtreatment of political exiles. At one time the head of the Vladimir Central Penitentiary was a certain Gudims. To use Hugo's expression, this was a man with the face of a corpse and the soul of a devil. He was a disgusting fat butcher, with sleek flabby skin, a foul breath and eyes like beads. He was a mixture of an enraged mediocrity a jesuit and a hangman. . . He had a particularly strong desire to subject Comrade Frunze to bodily punishment. . . When some important state official or other visited the prison they always asked:

"Oh, say, you have got M. Frunze here haven't you?"

And the important one was conducted into the cell where he could feast his eyes on the victim and look him up and down with curiosity. . .

When fights, quarrels or scandals arose among the political prisoners, they always turned to Comrade Mikhael.

But such a fellow as this never gives one a chance to whip him or to truss him up. But let us once get hold of him. . . and then we'll give him something to think about.

Nevertheless, even this butcher, this mixture of mediocrity, jesuit and hangman, never found an appropriate occasion for carrying out his intentions. He sought for such a chance persistently and stubbornly. . . but the opportunity never came.

Years of imprisonment, and exile. Illegal work in Siberia, an attempt at a new arrest, flight, illegal life. . .

They were forever on his track. . .

ACROSS the far-off Volga Steppes the Ufa division of the black admiral lay stretched but in fighting columns. They were sure of themselves. They were marching on Moscow. These were the best troops, the hope and support, the well-tried royal bodyguard. On the other side of the lines came wagon loads of young troops of a new army but still weak. Some of the new soldiers wore cap-helmets with big red stars similar to the helmets of the Normans and the ancient heroes. These warriors, however, came from starved working class districts. And the workers of the Volga rallied to them. They came from a country encircled by a huge ring of fire, a country which seemed to be suffocating in a dealth-like embrace of cold. . . Now they are entering the final death struggle. . . They swept on and the Ufa division was smashed. Glory to the young army. But we do not forget its commander, Comrade Frunze, who although never having passed thru military staffs or academies, showed his distinguished talents as a red military leader.

The helmets with red stars have already flashed by Ufa. The black admiral plays his trump card, he sends forward the Kappel regiment.

The Kappelites marched forward. . . The Kappel regiments know no defeat. . . The Kappel regiments are marching on Moscow: their wagons bear the inscription: Kurgan-Ufa-Moscow. . . They have with them the most experienced military specialists of the old army.

Again an encounter. The Kappelites are smashed.

THIS is an episode from the battle. . A regiment with helmets with red stars was crossing a river. The enemy fired volleys of shells. . . The detachments were making ever stronger and more audacious steps to break across. The people in the helmets were becoming disconcerted. . . One detachment became shaky, another melted away. . .

Comrades, this way. . . Not one pace backwards. Follow me. Forwards Your .commander-in-chief is with you

A man runs forward limping, with a rifle in his hands.

"Forward, forward."

The commander of the division, the unrestrained and fearless Chapaev, cries out:

"Comrade commander-in-chief. Go away from here. This is no place for you."

"Forward with me. I am taking over command of the regiment."

"Comrade commander-in-chief, it is I who am commander of the division here, and you have no right to command these troops."

A shell bursts. . . Confusion. . .

TWO years of imprisonment under a death sentence, six years exile and other wanderings, are not capable, fortunately and to the pride of humanity, of extinguishing the radiant energy from eyes, or building their fresh glitter, of depriving a man of his audacity—these things do not always clip a man's wings, or make him soft, feeble and dull. Honour and praise to humanity and to the party in whose ranks such people fight. . .

On the Orenburg steppes, thanks to the skilful commanding on the part of this young red army leader, and thanks to his cautious tactics, sixty thousand cossacks surrender.

It seems that he was not only able to defeat the enemy in the open struggle, but also make them surrender without bloodshed; and this is a particular talent.

On the Ural steppes Comrade Frunze stormed the army of General Tolstoy, a talented and clever black-hundredite.

In distant Turkestan the Caspian Sea is cleared under the leadership of Comrade Frunze. . .

I hope the diplomats will excuse me, but I think that the brilliant activity of the Bukhara revolutionaries, which ended with the Emir, being deposed, were not entirely unconnected with the activity of our red general. . .

Comrade Frunze conducted the military operations on the southern front against Wrangel with remarkable persistance and audacity. The capture of Perikop and Sivash represents one of the most brilliant pages in the history of our revolution. The most experienced French generals had been at work on the fortifications of the Isthmus. Comrade Kamenev who inspected the southern front on the eve of the attack, on returning to Moscow gave an indefinite reply to a question as to the possibility of taking Perikop and Sivash. In this connection Steklov, in a leading article, also expressed rather wavering hopes.

BUT the red lava was already flowing on the Crimean Peninsula.

A Marxist, terrorist, agitator, underground worker, was commander-in-chief on the front.

Was it not true that he had the warm heart of a boy, the personal courage of a terrorist and rare talent?

But how did he come a strategist and military leader?

He certainly did not sit with folded arms, but learned, read, took lessons from old specialists, tested his steps, but in the long run who can trace the complicated, mysterious and torturous path, this most miraculous laboratory in the world called the brain, which produces a famous artist from a ragamuffin, and a military leader and the just pride of the new army from an underground agitator? Who knows?

Comrade Mikhael knows how to rally people around him and to choose the right men. All those who have ever worked with him know that. His victories are the victories of a great organizer. His comrades loved him, and specialists respect him. He "knows how to manage things." He makes people obey him by the force of his own personality, his words are simple, but command obedience better than official orders.

He is obeyed because of his personal charm, but not only because of this.

A certain acquaintance remarked in a conversation:

"Comrade Frunze is a very kind man."

But another one who had been together with him in the Vladimir Central Prison replied:

"You do not know him. He is gentle, it is true in his personal relations, but you do not yet understand that he is as hard as stone inwardly. He has tremendous will power and a strong heart."

This is more in-keeping with the truth. He also commands obedience because his staunch heart and strong will make themselves felt.

A considerable role in making him a talented red military leader is played by the fact that in his spare moments he was always ready to amuse himself by playing about with firearms, cleaning them, taking them to pieces, assembling them again. . . . During these moments, he is just like a child playing with his toys.

L. N. Tolstoy divided people up into two categories: those in whom masculine attributes dominate, and those in whom feminine attributes dominate. In his opinion with the first category, actions are a result of the activity of the mind and are determined by the mind; with the second category the activity of the mind is directed at attaining aims evoked by emotion or at justifying actions caused by emotion.

I do not believe that Comrade Frunze belongs to either of these categories; with him his thoughts do not justfy emotions and acts, because he is inwardly veracious; nevertheless, his emotions are not suppressed or violently restrained, he does not make them obedient silent helots of reason. There are some people with whom the synthesis of mind and feelings have now already attained a relatively high degree of harmony in a so inharmonious century as ours.

In my opinion Frunze is one of these.

We Bolsheviki are astonishingly lavish. Just look at our rivals and opponents. How carefully they collect and preserve in their minds everything worthy of note. With what love have they pictured Kalaev, Balmanov, Gershuni, not to mention the Cadet leaders . . . We are frantically lavish. But after all is Comrade Frunze a less important figure than Kalaev, Gershuni and the others; just look at the wealth of color in this man. Agitator, Marxist, terrorist, a man condemned to the gallows, a commander-in-chief, fighting in the front line with rifle in hand. . . .

No, it is of real value to note these attributes if only because it will once more prove that the party of the revolutionary proletariat, despite all bloodshed by the allies and the most difficult of conditions, still has powder in the magazines.

To the Ivanovo-Voznesensk district Comrade Frunze is bound with ties of blood both in the past and in the present. In drawing attention to his distinguished qualities and services, we associate them above all with the red textile workers of our province, for it is with them that he fought on the Volga, at Ufa, Orenburg, in the Urals, by the shores of the Caspian Sea and in the Crimea.

In the Flames of Revolt Twenty Years Ago

By M. A. SKROMNY

(Reminiscences of the Revolutionary Days of 1905, by an old Rebel).

EDITOR'S NOTE:—In connection with the 20th anniversary of the revolution of 1905 we publish this series of word pictures of the revolution as told by a comrade who participated in the events of that time. This is the third story.

III.

In the House of Worship.

AFTER the pogrom the revolutionary movement in the city slowed down. Before the pogrom there was no trouble between the christian and Jewish population, there were no bad feelings. After the pogrom the trouble began. The different nationalities looked upon each other as enemies. It was quite a big job to bring some understanding and more unity between them for the sake of fighting the real enemy of both of them—the czaristic government. The revolutionists undertook that job.

The government, on the other hand, continued its work of bringing more hatred between the different nationalities. It began a systematic campaign to organize its forces for permanent work along these lines. Thus, for instance, the first patriotic organizations among the masses, made their appearance. Their main purpose was to "defend the czar and country from the reds and the Jews."

The hooligans, (hoodlums) as they were properly called, began their activities in the streets by beating up Jews, students and all those who looked like revolutionists to them. The police conveniently did not notice these beatings. The revolutionists were forced to organize in self defense. Thus the Boyevoy Otriad (military squad) of the revolutionary organization came to life in our city. It was under the strict and direct control of the city central committee.

THE most dangerous and difficult jobs were usually assigned to the B. O., as it was called. Such jobs were plentiful. The everyday task of the B. O. was to organize meetings. Under the laws of the czars, this was quite a job. There was no possibility of any kind to meet under the disguise of some legal organization for the simple reason that there were no legal organizations among the masses. Trade unions were not permitted, benefit societies or mutual aid societies, clubs or anything of the sort could not exist.

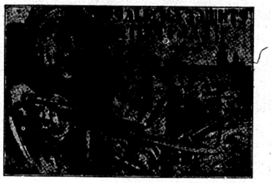
The only way workers could meet was illegally, in defiance of the law, taking thereby a chance of going to jail for three months or being exiled, if caught. It was the job of the B. O. to organize the meetings so as not to endanger the workers and the party leaders. Usually nobody, except the members of the B. O. knew where the meeting is to be held. They would find the room, usually by a comrade or sympathizer, and then would lead the workers from the shop or the "birja" to the place of the meeting. A member of the B. O. would take along with him one or two workers, two other workers would follow at a distance so as not to loose sight of them until they would come to the meeting place. Not more than two or three would enter a house at one and the same time. Other members of the B. O. would do the same. If it was necessary the trip would be repeated many times. Comng every time from a different direction so as not to become conspicious on the street. After the meeting was already under way it was the business of the B. O. to watch the police and warn against a raid, and sometimes to hold off the police in order to give the comrades time to disperse.

THE "birja" was mentioned and a little explanation is necessary for "foreigners," those who were not fortunate enough to participate in the movement at that time.

After work the workers would usually go home or to the "chaynaya" (tea room), and after supper every party member and sympathizer would go to the "birja" (exchange). But this was not a labor exchance in the usual sense of the word. Not having any meeting clubs or buildings the workers would select streets or parks were people usually prominade, in order to see each other, to meet friends and to attend to party business that could be attended in such a manner. The different parties usually had their different "birjas" that were well known to everybody including the police. But the police was helpless, because thousands of other people were promenading in the same places. From time to time raids would be conducted on the "birjas" but that would only create trouble for the police. Many strangers would be picked up against whom nothing could be proven, indignation would be created among the indifferent, and sometimes real fights with the police would result. If any known comrade was taken, the B. O. would rush to his home, make a general clean-up taking out every discriminating book, letter, or piece of illegal literature. By the time the police would arrive, everything had been cleaned out and the police would gain nothing.

The B. O. also had many other more difficult tasks, as for instance, the organizing of street demonstrations, mass meetings, the distribution of literature. At the same time it was training, theoretically, of course, how to build barricades, how to use a gun, etc. Once in a while small groups of the B. O. would go out of town into the hills for target practice, and then they would discover that they don't know much about a gun, but they did the best under the circumstances.

In the Defense of Red Petrograd



The Red Guard that came after the Boyevoy Otriads (military organization) in the October days. The Red Army came after the Red Guard.

AFTER the pogrom it was very difficult to obtain rooms for meetings. The Jews were afraid that the christian neighbors would betray them, and the christians were afraid that the Jews would betray them. Especially difficult became the situation after a meeting was attacked by a group of hooligans. The meeting was called for the purpose of organizing the seamstresses. The party was functioning organizing workers into underground unions for the economic as well as political battles. On the way home the girls were attacked by a group of hooligans and some of them badly beaten up.

This forced the B. O. to be more careful and to find safer places for meetings.

One cold winter night a very important meeting was arranged and when the comrades were brought to the meeting place, they found themselves in a Jewish synagogue. The watchman was somewhat sympathetic and being poor agreed for a certain consideration to allow us to meet there. That synagogue was used a number of times and then it became dangerous.

At another time we also used a synagogue, but without the consent, or better say, in spite of the protests of the owners.

The Jews as well as the christians continued to pray daily for the health of the czar and his whole damned family. Finally we decided to do something about it. A proclamation was prepared and distributed over the city. The B. O. at the same time arranged a raid on a synagogue, one of the biggest in the neighborhood. About a dozen members of the B. O. were assigned to the job.

It was a Jewish holiday, the house of worship was crowded to capacity. We came up from different directions and took up positions at the different entrances. Everybody was permitted to enter, but nobody to leave. Then came forward the speakers with their bodyguards. They walked up to the central platform where honors are sold for kissing the tora (holy scriptures). Ane speaker raised his hand and announced that he represented the revolutionary organization of the city and warned everybody to keep their seats and avoid trouble, as the Boyevoy Otriad is at the doors and it won't do anybody any good to start something.

THE crowd was dumbfounded and no one stirred.

"You are praying every day for the health of the bloody czar, the czar that made the pogrom on you in this city," the speaker began in the Jewish language. "You are kissing the boot that kicks you. How long will you stand for this outrage? How long will you be slaves?" He continued with a short revolutionary talk winding up with: "Down with the bloody czar! Long live the revolution!"

He was folowed by the other speaker in the Russian language with a similar talk, calling upon the Jewish workers to unite with the christian workers for the overthrow of their common enemy—the bloody czaristic government.

When they finished, a rain of proclamations came fluttering down from the gallery where the women's department was located. The people began to read the proclamations and we quietly left the place.

Somebody notified the police, but when they came no trace of the "reds" could be found.

The Red Army a School for Citizens

THE red barracks, the red army of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, are not only a school for the military training and preparation of red army men, but are also a school for educating them to be citizens and cultured workers. The following figures will show us what tremendous work the red army is doing in this respect amongst the various regular and territorial units.

"Leninist Corners" in Army.

There is a tremendous network of what are termed "Leninist corners" in the red army. Here the red army men spend the hours of their leisure and carry on autodidactic work. There are 4,500 such corners in the red army. The club, study circle and library work among the rank and file of the red army is of a very extensive nature. The number of books read increases year by year. In 1923, 6,438,484 books were borrowed from the red army libraries and in 1924, 10,051,804.

Educating a Nation.

The workers' republic is conducting tremendous work in the field of liquidating illiteracy. Unfortunately, until now a fairly large percentage of illiterates have entered the red army. On the average they fluctuate around 20%, and we are liquidating this illiteracy during the time of service in the ranks of the red army. In 1924 we instructed 33,421 absolute illiterates, which represent 9%; also 33,717 semi-literate, that is 11.6% making a total of 71.138. In 1925 we will finish the liquidation of illiteracy; we are instructing 28,947 totally illiterates and 44,257 semi-literates,—a total of 73,204.

Particular attention should be drawn to the cultural work conducted by our territorial units. Both during the preliminary training in the work of the territorial units themselves, not only the newcomers, but the entire male population of our villages in general take part. The following example will give an idea of this work. In the Vologda and Cheripovitz provinces 28% of the members of military study circles are those who have already undergone military training while the rest are ordinary peasants. In the Trotsk county of the Pskov province, out of 4,220 people attending the military study circles, 670 are ex-red army men while the rest have not yet undergone military training. We have a similar state of affairs in other territorial divisions.

A Different Kind of Commander.

The commanding and political staffs of our units are beginning to enjoy ever greater respect and recognition on the part of the peasants. Here is the opinion of a peasant from the Voronezh province concerning our commanders: "This is really our army. In the old days, we could not even go near the officers, but now the commanders are our best comrades and counsellors." When our commanders leave the villages after carrying on work there among the new recruits, there are scores and hundreds of applications from lower Soviet organiations, and from the peasant population, requesting that they be allowed to remain behind in the countryside to carry on ordinary civil Soviet work. This goes to show that the red army is the offspring of the working class and peasantry in the true sense of the word and that it is a tremendous cultural force in the countryside. The red army intends carrying on this work in the future, and we are firmly convinced that this work will give us the unity and the mutual understanding between the red army and the workers, between the rear and the red front, which is the foremost and truest guarantee for the future victories of the workers' republic.

GR[illegible]N SPEAKS AGAINST EXPULSIONS

FARMERS OF NORTHWEST GETTING WISE TO FAKE NOSTRUMS OF THE COOLIDGE-JARDINE POLITICIANS

By ALFRED KNUTSON.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 6.—The struggling farmers of the northwest, who are going broke farming under the capitalist system, see in President Coolidge an avowed enemy to their economic interests.

With the exception of a very small group of rich, reactionary farmers he is decidedly unpopular with the vast masses of farmers in this region, and whenever he makes a gesture to "better" their lot and extend "aid" to agriculture in general they merely shake their heads and shrug their shoulders in disgust.

This almost contemptuous attitude towards Coolidge is clearly noticable in practically every farming community thruout the Dakotas and the other northwestern states.

In the year 1923-24 Coolige became "convinced" that the bankrupt farmers of the northwest needed economic assistance and he therefore urged that the government come to the rescue by loaning them money. With apparent generosity some ten million dlolars of government money was sent to various banks in this territory ostensibly for the purpose of "aiding" the farmer who had gone broke.

Coolidge Comes Today!

An Enemy of the Farmers

CAL Coolidge comes to town today to talk to "representatives of the farmers." The fact that these were self-appointed, or selected from a narrow circle of bankers, business men, promoters of fraudulent co-operatives, small town lawyers, in the service of railroad lines operating in their territory, state legislators who sell out the farmers to the transportation trust—and a few absentee farm owners, does not prevent the thing being hailed as "a meeting of farmers."

From every part of the country for weeks information has poured into The DAILY WORKER proving this so-called farm meeting to be a vile swindle upon the farmers of the middle-west. The Iowa farmers who are obtaining only 50 cents a bushel for their corn crop (a drop of more than 100 per cent in 13 months) are not represented here. The poison gas thrown out by Coolidge will be reprinted in the cheap subsidized farm papers in an effort to make the farmers believe the government will do something for them.

EVERY newspaper in the agricultural region, most of them subsidized by the railroad and banking interests whose one motive in life is to gouge the farmers, will publish eulogiums to the beneficent government. Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and the federal reserve banking system will pretend to aid the farmer, by placing more funds at the disposal of the country banker so that more farmers may be induced to place their land into the hands of the banking combine. Plans may be devised to raise livestock in greater quantities on the farms of the middle west, thereby forcing the farmers to become but hired men, living below the condition of the wage-slaves, in order that a steady flow of stock may reach Armour & Co., Cudahy, Morris and the other meat packers.

THE one impelling motive of the government is to aid big business to so beat down the farmers that they become mere land serfs, producing raw material for the packing house trust, the milling trust, the transportation trust, all being brought more and more under the control of Wall Street.

AGAINST this conspiracy, the consummation of which spells ruin for them, the farmers stand helpless. Alone against the organized power of the capitalist class and their servile government the farmers cannot hope to escape the fate that is hovering over them. From "free" farmers they are being reduced to a condition below that of the wage-workers.

The farmers are being victimized by the system the same as the workers. Both groups in the United States are two indespensable factors in production. The farmers furnish the raw material and the industrial workers in the packing houses, factories and mills and on the railroads prepare it for the consumer. In the whole process the agricultural workers and the industrial workers contribute their labor power, the result of which is to pile up more wealth for the capitalist class.

AS against Coolidge, the capitalist president, who is merely a megaphone for the despoilers of the farmers, we sound the call to the farmers to refuse to support the old parties of the capitalist class, and rally to the industrial workers in their struggle for a labor party to fight against the government of the United States, which exists in its present form only for the purpose of enslaving the useful members of society in order that a gang of worthless parasites may live in opulence.

Life Of Mine Union In Balance in Anthracite

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 6.—Miners of the Pennsylvania Coal company at Pittston voted Friday night to favor the calling out the maintenance men now keeping the anthracite mines in nice shape while the operators are destroying the union. The proposal will be placed before John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. This is the first of the local unions to demand such action, and if Lewis ignores it, the miners' locals are expected to act on their own initiative.

Fakers Get Panicky.

That the Lewis machine officials even are thoroly alarmed at the situation, is seen in the speech of Thomas Kennedy, International Secretary-Treasurer at Hazelton, in which he said that the operators are "out in the open and are out to smash the union and force wage reductions." So it seems that the machine's policy of class collaboration and "discussing things around a table instead of striking" has proven a flat failure, even for the fakers themselves.

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operator's association, has issued a statement for the operators, in which he makes a comparison of the proposals put forward by Governor Pinchot and accepted by Lewis, and those of the operators. These he gives as follows:

Pinchot-Lewis Plan.

"1. Five-year contract.

"2. Men to go to work after contract is signed.

"3. Wages fixed for five years—negotiations on all other demands.

"4. Check-off.

"5. Arbitration limited to raising wages.

"6. No means for avoiding deadlock."

The Operator's Plan.

"1. Five-year contract.

"2. Mining to begin at once.

"3. Present wages and other conditions until changed by negotiation or arbitration.

"4. No check-off.

COOLIDGE'S "EXPERTS" CANNOT OVERCOME THE FARM CRISIS WITH FRAUDULENT LOAN SHARK SCHEMES

By J. E. SNYDER.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 6.—John Troumble, president of the Kansas Farmers' Union, lets the cat out of the bag when he declares "that western farmers have nothing to brag about when they are in debt on their land, about sixty dollars per acre."

With corn at fifty cents a bushel, which is below the cost of production and transportation to market, the farmer is wondering where his part of the

'UNITY IN DEEDS, NOT IN WORDS' DEMANDS LEFT WING AT I. L. G. W. CONVENTION AFTER GREEN'S SPEECH

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 6.—Sins of the Morris Sigman machine brought it to a new crisis just as President William Green concluded his unity speech. C. H. Zimmerman rose, just as Sigman was about to adjourn the convention, and said:

"The committee appointments made this morning are not in accord with the unity advocated by the president of the American Federation of Labor. They are an insult to the progressive delegates. Unity must be shown by acts as well as words. We are tired of hearing your lip service to unity when your acts speak otherwise. We will not serve on these committees as they are now constituted."

The left wing chose the best possible moment to deliver its ultimatum and while Sigman allowed no further remarks and adjourned the convention, there is little doubt that the committees will be rearranged.

GREEN OF A. F. OF L. RENOUNCES EXPULSIONS AGAINST LEFT WING

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 6.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, met on his arrival at Philadelphia by a leaflet signed by "Progressive Cloakmakers of Philadelphia" asking him to deal with questions of organization of the unorganized, the ku klux klan, the fascist movement, class collaboration, and other trade union questions, made a unity speech.

If the policy laid down by Green before the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union is to be followed, it means a complete reversal of the line of the American Federation of Labor convention and an abandonment of the expulsion policy recommended to the affiliated unions.

Radicals Necessary.

Green stated radicals are necessary to our movement. "They inspire us to renewed activity and service. I prefer the living, fighting radicalism to dry rot. We must learn to get along with them."

Green followed the suggestions of the leaflet quite closely, but in dealing with the question of organization followed the reactionary policy of blaming the workers themselves for their lack of organization.

Did Not Attack Communists.

CHICAGO POLICE TRY TO TERRORIZE GITLOW-WHITNEY DEFENSE MEETING

(By I. L. D. Press Service)

In a meeting to protest against the imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow and Anita Whitney, the big West Side Auditorium at Racine and Taylor streets, Chicago, was well filled with cheering workers and liberal sympathizers who crowded the hall in spite of one of the most remarkable exhibitions of police terror that has been seen in the city in many months.

Every man who entered the hall was met half way up the stairway by a squad of six or eight strong-arm men, who seized by the arm and without explanation roughly handled each man and then ordered him to "go on up." Every manner of humiliation thru personal handling was employed as tho in an effort to provoke resentment and if possible a physical encounter. Even women, tho the police did not in any known case actually pass their hands over their bodies, were seized by the arm and made to stand while eight tough-looking policemen looked them over searchingly from head to foot. Protests against the humiliating indignity were met with the curt statement, "We are officers."

In many cases, peaceful men, upon being suddenly seized and feeling

The Struggle for Unity in Philadelphia

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., (By Mail)—It is very interesting to study the maneuvering of the reactionary officialdom in the Philadelphia convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. The Sigman machine is quite desperate, in spite of its majority in the convention; that is because it is a paper majority, and a very shaky one; it is not sure that it will be able to survive the crucial tests.

The left wing, with a minority of the delegates (approximately 112 out of 265 total), actually represents 70 per cent of the total membership. It is a minority with a great deal of power back of it. With a proper understanding of its functions and of the left wing program, it can wreck any majority, especially if it retains solidarity in its own ranks and develops some able leadership.

So far in the convention the left wing has stood solid; on the other hand, the Sigman machine broke its ranks on the question of seating Delegate Rea of Local 38, New York City. This was a public demonstration of the fact, known before, that the machine has no solidarity within itself. The credentials committee report, which was against seating Delegate Rea, was defeated by a vote of 111 to 71. This is not decisive for the convention, of course, nor is it of great importance in itself, but it shows the instability of the Sigman machine forces.

The left wing asks no aid or favors. But the Sigman forces are depending a great deal upon the expected reinforcements, when William Green, president of the A. F. of L. will, at the "psychological moment," address the convention. This will probably occur when the convention is considering the report of the general executive board. (Green addressed the convention Saturday.)

It is nothing strange for the president of the A. F. of L. to attend the convention. It is quite the thing to be done. But if Green is coming to crush the left wing in this convention he is taking on quite a job. Gompers attended the Boston convention; but he had nothing to do except to congratulate the Sigman machine on its "noble work" of expelling the left wing delegates. And the very men and women who were expelled from the Boston convention are the ones who are leading the fight of the left wing in this Philadelphia convention.

Today the slogan of the machine, on the floor of the convention is harmony, peace, unity. At Boston, seventeen months ago, they proclaimed that at last peace had been attained. That was the cry of the victor of the moment who, thru ruthless methods, had won a very temporary victory, but the "peace," "harmony" and "unity" of Boston turned into struggle and chaos. That was because it was based upon a defeat of the membership, of the left wing program, and the temporary victory of the class collaboration policies and leadership.

The same issues that the reactionary machine defeated in Boston are before this convention. Peace within the union? Yes, but only on the basis of a fighting program in the interests of the workers, with a militant leadership to put it into effect.

Thirty pages of the report of the General Executive Board deal with the struggle between the C. E. B. and Locals 2, 9 and 22 of New York City. It is an elaborate attempt to becloud the real issues of the struggle, as in Boston, but this time the left wing will not let them get away with it.

The report gives lengthy quotations from Foster and Browder, it prints the united front policy of the T. U. E. L., and excerpts from the theses and resolutions of the Communist International, and from Losovsky's report to the third congress of the R. I. L. U. It then says, very naively: "Partly thru tactical oversight on our part, and partly thru adroit maneuvering of the opposition, which benefitted our opponents and befogged the real issues of the fight, there was brought in such issues as the change of the representation system at the joint board, the question of higher dues, fraudulent elections, extravagance of the joint board and local offices, the election of officers by referendum."

These questions, according to the report of the C. E. C., are not the real issues. If this indicates how they will settle the questions with their paper majority, then it is certain that there will be no peace, harmony, or unity.

The left wing wants unity based upon a progressive program of action. As for peace and harmony, the left wing does not expect to achieve that now; it would be only the peace and harmony of the grave. A live, fighting organization cannot be peaceful and harmonious in these days; there are differences of opinion which must be fought out.

Unity is a different matter; that can be attained. But it must be a unity of the workers, a unity within the ranks of labor, on the basis of struggle against the employers for the interests of the workers. That is the unity that is being fought for by the left wing in Philadelphia.

COMMUNIST DELEGATE SEATED AT I. L. G. W. U. CONVENTION BY 115 TO 4 AFTER MACHINE SCHEME FAILS

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 6.—The Sigman machine got such a trimming in the Marks case that it dropped the case against Sheck, also a member of the Workers (Communist) Party, in which the charges were intended to give opportunity for another drive on Communists. Long before the debate on the Marks case was over the administration was wishing that it had never made it an issue.

In one way the Marks case is an historic one. It is the first time that a trade union officialdom has made the loyalty of a Communist to his party an issue and it is now a matter of record that the delegate involved won a triumphant vindication simply by proving that he was a good Communist, loyal to his party and a fighter for the workers.

Communist Supported by Left Wing

Marks faced a most difficult situation in the manner in which the charges had been brought and the interpretation placed upon them by the machine. He must be given credit for a brilliant speech in his own defense, in exposing the real motive of the charges and it must be said moreover that he got splendid support from the whole left wing. Seldom have a group of progressives built up such a strong case against the opposition and made their own principles and motives so clear.

Antonini was probably the chief sufferer in the debate and with his friend Ninfo in the chair, neutral to the extent that he did not care who licked Antonini the usually debonair Luigi had a very bad morning. As John Fitzpatrick is so fond of saying, "it was a most unhappy situation"—for all except the left wing.

Expelled—So He "Resigned"

During the course of the debate Antonini had boasted that he had resigned from the Communist Party. It happened that Zimmerman had been a member of the District Executive Committee of the party which had expelled Antonini, and after he had informed the convention of the fact of Antonini's expulsion the latter so far forgot his previous denunciation of the party as to spend considerable time claiming that he had not been expelled. It appears that even Antonini recognizes that expulsion from a Communist Party is no light matter.

It is hardly necessary to state that during this interesting incident the face of Ninfo was adorned with what passes for a smile among the Sicilians.

Zimmerman pointed out that the left wing did not consider the seating of Marks as a favor or a gesture for unity. He said:

"We want unity only on the basis of principles and struggle, not on the basis of seating a few delegates. We want unity in the fight for the interests of the workers and the union and on no other basis."

He pointed out that the accusers of Marks had betrayed the interests of the workers. "Where do you get the audacity to accuse Marks," he said, "when the membership have already tried and convicted you?"

Rubin said "Marks lied to a capitalist judge and that was an honorable act," quoting a well-known anarchist writer to the ex-anarchists who were among the most bitter of the opponents. Greatly to the amusement of the convention, Rubin's speech in Yiddish was translated by Ninfo.

Borokovich said: "I call your attention to the fact that those who accuse Marks are not interested in Marks but in slandering the party to which he belongs. But they are too weak and discredited to harm his party—now or ever."

The opening sentences of Marks' speech gave plenty of proof that he would not back up an inch. He explained that he had been fired from a shop where he had worked for 2 years thru the influence of one of his prominent accusers. He had also been charged with not working at the trade, he said, but "I never sold insurance to the bosses, or testified against the workers as an 'impartial' chairman while I was out of a job. I could not get a job at my trade; neither could 800 other members of my union as the unemployment records show."

Then came the remark which brot the greatest ovation of the convention:

"I worked for the Freiheit—the only Jewish labor paper in America."

The chairman tried in vain to still the shouting an applause but it continued, rising and falling, for almost ten minutes.

Marks read the story of his trial from a New York newspaper of 1921, and read the decision of the Communist Party clearing him of all charges in connection with the case. The story, by the way, contained a statement by the presiding judge to the effect that the socialist party was no menace to American capitalist government. He showed that he had been elected repeatedly by the membership of the union to responsible positions while his accusers had been repudiated. He asked only for the support of those delegates who wanted to fight in the interest of the membership instead of officials. He said in conclusion:

"If Feinberg had spoken for me I would not be satisfied. If my accuser of the joint board, now a delegate from St. Louis, had spoken for me I would have asked myself if something was not wrong with me. I want to be seated by those who are for unity for the best interests of the membership because I am a worker and a Communist."

He was seated by a vote of 115 to 4, machine delegates abstained on the novel theory that they would take no responsibility in the matter.

Discovers an Armistice in Class War.

At the opening of the afternoon session Roberto Haberman, the well-known Greenwich Village Mexican spoke for the Mexican labor movement, the C. R. O. M., which Morones has succeeded, with the aid of the A. F. of L. officialdom, in making a tail to the kite of Mexico's Wall Street exploiters. Haberman declared that there was an armistice in the class struggle in Mexico but accused The DAILY WORKER of lying about Mexico because it tells the truth and says that the labor and socialist officialdom preach peace to the Mexican workers while the bosses continue to make war.

Zimmerman tried to get the floor to ask a question of Haberman but for once Sigman was firm and allowed no one to further embarrass Haberman who, during all of his rambling speech, was as nervous as a scared rabbit every time he glanced to the left.

Matthew Woll, the heir-apparent to the Gompers' throne who failed to heir, was the next speaker. He delivered his usual "evolutionary versus revolutionary" speech and got some applause from the machine delegates until he announced his purpose in coming to the convention—to sell it some "labor" life insurance.

If there is anyone in the world that has been equipped by nature for a life insurance agent it is Matthew Woll. He looks enough like a poet to get by unwary office boys but one could feel the chill settling over the convention as he unfolded the latest class collaboration scheme of the labor bureaucrats. Sigman is one of the original incorporators of this new capitalistic venture, he said, but if I am any judge this is about the poorest selling point he could have picked for the membership of the I. L. G. W.

Woll did not attack the radicals except in a roundabout way. He was there as a salesman and this is not a good convention to sell things to if one goes out of one's way to denounce the "reds." There are too many left wing delegates here to make it profitable.

On Monday the convention will take up the officers' reports—questions which will precipitate the biggest fight of the convention as it involves the New York situation.

COOLIDGE'S REPLY TO LEWIS IS CONCEALED FROM PUBLICATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—President Coolidge has replied to the recent letter of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in which the miners' head hinted at a bituminous coal strike unless the government intervened to compel the operators to live up to the Jacksonville agreement.

The White House declined to make the president's reply public on the excuse that President Coolidge felt that it might interfere or embarrass the efforts now being made by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, to settle the anthracite strike. Lewis says he has not yet received the Coolidge letter. He is now at his home in Springfield, Ill.

SIXTY-NINTH CONGRESS TO OPEN TODAY

portant questions to come up. On the world court the administration will be supported by the democrats and on the taxation proposals of Mellon they will be opposed. The opposition within the republican party will stand alone against the combination of democrats and the administration; on the taxation question most of the democrats will unite with the insurgent republicans against the administration, unless committees modify the taxation proposals to overcome the republican opposition, in which case the democrats will be a minority opposition in both houses.

Coolidge Message Tuesday.

Coolidge is on his way to Chicago where he will deliver a public harangue to grafters supposed to represent farmers, but who in reality only represent the beasts of prey who live off the farmers, and will not be back until Tuesday morning. However, his presence is not required as the message alleged to have been written by him has been completed for more than a week and will be read to a joint session of the two houses of congress. Previous utterances indicate the character of the message, which is expected to deal with the world court, taxation and to contain nothing for the working class but sophistry and threats, as is usually the case with such documents.

Organize House Monday.

This is the first session of the lower house of the sixty-ninth congress and the thing will be organized with Nicholas Longworth, scion of a Cincinnati family that made a fortune off property in the redlight district, and husband of Alice Roosevelt, as the speaker. The senate was organized during a short session last spring.

Nothing of importance will be taken up until after reading of Coolidge's message on Tuesday.

The plan of Vice-President Dawes to shut off debate in the senate will come up before that body, but will get a rude jolt as few members of that body care to be deprived of their right to talk as long as they can on any subject in case of a need arising for a filibuster.

Dawes is considered a huge joke here, and the senators even of his own party hold him in contempt because of his jackass proclivities. His waning popularity is evidenced by the attitude of the kept press which used to give him big headlines and now relegates him small space near the want-ad sections.

Green in New Expulsion Stand

life Green used the term "right" and "left" in speaking of the factions in the union and there was little if anything said by him that could even be interpreted as an attack on the Communists.

When he entered the convention hall, Sigmanites tried to get the delegates on their feet but large numbers of right wingers failed to respond to instructions of their delegation chairman.

Telegrams of thanks from C. E. Ruthenberg for the support of Ben Gitlow and from James P. Cannon, secretary of the International Labor Defense, for the support given the Zeigler miners whose cases the I. L. D. is defending, aroused tremendous applause in the convention this morning.

Machine Rules Committee Appointments.

The appointment of committees by Sigman showed that the unity speeches of the machine delegates, made with such profuseness since the opening of the convention, have been of a hypocritical nature. The machine has followed the plan of appointing to the most important committees only inexperienced rank and file delegates from the left wing and eliminating the leaders and of placing active and experienced workers like Hyman on the union label committee.

The progressive delegates laughed loud and long while the list of appointments were being read.

Chicago I. L. G. Greets Convention.

Three hundred members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers of Chicago have dispatched the following telegram to the special convention meeting at Philadelphia.

"Chicago members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers greet the special convention with enthusiasm as an expression of long sought progressive demands of the rank and file.

"We are certain that this convention will adopt all the demands put forward by the New York Joint Action Committee. We support those demands and in any case will continue to fight until they are made a reality.

"We confidently believe this convention will take a great step forward in building the power of our union."

"5. Arbitration of all disputed points without reservation

"6. Means provided to avoid a deadlock."

The above list represents, of course, Major Inglis' idea of what the miners want and what the operators intend to give them, but the Progressive Miners' Committee, which has an increasingly strong influence on the rank and file of the miners have worked out their demands which they feel correspond to the needs of the mine workers. These may be summarized as follows:

Progressive Miners' Plan.

1. No compromise by arbitration or otherwise on the demands of the Tri-District convention. One agreement to cover the whole coal mining industry. No government aid to operators.

2. Full recognition of the union, the wage increase demanded and better working conditions. A minimum wage not less than full union scale.

3. The six-hour day and the five-day week, with unemployment relief furnished by the state or federal government, disbursement to be made through the union machinery.

4. Abolition of the Conciliation Board.

5. Nationalization of the mines with workers' control.

6. A 100 per cent strike by withdrawal of the maintenance men, a national general strike of all coal miners and an alliance with the railroad workers to block scab coal.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL GREETS CZECHO-SLOVAK PARTY ON ITS SUCCESS IN RECENT ELECTIONS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 6.—The Executive Committee of the Communist International sends its congratulations to the Executive Committee of the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia on the success of the Communists in the recent parliamentary elections. In the elections the Communist Party was able to poll over 1,100,000 votes, according to the latest advices.

The Comintern hails this as a victory for the entire Communist International and in the following telegram of greeting urges the Czecho-Slovak party to do all that it can to remove newer sections of the working-class from the politically bankrupt social-democracy:

"The Executive Committee of the Communist International has learned with the greatest pleasure of your first election success. The parliamentary elections are certainly not the most favorable circumstances for the Communists on account of the persecutions and calumnies against the Communists, but if you have succeeded in obtaining a million votes and have proved yourselves to be the strongest numerically working class party, then you have achieved a great victory. The lessons of the crisis thru which your party has recently passed and which is now certainly completely liquidated, are of the greatest importance for the working class parties of the whole world.

Bubnik Repudiated.

"The 'independent' group with Bubnik at the head which has betrayed our flag and sought to bring confusion into our ranks, has earned a well merited defeat, the contempt of the workers has literally exterminated it. The lackeys of the bourgeoisie in Czecho-Slovakia have received their answer from the masses. That will be the fate of all those who may attempt to strike the Communist Party a blow in the back.

"The main task of the epoch thru which we are living is to remain a revolutionary proletarian mass party despite certain losses, despite the partial stabilization of capitalism, to make no concessions neither to sectarianism nor to opportunism.

"The Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia is without any doubt upon the correct path to the achievement of this aim.

Enemies Hopes Blasted.

"The hopes of our enemies for splits and quarrels in our ranks have been brought to nothing. The Comintern has recently achieved excellent election successes in Germany, Belgium and now Czecho-Slovakia. Our parties are learning with ever growing success to lead the masses despite the present period of comparative slump. Even in this period, if we pursue the correct tactic, if we earnestly seek to carry thru the Bolshevization, we can remove ever newer sections of the working class from the influence of the social democracy and win finally the majority of the working class over to our side. In the near future the enlarged executive of the Executive Committee of the Communist International will turn its attention to the concrete problems of the present period.

Hails Victory.

"The Executive Committee of the Communist International sends the working class of Czecho-Slovakia, and in particular, its advance guard the Communist Party, its warmest proletarian greetings.

"The chairman of the Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Zinoviev."

Soviet Facts at Least Manage to Silence the Kept Press in Chicago

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the International Live Stock Exposition, held in the vast Dexter Pavilion in the stockyards, closes its doors, and the capitalist press votes it a record breaker. The blue-blooded aristocracy turned out on the last night, at an exclusive horse show, and got its choicest list of names into the public prints. There was also a polo game, the sport of the idle rich. That was the way it ended in the midst of the great slaughter pens of Armour, Morris, Swift, Cudahy and the rest, who take the products of the farm and turn them into great profits for the "food trust."

The attendance was announced as the biggest ever. In order to pad it, thousands of Chicago school children were herded out to "the yards" and rushed thru the exposition. Probably the first time that most of them had ever seen a cow, a sheep or a hog. They were not good substitutes for the children of the farms, whose parents were unable to pay the price of a short holiday in Chicago, "The Hog Butcher of the World", as Carl Sandburg, the poet, calls it.

• • • •

It is well to point out the difference in the Union of Soviet Republics. There the real dirt farmers, the peasant masses who stand with the city workers in improving the fruits of the triumphant Bolshevik revolution, come in great throngs to the agricultural and live stock expositions in which they are interested, most of their expenses met by their own Soviet government. These Russian gatherings are centers of real education and not show-off places for the parasites; an impossible thing in Russia today, of course, because there the parasitic landlord, banker, food profiteer class has been downed forever. In Chicago, however, these leaches upon the masses still dominate.

• • • •

One of the incidents that proved to the full the nature of the gathering was the absolute silence maintained by the whole capitalist press concerning the visit to the exposition of three representatives of the Union of Soviet Republics, J. G. Ohsol, of the Amtorg Trading Co., D. N. Borodin, of the Russian Agricultural Agency in America, and Boris Skvirsky, of the Russian Information Bureau in Washington.

The Russians came to Chicago as the guests of the American Rambouillet Sheep Breeders' Association that co-operated with the Soviet Mission that visited the United States late in the summer and purchased 3,500 head of this breed to help improve the growing Russian flocks. Practically every Chicago profit sheet had representatives at the dinner that was given for the Soviet spokesmen at St. Huberts Inn. These writers took down copious notes of all that was said, especially the speeches made by Ohsol, Borodin and Skvirsky, relating exact conditions. But not a word thruout the whole broad expanse of the kept press. Here was the truth about Soviet rule put down under the noses of these subsidized organs of capitalism, that pride themselves on their "nose for news." But, like The Tribune, that has withdrawn its correspondent from Soviet soil, they would rather get their news from the propaganda liars stationed at Riga, Latvia, Helsingfors, Finland, Stockholm, Sweden, or other centers for the dissemination of anti-Soviet falsehoods.

• • • •

But in this instance, at least, the hireling press was silenced. It dared not lie about the reception given the Soviet representatives in Chicago. To do so would arouse the wrath of American interests that not only hope, but even now are doing considerable "business" with the Soviet government. It was, therefore, caught between two pincers.

• • • •

The day approaches when the American farmers, in place of the food profiteers, will have their own International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago. But that day will not arrive until the profit press, one of the last citadels of the capitalist enemy, has been completley silenced, thru the abolition of capitalism; the capitalist press that will today hail Cal Coolidge's quack nostrums for the solution of the many ills that beset America's farming population.

RETAIL CLERKS WANT TO FIGHT ON INJUNCTION

At the Sunday meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor Retail Clerks' Union No. 195 introduced a resolution against the recent ruling of the labor hating judge, Dennis Sullivan, who held the recently passed anti-injunction law of Illinois unconstitutional.

The committee on resolutions reported favorably on the resolution and it would have unquestionably passed had not Oscar Nelson made a motion that it be referred to the executive board with power to act.

Others advocated that the Chicago Federation also call on the Illinois State Federation of Labor to act on the resolution.

Wants Joint Fight.

Delegate Swabeck advocated a joint fight of the Chicago Federation and State Federation on the decision of Sullivan and also discussed some of the history of injunctions. He said that any legislative bill passed as the result of lobbying means nothing, as the legislators pass such laws knowing full well that the courts will declare them unconstitutional. He also advocated a drive in the unions to work up mass sentiment against judicial tyranny.

The decision of Sullivan directly affected the retail clerks who were on strike against Ossey Brothers department store, corner Maxwell and Halsted street. To prevent picketing the attorneys for the store took the case before Sullivan, and true to his odious record, he declared the law unconstitutional and issued an injunction against the picketing of the premises.

Philadelphia Workers Staging a Series of Plays Against War

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—The Workers' Theater Alliance of Philadelphia, composed of working class artists, is putting on a series of one-act plays written by John Lassen and Simon Felshin. The first of the series, Victory, deals with the next war and is said to be a graphic portrayal of the new horrors a parasitically controlled science has in store for the workers in the next imperialist struggle.

A special appeal is being made to the delegates to the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union which is meeting in Lu Lu temple directly across from the Eagles temple at Broad and Spring Garden streets where the plays will be staged Wednesday evening, Dec. 9, at 8:15 sharp.

All the proceeds of the enterprise go to the class war prisoners, who are being taken care of by the International Labor Defense. The Workers' Theater Alliance is co-operating for the occasion with the Philadelphia branch of the I. L. D. The admission to the performances is 50 cents.

Workers interested in proletarian drama are asked to communicate with Clara A. Thomas, 509 W. Girard Ave., Philadelphia.

MINERS DIE IN COLORADO MINE BLAST

T. B. and Explosion Raced for One Man

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEDERLAND, Colo., Dec. 6.—A terrifying fourteen-hour ordeal was ended early Saturday when the words, "all safe" came out of the emergency shaft to the Cardinal gold and silver mine, where twenty miners had been trapped in the flame-swept, smoke-filled tunnel, where fire blocked the entrance and bottled them in inky blackness, at eight o'clock Friday morning.

Charles Hjurquist, 50 years old, a veteran miner, one of the rescuers, lost his life when he went one time too many into the vapor-filled tunnel. Charles Stevens a miner, one of the entombed men, was found dead. His death however, is alleged to be not the result of gas or smoke, but miners' consumption, and his companions are claimed to have said that death from this disease was but a few days off at the most the morning he entered the mine.

Twelve men comprising the rescue squad entered an improvised shaft at nine o'clock, braving the poisonous gases which swept up thru the opening in their first attempt to bring to the surface those that still lived or their dead bodies. Seven of these were overcome and were missing for a time, but were brought out early yesterday morning. Pulmotors were applied to the rescuers and miners who had been overcome, as fast as they reached the surface. Many of the men collapsed on reaching the open air.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., A. C. W. MEMBERS WHIP MACHINE

Hillman's Terrorism Fails to Work

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 6.—The members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Rochester have shown that the tailors are not afraid of the union officials who tried to intimidate the rank and file of the union.

At a meeting of the members the first hall proved too small to hold the crowd and a larger hall was used.

Hillman Came With Gangsters.

President Hillman of the A. C. W. came to Rochester with orders that the meeting be broken up, and well known thugs were imported from Chicago to do the job. Alex Cohen organized the wrecking crew, but it did them little good.

Manager Chatman introduced the president of the joint board, MacMahon, an Elk and a known republican. Strebel, a national organizer asked the tailors to elect MacMahon as chairman. But he got only 24 votes while Peter Teem, progressive, got all the rest.

Machine Whipped.

A demonstration for Teem resulted, and the progressives Nelson and Liptzin spoke, telling the tailors in detail about the conditions in the industry and the measures the A. C. W. membership must adopt to meet these conditions.

The A. C. W. members hooted down the machine officials who tried to interrupt and demonstrated enthusiastically for the action committee of the union rank and file. They warned the machine officials that an action committee in Rochester will be their answer to the attempt to terrorize the membership.

The hall was filled and the membership gave a wonderful demonstration of militant left wing spirit and action, and in addition gave liberally towards defraying the expenses of the meeting.

EGGS FAST BECOMING LUXURY FOR WORKERS AS PRICE INCREASES

Eggs are fast becoming a luxury in Chicago. With an increase of 4 cents per dozen in the past three days bringing the price of firsts to 73 cents per dozen, they will be out of the reach of many workers whose weekly earnings average $20 to $25.

In Cleveland eggs were selling at 65 cents per dozen and Ohio wholesalers were quoting eggs at 56 cents per dozen.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The convention of the Hungarian Federation of the Workers (Communist) Party adopted the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee today with only two out of the twenty-six delegates voting against it.

All the editors and bureau members were present with a consultative vote only, voted unanimously in favor of the unity resolution.

CHANG'S ARMY LOSES BATTLE TO MUTINEERS

Feng Moves Troops Against Tientsin

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TOKIO, Dec. 6.—Things are going from bad to worse for Chang Tso-lin, imperialist tool recently the greatest force in northern China and but a short while ago the invader and conqueror of the coastal region as far south as Shanghai.

General Kuo Sung-ling, one of Chang's former aids, in command of 100,000 mutinous troops who have been won over to the standard of the national liberation movement, have whipped Chang's chief remaining forces acting as a barrier against capture of Mukden in a major battle near Chinchow, Manchuria, and the rebel army is marching on toward Mukden in pursuit of Chang's retreating troops.

The governor of the province of Chihli, General Li Ching-lin, who was cut off from Chang's armies by the mutiny, but who has been trying to aid him, is now threatened by General Feng Yu-hsiang, whose troops are moving upon Tientsin with the intention of driving General Li out.

American gunboats, together with British war vessels, have arrived at Chefoo, indicating that all is not easy in the minds of western imperialists over the civil war in China.

ROUMANIAN BOYAR MILITARY COURT SENTENCES TATARBOUNAR PEASANTS TO LONG TERMS AT HARD LABOR

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Dec. 6.—The secret military tribunal at Kishenev has pronounced sentences of from two to twenty years at hard labor against 85 of the Bessarabian peasants and has "acquitted" 200 of the defendants. These peasants were tried for their participation in an uprising against the iron rule of the Roumanian boyars.

It is not known as yet what the fate of the other 200 peasants who participated in the Tatarbounar uprising will be. The decisions of the court are guarded with the utmost secrecy and it is with utmost difficulty that any news of the sentences can be learned.

I. W. W. SEAMEN AND COMMUNISTS PICKETING SHIP

Both Give Aid to the Seamen of Greece

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 6.—The owners of the Greek steamer Edisson, which the I. W. W. Marine Transport Workers and Greek members of the Workers (Communist) Party are picketing, may not be able to get the ship away from the dock at 39th St. Brooklyn when she is scheduled to sail today.

The crew, it seems, is part naval men and part civilian, and it is the civilian section which is striking, as the whole line is called on strike by the Greek unions.

International Solidarity.

The Marine Transport Workers of the I. W. W. have, therefore, nothing to do with making the demands, but are showing a fine sense of international solidarity by furnishing pickets from the I. W. W. to strip the ship of crew and prevent another crew shipping on as far as they are able.

This international solidarity to consist of a boycott and picketing, was voted on favorably at the Manhattan branch of the M. T. W. No. 510, on Nov. 25, after report of the whole line being struck by the seamen's union of Greece was given to the body.

Communists Join Picket Line.

Picketing squads of thirty or forty, made up of I. W. W. seamen and Greek and Italian members of the Workers (Communist) Party, have been on the picket line, although some have been beaten and searched by the police. The incident as a whole illustrates the spirit of international solidarity now ruling in the Marine Transport Workers. Whether their power is great enough to win or not, it is the spirit of united struggle which will attract and gain such a power.

Paris Authorities Find Small Fascist Arsenal

PARIS, Dec. 6—Thirty-one revolvers and three blackjacks belonging to the "King's Peddlers" (Camelots du Roi) were seized by the Paris police following the annual meeting of the royalist-fascist association in a gymnasium here.

Lefebvre, the manager of the gymnasium was caught as he was bringing out this small arsenal. He admitted upon being questioned that the bundle contained revolvers and that he was carrying them to the office of the newspaper Action Francaise.

The Action Francaise in its columns declared that it was a private gathering and that the members of the association were entitled to carry arms to protect themselves against "assault."

Convert Farms Into Resorts and Game Preserves for Rich

There has been a great increase in the scale of farm lands for recreation purposes, winter and summer resorts and game preserves, the Natl. Assn. of Real Estate boards reports. Questionnaires sent to dealers in farm land in 31 states and 2 provinces of Canada indicate a growing demand for such lands.

POLICE USED BY CEMETERY BOSSES TO BREAK STRIKE

Gravediggers Demand Union Conditions

County highway police are guarding the Mount Olivet and the Holy Sepulchre cemeteries, where the gravediggers and the caretaker have walked out on strike along with those of three other catholic cemetaries to enforce the demands of the union.

Both the Holy Sepulchre and the Mount Olivet cemetaries are using strikebreakers to bury those that are sent there to be buried.

Police details furnished the cemetary bosses will "guard" the strikebreakers to and from and at work against any of the striking gravediggers, who are trying to reach the strikeberakers to tell them of the existing strike.

Very few graves have been dug by strike breakers. The strike is being led by a federal union of the American Federation of Labor.

Geneva Gets Chilean Case While at Arica Everybody Is Polite

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 6.—The United States cruiser Rochester left here for New York today, the Denver having arrived yesterday. The Chileans made quite a demonstration at the departure of the Rochester, Admiral Latimer and the officers receiving ovations from all public bodies, and a bevy of Tacna-Arica's dark-eyed senoritas escorting the admiral to the dack with flowers.

From Santiago, Chile, the news comes that the Chilean delegate to the league of nations has placed a complete report of the Tacna-Arica happenings before the league at Geneva.

General Pershing refuses to answer to the press the speech of the Chilean delegate to the plebiscitary commission, Augustin Edwards, made in the commission last Saturday. He says he holds that the commission is "a private body."

LETTISH WORKERS OF CHICAGO GIVE DIPLOMAT JOLT

Mass Meeting Brands Him Coward

The Lettish workers of Chicago had a good laugh on the diplomatic representative of the Latvian government Mr. A. Sehja who came all the way from Washington, D. C. to address the local branch of the United States Chamber of Commerce and a Lettish "mass" meeting arranged for him by his representative Mr. Ullman, a renegade socialist and now Latvian consul. There were 32 people present at the "mass" meeting and Sehja treated them as tho he had a school boy audience.

Several weeks ago, agents of the Latvian government, including a notorius Mr. Schmidt, renegade socialist, have been "feeling out" the sentiment of the Lettish workers in Chicago, as to whether they would agree to come to Sehja's meeting. It was explained that everybody would be allowed to ask questions in writing.

Agreement Reached.

An agreement was reached—in writing—that a meeting, arranged by the Lettish Branch of the International Labor Defence, would be addressed by Sehja or Ullman. In a circular letter sent to Lettish workers in Chicago, it was made clear that there are no illusions about the character of the Latvian government, as far as the working class is concerned. The circular read, in part, as follows:

"Lettish workers: We expect the official representative of the Latvian government, Sehja, to tell us all about the imprisonment of Lettish workers, by the Latvian government, for no other crime than their political beliefs and opinions and what is being done to take care of the victims' families. We expect also that Sehja will tell us that the militant trade union movement is suppressed in Latvia and its individual members deprived of all political rights, including the right of free speech and assemblage, and that the trade union representatives are all jailed."

Too Hot For Coward.

This circular letter proved too hot for Mr. Sehja. He felt that the Lettish workers are wise as to his true mission in this country; that they are well informed about conditions in Latvia, where jails are overcrowded with political prisoners, and that the same inquisitors employed by the old czarist regime in Latvia are in power with a number of additions. He decided to stay away from the meeting called by the International Labor Defense, Lettish Branch.

Adopt Resolution.

There were 200 workers present at Harmony Hall at the meeting arranged by the Lettish Branch, International Labor Defense. Several of those present pointed out the reasons for the absence of Mr. Sehja and Mr. Ullman and of the conditions in Latvian prisons and in the country. Two letters, received from Latvia during the past week, were read depicting the conditions in the country; the struggle of the workers for bread and the utter impossibility to find employment; of the repressive measures used by the government against workers and their organizations and the open support given fascists; expressing confidence that the time is not far away when the Lettish working class will overthrow the present government and establish in its place a workers and peasants soviet.

After a discussion, the following resolution was adopted, which reads in part as follows:

"Be it resolved that we consider Mr. Sehja and Mr. Ullman, cowards for failing to attend the Lettish mass meeting as promised, and that the meeting is aware of the true character of the Latvian government, and its American representatives and that copies of the resolution be given the press and sent to Mr. Sehja and Mr Ullman, minister and consul, respectively, of the Latvian government in this country."

BELLAIRE HOLDS LARGE MEETING DESPITE BARS

Workers Defy Chamber of Comerce Edict

(I. L. D. News Service)

BELLAIRE, Ohio, Dec. 6 — The large hall at the Miners' Temple in Bellaire, O., was crowded to capacity with standing room only when men and women gathered to hear Bishop Brown and Fred G. Biedenkapp on the need for labor defense and class solidarity.

The audience loudly approved the statement of Bishop Brown that we must banish the gods from the skies and the capitalists from the earth.

When Biedenkapp stated that no amount of persecution would prevent the eventual supremacy of labor over capital, the hall rang with approval. A large collection for defense was taken up by Chaiman Hogue, who reminded the workers of their duty to their class and cause.

Defy Chamber of Commerce.

The large attendance at the meeting was undoubtedly the answer of the workers of Bellaire to the recent autocratic action of the city administration supported by reactionary forces in an attempt to prevent and suppress free speech and workers' meetings, as was the case when the Workers (Communist) Party meeting to celebrate the 8th Russian anniversary was forbidden.

The workers of Bellaire are not inclined to have their meetings interfered with by the police or the Chamber of Commerce.

Yorkville Holds Meeting.

In the evening a meeting was held in the Miners' Hall at Yorkville, O. where Comrade Biedenkapp drew a large attendance which showed their approval of all he said by the many applications for membership in the International Labor Defense, received.

"What Price Glory" Continues to Attract Crowds to Studebaker

"What Price Glory" continues to draw crowds to the Studebaker Theater, crowds that are amused by the attacks in the capitalist war machine.

The play is produced by Arthur Hopkins, known to theater managers as a "revolutionist" in the realm of theater productions. Louis Wolheim, one of the best dramatic actors in America, better known to theater lovers is his role of "The Hairy Ape" takes the star part. Louis Wolheim's chief purpose in life as an actor seems to be to shock the fat bourgeoisie out of their smugness.

There are many gripping scenes. American and German workers maiming and murdering each other, men reduced to beasts and boys crazed by the terrific strain. They grovel in the dirt riddled with bullets. Death comes to rescue them from their tortuous existence. The question comes and persists, "What was it all for?"

"What Price Glory" is worth while seeing, and Louis Wolheim helps to put it over.

Spain Will Now Have "Civilian" Government

MADRID, Dec. 6.—"Civilian" government has been restored in Spain with Primo de Rivera, who was Spain's military dictator, as premier of the new cabinet.

It was General Primo de Rivera, who in September 1923 organized the coup that established the military dictatorship. Now he is changing it to a "civilian" government.

The cabinet will not be composed entirely of soldiers. There will be a number of academicians, who are faithful to the former military dictator.

REPUBLICANS TRY TO PROVE FRAUD AGAINST SENATOR

Novel Charge Against Brookhart

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Evidence to support his charge that Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, was "fraudulently elected" because he repudiatde the republican party in favor of the independent presidential candidacy of the late Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, was laid beofre the senate elections committee by H. E. Spangler, counsel for the Iowa republican central committee.

T. W. Turner, chief tabulator of the votes in the contest brought against Brookhart by Daniel E. Steck, democrat, said 86,334 Iowans failed to vote in the election which Brookhart won by less than 1,000.

Juggling Figures.

There was 120,720 straight republican and 75,702 straight democratic votes out of a total of more than 1000,000 votes, said Turner. All the other ballots were split.

Spangler charged that thousands of Iowans were disfranchised because Brookhart did not suport the republican ticket.

C. C. Clifton, a Des Moines newspaper reporter, testified that Brookhart and LaFollette had a joint campaign manager in Iowa. He said also that state republican newspaper published sample ballots urging the people to vote for Steck instead of Brookhart.

COMMUNISTS FOR AN INDEPENDENT ALSACE-LORRAINE

Delegates Pledged to Fight for Freedom

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, (By mail).—In the closing sessions of the Interparliamentary Communist Congress here, the question of Alsace-Lorraine occupied the major part of the time. The French and German delegations pledged each other to fight in their respective parliaments for freeing of Alsace-Lorraine from imperialist oppression.

In the name of the workers of Alsace and Lorraine Comrade Huber welcomed the decision of the Comintern to bring before the congress.

Comrade Treint then read a declaration in the name of the French delegation in favor of the autonomy of Alsace and Lorraine, if necessary complete independence, the right of self-determination for the people of Alsace and Lorraine and if necessary a complete separation from France.

In the name of the German delegation Comrade Stoecker then read a declaration to the effect that the German Communists would work together with the French Communists in support of the workers and peasants of Alsace and Lorraine against all forms of imperialist oppression. Altho the German Communists support the attempts of the toilers in Alsace and Lorraine for autonomy, they nevertheless expect that the workers and peasants of Alsace and Lorraine will arrive ever more and more to the conclusion that their real freedom can only be brought about by the proletarian revolution and by an alliance with the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics of Europe.

A resolution against the pact of Locarno was then adopted. The resolution will be read in all parliaments as the Communist declaration. Further resolutions adopted were for the eight hour day and for the autonomy and self-determination of Alsace-Lorraine.

SOUTH SLAV WORKERS FULFILL PLEDGE TO AID DAILY WORKER; $1,000 DONATED ALL AT ONCE!

One thousand dollars was received today by The DAILY WORKER from the South Slavic section of the Workers Party of America as the climax of these comrades' efforts to put the Communist newspaper on a safe financial basis.

Systematically and persistently, thru the South Slavic paper Radnik, the federation bureau has been collecting this amount, pledged to The DAILY WORKER at the beginning of the drive. Most of the donations were sent directly to Radnik, tho a total of $43.50 came to the English paper,—$13.75 from McKees Rocks, Pa.; $14.75 from Nashwauk, Minn.; and $15.00 from West Brownsville, Pa.

This complete fulfillment of the South Slavic comrades' pledge should inspire other Workers Party branches and workers' clubs to take an accounting and to determine if their present duty to the Communist press is 100 per cent performed. This 100 per cent record must be duplicated in the entire campaign, so that the complete $40,000 is raised to bring The DAILY WORKER safely thru the crisis.

Has your name been on the list of those who have put all other interests aside and devoted the entire energy to the task of rescuing and preserving The DAILY WORKER? If not, rally to this final call for help!

The Way Not to Fight in the Party

Statement of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party.

THE following letter was received by the organizer of the Jewish branch of Cleveland, Ohio, and he read it in part at the branch meeting, stating that he had received it from Comrade H. J. Costrell, a member of the Jewish bureau of the party. After the secretary of the branch realized the nature of the communication he was reading, he stopped and refused to read further, but on the demand of the branch it was read in full. The secretary then tried to destroy the document but it was secured, altho torn in pieces, by a representative of the district office. Accompanying this document there was a resolution introduced in the political committee of the party by Comrades Johnstone and Browder. This resolution was before the political committee and could only be in the lands of other comrades thru a violation of the discipline of the party. The letter read by the secretary of the Jewish branch follows:

"DEAR Comrade: No doubt you are already acquainted with the so-called unity resolution which was published by the political committee of the C. E. C. in the party press, and which they recommend for discussion and adoption in all sections of the party.

"This resolution is an open declaration of war against those comrades of the majority and what is worse, it endangers our entire movement. In their struggle against the Foster group the comrades of the minority stop at nothing. They know that in order to successfully war against Comrade Foster and the group they must disrupt comrade Fosters principal work, and that is, our work in the trade unions. They have undertaken to liquidate the Trade Union Educational League. So they declare in their resolution for the time being with half words, that it is necessary to fundamentally revise the trade union policy. They do not propose, tho, any other policy and want, no, demand, that the membership shall vote for 'revision,' give them a blank check so that they may do with this whatever they wish. This is entirely, a non-Communist conduct of a central committee of a Communist Party. The Comintern has condemned in the sharpest words the Ruth Fischer leadership of the German Communist Party for exactly that sort of conduct.

"What the present majority of the C. E. C. intends is to entirely eliminate the T. U. E. L. Lovestone has declared 'that if we conclude that the T. U. E. L. has outlived its usefulness we will liquidate it altogether.' Cannon has declared at a meeting of the Chicago District Oommittee, that he begins a struggle against the Foster policies in the trade union work from start to finish.

"The struggle against Foster's policies in the trade union work means liquidation of the decisions of the parity commission and the convention, means to struggle against the Comintern and the Profintern which indorsed the T. U. E. L. at three world congresses, means, ruining the work of the union movement and we must not permit it.

"Our present majority has in the three months since the convention, already displayed its inability and its non-Communist tendencies. The mistakes they have already made are sufficient indication that they have lost the confidence of the membership. An atmosphere of terror has been introduced in the party. The leading committees of the party have been eliminated, the work has been turned over to single comrade, who are not competent to lead the work, (an example: Wm. Abrams has been appointed representative of the C. E. C. to the national committee of the needle trades section. Comments are unnecessary.) Discrimination is practiced against every comrade who dares to criticise and point out the mistakes that are made. The unity resolution states openly that no discrimination will be made against others than those who will vote against the resolution.

"In the union work they have made criminal mistakes. The work that they have carried thru in the coal strike (read Gitlow's article in the Nov. issue of the Workers Monthly) and at the Furriers' convention indicate what can be expected of them.

"We have decided to combat their non-Communist policies from start to finish. We send you herewith a resolution which we propose for the membership. You must begin to organize and see that you accomplish the adoption of this resolution in every party section."

THE Central Executive Committee of the party is of the opinion that the best way to threat secret, factional documents of this character, directed against the party, is by publishing them before the whole party and giving the party membership the opportunity to express judgement about them.

The Central Executive Committee has no secrets from the membership so far as its policy and work are concerned, and of the firm opinion that in a Communist Party the established method of open and free discussion on all party questions before the party convention, is the one permissible means of settling differences of opinion in regard to party tactics and policy and that the method of secret documents circulated in the dark cannot be tolerated in the party.

Party Unity Grows.

THE letter published above is all the more dangerous because it consists of a tissue of misrepresentations which would not bear the light of open discussion in the party. It is circulated at a time when substantial progress has been made not only in the unifications of the leadership of the party, but in unifying the membership of the party behind this leadership. The fact that three months after the national convention the political committee of the party could come to a unanimous agreement to unite the leadership of the party is an important achievement for our organization. The unanimous acceptance of the unity resolution of the C. E. C. by the convention of the Finnish section, representing a third of our membership, is another great step forward. The membership meetings now being held will show that the party membership generally supports the policy of putting an end to factionalism, and uniting the party in work among the masses. The Detroit membership has already voted ten to one for this policy.

The statement in the above letter that the unity resolution of the political committee is directed against any person or group has no basis in fact. The resolution particularly emphasized the need, thru argument and discussion, to convince those comrades who still did not accept the resolution, of the correctness of the line laid down and win them toward unified work of the party. This is and will be the policy pursued by the C. E. C., for which it asks the support of the party.

Trade Union Policy.

THE statements about the trade union policy and work of the party are the most dangerous mistatement in this letter. One of the central points laid down in the unity resolution is the intensification of our work in the trade unions. The resolution calls for an energetic campaign to induce those members who are not in the trade unions to join the unions. It urges the necessity of at last building up a systematic organization of party fractions in the trade unions. In calling for the revision of our tactics on the trade union field in certain respects, the political committee refered to the necessity of actually carrying out the instructions of the Comintern Profintern letter to our party that "the party must strive to convert the Trade Union Educational League into an extensive left bloc organization lining up all revolutionary and progressive elements in the labor unions against the reactionary bureaucracy." The political committee is now studying the question and working upon a resolution which will give the party a program for carrying out these instructions. This resolution will be submitted to a full plenum meeting of the Central Executive Committee and will be submitted to the Communist International and the Red International of Labor Unions for approval before being put into effect as the party policy.

THE attempt to create a factional issue on the question before the Central Executive Committee has actually formulated its proposals, particularly in the light of the fact that the C. E. C. will secure the approval of the Comintern before putting its policy into effect, indicates that the motives dominating those responsible for this circular are not those of the best interests of the party but a desperate effort to manufacture a factional issue.

The attack upon Com. Gitlow thru misrepresentation of his article at a time when he is unable to defend himself is something even of a worse character. The question of the policy of the party and the work of the party in the anthracite strike has been covered by a special statement of the C. E. C. published in the press, which all party members should study and contrast with the reckless statements in the above circular. The party can be proud of the work it has done in the anthracite. It stands in contrast to the fact that the party has never before participated so energetically in a great struggle of the workers. In the Furriers' Union the party made concrete gains in consolidating a strong left wing, free from doubtful elements.

Others Rumors in the Party.

Rumors in regard to cablegrams dealing with the party situation, which are supposed to have been received by the party are also being circulated among the membership. These rumors are made of the same cloth as this factional letter. The Central Executive Committee will keep the party full informed in regard to all questions affecting the party interests and the membership should deal with such rumors in the way that they deserve, that is to treat them as efforts of a small clique in the party which is opposed to the unification of the party forces for mass work to keep up a fight in the party.

United Mass Work Needed.

THE need of the hour for our party is to throw the energies of the party into work among the masses. We have too long concentrated upon inner struggles of the party to the neglect of building the influence and prestige of the party among the masses. The aim of the Central Executive Committee is to mobilize the whole membership for the work of the party in the trade unions, for a new intensified campaign for the labor party, for a great workers' movement for defense and recognition, of the Soviet Union for the struggle against imperialism. This work has been begun. It will grow in volume, and with it will grow the influence of our party and the membership of the party.

The party membership should repudiate any efforts to disturb this work to strengthen the work of our party among the masses thru circulation of secret documents making unfounded charges which will not bear the light of day. The rules and practices of the party give the full opportunity for the party to pass judgment upon the leadership of the Central Executive Committee in the discussion which precedes the party convention. There is no need to resort to secret, factional misrepresentation by any group in the party which has just criticism to make of the work of the Central Executive Committee.

While the comrades responsible for this circular letter have laid themselves open to disciplinary action, the Central Executive Committee will not resort to such action but leaves it to the membership to repudiate these tactics.

COMRADES of the party! Our party is going forward again. The work of unification in the leadership and in support of it the membership will be completed. The party will again throw its energies into the mass struggles rebuild its influence and leadership of the workers. The Central Executive Committee asks the united support of the membership in this work which it has undertaken for the party.

Fraternally submitted.

DETROIT MEMBERSHIP AND DETROIT EXECUTIVE ENDORSE PARTY UNITY

The first of a series of membership meetings arranged by the Central Executive Committee of the Party for discussion of the Unity Resolution of the Political Committee and mobilization of the membership for mass work, particularly the work in the trade unions, was held in Detroit, Mich., Friday night. The meeting, by a vote of 96 to 12 adopted the Unity Resolution of the Political Committee.

Prior to the membership meeting a meeting of the District Executive Committee was held, at which the same questions were discussed. The District Executive Committee in Detroit, by a vote of 9 against 2, approved of the Unity Resolution.

The representatives of the Central Executive Committee, Comrades James P. Cannon and Jay Lovestone, in their speeches analyzed the party leadership and membership and the throwing of all the forces of the party into mass work. Particular attention was called to the need of mobilization of the membership for work in the trade unions and a plan for systematic work to draw every member eligible for trade union membership into some labor organization.

Attendance at the membership meeting was cut down thru heavy rain before the meeting.

Israel Blankenstein, who attended the meeting, coming from Chicago for that purpose, carried on a fight against the Unity Resolution, received very little support. His factional speech was disapproved by the overwhelming part of the membership present at the meeting.

Membership meetings will be held in all party centers during the next ten days. The results of the meeting in Detroit indicate that the membership of the party will overwhelmingly support the work of unification of the party and its leadership and the throwing of our organization into the mass struggle of the workers and thus building up the prestige and leadership of the party among the masses.

The experience of the Detroit meetings are the best indication that the party membership refuses to be drawn into new factional struggles which a small group in the party are endeavoring to continue, but will endorse the policy of the Central Executive Committee for unification and for united work for the upbuilding of the party.

Party Reorganization in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—In Cleveland the reorganization of the party is progressing very favorably. As we proceed to the actual work incident to reorganization, the comrades begin to understand as they could not understand thru lectures and reading the significance to our party of the reorganized form. The result is, that where the comrades previously gave tacit consent, they now give enthusiastic support to the reorganization measures.

The city has been divided into five sections. The divisions were made with a consideration to industrial areas and transportation facilities. Incidentally too, altho more or less accidentally, these divisions correspond very closely to the political districts into which this city is divided.

Rather than waiting till section meetings could be called before the membership was registered, we instructed all branches to elect shop nuclei organizers who were entrusted with the task of registering the membership and returning the cards to the office. To date about two-thirds of the membership has been registered. The analysis of this registration has proved very interesting and illuminating. This analysis shows that we have already 19 shop nuclei with a membership ranging from 3 to 8 and a total membership of 68. No doubt when the registration is fully completed many members will be added to these nuclei and others will be formed. In addition to these nuclei organized within large plants, producing steel, automobiles and machinery, a number of concentration nuclei—five can and will be formed in industrial areas where many of our comrades work, but where there are not at least three comrades working in the same shop. In all the present analysis indicates that we are ready to organize at least 31 party units in this city.

Workers' Clubs.

The problem of workers' clubs has also aroused considerable interest. Many language branches have already a basis for the organization of such clubs, in existing singing, literary and other cultural organization. For these units the problem is one of amalgamating the several such organizations into one that will have varied sections (singing, orchestral, dramatic, literary and educational). The district executive committee called a conference of leading comrades in the various language groupings of the district. This conference was well attended. Eleven federations were represented by 39 members. The discussion was both interesting and instructive for all who participated in it. This conference succeeded in dispelling considerable confusion and misunderstanding and laid the basis for effective activity by the language propaganda committees, thruout the district.

Section Meetings.

Comrades living in Section 5 will meet at Carpentina's (Finnish) Hall, 1303 West 58th street, near Detroit Ave., on Monday, Dec. 7 at 8 p. m.

Section meetings of all the party members will be held again during the week of Dec. 9 to 14. All comrades who have registered, all who have failed to register, all who did or did not attend the first meetings, must attend the meeting of the section to which they belong. Failure to attend these meetings will mean that the comrades are outside the party.

The section meetings are as follows:

Section 1—Wednesday, Dec. 9, at 8 p. m., at the district office, 5927 Euclid avenue.

Section 2—Thursday, Dec. 10, at 8 p. m., at Grdinia Hall, 6021 St Claire Ave. (not at the South Slavic Hall).

Section 3—Friday, Dec. 11, at 8 p. m. at Hanna Hall, 5311 Woodland Ave.

Section 4—Saturday, Dec. 12, at 8 p. m., at the Hungarian Hall, 4309 Lorain Ave.

Section 5—Monday, Dec. 14, at 8 p. m., at Carpentina's (Finnish) Hall, 1303 W. 58th St., near Detroit Ave.

Comrades, if you intend to remain in the party, do not fail to attend your section meeting!

FIRST PIONEER CONVENTION IS HUGE SUCCESS

School Nuclei Formation Begun

By R. M. BENDER.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Workers, young and old, packed the Labor Temple Sunday night to celebrate the first convention of the Young Pioneers of America, one of the vital sections of the American revolutionary movement. In line with the new Communist policy, the pioneers are reorganizing on the basis of school nuclei, showing that they are, as their slogan indicates,—"Always ready."

How important the pioneer movement is considered was expressed by the strong, enthusiastic response from the audience to the pioneer songs and the workers flag pledge.

Combat Boy Scouts!

Martha Stone, speaking on the struggles of the past two years, emphasized work done in the New York schools, where the boy scouts are in the opposition camp. Appealing to pioneers and adults to put all their energy into making the movement a mass organization, she showed how, if the diseases of church, school and militarism were not combatted, the workers children would grow up to be unconscious tools of the employing class, pitched into the class war against their own class.

Comrade Girshenowitz from the Paterson pioneers spoke on their activities during the recent silk strike and of how they sang revolutionary songs while walking with the strikers on the picket line.

That the pioneers are not something apart from the adult movement, but are the very stuff which is to comprise the future Bolshevik party, was pointed out by Comrade Don.

Telegrams of greetings from the Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia sections of the pioneers and letters from the Workers Party and the Y. W. L. of district two were read by the chairman, S. Mahlman, following which everyone sang the International,—in a unison of appreciation.

Greetings from the Workers Party, district 2, were then given by Comrade Stachel, who pointed out how incomplete the American section of the Communist International would be without the pioneers. Referring to the present international crises, he declared that the it becomes more and more important that working class youth form a mass organization and be "always ready" to fight for the working class.

Senators Demand Probe of Financial Backing of World Court Drive

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A number of senators here are planning to force an investigation into the source of funds that are being used to pay for the propaganda for the world court in this country.

The Fellowship Forum, organ of the ku klux klan, published an article in which it points out that according to information which they have at hand, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will resign his post unless Coolidge reverses his stand on the world court. The klan paper states that Dwight L. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co. is slated for the job.

Both Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declined to comment on the klan paper's statement.

Workers (Communist) Party, District 8, Expels Katsiolis

In the following declaration by District No. 8, Workers (Communist) Party, George Katsiolis, who claims to be a Communist and a progressive in the Barbers' Union and who served on the Master Barbers' Committee, is denounced and is expelled from membership in the Workers (Communist) Party for his attempts to get the union to line up with the bosses in passing upon applications for the opening of new shops, a proposal aiming to effect a closer co-operation between the bosses and the union.

"At a meeting of Local No. 548, Journeymen Barbers, George Katsiolis served on the bosses' committee and spoke for the proposal of the Master Barbers' Association that a committee of master barbers and journeymen shall have power to pass upon all applications for the opening of new shops and which proposal, presumably, is to effect closer co-operation between the journeymen and the bosses.

"The party requested him to declare whether he repudiated and acknowledged his action to be wrong, and the criticism of the progressive barbers' group correct. He has failed to do so.

Against Collaboration.

"The position of Katsiolis, both as a professing Communist and progressive in the labor movement is indefensible. It was wrong for him to speak for any phase of the bosses' program. As a matter of elementary principles in the class struggle, the demands of the union against the bosses must be supported. It is our duty to criticize the union officials who do not fight for and who betray the interests of the membership. We must struggle to overthrow such an officialdom and to place the union on a militant basis and program.

Progressives Correct.

"The position of the progressive barbers' group in opposing the plan of the bosses for the prevention of the opening of new shops except under certain conditions, was correct. This move reduces itself to an effort by the bosses to maintain monopoly of the trade. In this the journeymen barbers have nothing to gain. Progressive and class conscious unionists recognize that the direct and militant struggle for more wages, a shorter work day, better working conditions, etc., are the ways to gain their immediate demands, and associate themselves with the demands and program of the progressive barbers' group for immediate betterment of the situation of the journemen barbers and for an honest, militant and class conscious union officialdom.

Expelled from Party.

"Katsiolis has failed as a Communist, to take a proper stand among the barbers on various issues. He does not recognize his errors and conceptions. Nothing is left but to remove him from the Communist ranks, and he is hereby expelled from the Workers (Communist) Party.

(Signed) "Workers (Communist) Party, Dist. No. 8.

DISTRICT EIGHT CIRCUIT SCHOOLS START WITH BANG

Double Registration in Some Cities

One of the most interesting features that indicate how the party membership in district No. 8 are turning their attention to the problem of Bolshevising themselves and the Workers (Communist) Party is to be found in the rapid increase shown in the circuit classes in the elements of Communism, conducted by Comrade Oliver Carlson.

Gary, South Bend and Milwaukee were the three cities selected for the circuit.

The class registration in Gary has grown from 19 to 25 while the attendance has increased from 10 to 19. In South Bend the class had an initial registration of 7 with an attendance of 6. This has been more than doubled, there being now 18 registered students of which 15 were present at the last class session.

In Milwaukee the increase in registration has been from 25 to 44, with the attendance figures growing from 23 to 40. These figures speak for themselves and indicate the growing consciousness of the party and league membership to a more intensive study of the principles and tactics upon which the Communist movement is based and develops.

The Case of Fred H. Merrick

Statement by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party of America.

FRED H. MERRICK entered the Pittsburgh court in which he was to be tried for criminal sedition last Monday and his attorney entered for him a plea of nolle contendre, which means that he pleaded neither ghilty nor not guilty to the charges against him. On Friday, Merrick was brot into court for sentence and in answer to questions stated that he had left the party in July and pledged himself not to engage in its activities in the future. On the basis of these statements, he was paroled by the judge for a period of ten years.

The charges against Merrick were based upon his activities as district organizer of the Workers Party. They involved the right of the party to carry on its activities openly in the state of Pennsylvania. In addition to Merrick, there were indicted eight other comrades. The district attorney made the proposal that all of the nine defendants plead nolle contendre and they would be paroled as Merrick was. The question was submitted to the Central Executive Committee of the party, which decided that no member of the party could stand mute under such charges and it instructed all of the defendants to plead not guilty and to fight the cases against them.

Altho a special representative of the party was sent to Merrick in an effort to induce him to take his stand with the other eight defendants loyally supporting the principles of the party and fighting for the right of the party to carry on its work in Pennsylvania, Merrick refused to carry out the instructions of the C. E. C.

It is a tragedy for the revolutionary movement when a fighter such as Fred H. Merrick has been felled under the blows of the capitalist class. Merrick's past history has been that of a militant fighter for the working class cause. Because of his active support of the Westinghouse strike some seven or eight years ago, he served a three and half year prison sentence. The brutal treatment he received undermined his health and broke down his nervous system. Even that, however, cannot be an excuse for the betrayal of his comrades and the revolutionary movement, which Merrick committed when he refused to take his stand with the other defendants and fight with them.

Merrick declared in court that he had not been a member of the party since July, altho he took no action to sever his connection with the party. The Central Executive Committee of the party does not accept Merrick's statement of having severed his connection, but publicly expels him from the party.

The betrayal by Merrick is all the more discreditable in contrast to the spirit shown by the other defendants. Comrade Horacek, who was called to trial following Merrick's betrayal, boldly took his stand and pleaded not guilty and on the witness stand avowed the Communist principle and his support of those principles. The other defendants, Comrades Voytuk, Urbon, Pasternak, Jenkins, Rostrom, John Kovalski and Tom Myerscough were ready to take the same position.

This is the revolutionary courage which is a credit to our party.

DOCTORS KEEP WORKERS FROM COMPENSATION

Steel Co. Able to Dodge State Law

By A Worker Correspondent

WARREN, O., Dec. 6.—How the employment of "company" doctors helps to evade and break down the state laws for compensation for injury is shown plainly in the Carnegie Steel Co. works.

"If, in the opinion of the surgeon, your injuries result in loss of time exceeding one week, you are entitled to compensation." This is the way the law is explained to the worker. The "joker" in this is that the company hires its own doctors to care for the men and injured workers are hurried back to work, whether cured or not, before the week is up.

Foremen Force Workers Back.

With canes, crutches and bandages, they are forced to limp back to the shop and if unable to work, to sit around all day in order to save the company the expense of paying compensation. If foremen report the need for the company's paying compensation, they are "jacked up" and if they report too often are fired or blacklisted. Thus, in order to hold their jobs, they must force their injured men to come back to work before a week is up, in order to escape the compensation laws.

Claim Agent is Company Tool.

"For full particulars, call on the claim agent." This is printed on the card that the company uses in sending the workers to the company doctors. Thus, for information about the compensation laws, the workers are forced to go to a company employee. Usually the claim agent is a young student of law and a willing tool of the corporation.

With company doctors and company claim-agents, the Carnegie Steel Co. is making every effort to substitute its own, for the state's compensation law. And its compensation is "No Compensation" as a rule.

When that argument begins at lunch time in your shop tomorrow—show them what the DAILY WORKER says about it.

PROGRESSIVES CALL ON MEMBERS OF CARPENTERS' LOCAL No. 2717 TO FIGHT AGAINST GOLDBERG AND CO.

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—In the fight of the Brownsville carpenters against the reactionaries in Local Union No. 2717, the progressive carpenters call upon the rank and file of the union to repudiate Goldberg & Co., who are selling out the union men and are not protecting the union carpenters on the job. The following appeal is being circulated among the Brownsville carpenters:

"Brother Carpenters:

"You are now in a struggle to clean your local union of some old rubbish. Your struggle is worthy of support. Every honest and progressive thinking worker will throw himself into this fight and see to it that this struggle once began shall be carried to a successful conclusion.

Goldberg and Co. Must Go.

"Just as the name of Brindell in the Carpenters' Union of New York stands for reaction, corruption, graft and betrayal—so does the name of Goldberg come to pass in Brownsville. The carpenters of Brownsville have no use for Samuel Goldberg and they will get rid of him, but with him must go every man of his clique.

"Goldberg is accused of betraying the carpenters of Brownsville to the reactionary gang downtown—Halkett, Judge, Kelso, Wilson and company. Goldberg is accused of selling the carpenters of Brownsville to the bosses.

"Golberg is accused of graft by the Parquet Floor Layers' Union, this case is still pending in a criminal court.

"Goldberg is accused of tampering with the treasury of Carpenters' Local No. 2717.

"Goldberg is accused of doing the work of a stool pigeon, trying to break up the Carpenters' Union in Brownsville.

Goldberg's self appointment of chairman, his contemptible use of gangsters to keep out active members from union meetings, his foul trickery with the representative of the general office, Gerin, the forging of minutes of the local union—proves Goldberg guilty. Goldberg and Co. are traitors to the carpenters—out with them.

Less Talk, More Action.

"Local 2717 is living thru a crisis. In a crisis you must act—there is no time to waste on empty talk. There is absolutely too much talk. Members of 2717—the brotherhood is your brotherhood, Hutcheson, Gerin, Halkett and Goldberg are elected officials, if you do not vote for them, they are no more officials. If you don't want them—you get rid of them. If an official is a traitor to the members who elected him—there is no more room for such an official in the union—even as a plain member. The fundamental principle of a local union is self government—the constitution of the brotherhood guarantees this right. "Carpenters of Brownsville: Talk Less—Act. Use your constitutional rights. You work, you pay dues—you are the union. Permit no one to mislead or fool you. Brownsville is sick of Goldberg and his gang. Carpenters' Local No. 2717 as well as the other Brownsville Carpenter Locals are in danger if this bunch of traitors are allowed to operate with the District Council, with the bosses and with the membership of the brotherhood. You are the union—they are a bunch of fakers—kick them out. It is the will of the membership—you can compel every official of the brotherhood from Hutcheson down to Halkett to respect and accept the action of the local union as legal and constitutional and for the good and welfare of Local No. 2717 and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America as a whole.

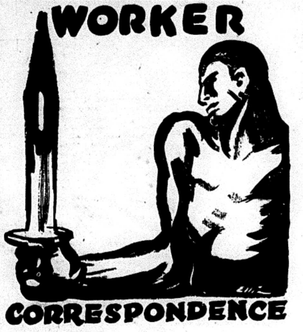
Bust Up Conspiracy!

"Your fight against Goldberg and Co. is not a local fight. It touches the very heart of the New York carpenters. There is a conspiracy to again sell out the rank and file of the Carpenters' Union. The reactionary bureaucracy is doing everything possible to defeat the $12 per day wage and the 5-day week; there is no thot of eliminating lumping which is rampant in our trade; nothing is being done to protect the carpenter on the job; the system of job control, an established fact in other unions, is not even suggested.

"A conspiracy to sell out the rank and file to the master builders is on foot. Goldberg is Halkett's good man Friday, he is his messenger boy in Brownsville.

"The time is here to clean your union, make a thoro cleaning. Goldberg Bros., Sokolowsky, Martin and Co. all must get out—no compromise with any one of them. There is no room for traitors, grafters and stool pigeons in Local No. 2717. The carpenters of New York are going to bust up the conspiracy against the rank and file. Brownsville carpenters join in, determine your own destiny, control your local union, be on your guard."

The Power of the Proletarian Pen



SHOW HEALTH OFFICIAL IS STOOL PIGEON FOR BERRY PACKAGE AND BOX COMPANY AT CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

By SAWDUST SAM, Worker Correspondent.

"The Law in its supreme impartiality forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep on the bridges or beg their bread on the streets."—Anatole France.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 6.—In Massachusetts as in most other states, there is a department of labor and industry, which according to our democratic standards is supposed to carry out the state labor laws. The following facts will show how impartial are the heads of these departments and to what extent the labor laws of Massachusetts are enforced.

Workers' Health in Danger.

In the Berry Box and Package Co., formerly the Page Box Co., 1 Hampshire St., Cambridge, Mass., every labor law on the statute books is flagrantly violated. According to these laws, in woodworking factories it is compulsory to provide blowers on machines to remove the constant stream of fine powdery sawdust. In the cabinet department of the above mentioned factory, due to the failure on the part of the company to comply with the law, the workers inhale this fine power like sawdust into their lungs for nine hours a day, as regular working day and overtime to boot. Continuous overtime is the rule in this shop where organization is completely absent.

So thick is the dust in this department that the company was obliged to move its finishing room, where the radio cabinets are stained and varnished, to another plant in a different section of the city of Cambridge. But the workers' health is disregarded not alone by the company but also by the department of labor and industry at the head of which is a certain Mr. John J. Meade.

Mr. Meade Has a Record.

Mr. John J. Meade, head of the department of labor and industry of Massachusetts, was informed of the conditions at the Cambridge radio factory and was requested to send out a factory inspector to compel the company to comply with the law which demands the installation of blowers on woodworking machinery to carry away the dust. Factory Inspector O'Brion came and reported that the laws were being violated in the Berry Box and Package Co. Undoubtedly the workers who expected Mr. Meade to take further action in the case were somewhat uninformed as to that gentleman's labor record. Mr. Meade, in his capacity as head of the department of labor and industry, is actively opposed the 48-hour law for women.

Mr. Meade was asked for a report after the factory was inspected. "We issued an order to the company to install the blowers and the company agreed to comply," was the pleasant answer.

Nevertheless, time passed and no blowers were installed though new machinery is being constantly installed, even on Sundays.

Repeated telephone calls to Mr. Meade by a representative of the workers secured no results. In reply to the question, "When are the blowers to be installed in the radio factory in Cambridge," Mr. Meade always insisted that the person who was telephoning should come into his office to look over the correspondence between himself and the company, because Mr. Meade was playing the part of stool pigeon for the company and wanted to trace the identity of the workers who were responsible for reporting the factory in the first place.

An Indefinite Promise.

"No time limit was set for the company in which to comply with orders issued by the department of labor" said Mr. Meade. In excuse Mr. Meade vaguely hinted that the company might move from its present location. This is an obvious stall as new machines would not be set up in the present location were the company going to move. Mr. Meade's attitude to the workers is hostile in keeping with his opposition to the women's 48-hour law.

In this case, Mr. Meade's refusal to enforce the labor laws of the state shows undoubtedly that the Berry Box and Package company was able to "fix" the gentleman, the so-called public servant whom the workers' taxes help to keep in office.

So bad is Mr. Meade's labor record in Massachusetts that even Mr. Edward F. McGrady, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor at Washington, denounced him on the floor of the Boston Central Labor Union at one of its recent meetings for his failure to enforce the labor laws of the state.

Judge Waite's Injunction.

The workers who read in the pages of the capitalist press of Boston of the injunction handed out by Judge Waite against the striking taxi drivers of Boston, wonder what their chances are under our democratic form of government, to get an injunction against the Berry Box and Package company to compel them to comply with the state labor laws or what their chances would be in a capitalist court to get an impeachment against officials who are responsible for maintaining a Mr. Meade as head of the department of labor and industry of the state of Massachusetts.

The impartiality of capitalist justice has been meted out with a vengeance in the Massachusetts courts recently in the injunction against the striking taxi drivers of Boston, an injunction which was published in The DAILY WORKER in November.

To class conscious workers Judge Waite is nothing new. Courts are controlled and run by and for the capitalist class.

The Correspondents' Class in Chicago

By NANCY MARKOFF.

THE Worker Correspondents' course of the Chicago Workers' School which meets in the editorial room of The DAILY WORKER every Thursday at 8 p. m. has made a very promising start.

At its last session talks by J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER, and Arne Swabeck, General Secretary of District No. 8, brot out the following helpful points, on which the work of the class will be based:

The Job Defined.

A worker correspondent differs entirely form any other kind of newspaper correspondent, both in the story he writes and the purpose it serves. His story must aim to tell about or describe a specific condition that exists in his factory, shop or industry, analyse its origin and cause, then lead towards an immediate organized demand for elimination of that condition.

Questions to be exploited are wage cuts, piece work and speed-up systems and what they mean to workers; the strike; the foreman's tyranny, the boss, the work agreements, sanitary conditions of the shop, health conditions, accidents, their cause and compensations, new machinery, what it means to workers organized and unorganized, under capitalism and under a workers' government, spies in the shop, welfare clubs, company unions. Writing up union meetings, political meetings, public school conditions, the mother's viewpoint, the teacher's viewpoint; important events in a locality.

A promising feature of this class is that each of the students enrolled is a worker of some specific industry. Articles were assigned to them for the next class which will be held Dec. 10. These articles will be criticized in class by students themselves with the assistance of the instructors. The reading assignment is the little Red Library Pamphlet No. 4, Worker Correspondents by William F. Dunne, which can be read thru in less than an hour. The class will take up each point made in this pamphlet and discuss it.

The Living Newspaper.

The students were particularly pleased with the prospect of organizing a "living newspaper" in Chicago. The class will train its most talented students to perform at regular periodic gatherings at which a "living newspaper" will be "published" right before the eyes of the audience with the correspondents getting up, each in his turn and doing "his stuff."

The only requirements for joining the worker correspondents' class is a desire to tell about conditions that exist in your shop and a desire to point out these conditions to other workers.

The article need not be signed other than by a Worker Correspondent. But it should be written so that it will carry a message to other workers.

If you do nothing more than listen to the contributions read in class and criticized by the instructors and students you are gradually learning how to write for the workers' newspaper. one or two sessions and you too will be moved to write. You will then quickly call to mind something that has taken place that very day at work which would surely make a good story and you will suddenly feel that you must tell it. You will reach for your pencil and you will begin to write and there, before your eyes, you will see the birth of a "worker correspondent."

Pravda Makes Corerspondents.

How did the Pravda, official organ of the Russian Communist Party, develop its worker correspondents? That is an interesting story. It will be told at the next class (Dec. 10th session).

We aim to make the Chicago worker correspondents' class the leading center of all worker correspendents as it rightfully should be with The DAILY WORKER being published here. We want to develop this class into such large proportions that it will be necessary to conduct more than than one or even two classes and eventually to spread them to all parts of the city until The DAILY WORKER will become the voice of articulate masses.

Enroll for the next class on Thursday, Dec. 10, editorial room, DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd. Make it the subject for discussion at your street or shop nucleus and appoint a worker corerspondent for youi nucleus.

NOTHING THE MATTER WITH BUSINESS, BUT ANDY KNOWS A CURE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—Secretary of the Treasury Andy Mellon yesterday gave out his usual optimistic interview with denial that any "boom" or "inflation" existed in credit. However, he added that the increase from four to five per cent in the London rediscount rate would cause an outward movement of gold from the U. S., and would, he expects "halt any step toward too much credit or inflation, that stands in the way of American business."

So, after both saying that there was nothing wrong with American economics, and stating that the cure of existing ailments was expected to be the increase in London rediscounts, Andy retired again into the grotto like the Delphian oracle of old.

PA. BUSINESS MEN WANT OPEN SHOP IN ANTHRACITE

Reduction of Prices Based on Wage Cut

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 6.—The chambers of commerce of Scranton, Wilkesbarre and Hazleton are working on a new plan to "settle the strike" of anthracite miners, which plan will be submitted to both the owners and the miners in a few days.

They claim that they were against Pinchot's clause in the plan he proposed, provinding for a maintenance of the present prices. Along with the operators, these chambers of commerce think, apparently, that if they can break the United Mine Workers' Union completely, and as an attempt to win support of the "consuming public" for this open shop measure, they are talking the possibility of reducing the price of anthracite.

None are talking, however, of reducing profits of the owners, but only by reducing the wages paid. A meeting between Pinchot and the commercial bodies is to take place at Harrisburg next Tuesday.

De Valera to Make War on Settlement of Ulster Boundary

DUBLIN, Dec. 6.—Eamon De Valera is out to make war on the settlement of the Irish boundary dispute. De Valera in a speech in Dublin today will exhort his followers to resist the settlement. The government party is holding a conference today to discuss means of combatting the growing opposition to the settlement.

FASCISTI COURT LETS MATTEOTTI MURDERERS FREE

Mussolini Tools Found Not Guilty

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME—(By Mail.)—During the recent splurge about plots to assassinate the fascist dictator, Benito Mussolini, the trial of the two fascist murderers, Rossi Filipelli and Marinelli, for the murder of the socialist deputy Matteotti was held.

These two murderers who had acted under the instructions of Mussolini, were found not guilty and were set free.

Many of Italian papers expressed the opinion that the "complot" which was "discovered" was merely a blind so that the workers of Italy would not have their attention on the trial and also to be used as a means to pass more restrictive legislation so that the fascist dictator could have more power than Caesar ever dreamed of ever having.

At the same time authority to issue $625,000 worth of stocks and bonds was asked, the proceeds to be used in acquiring what is known as the Jacksonville branch, between Jacksonville and Havanna, Ill., of the same road.

Reorganization and the Right Dangers

Commenting on the calblegram from the Young Communist International urging the Young Workers League to support the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee, The DAILY WORKER stated editorially, "With the right danger completely overcome and the last remnants of the disease being eradicated . . ." Some members of the party have interpreted this statement to mean that the right wing danger in our party has been completely eliminated. This is, of course, not the case. There are still strong right wing tendencies in the party against which the party must continue to carry on a struggle. The point made in our editorial was that the unification of the party already achieved had made clear that the right wing in the party will not be able to gain control of the party or to exert influence over a large part of the membership.

The reorganization of the party naturally has created opposition from the right, which manifests itself in an effort to hinder the reorganization program now being put into effect by the Central Executive Committee. The nature of the opposition to the reorganization of the party on the basis of shop nuclei and street nuclei has been greatly clarified in the history of Ludwig Lore.

Lore was an opponent to the reorganization of the party. He has openly stated this since his expulsion from the party. Today Lore is openly in opposition to the party and the Communist International and carries on a campaign of slander and misrepresentation against the party and of criticism and belittling of the Communist International. Lore, while he was still in the party, made his objections to the decisions of the Comintern in the form of complaints that the Comintern was not correctly informed as to the conditions in the United States and in relation to the Workers (Communist) Party and for a time stated his determination to appeal to the Comintern in person. His attitude toward the Comintern, altho masked under the claim of misinformation and determination to make an appeal, was opposition to the role of the Comintern as a leader of a world party. Since his exclusion from the party he has come out in the open under his true colors. He is fighting the Comintern and its American section. The history of Lore's evolution is of importance in judging the question of right tendencies in the party.

The cablegram from the Young Communist International emphasized the need of a continued determined struggle against every manifestation of right tendencies in our party. The present united leadership in our party is assurance that new manifestations of right tendencies, whether they be in the form of opposition to reorganisation or hidden opposition to the Communist International, will be met by determined struggle to eradicate them from the party. The best weapon in such a struggle is the education of the membership of the party in Marxist-Leninist principles, the systematic campaign for the bolshevization of the party. This is the program of the Central Executive Committee, which is set forth in the unity resolution endorsed by the Young Communist International.

Do you want the joy of knowing and feeling that you possess something of the great wisdom of the Bolsheviks—?

Cal's Experts Can't Help Farmers

Coolidge prosperity comes in.

Those farmers who are in the business of buying up cattle to feed during the winter on the cheap corn, are not doing it this fall as the corn is wet, and when shelled starts to rot. That also explains why corn is not being rushed to market.

The bankers of course are coming to the rescue—with seven to twenty per cent loans to "save the crop." Of course the U. S. government gives them the money at one-third of what they loan it to the dear farmers.

Bankers' Schemes Bunk.

The farmers look upon this "bank rescue" as the bunk. The banker is after the surplus that he sees in sight, later on, in the form of interest the farmer cannot pay unless corn goes up. It is the banker that really owns the farm and the farmer just runs it these days for him. Why should the banker not be concerned when he holds a mortgage on each acre of land on the average of sixty dollars per acre and does not want to take the land over, for land suckers are now all going to Florida?

"Turn your corn into hogs," shouts the "expert" of the government to the farmer. The farmer retorts: "When we turn it into hogs the market day comes, we find the prices demoralized and that means we will just sink deeper into debt."

"More credit is about all the experts think of. More credit, more debts, with another corn crop next fall, and the old cycle beginning again. Yesterday it was the wheat gowers who were in desperate straits. Then it was the cattle men who were going bankrupt. Today the corn growers' plight calls for 'experts.' Tomorrow it will again be these or some other branches of agriculure. The farmer hasn't the chance of a wax cat in hell to get on a permanently sound basis with the cost of the things he must buy so high, with the markets in the hands of speculators, the government in the hands of Morgan's bank agents."

Co-ops. Declining.

The co-operative societies urge the farmers to come in out of the rain. But with the potato co-op, the raisin growers' association, and many other examples of collapse, not to mention the wreck-strewn path of the co-operative movement, of Farmers' Alliance Days, rising before the farmer it becomes hard to get him to go again.

Coolidge and his "experts" may call this mere calamity howling, but it is a mighty chorus that is doing the howling. Some of that howling is already turning to direct action, we note in and around Chicago. Direct action against the "T. B." experts, Milo Reno, president of the Iowa Farmers' Union, so aroused the farmers' union delegates in a recent convention in South Dakota against this "T. B." expert dope that the farmers threatened to use shotguns to keep bureaucracy out of that state.

We had our hopes of a united front of farmers somewhat encouraged when the press reported, a couple of weeks ago, that "The National Farmers' Union," and a number of other farmers' organizations, had agreed to form a national farmers' federation of co-operatives, etc., but it was all a false alarm. It was only discussed in a hotel room, and never got into the convention for discussion at Mitchell, South Dakota, at all.

Farmers Restless.

About the only cheerful note that I can sound at this writing, is that the farmer is kicking against conditions now, which if kept up long enough, may be turned into positive directions so that he may join the wage slaves in dumping the whole capitalist system overboard. At present they run away crying: "Bolshevik" when a Communist approaches them, with a message that calls for a united front with all labor throughout the world. But when terms and names are left out many farmers are ready to applaud the fundamental things we advocate. The propaganda of the capitalists against all revolutionary movements must be overcome with logical scientific literature written in the language of the farmer.

The farmer needs a "left wing" leadership just as much as the trade unions need it. It is our opinion that such a leadership is appearing just over the hill.

Steamers Collide During Heavy Fog in Chesapeake Bay

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec., 6—During a dense fog which enveloped Chesapeake Bay, the british steamer Mombassa and the Italian freighter Campania collided, a few miles below Baltimore. The Mombassa was towed into port after having shipped considerable water.

Owing to the fog the steamer, Gov. John Lind, inbound from Tampa, Fla., with a cargo of phosphate rock, went aground in the bay.

THE CROWN PRINCE OF WISCONSIN POLITICS ON THRONE IN WASHINGTON

ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE, JR.

* * *

Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., senator from Wisconsin, who succeeded his late father, has temporarily snubbed the republican senators by refusing to attend their caucus called before the convening of the sixty-ninth congress which opens today. Instead he attended a meeting of congressmen from Wisconsin and other states known to support the irreconcilables, where plans were made for a united front against the administration policies. A statement will be issued before the opening of congress setting forth the position of this group. It is not thought that young LaFollette will ever wield the influence of his father, but will become an adjunct of the Borah group.

Illinois Power Trust Out to Extend Control

Permission to purchase the properties of the Chicago Suburban Power & Light Company, furnishing electric light and power to West Chicago, Winfield, Villa Park, Westmore, Wayne, High Lake, Batavia, Geneva, St. Charles and Lombard, is requested in a petition filed before the Illinois commerce commission by the Public Service company of Northern Illinois.

The company requests permission to extend its super-power system to the communities named. It already serves 221 cities and towns in northeastern Illinois.

JARDINE CALLS CONFERENCE TO AID STOCK JOBBERS AND BANKERS GOUGE FARMERS TO THE LIMIT

By W. H. GREEN.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 6.—Secretary Jardine has raised an alarm for the financial despots, the transportation exploiters, the stock jobbing interests and the manufacturers of shoddy. The old hen that had been laying golden eggs for the financial and manufacturing section of the country has not been producing the regulation amount of hen fruit lately. A packed jury of professional agriculturists, hackneyed lawyers, railroad cappers and clever politicians will assemble in Chicago to hold an autopsy on the lately deceased farmer.

The pioneers who builded this inland western agricultural empire will concern themselves very little with this much heralded gathering. Those pioneer farmers who are not carried away with the jazz momentum of the moment or the insidious ropaganda in circulation know that the oppression of interest bearing debt is what is crushing them into slavery. Knowing that our entire financial system is based on interest bearing debts those students of agricultural economics are not submitting their case to a jury such as will be assembled in Chicago.

Revise Co-operatives.

From the advance press notices it is evident that the overworked co-operative panacea is in for another sprinting. An ounce of prevention fifteen years ago would be better than a ton of cure now.

The writer gave the first ten years of this century to a fight for competition. It was not altogether an amateur fight either. Courts, attorney generals, legislatures and congressional committees were personally petitional. The next ten years was enthusiasm for co-operative idea and we furnished the meeting hall, advertising and everything for the first meeting of the Farmers' Union north of the Mason and Dixon line. And aside from the co-operative organizations operating under the sufference of the trusts the share of the business transacted by the co-operatives is not even fractional.

Soviet Co-operatives.

When acting as a delegate to the peasants' congress in Moscow in 1923 we were selected to act as spokesman for the nineteen nations attending to reply to the address of welcome from the Soviet assocation of co-operators.

After listening to the report of the Soviet co-operators which disclosed that over eighty per cent of the grand total of all business was transacted by the mutual societies we were compelled to declare that the fraction of the business done in America by the co-operative societies was negligible. We qualified this, however, by saying that co-operation could only prosper where the form of government was friendly, which was not the case in the United States. The farmers of the midwest are going thru a financial gethsemane and they are not looking for any instant relief. They know that there are remedies for cancer, tuberculosis and other dread plagues but that no one has ever devised a remedy for interest bearing debt.

minister was sitting unnoticed nearby with a very amused grin on his face. The correspondents seemed to enjoy the situation as much as Comrade Tchitcherin. The poor barons are no longer even good copy, except when a reporter is short of material and wants to fill in with a light yarn.

IN New York a fight has raged for years between two sets of religious officials for the possession of the mitre and crook of St. Nicholas Cathedral. A gentleman styling himself Archbishop Platon, claimed title in view of the fact that the czar was dead and that the Soviet government did not care any more for St. Nicholas than they cared for the perfume of a pole cat. A lower court decided in favor of Platon. But there was a big fly in the ointment in the person of John S. Kedrovsky, of Hartford, Conn., who arrived in New York in 1923 with credentials from Russia. Finally Kedrovsky got the church and Platon, the anti-Bolshevik, who was supportde by Dr. Manning and the Bomb Squad is twiddling his thumbs. Now, according to Platon the church is gone to the devil,

THE Russian peasants are growing more and more favorable to the Soviet government according to Walter Duranty, Moscow correspodent for the New York Times. This is bad news for those who hope against hope that the Soviet government is liable to fall at any moment. It appears that the peasants are getting thoroly sick of the policy of the private traders to charge excessive prices and are now insisting on government stores. They are now doing just what the Soviet government wants them to do; they are taking an active interest in the government. According to Duranty the peasants are poor prospects just now for a counter revolution.

A JURY sitting on the famous Rhinelander divorce case decided that the young mental defective Kip had no legal reason to seek annulment of his marriage with Alice Jones, slightly colored, the daughter of a workingman. This case has held the front page of the capitalist press for more than a week, tho the 100 per cent Americans deeply disappointed when a righteous judge cleared the court for fear the delicate ears of society ladies might be contaminated by the passionate messages in the letters written by the young moron Rhinelander to the quadroon girl who ensnared him.

OPINION was divided as to whether the millionaire moron was more sinned against than sinning. One could hear a tired and hungry worker of K. K. K. vintage express the opinion that it was a darned shame a wealthy young man should be seduced by a girl not of Nordic breed. The fact that the aristocratic scion never did a day's work in his life and was feeding his imbecility on the product of the labor of others did not matter in the least. Which shows that Kip is not the only moron in the United States. It makes no difference to the workers which way the decision went. What should concern the workers is where does this young parasite Rhinelander get the money with which to pay the price of his amorous meandrings? It comes out of the toil of the workers in whatever industry the Rhinelanders have their money invested in.

• • •

IF there ever lived a mental defective, it is this young Rhinelander. Yet he is immensely rich and cannot help growing richer under the capitalist system. Harry Thaw was in jail for several years not so much because he killed a competitor for the affection of an actress but because he was too crazy to be at large. While Harry was in jail, his fortune increased by millions. Yes, sir, this is a land of opportunity. Thousands of sane and moral workers are toiling away in factories and mines, to enable the moron Thaws and Rhinelanders to live lifes of profligacy. The useless parasites are on the top of the heap in America and for that matter in every other country where capitalism exists.

Try to Terrorize Meeting

hands thrust under their overcoats, thought that they were being handled by pickpockets and therefore very nearly precipitated the trouble which apparently the police were trying to provoke. At any rate the police thugs succeeded in keeping up a constant appearance of confusion and disorder on the stairway, evidently calculated to discourage anyone from entering the hall.

A member of the committee of the International Labor Defense, under whose auspices the meeting was held, compelled the leader of the gang to show a police badge and to give the explanation that he "was acting under orders to search everybody for weapons." The spokesman gave his name as "Captain Lynch of the police department."

Tho some timid ones turned away, the hall was filled by a crowd of about 500.

Audience Laughs at Cop Comedy.

The meeting was called to order promptly by Robert Minor, as chairman, who then brought the audience to a laughing mood by saying: "There was once an imperial government in the old Russian empire.

"It used to send its agents to all public meetings that were permitted; and these agents stood at the door and searched the pockets of all who attended. That's how they prevented the overthrow of the czar's government."

Liberal Publicist Speaks.

William H. Holly, a prominent lawyer and president of the Chicago Liberal Club, was the first speaker. Mr. Holly declared that no man or woman who valued the right of freedom of speech and of public asemblage would or could remain quiet when such outrageous acts as the imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow and Anita Whitney for their political opinions take place. He expressed his opinion that "in prison Gitlow will be more dangerous to the government than he would be outside, because the glaring example of repression of political freedom will crystallize opposition. I for one will not be quiet while Gitlow and Anita Whitney are imprisoned."

Ida Goodman Wins Crowd with Speech

Ida Goodman was introduced as "a young woman who has done tireless and heroic work for the release of Tom Mooney and Warren Billings."

Thunderous applause greeted the young woman's stirring appeal to all working people to "remember that Tom Mooney and Billings are still rotting in the penitentiaries of California, and remember that they are our fighters, your champions, your own brothers, and that your most sacred duty is to move the masses of working people into such action as will get them out."

Machinist Leader Speaks.

Pete Jensen, widely known leader in the International Association of Machinists, made a graphic presentation of the danger to the entire abor movement if the acts of tyranny such as shown in the Gitlow and Whitney cases are to continue. Jensen brot the crowd to wild applause with the declaration that "when activity in the labor movement is punished with prison, then we must all be ready at all times to do our part and take the results. The famous Daugherty injunction in the shopmen's strike of 1922 shows what the enemies of the labor movement intend to do to exterminate it. The cases of Ben Gitlow and Anita Whitney are the cause of the labor movement, and the labor movement must get them out."

While awaiting the arrival of C. E. Ruthenberg from another meeting, the chairman, Robert Minor, described the political background of the prosecutions that are now going on for the suppression of the Workers (Communist) Party, of which Ruthenberg is general secretary and in which his activities have caused him repeatedly to be faced with imprisonment. "America as much as any country in the world," said Minor, "is a land whose history is bound up with the events of revolution. Its history has been made by revolutions. The war of independence against Great Britain was a revolution. Also the second supreme crisis, the civil war of 1861, was to a certain degree a revolutionary struggle in which the capitalist class undertook to overthrow the semi-feudal oligarchy of the southern states and to secure undisputed rule for its own class. The capitalist class played its own revolutionary role in history. Now however, it has become reactionary, it retards the further development of productive forces; and consequently another class takes over the role of the revolutionary class—the working class.

"As the capitalist class, in order to obtain state power, had to form its class party under the name of republican party, and in order to obtain state power had to go thru whatever actions history brot forth, which included under Lincoln not only balloting, but also civil war—just so the future ruling class, the industrial workers, have to form their class party in order to obtain state power. This class party also faces the need to go thru whatever forms of action may be placed before it by history, and because the leaders of this party frankly tell the masses that in the struggle for power no ruling class has ever surrendered its position without resisting by every means including civil war, this recognition of historical fact is seized upon as an excuse for the imprisonment of leaders such as Gitlow and Ruthenberg and the effort thus to destroy the new revolutionary party."

Ruthenberg Tells of Tyranny.

Ruthenberg, whose entrance to the auditorium brought an ovation, plunged immediately into a recital of the supreme court's decisions which in the past few years, since the fright caused by the Russian workers' revolution, have broken down one by one all of the supposed rights guaranteed by the U. S. constitution.

"First it was the right of publishing one's political views," sadi Ruthenberg. "That was taken away when Gitlow was condemned to prison for the publication of the Left Wing Manifesto. Another stage is reached when Anita Whitney is condemned by the supreme court's action in upholding her conviction for 'belonging to an organization' that holds certain views. There are other stages which are shown by the brutal repressions of the I. W. W. with the sanction of the supreme court. Now we are approaching a further extreme stage where the supreme court is asked, in my own case, to uphold a conviction for the crime of 'assembling with' an organization that holds certain views. It is hard to imagine any more extreme degree in the process of destroying the boasted 'guarantees of freedom' in the American constitution.

"But in spite of all repressions, in spite of all Daugherty injunctions and imprisonments for political opinions, the working class revolutionary movement will go ahead, and it is the view of the party which I represent, that the struggle will end and cannot end otherwise than in the establishment of the workers' Soviet republic of America."

A large collection was taken up in the audience, which will be immediately applied to the defense of the prosecuted members of the United Mine Workers at Zeigler, Ill.

Many of those present responded enthusiastically to the appeal of George Maurer, local secretary of the International Labor Defense, to become members of the defense organization, and many subscriptions were taken for the new monthly magazine, the Labor Defender, organ of the International Labor Defense.

It was stated that a vigorous protest will be made against the police effort at terrorization, which was characterized as an attempt to frighten away the fast-growing membership of the International Labor Defense.

Northwest Farmers Getting Wise

Helped Banks; Not Farmers.

Did the farmer who actually needed help get any of this money? Not a bit of it. It was used to bolster the depleted reserves of northwestern banks and loaned to an exceedingly small number of farmers who still were able to give security for their loans to the banks. The stipulation was made by Coolidge that only those farmers whose credit was good could avail themselves of the money, and this provision, of course, excluded all bankrupt farmers since, obviously, they were unable to furnish the required security to the banks and consequently were prevented from taking advantage of this "Coolidge prosperity" The Coolidge money helped the banks that were on the verge of collapse, but it did not reach the bankrupt farmer for whom it was supposedly intended.

Farmers Awakening.

The farmers out here in the west are more and more getting their eyes open as to what they may expect from "their" government in the way of economic assistance when they are in distress. They learn by experience and facts will convince them. Just now they are watching closely the gesture that is being made by the Coolidge administration to give aid to the farmers in the corn belt and rolling over in their minds the plan put forward by Jardine, the secretary of agriculture, for co-operative marketing of farm products. But they are not at all hopeful of the results.

Somehow they feel that "the big fellow," the banker, will be the one who will profit from any "aid" that is extended to the farmer and, besides, they are not so sure but that there isn't a good deal of politics mixed up with it. Just like it was in the year 1923-24.

Will Call Impeachment Session Despite Texas Attorney General's Rule

(Special to The Daily Worker)

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 6.—In spite of the ruling of the Attorney General Dan Moody that a special session to impeach the governor of Texas for the "misuse of state funds" cannot be called and financed by private individuals, the speaker of the house Lee Satterwhite, declares that a special impeachment session will be called and that each member of the house will cover his own expenses and stated that "funds from private sources will not be accepted."

CAL PROPOSES FAKE FARM PROBLEM CURES

GERMAN NEEDLE TRADES HEAD IS SILENT ON WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY AT I. L. G. W. U. CONVENTION

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 7.—Martin Plettl, representing the German Needle Trades Union and the Needle Section of the International Federation of Trade Unions, addressed the convention this morning.

He told of the determination of the German needle workers to resist wage reductions and the lengthening of hours, but said nothing about the Dawes plan or world trade union unity. His remarks were all of a general nature except when he urged the delegates to adjust internal differences and unite for struggle against their enemies.

The progressive cloakmakers of New York sent a delegation with a basket of flowers to the convention containing the following note read by Secretary Baroff:

"We greet the convention and hope that it will result in granting to all members full freedom of political expression and that every member will be able to contribute to the union to the limit of his abilities."

The presentation of the flowers was accompanied by a demonstration ending with the singing of the chorus of "The International" while all but the right wing delegates stood.

Green Awaits S. O. S. Call.

President Green remained here until this morning, it is said. Then he left for New York where he will remain awaiting an "S.O.S." call from the Sigmanites.

No change has been made as yet in the committee appointments against which the progressives protested Saturday, but over the week-end at least one prominent labor newspaper correspondent was approached by machine elements on the question of arranging a conference with representatives of the progressives.

The progressives appear disinclined to enter into any conferences at present, feeling that while the convention is in progress the left wing is adding to its strength in many important centers. Philadelphia is an example of this development. Altho the left wing was practically forced into illegality here so far as the union was concerned, at the get-together affair arranged Saturday evening by the local progressives, the attendance was double that expected and the meeting was characterized by a spirit of struggle, hopefulness and determination indicating a militant and organized revival of the left wing and union activity.

As they proceed the base of Sigman support is narrowing while that of the left wing is broadening.

Hold Back G. E. B. Report.

The convention adjourned until Tuesday morning. No committee is ready to report except that on the General Executive Board report, but the machine is now trying to delay action on this controversial document until the end of the convention. This is a reversal of its original policy which was to smash the left wing in the debate on the New York situation with a long array of documents purporting to show the activities of the Communists in the union. These documents, once the trump card in the hand of the right wing, are now a source of embarrassment as a war on the Communists in the union can be waged only by fighting about 75 per cent of the membership.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

IF you have not yet read "Whither England?" by Leon Trotsky, hurry up and partake of a mental feast. It is as easy on the eyes as anything that ever came from the pen of one of the best writers in the revolutionary movement. It is a polemic against imperialist England's politicians, against the labor lieutenants of British capitalism and at the same time an exposition of Communist tactics in the war for the overthrow of capitalist rule.

• • •

PRACTICALLY every important capitalist paper in the world gave liberal space to a review of this book. Trotsky asks the question "Whither England?" and answers it in several brilliant chapters. The answer however, can be stated in too words: "to hell." The organs of American capitalism, even those that represent economic forces at war with the industrial powers of Britain, indulged in sneers at Trosky's analysis of Britain's decline as a world power and the antagonism between the interests of the ruling classes of the "motherland" and those of the United States.

TROTSKY applies the lash mercilessly to the renegade hides of England's leading right wing socialists. MacDonald the recipient of gifts from a tory biscuit manufacturer, is his pet aversion, sharing honors with the lady known as Ethel Snowden. Here is a gem that might well tempt any reader to spend $1.75 on "Whither England?": "Let us overcome our natural aversion and read thru the article in which Ramsay MacDonald expounded his views a short time before leaving office. We warn the reader in advance that we shall have

NEW YORK LABOR PLANS TRIP TO SOVIET RUSSIA

Purcell Committee to Get Delegation

By ELIAS MARKS.

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 7.—The trade union committee for organizing the Purcell meeting, in the course of its three successful conferences, has enlisted the enthusiastic support of 50 local unions representing 150,000 workers of New York City, in the campaign for world trade union unity.

Two large mass meetings were held at which 7,000 trade unionists listened to Mr. A. A. Purcell's inspiring message and unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the sending of a trade union delegation to Soviet Russia.

This resolution marks the first step toward the establishment of a closer bond of friendship and solidarity, between the organized workers of the United States and those of Russia. It is an important step toward the establishment of world trade union unity.

There is no reason why the American workers should accept their information from unreliable sources—from the capitalist press or from the enemies of labor. We should know what the workers of Russia are doing and we should get our information from reliable labor sources.

At the next conference to be held on Sunday, December 20 at 3 p. m. at Beethoven Hall, 210 East 5th St., a full report will be made of activity thus far. Plans will be discussed for developing our campaign with a view to raising a fund large enough to send a good-sized labor delegation to Soviet Russia.

MARYVILLE, Mo., Dec. 7. — One man is dead and another perhaps fatally injured as a result of a wreck on the Burlington railroad near here.

PROGRESSIVE MACHINISTS WIN CHICAGO DISTRICT ELECTIONS

In one of the most spirited elections held by the Machinists' Union since war time, the combined Anderson progressives and the left wing candidates won a decided victory over the Johnston administration slate in the Chicago district council. Almost every candidate on the progressive slate was returned to office.

More interest was shown by the rank and file in this election than in previous ones, which was shown by the heavy vote cast.

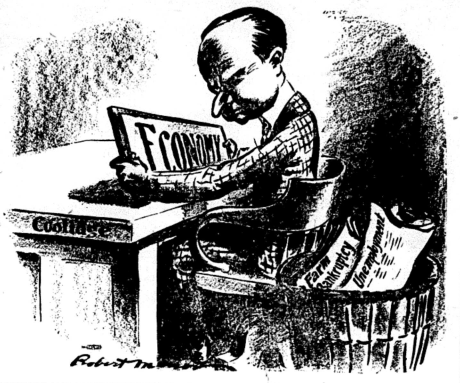
The progressive machinists in this district are determined to start a real campaign during the coming months to organize the unorganized, which was one of the main planks in the election campaign.

With the interest shown in this year's election and with a successful organization campaign increasing the membership there is no doubt that the union machinists in Chicago will demand an increase in wages next year especially in face of the great profits that has been made by the metal trades employers during 1925.

The officers elected for the district were as follows:

President District Council, Louis Look.
Vice-President District Council, Emil Holt.
Recording Secretary, J. Read.
Financial Secretary, William Wendt.
Sergeant-at-Arms, Carl Schlimbach.
Business Agents, J. Daly and J. J. Uhlman.

THE TIGHTWAD



DAWES PLAN FAILING TO AID GERMANY

"Stabilization" Like Communists Foresaw

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—The Dawes plan is "saving Germany." Thousands of jobless men and women tramp the streets of Berlin and other German cities looking for work. Soup kitchens for the long lines of pauperized workers are set up in the working class districts. Prostitution flaunts insistant invitation everywhere. A tidal wave of bankruptcies is beginning. This is the "stabilization of capitalism" resulting from the Dawes plan.

During November a new high record of bankruptcies was made the figure being 2,158. An estimate of twice that number is made of those settled out of court. More than 5,400 drafts were protested during November. No less than 60 per cent of all companies announce no divdends at the close of the year's business and many are shutting down, even the great firms like Krupp, Thyssen and Mannesmann are shutting down part of their works.

The official or registered unemployed figure is going away up. It stands now at 500,000. The estimated unemployed is twice the registration figure, of 1,000,000, with at least 2,000,000 working only part time.

The merchant class faces disaster in the Christmas trade, only the cheapest lines being saleable and only the small genuine upper class in the market for costly purchases. The poor cannot buy. The middle class buy little and cheap, the middle class being slowly reduced to the same economic level as the proletariat.

C. P. P. A. DOESN'T KNOW WHETHER IT IS DEAD OR ALIVE

Dismal Conference at Cleveland Hotel

By HERBERT BENJAMIN.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 7—In a small room of the Hollenden Hotel in this city, some thitry delegates and national committee members of the Conference for Progressive Political Action (C. P. P. A.) met in a vain attempt to resuscitate the ill-smelling corpse whose identity they were even unable to establish. With William H. Johnson absent because of "illness," ignored by Wheeler, young LaFollette, La Guardia and other "leaders" of the LaFollette campaign, the conference found itself in the position of a ship without a rudder.

Those in the conference who have still managed to maintain some political prestige in their localities, refused to take the conference seriously. They simply sat back and watched the others flounder about in a vain attempt to anchor.

Organization Bankrupt.

The morning sesison was devoted to hallelujas on the results of the last presidential election. The reports of the delegates from the various states showed tho that insofar as the present state of the organization is concerned—there is no organization. Replying to a query as to the number of members on the national executive committee, vice-chairman, Mercer C. Johnson gave the number as fifteen. When the list of those elected was read tho it was found that there were

COOLIDGE PAYS POLITICAL VISIT TO CHICAGO UNDER GUISE OF AIDING IMPOVERISHED FARMERS

By H. M. WICKS.

Arriving in Chicago from Washington this morning Cal Coolidge was rushed from the depot to the roof of the Sherman hotel where an elegant georgian cottage had been constructed for his accomodation during his six-hour stay in the city. The usual mobs of police thugs, detectives, federal secret service spies met him at the station and accompanied him to the hotel.

His speech on the farm question was delivered at eleven o'clock before a gang of impostors calling themselves representatives of the farmers of the middle west. The gathering is called the seventh annual convention of the American farm federation bureau.

Customary Stupidity.

The speech was the customary Coolidge dirge, a monotonous intonation of stupid platitudes to conceal the vicious hand of dollarocracy that is throttling the workers and farmers of this country.

If there has been any doubt as to what is in store for the farmers this speech of Coolidge, particularly its main part dealing with banking schemes to "aid" them, will, with only superficial analysis, reveal to them their future under capitalism.

Under the guise of "extending financial aid" Coolidge continues the governmental policy of supporting the bank combine that is rapidly throttling the farmers, burdening their land with mortgages that they cannot pay and thereby making them serfs of the great financial and industrial combines.

"For financing the farmer," said Coolidge, "we are developing the farm loan and intermediate credit bank. These have put out about $1,200,000,000 of loans at moderate rates to

CONGRESS OPENS WITH DAWES NOW MEEK AND MILD

Longworth Is Speaker of House

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Both houses of the sixty-ninth congress opened today. The clownish vice president, Charles G. Dawes was late, as usual, tho not so notoriously late as on the day he forgot to get up in time to cast his vote for the confirmation of Charles B. Warren, as attorney-general.

Opening the senate after his tardiness, Dawes' demeanor was vastly different from his slap-stick performance when he first "blew in" to the senate chamber last spring. Whereas, in his initial appearance, Dawes criticised venerable senatorial customs, belabored the desk with gavel and fist and in general made a ludicrous farce of the whole affair, today he was as meek as a lamb and at all times consulted the rules that he had pasted on a card to hold before him for his guidance.

LaFollette Seated.

At today's brief session three senators, Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, George H. William of Missouri, and Arthur R. Robinson of Indiana, were sworn in. All of them are republicans, tho LaFollette has definitely aligned himself with the insurgents.

According to custom Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin led young LaFollette to the rostrum where he took the oath of office. The gallery full of females tittered at this spectacle as

SMALL STATES BORDERING RUSSIA FORM MILITARY BLOC AGAINST SOVIETS

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Dec. 7—Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania and Poland have entered into a military alliance and have signed an agreement in which they declare they will aid each other in case of war.

This pact which has been entered into by the small states that border the Union of Socialist Soviet is an attempt on the part of the great powers of Europe to create an alliance against Russia which can be used in their new offensive.

This pact follows the Locarno peace pact which was also aimed against the Soviet Union by the capitalist powers of Europe.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY MEMBER BOOSTS EMPIRE

Backs Imperialist Aims in India and Mosul

BY JAMES H. DOLSON.

EVANSTON, Ill.—"The Right Honorable" etc. etc. Brigadier General Lord Christopher Thomson, secretary of state for the air ministry in the British labor government, and a prominent member of the labor party of England, revealed the calibre of that party most clearly in his speech here recently before the Evanston Women's Club. The meeting was under the auspieces of the International Relations Council, which had given the "Honorable Lord etc." a feed at the aristtocratic North Shore Hotel. In fact, the supper was so good and the ladies so attractive that the doughty general was half an hour late for his address.

The speakers' stand was appropriately draped with the Union Jack, and decorated with the figures of three stately dames, representatives of the Daughters of the British Empire. They had condescended to attend for the purpose of hearing what the distinguished laborite had to say. The rector of the local episcopalian church introduced the speaker, having gained his knowledge of the lord, he stated, from some golf stories.

Thomson announced his subject as "International Relations in Europe." The peace of Locarno, he stated, marked a probable turning point in European history. Its importance, according to his analysis, lay in its recognition of the necessity of breaking the economic barriers which separated the countries of the old world. He believed it was a step towards a United States of Europe.

The "Right Honorable, etc.," declared that the MacDonald government had not sympathized in the slightest with the Russian Bolsheviks and was more detested by the real radicals than even the most reactionary out-and-out capitalist government. Lenin himself, according to Thomson, had told the latter on the occasion of his visit to Russia before the Communist leader's death, that the British labor party chiefs were a "lot of pink humbugs" and enemies of the international working class revolution. The brigadier and his fellow politicians, however, are realists (he classifies himself as a philisopher). There were 1,350,000 unemployed workers in England. Warehouses were full of goods to the bursting point. Something must be done. So, putting aside his prejudices against the reds, MacDonald negotiated a treaty with Russia in order to get the wheels of British industry again turning—to exchange the manufactured products of Britain for the raw materials and foodstuffs of the Soviet Union.

"Hot" Air For Dawes Plan.

The former head of the air ministry (add the adjective "hot" so far as the

FASCISTI ARREST MANY SOLDIERS FOR ATTEMPT TO MUTINY IN ITALY

PARIS, Dec. 7. — Travellers arriving here from Italy reported that several officers and soldiers have been arrested at Ravenna, Italy, following an attempt at mutiny during which the headquarters of the twenty-eighth Italian infantry were invaded.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY MEMBER BOOSTS EMPIRE

English workers were concerned) gave a unique explanation why the labor government had supported the Dawes plan. He admitted it had met the most bitter opposition of members within the party and that the various ministers in the cabinet had received hundreds of letters protesting this action. The plan was approved because it would put Germany on its feet. This would injure England at first by the increased competition. British workers would be thrown out of a job, but as the philosophical general stated: "Things would have to get much worse before they could get better." Finally Germany's improved conditions would redound to Great Britain's benefit because it would thus be able to become a more prosperous customer. The brigadier almost rivals Evanston's rabid open shopper Dawes as an international financier ignorant of the most elementary economics.

The speech wound up with a warning that an "Asiatic spirit" is manifesting itself in Far East. The rumblings from that part of the world are "vague, menacing, and perplexing." However, the "passionate love of liberty" of the two great Anglo-Saxon powers, the United States and Great Britain, "may be trusted to handle the matter (of Asia) justly and properly."

Side-Steps Mosul.

At the conclusion of the talk questions were called for. Like a typical American audience the crowd sat dumb as stone. Seeing no one had the courage to respond, your reporter arose and asked whether it was true that Germany had promised at Locarno to stand by England in the controversy with Turkey over Mosul. The speaker neatly sidestepped the query by alleging that Germany could be of little use in such a struggle and therefore he did not believe such an agreement had been made. He remarked that while Great Britain had but 800 infantrymen in that territory her air force absolutely controlled it. England had shown its good faith thruout the quarrel, he asserted, by referring every step to the league of nations. He soft-pedaled the fact that England and France combined control the league and omitted altogether the fact that an investigating commision of the league has decided that Great Britain has absolutely no legal claim to Mosul!

Protect British Exploiters.

More questions were called for. Again the same dumb silence. So once more your reporter took the floor to draw out the "Right Honorable," "Why did the labor government ignore Sun Yat Sen's demand that British intervention and intrigues stop in China?" The speaker at this point offered another illuminating "explanation" of MacDonald's policies. There were half a dozen other governments claiming to be the real rulers of China and how could the "labor" cabinet know which was in power? It was MacDonald's policy to "refrain from interference" but to "protect the local British settlers who were descendants of previous settlers." It was now quite evident that Thomson was as thorogoing a British imperialist as anyone else in Ramsay's cabinet.

By this time a few other members of the audience acquired courage enough to ask a question. Not the Americans, however, who comprised nearly the entire audience. Oh, no! That would be illmannered, don'tcherknow, to our distinguished guest!

"Empty-Minded Philosopher."

An Indian student at Northwestern University wanted to know the British labor party attitude towards India. Thomson responded that this had been laid down in two extensive declarations during the party's administration. the laborites had been "forced into hard measures" in a certain case because a "number of people" in India had "lethal weapons" and were ready to use them against "our people." The newly appointed viceroy, Mr. Wood, is a "gentleman of the highest character." He "knows absolutely nothing of India" and will consequently go there with an "empty mind." Presumably Mr. Wood, having an "empty mind," is also something of a "philosopher," like the brigadier. Incidentally, as if it were but a casual matter, the general stated that the present commander-in-chief of his majesty's forces in India is none other than his own first cousin. So "the right honorable" has a family reason for his imperialism!

To a question about the status of India, Thomson replied by a long disquisition alleging the benefits to the natives of British rule but admitting that the necessity for protecting the Suez Canal was the real reason for England's control of that land.

Greece Must Pay Bulgars.

GENEVA, Dec. 7. — Greece must pay Bulgaria 20,000,000 leva ($150,000) for property damages and 10,000,000 leva (¢75,000) for "moral" damages are the recommendations of the league of nations' commission that was appointed to investigate the recent Greco-Bulgar flare-up. The commission places the blame for the invasion on Greece.

The league of nations' council will decide as to whether to accept, modify or reject the committee's report at its meeting tomorrow.

VON HINDENBURG STRIVES TO GET A NEW CABINET

Nation Opposed to the Locarno Treaties

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—According to its agreement to commit suicide in order to get a majority for ratification of the pacts of Locarno, the Luther-Stresemann cabinet resigned yesterday. After tendering the resignation of the cabinet, Luther was asked by President von Hindenberg to continue the governmental business until a new cabinet is formed.

The Luther-Stresemann agents of British imperialism could never have obtained a majority for Locarno had they not agreed to resign immedately after the ratification and signing of the pacts. In fact it is known that many votes, sufficient to make a majority, were obtained for Locarno on the swindle of a new reorganization of the government. It is questionable if those who voted to ratify the pacts did so with any motive other than the hope that they would be called into the next government.

Socialists Against Stresemann.

The socialists, the largest single party in Germany, will be called into conference with Von Hindenberg today. It is known that they oppose Stresemann, but they are expected to present terms that will be satisfactory to any new cabinet. Their opposition to the people's party is based upon different views of taxation and interest rates, and not any fundamental policy.

Luther has been insisting that the next cabinet support the provisions of the Locarno treaties, otherwise his party will not support it. Unquestionably the majority of the German workers and for that matter the German population opposes Locarno.

Communist denunciation of the conspiracy of Locarno is taking firm hold of the working class, and on every hand thruout all industrial centers the German government is openly denounced as guilty of betraying the workers into the hands of allied imperialism.

Alpine Village Calls Upon Austria to Aid Fight on Fascisti

VIENNA, Dec. 7.—The local government of Innesbruck on the Alpine frontier appealed to the Austrian government for protection against fascist raids from Italian Tyrol.

The demand follows the fascist attack on the little village namel Hall, where twenty fascists tried to forcibly release a man who had been arrested as a fascist spy. Arrayed in black shirts, the fascists rode into Hall in a motor truck, and tried to break into the jail, but were forced to retreat in a severely battered condition after a battle with the inhabitants of Hall.

HEAR CHINA INVADED BY JAP ARMIES

War May Follow the Seizure of Mukden

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, China, Dec. 7.—A movement which threatens immediate war between major powers has taken form according to news which reached Peking Saturday and set the diplomatic corps astir with the business of notifying the various governments.

Japanese Troops in Chinese Uniforms.

A reliable Chinese has arrived at Peking from Mukden, leaving there a week ago, to report the news to the Chinese government. This news is that Japan is sending Japanese troous into Manchuria, clothing them in Chinese uniforms of the troops of General Chang Tso-lin, and is actively in the field to help Chang maintain his power in Manchuria.

It is said that the chief of staff of Chang's armies, General Yang Yu Tang, went to Darien when the pressure of mutinous troops became menacing to Chang's final stand, and in Darien he contracted secretly with the Japanese governor of the "leased" zone for military aid from Japan.

The Japanese were to furnish 40,000 troops and all needed munitions and money to crush the mutiny and reestablish Chang's fading position in Manchuria.

To Bolster Chang.

The Chinese who bring the news state that 10,000 Japanese troops are already in Mukden, are quartered in the barracks of the Chinese and are wearing Chinese uniforms. It is also claimed that the Japanese "railway guards" at Mukden have begun to police the whole city and are wearing the insignia of Chang Tso-lin.

Only last week the Japanese government announced its "neutrality," but it is known that Japan regards the Manchurian region means life or death for Japanese interests, and the possibility is faced that Japan has chosen to risk the consequences of war with other imperialist nations for violation of the Washington treaty and other "peace pacts" rather than lose its footing in northern Cihna.

KU KLUX SENATOR BRANDS DAWES AS "MUSSOLINI OF REPUBLICAN PARTY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.— Senator Pat Harrison, the wind-jamming oracle of the democratic national convention, who defended the ku klux klan of the south against the Tammany machine of the north, has come out with a broadside against the Dawes and the republican party generally. Humbled in public opinion by its internal discord and the recent reading of the radicals out of the party and the frantic attempts of certain republicans to get the LaFollette group back into the fold indicates to Harrison the wreck of the party.

Dawes is labelled a "Mussolini of American politics." When thieves fall out it is said honest men get their due. Likewise when liars begin calling each other by their right names we get a glimmering of the truth.

STUDENTS WILL PROTEST EDICT ON PUBLICATION

New York College Head Curbs Discussion

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.
(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 7.—A drastic censorship has been established at the College of the City of New York, prohibiting any further discussion of the question of compulsory military training, in the columns of The Campus, the students' publication, which has been leading the fight for the abolishment of the course in military science at the institution which resulted in the recent student referendum of 2,092 to 345 against its continuance.

As a result of this edict, the latest issue of The Campus, appeared with two blank columns, one in the news section and the other on the editorial page, where the student editors had intended to further discuss the matter before prohibited by the college authorities under the direction of President Sidney E. Mezes.

Heywood Broun, the noted columnist of the New York World, who conducts his column the way he desires, irrespective of whether it agrees with the policy of his paper, has offered to publish the forbidden articles in his column. It is believed that this offer might be accepted.

Arrange Protest Demonstration.

The DAILY WORKER correspondent has been informed by reliable sources that the students, who are indignant at the latest move on the part of the college authorities, are contemplating the arranging of a large protest demonstration.

From the attitude of President Mezes, it appears that he personally is not a free agent, his actions being governed by the fear of politicans, who are in turn governed by money interests. He is afraid that further financial support for the college may be curtailed, if student unrest and revolt continues, hence his suppressive measures.

Many Colleges Have No Training.

All the leading colleges in the country, Yale, Harvard, Columbia and others, do not have compulsory military training, and there is no imputations of treason, which many super patriots are now charging the city college of New York students of being guilty of. Compulsory training is not on the prescribed courses at these colleges because students have some choice. They pay for their tuition and would not attend colleges where the course is required. It remains at City College of New York and is crammed down the throats of unwilling students who cannot afford to go elsewhere.

Protest Develops.

It is believed that this student protest will develop, and result in the abolishing of compulsory military training, and at the same time, make the students, who are mostly of working class and petty bourgeois families, realize that the capitalist class, which controls City College of New York is not their friend, but an enemy that must be fought.

Twenty Federal Agents Accused of Violating Prohibition Amendment

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — William Dwyer, ~~prominent~~ politician and well known race track owner and gambler, was arrested along with 20 federal prohibition enforcement officers for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act. Forty-three indictments were issued in all.

It is charged that Dwyer bribed the prohibition officers with "wine, woman and song" and occasional "tips" to allow ship loads of booze safe passage into the harbor and to reach thirsty throats in Manhattan isle.

Soviet Recognition Will Come Before Congress that Is Now in Session

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Congress convenes. One of the problems that will come before it will be the recognition of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

Ever since the Bolshevik revolution, in November, 1917, more than eight years ago, militant workers have held this demand steadily to the front. They have fought against the bitter and organized hostility of the official regime of the American Federation of Labor, that receives its policies on international questions ready made from the United States department of state. Secretary of State Kellogg could not have penned a more vindictive and malicious slander against the Soviet Union than that adopted by the last convention of the American Federation of Labor.

• • • •

The sentiment of America's workers on this question, however, surged to the surface at the recent convention of the International Furriers' Union, at Boston, when resolutions were adopted unanimously declaring for recognition.

Coolidge's message may or may not deal with this question. That will not matter. While Coolidge's state department repeatedly declares its hostility, and Cal himself announces he has not altered his stand, Senator William E. Borah, the republican head of the senate committee of foreign affairs, reiterates his demand for recognition of the Soviet Union. He says the United States must get an increased share of Soviet trade, and points out that full recognition and the opening of commercial relations, thru the necessary treaties, is the best way to get it.

• • • •

Last Sunday saw the opening of the Shatursky electrical power station near Moscow, one of the biggest stations in the Soviet Union. All the foreign diplomats representing capitalist governments in Moscow were there. But there was no ambassador from the United States, because this country has not yet recognized the workers' and peasants' government.

But American industry was present in the form of the 614 huge girders upon which the great building rested. America sends a greater volume of exports to the Soviet Union than any other country.

This is only the beginning, however. Americans are demanding unhindered trade with Russia. This was amply shown at the recent reception given by the Rambouillet Sheep Breeders' Association to the Soviet representatives in this country, at which closer and more sympathetic relations with the Soviet Union were demanded. It is clearly evident that the United States does not want to lose any Russian trade. Not only American gold exports, but trade as well, is proceeding to the Soviet Union thru Germany. It is also declared that part of the Italo-American debt accord provides for the collaboration of American commercial investors with Italian industry for the development of trade with Russia and the Near East. The Near East includes the three Soviet Republics of Armenia, Georgia and Azerbaijan, as well as Turkey, hostile to Great Britain; Syria, in revolt against France; Irak, restless under British rule, and other subject nations, discontented and rebellious.

• • • •

It is plain that the United States, refusing to recognize Soviet Rule, is merely hiding behind and taking advantage of the recognition given the Soviet Union by both Germany and Italy. In this way the United States has practically recognized the Soviet government already. All this would indicate that Soviet recognition is a rather bitter pill for the Coolidge administration to swallow. But recognition will be forced by an awakening American working class that is continually developing its solidarity with the workers and peasants who have established their Soviet rule. The left wing in the organized American labor movement has a major issue in the demand for the recognition of the Union of Soviet Republics. It should make the most of it.

to enter a mental junk shop in which the suffocating odor of camphor is not sufficient to retard the effective work of the moths." This little passage alone was worth one dollar sixbits to me. And it is only one of many similar brilliant thrusts at the king-loving, pulpit-pounding, santimonious imperialists that pose as socialists in Great Britain.

THIS is not a review of the book or anything like. Many reviews do more harm than good. If the reviewer is windy and tedious the reader says in effect: "Well, so is the book," and spends the $1.75 on a musical comedy. I advise everybody who wants to be informed on the subject discussed by Trotsky to secure a copy of "Whither England?" and if you feel this way about it, wend your way to 19 South Lincoln street, and it is more than likely that the impresario of that book store, Sam Hammersmark, will "have only one left" and will abstract the only remaining one from the lower right hand drawer of his desk—just as he did to me—even tho he may do the same thing to the next customer, five minutes later, should customers come that fast.

TALKING of book-sellers, they are an interesting tribe, excepting the variation of the species that rings your door bell and attempts to pass off on you a load of rubbish endorsed by such mental question marks as "Bill" Taft or Calvin Coolidge. But to the bookworm, there is no greater thrill than patronizing a book store whose manager has the canny ability to refresh your mind in case that piece of mechanism fails to remember the title, author or subject of a book you desire to purchase.

SUCH a book-seller is Hammersmark. Here is a story that may bring some business to South Lincoln street, provided my veracity is in good standing. A few days after Sam opened his first book store—he was then in business for himself; he is now managing a store for the Workers Party—a customer walked in, and announced that he would like to purchase a book. Sam was so pleased—it was his first customer—that he presented the potential buyer with a cigar. After lighting the weed for his prospective client, he asked for the name of the book. The customer did not remember. The author? Ditto. The color of the cover? Nothing doing. Where it was published? There was an improvement here. The seeker for knowledge thot it was published either in England or the United States.

HAMMERSMARK was just beginning to fear that his cigar might be a total loss when he took one more chance and asked the mental defective if he remembered anything at all about the book. "Oh yes" came the reply, between puffs of Sam's cigar: "I got a good laugh out of the second last chapter." "Oh, hell!" exploded Hammersmark, "why the devil didn't you tell me that before? You have wasted a lot of valuable time. What you want is—" and he mentioned the name of a rare book published in Seattle. With such a wizard in charge of the bookstore at 19 South Lincoln street, you should have no trouble in getting a copy of: "Whither England?"—for $1.75.

ONE-FOURTH OF CHICAGO'S MILK IS TUBERCULAR

City Fails to Maintain Rigid Inspection

Over one-fourth of the milk that enters Chicago comes from herds that are tubercular declare twenty-four leading doctors of Chicago in a letter to the governor of Illinois, Len Small, demanding that all cows within the confines of the state be tested for tuberculosis and that all milk and dairy products be watched carefully so that products coming from tubercular cattle do not enter the state.

80% of Herd Tubercular.

In the letter it points out that Chicago which gets one-fourth of its milk from McHenry county comes from herds of which 80% of the cows are suffering from tuberculosis.

Health authorities point out that milk or diary products coming from tubercular cattle is a grave danger to the babies and those who drink the milk as pasteurization does not kill the tubercular germs.

Sanitariums Overcrowded.

A controversy has arisen in the Chicago district over the tuberculin test for cattle, in which the city health authorities, who have failed to perform their duties for many years in this respect, are now attempting to carry on tuberculin tests of cattle after many leading health authorities in the city have pointed out the reason for Chicago's increasing tubercular disease rate. At present all tubercular sanitariums in the city are filled to overflowing and only desperate cases are taken into the county or municipal hospitals.

Shurtleff Act.

The fight centers around the legality of the Shurtleff act, which was sponsored by Judge Edward C. Shurtleff of McHenry county, where 80 per cent of the herds are tubercular, which states that it is declared unlawful for any city "to demand or require the tuberculin test applied to dairy animals as a means or measure of regulating, and purifying milk, skimmed milk, cream and dairy products of said animals in any manner whatever."

A number of milk producers who are contesting the right of Chicago's health authorities claim they are willing to have their herds tested provided the act which declares that where such federal and state inspection is maintained, that the federal government pay one-third, the state pay one-third and the owner lose one-third of the value of the condemned herds, is lived up to.

Half of Herds Diseased.

It is estimated by health authorities that if the herds in Illinois were to be tested over half of them would have to be destroyed as tubercular.

Many Illinois cities, despite the Shurtleff law, maintain rigid milk and dairy inspection laws, and as Chicago has not maintained them, the milk from diseased cattle has been shipped in regularly.

It is also pointed out that not only is this milk used for human consumption, but that the skimmed milk from diseased cattle has been used as food for hogs and chickens.

Over $50,000,000 worth of hogs were condemned as unfit for human consumption because of their being fed on milk from tubercular cows during the past year.

Diseased Food Sold Workers

Thousands of hogs, cattle and chickens having the disease have been sold over the counters to workers because of the laxity in enforcing the health laws by the officials.

Ford Buys a Pile of Junk; Not for Tin Lizzies—for Museum

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 7.—Henry Ford, Detroit flivver magnate, journeyed out to Doylestown near here today and pillaged the garrets of some of the old houses of hoopskirts and other grotesque habiliments of bygone days, looted the hay lofts of ancient grain flails and gathered up a few wagon loads of junk, for which he paid the owners $3,000. Henry says he is going to transport them to Dearborn, Mich., where he has some sort of museum.

He didn't announce whether he would have the log of the Oscar II on exhibition for the edification of future historians.

THE T.U.E.L.

Represents the Left Wing of the Labor Movement. Its Purpose is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions Into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

CONFERENCE OF MARINE UNIONS OF WESTERN HEMISPHERE CALLED FOR MONTEVIDEO, MARCH 15, 1926

It will be remembered that the First Conference of the Marine Unions of the Western Hemisphere, held at New Orleans last March, was but the beginning, small but certain, of a closer unity among the class conscious transport workers of the western hemisphere. A second conference was called and the following is the official announcement by the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union No. 510 of the I. W. W. for its convocation at Montevideo, Uruguay. It promises to do much to unify the revolutionary mariners of the western world, whose present disorganized conditions makes them the victims of powerful combinations of capital.

• • • •

TO ALL MARITIME UNIONS OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

Fellow Workers: We, the officials of the Marine Transport Workers' Union No. 510 again appeal to you in the name of international solidarity for the seamen of the world and hope that you will give this statement the careful consideration that it deserves and will co-operate with us to insure success for the Second International Conference of Marine Transport Workers of the Western Hemisphere.

Due to the failure of the several marine unions, each acting on its own initiative in matters of strikes, lockouts, boycotts, etc., with little or no harmony or co-operation amongst each other in the past and in order to solidify the ranks of the marine workers on the economic battle ground, giving them an international aspect and increased strength in their battles against the employing class, the Second Annual Convention of the Marine Transport Workers' Industrial Union No. 510 of the I. W. W. went on record to hold an international conference of marine transport workers during the year of 1925.

The First Conference.

One of the first acts of the incoming general organization committee of 1925 was to issue a call to the maritime unions of the Western Hemisphere, ?? in all, to sit in conference at New Orleans on March 1st. 1925, for the purpose of coming to an understanding and accomplishing co-operation and solidarity on an international scale. At the time the call was sent out by the main office, it was hoped that a successful strike could be pulled by the marine workers of the Western Hemisphere acting in harmony and conjunction with one and other. Mention of this phase was made in the appeal sent to the various marine unions.

Due to the limited time to perfect plans for a successful strike, many of the unions appealed to were unable to send any delegates to the conference and most of the representation at the conference was from the United States, Mexico and the West Indies with a few delegates from So. America.

Altho the conference was not 100 per cent perfect, and was not the voice of the entire organized marine workers of the Western Hemisphere, many practical and progressive suggestions were brought forth and many of them, such as co-operation in strikes and boycotts are being practiced by those unions who were represented at New Orleans.

M. T. W. has Proved Itself.

Proof of this co-operation by the membership of the I. W. W. is proved by the boycott of Norwegian ships at the request of the Norwegian seamen, who were on strike during the past summer, and also the many boycotts originated by the workers of the West Indies and Mexico. We also wish to call your attention to the co-operation of the I. W. W. during the "outlaw strike" of British seamen against a reduction in wages. In this instance the I. W. W. took a strike vote which was overwhelming and tied up many ships flying the British flag as well as many ships of other nations.

We realize the evergrowing power of the master class, and the utter impossibility of individual unions to cope with this power of the employing class on the economic battle ground. If the marine workers are to make any advancement they must act together and not as individuals.

This battle by the seamen for emancipation is a struggle for control of the job by the seamen and other marine workers and as stated in the first appeal for the New Orleans conference.

. . . "We plan the death of our former policy of isolation in this conference and in its place we plan action in our struggles against our oppressors, the capitalist class. We are carrying out this program based on the class struggle in society."

The marine workers are unbeatable if acting in harmony and the shipowners will remain supreme only so long as the marine workers are divided using individual action instead of co-operation and solidarity.

Planned for Nine Months.

The delegates at the first conference of Marine Transport Workers of the Western Hemisphere decided unanimously to call a second conference to be held at Havana, Cuba, on January 15, 1926. Shortly after this decision was reached by the delegates the main office of I. U. No. 510 sent out an appeal to the 87 unions in the Western Hemisphere, to send delegates to the Havana conference. Many replies were received that showed a favorable attitude and a willingness of the membership of the various unions to discuss a plan for international solidarity by sending official delegates to the conference.

The seamen of the world will make great strides forward if this conference is successful and therefore it is up to all who have the interest of the seamen at heart to see that nothing that will mar or prevent a successful termination of this conference is allowed to happen, if it is in the power of those concerned to prevent it.

Changed to Montevideo.

Bearing this in mind, we find that it is absolutely necessary to postpone the conference until March 15, 1926, and that the place of holding such conference be changed from Havana, Cuba to Montevideo, Uruguay. The reason for this action on our part is due to our inability to communicate with the various labor groups in Cuba, due to the recent persecutions and also to the immigration restrictions at present existing there.

Montevideo is an open port and delegates to the conference will have no trouble landing there. The postponement of the conference for a sixty-day period will enable the unions concerned more time to prepare for the conference and allow for their arrival at Montevideo.

RED INTERNATIONAL GREETS THE FRENCH STRIKERS WHO OPPOSED THE WAR IN MOROCCO AND SYRIA

When the French workers at the call of the Unitary Confederation of Labor (C. G. T. U.) and the Communist Party of France, on October 12, struck for 24 hours in a protest strike against the waging of imperialist wars in Morocco and Syria, the American capitalist press did all it could to belittle and conceal the scope and significance of the strike.

Well the ruling class of America might fear the effect of the truth about that strike, for it, too, plans imperialist wars. For that reason, precisely, the Trade Union Educational League, gives to the American workers the story of that strike told by the following greeting to the French workers by the executive bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions:

The executive bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions sends warm and fraternal greetings to all the workers of France who have taken part in the strike called in protest against the war in Morocco and Syria. This protest strike is a serious warning to the ruling classes not only of France, but also of other countries; it signifies that 1914 has gone, never to return.

The broad masses of the French proletariat, thanks to the Communist Party and the C. G. T. U. unions, have understood the character and significance of the military undertakings of the third republic. The 12th of October demonstrated this amply and in the eyes of all.

"Democracy" Collapsed.

This strike of protest bitterly opposed by all strata of the bourgeoisie marks an important stage in the development of the French labor movement. During the strike bourgeois democracy showed its national fascist aspect and this will serve as an object lesson to those workers who still believed in the left bloc and in bourgeois democracy.

All this time the socialist party and the reformist Confederation of Labor have played a particularly loathsome role. Their conduct was that of open and shameless scabbing.

It is difficult to say which have acted most abnominably in their recent attack on the revolutionary workers—the fascists or the reformists. One thing is clear. That the Communist Party and the Unitary Confederation of Labor had a united front, from the monarchist Leon Daudet to the reformist Leon Jouhaux, against them.

Scabbing Now a "Socialist" Principle.

Blacklegging has always been counted the most disgraceful and abominable act of treachery. This is realized by strikebreakers who, while accepting the pieces of silver given them, do their dirty work in secret, afraid to act openly and never endeavoring to support their strikebreaking actions of any fundament of principle.

All this has been changed by the French reformists, with Leon Jouhaux, first vice-president of the Amsterdam International, at their head. They came forward openly as strikebreakers and smashed the strike of protest jointly with the police and fascist bands. Thus, step by step, the reformists have sunk to open blacklegging.

Hundreds of Thousands Struck.

Despite the wild campaign of lies conducted by the radical, fascist and reformist press, in spite of the organized blacklegging, hundreds of thousands of workers openly and daringly demonstrated their indignation, scorn and protest in the face of the bourgeois-fascist-reformist bloc.

Let the French bourgeoisie rage. Let French reformism, discredited at last, lie about you. Nothing, no one, will be able to suppress the historic fact that only the Communist Party and the Unitary Confederation of Labor raised a protest against the predatory colonial wars and that honest workers, members of the reformist organizations, took part in the strike against the instructions of their own leaders.

The Red International Versus—Scabs.

Acting in conformity with the decisions of its international, the French section of the R. I. L. U. did its duty.

Can it really be that in breaking this strike the French reformist Confederation of Labor was acting in conformity with the principles of its international? It would be interesting to learn how the Amsterdam International views the conduct of its French section in regard to the war in Morocco and Syria.

All honor to the strikers!
Black shame on the scabs!

BLACKJACKING UNION MEN THE BUSINESS OF THE INDUSTRIAL ASSOC.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Dec. 7.—Two hirelings employed by the industrial association, alias the "American plan," alias the "open shop" to beat up and terrorize union construction workers in the city of San Francisco, have confessed and made affidavits where are in the hands of the Building Trades Council and the San Francisco Labor Council.

The two hirelings, named Alexander Stirling and Ernest K. Howard, have signed complete affidavits involving William de Jung, "head inspector" of the association in the Sante Fe building, and others of the criminal outfit, including one R. B. Floethe and one Mr Patch. The gang waylaid and slugged a union carpenter with blackjacks.

As Usual, Farrington Counts the Votes and Announces His Victory

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 7.—The Farrington machine has announced how many votes they would admit were for compelling Frank to hold the regular district convention of district 12 as per the constitution of the United Mine Workers of Illinois. Farrington says that only 12 locals with a membership of 6,193 voted against his proposal to postpone the convention until 197, while he says 78 locals voted to postpone it, and these have 20,655 members.

That Farrington is stealing votes as usual may be expected in view of the fact that he is deadly afraid of a convention at this time. Also, indications are that a great many more miners' locals are against the postponement than are reported.

Local 705 and local 912 both have turned down the proposal to postpone, and it would be strange if Farrington could count straight at any time in his life, particularly when he stands to win by crooked counting.

PLUTE PRESS GIVES A NEW ANANIAS TALE

"Russian Anthracite" Furnishes a Lie

By A Worker Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 7.—Philadelphia papers, and many of those in the anthracite region, have been running all sorts of yarns to frighten the striking anthracite miners back to work.

They have recently hit upon a new one, designed to kill two birds with one stone. That is, to arouse hatred toward the workers of Soviet Russia an dthe Soviet government, and to scare the hard coal diggers at one and the same time.

Another "Bolshevik Atrocity."

A recent issue of a Philadelphia capitalist sheet, for example, features a story saying that 100,000 tons of "Russian anthracite" is already loaded at Riga on the Baltic for transportation to Philadelphia and will land sometime in December.

The paper carefully leaves all exact data on this alleged shipment completely out. All it says is that "This shipment is being brought here by a syndicate of independent coal operators whose mines have been closed by the strike."

No Facts Given.

This does not tell anybody anything, either how it has been purchased, direct from the Soviet government—if at all,—or thru re-purchase from some third party, what boats are bringing it, who is the responsible persons connected with this alleged "syndicate of operators" or any other supposed facts.

The reason these data are not told is clear—there is no such coal being shipped from Soviet Russia! Coal dealers might import coal, but hardly ever are operators, mythically "independent," going to do such things. Neither is the Soviet government going to part with "100,000 tons of anthracite" to any unknown destination where there is a coal strike on in foreign parts.

Moreover, the Russian miners have something to say about this sort of thing. Finally, any coal from Soviet Russia comes out, if it comes at all, thru the south by way of Black Sea ports, not north thru Riga.

If anyone still believes the lie they can watch the coal pier at Philadelphia and starve to death waiting for that imaginary fleet of coal ships loaded with "Russian anthracite."

Class Collaboration Stated as a Religion by Head of A. F. of L.

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 7.—Scarcely ever has the corruption of class collaboration been more flaunting displayed than in the speech of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor in an address here last Thursday night. He said:

"The marvelous expansion and growth of American industry are due to the stimulating influence of private enterprise and personal initiative.

"The success of management means the success of labor. For that reason labor is willing to make its contribution to assist management and to bring about the right solution of problems dealt with by management."

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

Editor's note: The sixth instalment of Labor in the Far East treats of Britain's maneuvers to affect a compromise with the Chinese workers and her agreement to offer concessions. Yesterday's instalment, article 5, told of the victory of the workers and the losses of the imperialists.

ARTICLE VI.

By L. HELLER.

FROM the very first and to the very last England has been pursuing a policy of threats and violence. However, there are already signs to the effect that England, preparing with one hand for intervention, is ready to stretch out the other hand with an olive branch in it. This is indicated in the replacement of the Hongkong governor, Sir Reginald Stabb, notorious for having introduced corporal punishment for "agitators," whose name fills with pride the heart of every imperialist jingo, but has become hateful to the Chinese masses, as a symbol of British arrogance and of the most ruthless colonial oppression. This arch imperialist with whom the representatives of labor would not think of dealing, has been removed from Hongkong and transferred to Jamaica. Even the very tone of the British press, after three months of threats and provocation, has changed. It will suffice to compare several extracts from the leading British organs.

The North China Daily News of Shanghai, a semi-official press organ of British imperialism, wrote as follows in regards to the efforts of the Chinese chamber of commerce in Shanghai to find a compromise in the conflict: "As for the merchants of Shanghai, we appreciate their efforts to restore peace but. . . . we tell them frankly that they are wasting their time. There is only one way in which peace can be brought back, and that is by the unconditional surrender of the students and other agitators." Such was the attitude of the British organ in June. In July the paper deciphered the meaning of the "surrender of the agitators" by openly and persistently demanding capital punishment for them. Hongkong where Sir R. Stubbs, referred to above, did not hesitate at shooting the active workers, was offered as an example to Shanghai.

HOWEVER, at the end of August, when the front of the Shanghai and Hongkong workers remained firm and unshaken, while Lancashire ing England and Hongkong on the Pacific were feeling more and more acutely the crushing blows coming from the Chinese strikers and the unbated boycott of British goods, the British press found a new language:

"While the diplomats are disputing and flittering away valuable time," bitterly complains the London China Express & Telegraph, a journal closely associated with the colonial department, "the boycott has reduced the normal movement of British goods by 80%." (Issue of August 6, 1925.)

The diplomatic parleys really materialized nothing of practical value, at least from the standpoint of the interests of British imperialism. All the efforts to line up America and France failed completely. Japan, who at one time followed in the wake of England, finally compromised and parted ways with that country taking up the path of agreement, at a costly price to herself.

THERE once had been a time in the happy days of Lord Palmerstone, when Britain was deliberately striving for "splended isolation." To-day this isolation is a fact, established against her will, and it is far from splendid, and the latest articles of the same London weekly reflects this blue blood of sobered imperialism, while the conservative government finds it necessary to prepare the "public opinion," but more particularly the arrogant Hongkong bankers and shipping interests, the Shanghai municipal council, the British chamber of commerce, which represent the most die-hard elements of British imperialism in China, of the necessity to seek a compromise, to agree to concessions. ". . . .The British government recognizes," the London weekly writes in an evidently inspired editorial on Aug. 27, "the real grievances from which China suffers and is anxious to remove these with the least possible delay."

"It is admitted," continues the editorial even more outspokenly, "that the treaties are out of date and must be revised, and it is obvious that the principle of extra-territoriality must be modified in face of the new China." (China Express and Telegraph, Aug. 27th).

So that is how the influential London circles began to see light.

And this tremendous work of "enlightening" has been carried out—offensive as this may seem to the "enlightened seafarers"—by the plain, illiterate Chinese coolies, by the Shanghai and Hongkong strikers, by the dockers, seamen, textile workers under the leadership of the Shanghai Trades Council, and of the All-Chinese Federation in the south.

N. Y. CARPENTERS FORM A LEFT BLOC TO DEFEAT THE HUTCHESON DISTRICT COUNCIL MACHINE MEN

By MIKE ROSS, Worker Correspondent.

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 7.—All the progressive elements among the carpenters have united and formed a progressive bloc in order to fight the reactionary and corrupt Halkett administration of the New York district council of carpenters. The first concrete step has been taken by the progressives in uniting on a certain minimum program for the election of officers for the New York district council of carpenters, with candidates representing the dieffrent groups.

Progressive Program.

1. Election of district council officials every year by a referendum of the membership.
2. Election of business agents every year.
3. A five-day week of forty hours, and a twelve dollar per day wage.
4. Each local union shall be sole judge as to its representation in the district council.
5. Freedom of expression within the union.
6. All amendments indorsed by five locals to be sent out for a referendum of the membership.
7. Job control so that the workers can put an end to the "hire-and-fire" sytem.

The Candidates.

James McAdam, Local Union 585, for president.

Mortimer McGrath, Local Union 787, for first vice-president.

Waldemar Lihzis, Local Union 2090, for second vice-president.

Michal Kavanagh, Local Union 2725, for secretary-treasurer.

The Officials' Method.

The officers are elected by local union delegates to the D. C. and in a leaflet that is signed by the United Progressive Carpenters the locals are urged to instruct their delegates to vote for these candidates, before Dec. 23 when elections will be held.

The formation of this left bloc is a result and reaction against the actions of the present corrupt administration headed by John Halkett successor to Brindell. The method used to defeat the will of the membership was to fight one group at a time, stamping each as a group of reds, T. U. E. L. members or disrupters thereby dividing the opposition and giving them the chance to defeat one local group at a time.

Two Allies in the Left Bloc.

The two main groups are:

1. The group that supported Rosen as general president of the carpenters union in the last general election and is composed of real left wing fighters for the interest of the membership upon a concrete program.

2. The other is the group that supported Brown for president. It has no program and is composed of liberals, conservative honest trade unionists, and others that are mainly interested in fighting corruption or ousting the present officials.

Nature of the Alliance.

The fact that for the first time this latter group was forced to unite with the former upon a written program based on the interests of the rank and file is a result of sound left wing tactics, in the last campaign for president of the carpenters' union and is of great significance for the labor movement and a forruner of great fights yet to develop. It is of course expected that the latter group will not at present accept the entire left wing program. They will only learn the need as the fight developes.

Some of the recent local events that lead to this progressive bloc are interesting. Local 2163 adopted an amendment to the district council bylaws that all D. C. officials should be elected every year by a referendum vote instead of every three years by delegates to the district council. This was indorsed by eleven locals but the reactionaries suppressed it by ruling it out of order and not allowing the district council to send it out for a referendum vote.

Blocked by Officials.

The demand for a 5-day week and a $12 per day wage was raised by the left wing and the membership brought so much pressure that the D. C. was forced to send it out for a referendum vote. Local after local voted 90% for it, so overwhelming was the vote that the officers of the D. C. refused to make the tally public satisfying themselves by saying that it did not get the required 55% vote of the membership. A motion in the D. C. was carried requesting the building trades council to give their approval to this carpenters demand but John Halkett who is czar of the building trades council and also of the carpenters district council, ruled it out of order.

A good method by which the corrupt officers of the D. C. perpetuated themselves in office and defeated the will of the membership is by disfranchising locals that elected progressive delegates, by refusing to seat them.

Would Not Seat Progressives.

A recent example is the refusal of the D. C. to seat Morris Rosen former left wing candidate for general president as a delegate from Local 376. The local sent a letter and resolution to all the locals in the district condemning this and demanding that Rosen be seated immediately. This was indorsed by a number of locals.

Another is the refusal to seat A. Kivowitz of Local 2717 who was discriminated against because he is a liberal. In his place the D. C. recognized Goldberg as delegate, he was at one time accused in court of asking for $2,500 graft by the parquet floor layers' union in order to give them a charter from the carpenters' union.

Goldberg was not elected and his vote contested by Local 2717. The local later called a new election and elected another liberal Raskin. He was also not seated.

He Sent "Somebody."

Finally the local asked Hutcheson to send somebody to straighten the matter out. He sent general executive board member Guerin. This worthy decided that neither Raskin nor Kivowitz nor Goldberg shall be delegate but that Beren who has a record as a scab shall be a delegate and for punishment he threw out the chairman of the local who was duly elected and put Goldberg in his place.

This is his reward for stuffing the ballot box with nearly 500 votes for Hutcheson in the last general election. Many members of Local 2717 openly state this. Hutcheson and Halkett thus have their best friends a grafter, or would be grafter, and a scab to run the local.

The membership of Local 2717 repudiate this and refuse to recognize the non-elected officers. They hold meetings of their own without having in their possession the charter or books and they have taken their case into the capitalist courts expecting to get more justice than from the misleaders of the union. All these events are hammering the opposition groups into unity of action which will eventually force the corrupt officialdom from power.

BRITISH UNIONS BEGIN FORMING DEFENSE CORPS

Fight Left Split in Labor Party

How things are going in England may be seen from the following culled from the Sunday Worker:

"There are still some curious people in the labor movement who pretend that the government and the law courts are above all classes, and refuse to admit that the state is simply the machinery by which the bosses safeguard their hold on the factories, railways, mines, and other places where the workers are exploited. . .

A long list of the British government's acts as a strikebreaking agency is given with the observation—"The bosses are many sided, but they have a single purpose—that is to smash the working class, by fair means or foul."

Workers' Defense Corps Forming.

"When the workers realize this, we shall have moved a long step forward. That is why we welcome the decisive action taken this week by the Islington Trades Council, which has circularized the affiliated bodies asking for lists of trade unionists who will enroll to defend their own organizations."

"The response has been excellent. It could be the same all over the country. The only way to protect the trade unions against the fascisti and the government-aided strikebreakers in the coming industrial fights is to organize a Workers' Defense Corps."

Another significant item in the same issue is the editorial advising against the tendency to split the labor party because of the reactionary actions of the Liverpool conference. In part the editorial say:

For Real Work in Unions.

"This is not time for splits, nor is there need for them. No 'Left Wing Labor Party' will be real unless it is based on the trade unions. But real militant work in the trade unions will win the labor party for the left wing."

"Consultation and organized co-operation of all left wingers in the I. L. P. the trade unions, Plebs Leaguers, Communists; hard dogged work in the labor party, fighting to re-equip it for a fight against capitalism; no despairing or faint-hearted collapses or splits."

Utica Textile Workers to Go on Strike Again

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 7.—A second strike of the 1,200 employes of the Utica Steam & Mohawk Valley Cotton Mills impends, following the 4 to 1 strike vote of the members of the weavers, spinners, carders and loomfixers unions affiliated with the United Textile Workers Union. Joseph R. White, organizer says the date will be set by the officers of the four crafts.

The United Textile Workers demands the old wage scale cut 10% earlier in the year. After a long strike the workers returned on a compromise but with the promise of arbitrators appointed by the mayor that the company's profits would be investigated to find whether the company's wage cut was justified. Time has passed and no definite cost data has been given out and the union is resorting again to economic pressure.

Questions for Fourth Lesson in Capital

(Pages 81 to 96; The Fetishism of Commodities to the End of Chapter I.)

1. Do commodities, in their character as different objects of a useful character, enter into relations with one another?

2. Is the commodity a mysterious object because of its relation to other commodities?

3. Is the value of a commodity a characteristic which resides within the commodity itself?

4. What is the actual nature of the relationship which is expressed in the exchange relation between commodities?

5. Give a definition of the fetishism of commodities.

6. Does the discovery that values are but the material expressions of the human labor spent in their production, place the actual process of exchange upon a different basis?

7. What are the conditions which are necessary for the development of the idea that the different kinds of labor which are carried on independently, are constantly being reduced to the quantitative proportions which society requires?

8. How does the money form conceal the social character of private labor, and the social relations between the individual producers?

9. Make a comparison between the social relations in the performance of labor, in feudal society and under capitalism.

10. What does Marx mean when he says that the formulae of the bourgeois economists are the products of a society in which the process of production controls the men, rather than the men controlling the process of production?

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS OF THIRD LESSON IN CAPITAL

(Pages 64 to 81, Volume I, Capital)

1. When a commodity is in 'the equivalent form, this expresses the fact that it is directly exchangable with other commodities.

2. Inasmuch as a commodity cannot express its own value (e. g., it would be meaningless to say that 20 yards of linen equals 20 yards of linen) it must find another commodity which will stand as the expression of its value.

3. The body of the commodity that serves as the equivalent, figures as the materialization of human labor in the abstract and is at the same time the product of some specifically useful concrete labor. This concrete labor becomes, therefore, the medium of expressing abstract human labor. In the equivalent form of value, use-value thus becomes the form of manifestation of itss opposite, value, and concrete labor becomes the form under which its opposite, abstract human labor, manifests itself.

4. The labor of private individuals takes on a directly social form when it produces the commodity which is established as the equivalent form of value.

5. The fact that prevented Aristotle from completing his analysis of value was that Greek society, founded upon slave labor, had for its natural basis the inequality of men and of their labor powers; this prevented the concept of value (a mode of expressing all labor as equal human labor) from arising in the Greek society.

6. The value of a commodity arises from its nature as a product of human labor power. Its exchange value is the independent and definite expression which value receives when the commodity is brought into the exchange relation with a commodity of another kind.

7. The elementary form of value (so much of commodity A being equal to so much of commodity B) brings forth the commodity A only as a use-value, the value of which it is sought to express for purpose of exchange, while commodity B is brought forth, not as a use-value, but merely as the bodily form which expresses the value of A.

8. The expanded relative form of value, is that in which a single commodity expresses its value in terms of a series of other commodities.

9. The expanded relative form of value is defective because it is incomplete and can only be fully expressed by naming every other existing commodity; because it consists of disparate and independent expressions of value; and because each commodity must in turn, under this form, go thru its own series, different in every case, and consisting of an interminable series.

10. The general form of value is arrived at by reversing the series of the expanded relative form, so that the commodity in the expanded relative form becomes the equivalent form of value for the series of commodities. Under the general form of value all commodities now express their value in an elementary form, because in a single commodity; with unity, because in one and the same commodity.

11. The elementary form of value occurs practically only in the first beginning, when the products of labor are converted into commodities by accidental and occasional exchanges. The expanded form distinguishes more adequately the use-value from the value; it comes into actual existence so soon as a particular product of labor is habitually exchanged for other commodities. The general form of value expresses the whole world of commodities in terms of a single commodity set aside for that purpose, and are for the first time effectively brought into relation with one another as values.

12. A commodity can become a general expression of value inasmuch as all other commodities make it the material in which they uniformly express their value.

13. The universal equivalent is a form of value in general, a form which can be assumed by any commodity, because and insofar as it has been excluded from the rest of all other commodities, and has been set over against them as their equivalent; only from the time this exclusion becomes finally restricted to one commodity does the general form of value obtain general social validity.

14. The commodity which becomes a universal equivalent is excluded from the relative value form, because its value cannot be expressed in terms of itself. The universal equivalent has become the measure of values and therefore its value cannot be measured.

15. The money form of value is that in which the universal equivalent has, by social custom, become finally identified with the substance, gold.

16. The difference between the general and the money form of value lies only in the specific form which the universal equivalent takes; in the general form, any certain commodity may be the equivalent—in the money form it is the particular commodity gold.

Coolidge Proposes Fake Cures for U. S. Agricultural Problems

about 35,000 farmers. In addition there is the general banking system, national and state. All of these agencies need to give more informed attention to farm needs. They need more energy in administration. They should be equipped to supply not only credit but sound business advice, and the farmers to a much greater extent should learn to use all these facilities."

Means Slavery.

Tho veiled in the garb of beneficence and consideration for the farmers, the farm loan and intermediate credit banks, the country banks (national and state) and the whole banking combine are in one gigantic movement to reduce the farmers of the middle west to the condition of land slaves, taking orders from the agents of the big bankers, packers, millers, and other trusts exploiting them.

The sentence in Coolidge's speech saying "They (the banks) should be equipped to supply not only credit but sound business advice," portends what is in store for the impoverished farmers who, in ever larger numbers, are forced to appeal to the loan sharks for aid to enable them to hold crops for better prices—prices that many times do not materialize. Finally, in desperation, the farmers are forced to dispose of their crop below the anticipated price. Then the loan becomes a permanent mortgage plastered on the land.

Advice from country bankers, working as agents of the big combines is simply a form of swindling the farmer. They advise him not to sell his crop, but hold it for better prices, while they "carry him over" with a loan. Once in the clutches of the money octopus the farmers then pay dearly for the first "advice" so graciously extended by the banker. From that time onward they are forced to take orders from the bankers.

The methodical, systematic exploitation of the farmer is proceeding thru this banking system that Coolidge proposes to extend. It is only a question of time when each farmer graciously permitted by the great combines to inhabit the land he once owned will receive instructions regarding the sort of crop he shall plant. If Armour & Co. want more beef, the farmer must raise crops that feed cattle, and turn much of his land into pasture, regardless of his desires. If the millers control the bank and insist upon wheat the farmer will be forced to dispose of his live stock and devote most of his soil to grain growing.

Agent of the Banks.

President Coolidge is the agent of the bank combine. The main wing of the party of which he is the head represents finance capital while its left wing in the middle west represetns the harvester trust, the packing house trust, the milling trust and the rail combines, all of which bleed the farmers to the limit. The more than one billion dollars put out "at moderate rates" to 35,000 farmers means that most of that number is now hopelessly entangled in the tentacles of the bank octopus, from which they will never extricate themselves under the capitalist system.

Another fraudulent statement of Coolidge was to the effect that thru co-operative marketing much could be gained by the farmers. The sort of co-operative marketing now in vogue, under the control of agents of the railroads, benefits only the elevator terminals and the railroads by making much easier for them to handle the volume of grain products than when marketing is carried on individually. Under a system devised to aid the farmer such marketing is advantageous, but under the system of gouging the farmer for all he will bear such co-operation only benefits the railroads and in no way aids the farmer.

Banal Patriotic Plea.

Tho addressing exploiters of the farmers Coolidge spoke primarily for the purpose of befuddling the real farmers who were not at the Sherman hotel and who had no voice in choosing those who were there. He indulged in a stupid, banal laudation of the farmer in history. Calling them the builders of the nation he traced their history from the founding of America, thru the revolution, the civil war and the world war, and claimed they had won all the victories. Of course, in this eulogy he includes himself, as he tried to stead the thunder of roaring Magnus Johnson, the original Minnesota "dirt" farmer statesman, by proclaiming himself a Vermont "dirt" farmer.

Visit Purely Political.

The republican party is in dire straits as the result of the widespread depression in agriculture and those who gave Coolidge such a landslide majority in the election of last year are eagerly awaiting an opportunity to as decisively repudiate his candidates in the approaching congressional election of 1926. The visit of Coolidge to Chicago, like the visit of Jardine, secretary of agriculture, is for the purpose of laying a foundation for a campaign of rosy promises to the farmers as a substitute for the properity they were promised but did not get.

Coolidge and his wife left the city at 1:30 p. m. to return to Washington where congress will inform him that they are in session (he would not know it otherwise, of course) and ready to receive his message.

Among the Pioneers

By A Worker Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—The Los Angeles Juniors observed American Eductaion Week by holding a counter-demonstration. This took the form of a concert, on Nov. 21 and 22 at the Co-operative Hall.

In a city like Los Angeles, which is completely under the control of the chamber of commerce there is very little need for an education week, as the doping process (called education) goes on constantly with the utmost intensity. It is a common occurrence to have bankers, judges, etc., address the children at school. However, the masters could not let such an opportunity as education week slip by unused. And use it they did.

The Juniors of Los Angeles "always ready" gave a remarkable concert to counteract this blatant spreading of bunk. On Saturday, at 2 p. m., a matinee performance was held with 300 children attending. Our programme, which consisted of a play entitled "Our School," a ballet, "The Goslings," a dramatic march "The Goose-Step," and many others, was centered around the school, and exposed the true meaning of patriotism, loyalty, and all the other 57 varieties of capitalist propanda in the schools. On Sunday, at 8 p. m. the programme was repeated, for adults, and admission was charged.

The hall was packed with rights, lefts, centrists, n'everything. There were present about 500 adults and 200 children. It proved to be an inspiration to many of our worn-out and discouraged revolutionists, and also helped to increase the membership of the Junior Section. This concert will never be forgotten by the Los Angeles reds.

Anna Porter Tells Los Angeles Workers About Visit in Soviet Russia

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 7.—Anna Porter of San Jose, Calif., just back from Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, spoke here at the Intl. Brotherhood Welfare Association hall, 420 Stanford Ave., on her impressions of Russia.

She gave a short outline of the conditions in Russia before, during and after the revolution, and characterized the first workers' government as the only hope for the working class of the world.

The audience displayed great interest in the subject, and many questions were asked. James Eads How, the "hobo millionaire," was in the audience and took lively part in everything going on. He himself spent some time in Russia last summer, and when he came back he gave a fine lecture in the I. B. W. A. hall. The great progress made in Russia since the overthrow of czarism made a deep impression on him, he said.

Workers Write About the Workers' Life

STEEL WORKERS HEAR STORY OF MINERS' STRIKE

Toohey Brings Message to Youngstown

By WALLACE T. METCALFE
(Worker Correspondent)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 7—A good-sized audience of steel workers and friends turned out to hear Pat Toohey, progressive member of the United Mine Workers of America, when he spoke here tonight. Years of youthful labor spent in the coal mines of Pennsylvania have given Toohey a clear insight into the problems of the coal miners.

Inferior Coal on Market.

Pointing out that the coal operators in normal times stored millions of tons of inferior coal which is now being dumped into the eastern markets and sold at exhorbitant prices, Toohey showed that the "public" is being panhandled by the "public" loving operators. The weak front presented by the officials of the United Mine Workers to the operators and their lack of presentation of the problems confronting the miners was dwelt upon showing that the officialdom of the United Mine Workers are mainly interested in having the coal operators agree to install the check-off system whereby the operators collect union dues from the pay envelopes of the miners.

Hours of labor, wages and the contract system were treated at length by Toohey and the ever-increasing toll of life and limb resulting from accidents in the work day life of the miners was explained showing that in their mad rush for more profits human life is the operators' last consideration.

The refusal of the John L. Lewis officialdom to consider ways and means to protect the miners in safeguarding their union by adopting progressive measures places the union in a life and death struggle with the operators, with the reactionary union officials acting in unison with the police and municipal authorities in suppressing any outward manifestation of discontent against the conduct of the strike.

Union Men Made Scabs.

The fact that thousands of union maintenance men are allowed to enter the mines to keep them in shape for the operators was pointed out as one of the weak spots in the union agreement. In some cases it has become konwn that these workers are performing other than the labor stipulated in the union agreement.

The progressive demands for the formation of a labor party, the amalgamation of the miners, transport and railroad workers, were explained in full by Toohey and the confidence expressed by the miners in the progressives accounts mostly for the ruthless suppression of rank and file meetings addressed by the progressive leaders. Describing with much humor the jailing of Alex Reid and himself for their activities in behalf of the miners Toohey made plain that the jails of Pennsylvania are odorous and that the coal barons and authorities are common kin when it comes to jailing workers.

William J. White, veteran member of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers' Union presided and urged for the united front of labor in defense of the striking coal miners. White spoke upon the conditions existing in the unorganized soft coal regions and made plain that the John L. Lewis officialdom of reactionary labor leaders would betray the miners unless the rank and file in the entire organized labor movement supported the miners, and backed up the progressive demands.

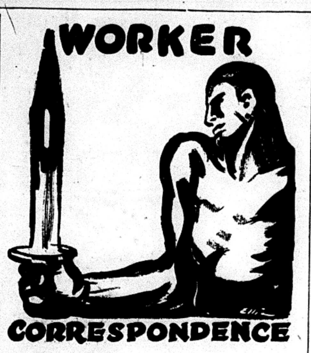
Los Angeles Standby of Reaction Worried Over Workers' School

By A Worker Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 7.—That old standby of reaction, the Los Angeles Times devoted considerable space in its edition of Nov. 18 to advertising the Los Angeles classes of the Workers (Communist) Party. It also reprints an Associated Press dispatch from Minneapolis giving an interview with C. A. Hathaway, district organizer of the party, in which a brief outline of the workers' school of the party is set forth.

In case any worker in Los Angeles missed reading the "Times" we will give anew the address of the classes, which take place at 224 So. Spring St., Room 200, each Sunday. The Junior League, according to the "Times," meets each Tuesday and Wednesday at the Cooperative Building, Mott St. and Brooklyn Ave., and all "children between eight and fifteen are especially welcome."

More interesting sessions may be promised, in view of the "Times" volunteering the information that the so-called "radical squad" of the police is keeping a "watchful eye" upon the classes. However, even if the cops are absent an interesting time is assured, so none should stay away.



YOUNGSTOWN, O., SCHOOLS FEEL KICK OF Y. W. L.

But the "Officials Are Investigating"

By A Worker Correspondent

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 7.—The "school officials are making an investigation," according to the Youngstown Vindicator — which city seems to need some vindication in view of the exploitation of its workers, in the steel mills particularly.

The "investigation," however, is not of the long hours, the speed-up and the miserable pay of the average steel worker, but of the "reds."

Don't Like Any Difference.

It seems that the capitalist dictatorship is perturbed that there should be any disagreement with its program of pumping patriotism to the capitalist system of robbing the workers into the school children, sons and daughters of the workers.

So the "Vindicator" tells in indignant tones of a "junior committee" of the "Workers Party of Youngstown," which it deals with imaginately as "local agency of the Communist Russian party."

Y. W. L. Busy.

The sad tale is told that while pupils of the South High School were being dismissed from afternoon classes, they were met with literature "attacking the school system and charging that the pupils are being taught militarism." A leaflet was given them entitled "The Fraud of American Education Week."

Thus it happens that the "school officials are investigating"—not investigating whether or not the charges made in the leaflet are true, but investigating who among the youngsters of Youngstown is so intelligent and courageous as to defy the tailor-made ideas these school officials wish to thrust down their throats.

If you want to thoroughly understand Communism—study it.

Women Textile Toilers' Meet at Passaic, N. J., Draws Many Members

By A Worker Correspondent

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 7.—The United Front Committee of the Textile Industry held a special meeting for the women workers, in Neibauer's Hall. The hall was packed with men and women from the Passaic mills. Albert Weisbord was chairman. The speakers were Rose Pastor Stokes who addressed the meeting in English, Zaikowsky who spoke in Polish and Steiner of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union who spoke in Hungarian. The three women speakers were heard thru to the end and heartily applauded, despite the fact that not all the workers in the hall understand every one of the languages spoken.

When a local police sergeant, who came in plain clothes, rose to tell the workers that the police were their friends, and not the friends of the bosses, the workers who packed the hall talked right back in no uncertain terms and the sergeant beat a polite retreat after his impolite interruption of the meeting.

Dozens of men and women joined the union, the speakers helping to enroll them as they crowded around the platform. Weisbord told your correspondent that the union is getting its daily dozens of new members since the campaign began.

When that argument begins at lunch time in your shop tomorrow—show them what the DAILY WORKER says about it.

I. L. G. W. Open Forum Discusses Imperialism

By A Worker Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A lecture on imperialism was delivered by Sylvan A. Pollock at the open forum which is being conducted regularly by Local 41 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, at their headquarters, 6 W. 21st St. New York.

Pollack sketched briefly the basis of imperialism on an international scale, pointing out its manifestations in China, Syria and Morocco, as well as its American branch, which devotes itself at the present time especially to South and Central America. The recent outrage against the workers of Panama, where American troops were used as strikebreakers, was cited as an example, as well as many other forms that it has taken.

POLICE BRUTAL TO HILLCREST SILK STRIKERS

Beat Up Men and Insult Women

By A Worker Correspondent

HUDSON COUNTY, N. J., Dec. 7—As the strike in the Hillcrest silk mill in Hudson county, New Jersey enters its sixth week of struggle with the workers still holding out firmly and loyally, the police have tried more and more violent means to break the strike. It has come to such a point that the United Front Committee of Textile Workers in charge of the strike has determined to bring pressure on the mayor and chief of police through demonstrations, and legal procedure to force the police to stop molesting the strikers.

The police have personally threatened many strikes with immediate bodily harm, threatening to send them to the hospital and in some cases actually raising their arms to strike. They have cracked picketers over the shins in their anxiety to please the bosses. They have insulted the women pickets, calling them many vile names. They have tried to provoke arguments and quarrels with the men so as to give them the pretext to beat them up. They have seized strikers and flung them against the wall of the mill, ostensibly to search them for arms, although they had no warrants whatever. They have done their best to prevent the strikers from informing others of the strike and have actually pushed newcomers who did not know of the strike and did not want to act as scabs into the mill. And only a few days ago they ran after a striker into a bake shop and the policeman drew a blackjack from his pocket and wanted to hit the striker with it, at the same time jamming him against the wall and frisking him. It has reached such a stage that there seems to be no limit to what the police will do.

The United Front Committee of Textile Workers thru its representative, Albert Weisbord and in conjunction with the International Labor Defense will make all efforts to procure warrants against the offending officers and and to restrain the police from continuing their brutal tactics. A delegation of the strikers will visit the mayor and the board of councilmen and lay the case before them demanding justice. A big mass meeting will be held in the immediate future to acquaint the workers with the facts of the strike and the brutality of the police. Efforts will be made to get Carlo Tresca or Giovennitti or Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who are known as old time textile fighters to speak at the mass meeting to be held and it is expected that all good fighters will turn out to support the strike.

WANT CHILDREN TRAINED INTO WILLING SLAVES

Servility Is Keynote to Capitalist Education

By PHILLIP SHATZ.
(Worker Correspondent)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 7.—Fifteen hundred teachers of vocational training, representing high schools, rehabilition schools, and the vocational training department of some of the largest industrial and commercial corporations in the country gathered at the convention of the National Society for Vocational Education, at the Hotel Statler, here.

What the purpose of this convention is may be readily understood from the utterances of some of the outstanding figures at the convention. "We must never neglect to teach the idea of service," said Vernon Riegel, state superintendent of public instruction. "As long as the idea of service is not taught, there will be discussion between employer and employee."

Servility First Aim.

The chief problems of the convention are how to train the country's youth to be efficient slaves and how to make them like it. Said O. W. Rosenthal, president of the Builders Association of Chicago and director of the National Association of Building Trades Employers, "We do not care how much training you give the apprentices in pounding nails or handling saws. What we want are men who will come to us trained in the right spirit, the right frame of mind, men who will come to us in a spirit of willingness, men who are willing to make sacrifices."

Unions a Bone in Their Throats.

This jovial representative of the class for whom all the vocational training in the public schools is carried on, further bewailed the fact that in Cleveland the apprentice who wants to work in the trade has no choice other than to join the union in his respective trade. "I do not say that this is either a good or a bad situation," said, "I simply present it as a situation for vocation teachers to think about.

In private, however, Mr. Rosenthal admitted that he was of the opinion that the closed shop was un-American and that workers ought to be permitted to have some "choice as to whether or not they wanted to join the union."

Begin in Elementary Schools.

One of the speakers unintentionally struck a note of truth when he said that "Our teachers in the elementary schools lack background. Let us pay more attention to what is being taught and not how it is being taught." How true it is that the young workers of the country are taught not how to live that they may enjoy life to the full, but rather how to live most profitably for the bosses, can be readily seen from the above remark.

Life Isn't Sweet for Sweated Candy Workers

By A Worker Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The candy workers should be organized. We work ten hours every day and most of the shops all day Saturday. Our wages are very low. The girls work for only $12 a week. In the summer season they get little girls to work for as low as $8 a week. The hours are long and the lighting system in most places is very poor.

We turn out tons of candy a day. The foremen's job is to drive the workers and they sure do that. Of all the candy shops I have worked in the Advance Candy company is the worst.

The bosses are very rich. They travel often and have all the good things of life. We workers who make them rich if we get laid off for a week we are in fear of poverty and hunger.

I hope some day our trade will be organized. We need a union badly. I hope our president will not be like John L. Lewis of the miners' who represents workers only to betray them.

I am going to read Communist books and literature and The DAILY WORKER. If Communism is as my friend tells me I will join the Workers (Communist) Party. I want to help my class, the working class.

Trenton, N. J., Workers Protest Rakosi Murder

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 7.—At the first meeting here of the newly organized local section International Labor Defense a resolution protesting against the contemplated execution of Mathias Rakosi and his comrades by the murderous Horthy regime was unanimously passed calling upon all working class organizations to take up the fight for saving the lives of these revolutionary workers. Copies of this resolution were sent to the Hungarian ambassador in Washington and to the labor press.

Pullman Head Has No Humanitarian Motives to Save Workers' Eyes

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — (FP) — Workmen's compensation laws make it bad business for an employer to let his workers be needlessly injured, it was brought out at a joint meeting of the American Museum of Safety and the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness.

"I'll be perfectly frank," Harry Benson, manager of the Pullman company factories at Buffalo, told the convention; "I didn't take humanitarian motives into consideration in compelling our men to wear goggles. It was a cold-blooded money proposition, for every time a workman loses an eye we lose $3,300."

Fifteen thousand of the blind persons in America lost their sight industry and 7,000 workers in Pennsylvania lost one eye each in recent years, speakers brought out.

WHITNEY JURY 'LOOKED AFTER,' PAPER CHARGES

Extraordinary Costs Excite Suspicion

(I. L. D. News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 7.—In the Nov. 21 issue of The Open Forum, a paper published by the southern Californian branch of the Civil Liberties Union, a story is reprinted from an Oakland, California paper concerning the inside workings of the jury which convicted Anita Whitney, now scheduled by the decision of the U. S. supreme cort, to spend some years in San Quentin prison for her political opinions under the "criminal syndicalist" law.

The Consuming "Public."

The story speaks for itself and is given as follows:

"A bill amounting to $148.55 for cigars, cigarettes, magazines, candy and chewing gum for the Whitney jury is now being held up by Frank Garrison, county auditor, pending an investigation of the expenditures by District Attorney Ezra Decoto. The bill was presented by Bercovich cigar stand in Hotel Oakland, where the jury was quartered. The total bill for the jury, including hotel accommodations, amounts to about $3,000.

Some Smokers.

"The bill shows that four members of the jury smoked 742 cigars at 12½ cents each during the 24 days of the trial, tobacco costing $95. About $50 was spent for magazines, chewing gum and other notions.

"Garrison explained today that he had held up the bill when jurors informed him that they did not consume the amount of tobacco charged against them.

Did the Ladies Get Shaved?

"Six women on the jury spent $55 for toilet articles, while Abe Cohen, a barber, charged $1 each for 14 hair cuts and 50 cents each for 47 shaves.

"In case the bill is presented to him for his approval, Judge James G. Quinn said today he would have a full investigation made before passing upon it."

Bill Calls for Merger of Army and Navy Into Unified Department

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland, announced he would introduce a bill providing for the merging of the war and navy departments into a department of national defense, and provide therein secretaries of equal rank for the army, navy and the air service, following Coolidge's acceptance of the Morrow aircraft investigation, rejecting Mitchell's proposals.

COMMUNISTS ADVISE STRIKING PARENTS TO OUST IMPOSTORS AND CONDUCT THEIR OWN FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Parents of Public School No. 148 held a protest meeting in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, at 44 Sumner Ave., at the republican headquarters. The meeting was called to protest against the board of education's transfer of pupils from kindergarten to the eighth grade to schools almost a mile away from their residences thru the most congested districts.

Sacrifice Children for Dollars.

The change has brought about the utmost confusion. Children of high grades were put into lower ones. Those of lower grades were sent into higher classes far beyond their capacity. The board of education's object in this move is to save building a new school.

The republican politicians in whose headquarters this meeting was held were dumbfounded when following their speakers Rose Pastor Stokes and Clarence Miller were given the floor. And they well might have been.

Mrs. Stokes advised the parents not to permit the politicians to play around with them and divert them from their chief object but to immediately organize themselves for action, to issue petitions, to arrange for demonstrations and to go before labor organizations in the vicinity and enlist their support. Clarence Miller recited the experiences of other school conflicts in which the parents permitted the capitalist politicians to take charge of their fight with the result of being misled and finally the parents giving up in discouragement. A collection was taken up for the initial expense of organization.

The young pioneers will call a meeting this week to organize the children to fight their own battles with the aid of their parents.

JURY REFUSES TO ANNUL MARRIAGE OF RHINELANDER

Kip's Attorneys Play on Race Prejudice

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 7.—After a trial which lasted a number of weeks, the jury has decided that the marriage of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, son of a wealthy family and considered one of the "blue bloods" of New York, and Alice Jones Rhinelander must stand and cannot be annuled.

Plays on Race Prejudice.

In the attempt to prove that the marriage with Alice Jones Rhinelander must be annuled, Kip's lawyers played upon race prejudice of the jury to the nth degree trying to make it appear that Alice, who has Negro blood in her, forced him into the marriage. When his passionate love notes to her were read and it was established that Kip was the one responsible, his attorneys attempted to make it appear that she had represented herself as white.

Alice soon blasted the hopes of the "blue blooded" Kip Rhinelander by baring her shoulders and showing the court that she was colored.

From then on, Kip's lawyers tried to make it appear that Kip was not only color blind but even put him in the position of being a fit candidate for an insane asylum. Then followed the plea of the lawyers for Kip filled with race hatred in an attempt to get the jury to annul the marriage.

For Separation.

Alice Jones Rhinelander, who won the suit, is now filing a bill demanding a separation and separate maintenance.

Glut Labor Market.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand—(FP)—Immigrants are being rushed to New Zealand from Britain though there is no work for them on arrival and houses are scarce. Many of them are homeless and starving. Many offering themselves as scabs for employment on the British steamers laid up in New Zealand because of the seamen's strike hope thereby to get back to Britain.

Anita Whitney Fights for New Hearing in U. S. Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Charlotte Anita Whitney, under 14-year sentence for alleged violation of the California criminal syndicalist law in 1919, has applied to the federal supreme court for a rehearing of her appeal which was denied in October. Here counsel urges that the court was in error when it held that no constitutional question was involved in her claim that she was convicted of no specific act of lawlessness. Constitutional questions were raised in the lower courts, according to the digest of the record presented in her petition.

She wants a ruling on the criminal syndicalist law itself.

Socialist Wants War Memorial

Harriet Stanton Blatch is one of the bright and shining lights of the decrepit socialist party. She has been its standard bearer for many important political offices during the past few years. Therefore her published opinions can be interpreted as expressing the attitude of a large section of that party. Recently, in a letter to the New York Times, this elegant bourgeois lady airs her views on memorials "to the fallen in the great war."

She advocates a memorial to be placed in Central Park, New York, to cover thirty acres of land and to be planted with "our noblest American trees." Is not this socialist treason to assume that it is possible for anything in America to be anything other than noble?

After these beeches, oaks and sequoias wax strong "they will lift ever higher in the minds of our children the ideas they were planted to exalt." Surely everyone but yellow socialists knows that the motives of the world war were those of imperialist war and plunder. The bones of the dead are strewn over the battle fields of Europe because Morgan's billions that he invested on the side of the allies were in danger. That is the only reason the war was fought; every drop of blood that was spilled by American soldiers was for the purpose of making Morgan richer. The fact that the soldiers thought they were fighting for laudatory aims does not change the fact. Furthermore, Harriet Stanton Blatch is playing the contemptible game of the war mongers when she tries to paint the blood letting in glowing colors. She prepares the way for the slaughter of the workers in the next imperialist war.

But what can one expect of a party that has such leaders as Algy Lee, who, with others, voted in the New York board of aldermen for the infamous memorial arch, containing inscriptions of the names of the "great" battles in which American soldiers participated? Among these "battles" was Archangel in North Russia, where American gunmen in the uniform of the army, without a declaration of war, tried to crush the workers' republic.

The Retreat of Green

If his utterances before the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union are to be considered other than the bid of a politician for the favor of the moment, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has retreated from his red-baiting proclivities. If he really means that radicals are necessary to the labor movement and that "they inspire us to renewed activity and service," and if he does "prefer the living, fighting radicalism to dry rot," he should suit the action to the word.

We have been flattered before, we might say by "experts," and we never mistake words for action. Before we take the statements of Green seriously we want to see some action on his part. While his influence over the various internationals affiliated with the A. F. of L. is confined to that imponderable fetish dubbed "moral force," his maledictions against every vestige of radicalism has been used to advantage by the reactionaries directly in control of the internationals.

We will believe that Green's utterances were prompted by something other than political expediency when he appears before a solid body of hide-bound reactionaries and repeats the same sentiments regarding his high regard for radicals. Until then we must be pardoned for suspecting that the action of the president of the American Federation of Labor was caused because he was duly impressed by the left wing strength, rather than by voluntary revision of policy, during his visit to the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union at Philadelphia.

The Farm Journal Menace

One of the greatest menaces to the political maturity of the farmers of the United States is the cheap farm journal that floods the homes of agricultural districts. Innumerable magazines and other publications are sold to the farmer as low as 25 and 50 cents a year—far below the cost of production.

All these papers contain the most vicious propaganda, designed to keep the farmer in ignorance regarding his real condition. Under the guise of benefitting the farmer and enabling hhim to solve his problems they inveigle him into all sorts of traps set by the meat packers and the manufacturers of farm machinery. In fact all these papers are subsidized by the farm machinery trust and mail order houses. A systematic propaganda of hatred against the industrial worker creates distrust against trade unions and working class political parties.

The bankers and industrialists know that so long as they can keep the two great producing groups divided, so long as they can make the farmer believe that the high prices he pays for his products are due to the high wages of the industrial workers, and make the industrial worker believe that high prices of produce is due to the high prices received by the "independent" farmer, their own game of plunder of both groups can continue uninterrupted.

The natural ally of the farmer is not the banker and the industrialist but the wage worker in the city.

Calm the Rising Storm

The agricultural crisis and the coming congressional elections that will be held next fall constitute a menace to the republican administration at Washington. It is not fear of the recalcitrants in the republican party that causes overtures to be made to young LaFollette or that causes the Coolidge machine to speak less contemptuously of Norris, but that they fear the storm that is brewing in the middle west.

With the price of corn at 50 cents the farmers of Iowa are not going into ecstacies over the fiction of Coolidge prosperity. People forced to use corn in place of fuel because it is cheaper to use it that way than to sell it and buy the commodities ordinarily used as fuel cannot be hypnotized into believeing the lying reports of the cabinet officials, all of whom have entered into a conspiracy to falsify the real conditions in the country.

Coolidge's trip to Chicago is part of the desperate efforts of the administration to calm the tempest that is rising and that will surely sweep their majority from power unless the fictitious prosperity becomes a reality.

Reviews the Farm Needs of Soviet Union

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The agricultural situation in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and its needs were presented to a Chicago audience of cattle, horse, hog and sheep breeders, and representatives of various commercial concerns by D. N. Borodin, head of the Russian Agricultural Agency in America, in an address in part as follows:

* * *

By D. N. BORODIN, Director,
Russian Agricultural Agency in America.

THE Union of the Socialist Soviet Republics covers the area of the former Russian empire except for the territory of new states established after the world war such as Poland, Finland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithonia and Bessarabia, annexed by Roumania and a small part of the Karsk province Caucasus returned to Turkey but with the addition to the former territory of the Russian empire of Khiva and Bokhara.

The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics covers 21,210,500 square kilometers or about one-sixth of the world area and is inhabited by 139,750,000 people of different nationalities.

THE Russia in Europe is the part usually called "Russia" in English and American maps and is always reproduced separately with Moscow in center, the Black Sea on the south, White Sea on north; Baltic sea on the west and Urls on the east. It is correct that such a map shows Russia proper but that is only a small part of the vast territory of the union and to this map must be added Siberia, Russian Far East, Kerghiz, Steepes, Central Asia and Turkestan. At the present time the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics covers 21,210,500 square kilometers with the following subdivisions in separate republics:

1.	Russia	19,683,000 sq. klm.
2.	White Russia	109,800 " "
3.	Ukrainia	429,700 " "
4.	Caucasus (Georgia, Armenia, Azarbeijan)	193,000 " "
5.	Turkomania	473,000 " "
6.	Usbekistan (Turkestan)	322,000 " "
		21,210,500 sq. klm.

The population of the Union of Socialists Soviets Republics in 1925 was estimated according to data of the Central Statistical Bureau of the U. S. S. R., at 139,753,900 divided between the republics of the union as follows:

1.	Russia	96,746,300
2.	White Russia	4,204,500
3.	Ukrainia	27,663,900
4.	Caucasus	5,210,000
5.	Turkomania	914,600
6.	Usbekistan (Turkestan)	4,813,600
		139,753,900

THE most important fact is that the vast majority of the population of U. S. S. R. is concentrated on the farms and only a small proportion in the cities. From 139,758,900 men, women and children 116,774,100 are living on the farms and only 22,979,800 in the cities. In different republics of the U. S. S. R. this division of the population can be indicated as follows:

	County	City
1. Russia	81,508,400	15,237,900
2. White Russ.	35,255,000	679,000
3. Ukrainia	22,601,900	5,662,000
4. Caucasus	4,270,100	1,150,900
5. Turkomania	805,600	109,000
6. Usbekistan (Turkestan)	4,062,600	741,000
U S. S. R.	116,774,100	22,979,800

It is clear that U. S. S. R. is primarily an agricultural country as the figures show and the country of peasants and farmers which comprise a vast majority of the population and it is clear that their needs are the most vital needs of the nation.

THE racial character of the population varies in the republics comprising the union. In Russia proper, the vast majority belong to the "Great Russian" element with a small proportion of the Ukrainians but the last nationality has the majority in Ukrainia. A few figures can illustrate the racial character of the two republics, Russia proper and Ukrainia.

THE main crops of U. S. S. R. are: Rye wheat oats, barley, buckwheat, millet, potatoes, sunflower, flax and Russia exported before the world war 40.6 per cent of the world supply of the grains, 75 per cent of fibre flax, about 20 per cent of butter and a quantity of eggs and lumber.

The acreage fell during the world war, civil war and revolution very sharply. In 1913 the acreage of grain and other crops covered 97,600,000 dessatins (1 dessatin equals 2.7 acres). In 1918 only 90,700 dessatins have been sowed. This fall of the acreage can be shown by years as follows:

	Dessatins
1913	97,600,000
1916	90,700,000
1922	59,900,000
1923	76,500,000
1924	75,500,000
1925	80,700,000

The crops sown in 1924 can be divided according to the varieties as follows:

	Dessatins
Winter rye	23,887,200
Spring rye	449,400
Winter wheat	5,171,800
Spring wheat	11,888,800
Barley	6,286,200
Oats	10,725,700
Buckwheat	2,416,800
Millet	4,449,300
Corn	1,870,200
Sunflowers and other oily plants	3,921,200
Potatoes	3,864,400
	81,049,600

The other crops consist of the fibre, technical and forage plants in the same year in U. S. S. R. sowed: Flax, 1,078,700 dessiatins; hemp, 656 dessiatins.

COTTON is a crop of the extreme south of the U. S. S. R., and is cultivated only in Central Asia or Turkestan and Caucasas with the tendency of increase of the acreage. All cotton is cultivated under the irrigation and outside of the irrigated area it is impossible to grow the cotton crop. The area of the cotton crop also fell sharply during the war and revolution and the cotton industry suffered. In 1916, the acreage under the cotton in Turkestan have been estimated as 1,560,600 acres and in 1922 have been reduced to 140,400 acres. In 1923 the central cotton committee reported the increase of the acreage to the average of 486,000 acres and the approximate yield of cotton lint have been estimated as 90,000,000 pounds. The central cotton committee supplied the seeds to increase the acreage in 1924 to 800,000 acres and succeeded by supplying not only the best seeds of the American origin but also organized the delivery of the wheat and flour to the population to eliminate the necessity of the use of the cotton field for wheat growing. In some sections during the world war, civil war and revolution the cotton crops have been entirely replaced by wheat. In spite of the increase of the acreage of the cotton crop, the U. S. S. R. will depend upon the outside world and will import the cotton lint from the United States to meet the requirements of home textile industry. Russia is buying vast quantities of cotton in this country annually with no tendency to decrease the amount of the import.

The textile industry of the U. S. S. R. is being developed. The old cotton mills are renovated and the new expect to be constructed in different parts of the country. In connection with this restoration of the textile industry, the U. S. S. R. is already buying the machinery in this country.

JAPANESE COMPANIES GET OIL CONCESSIONS IN SAKHALIN ISLANDS

MOSCOW, Dec. 7—A complete agreement has been reached between the Soviet government and four Japanese mining companies for exploitation of the oil field on Sakhalin Island, formerly held by the Sinclair interests. The contract will formally be signed on Dec. 10.

Besides the oil wells acquired by Japan under the Peking agreement, the Japanese get the right to exploit an additional area of 10,000 square miles on the eastern coast of Sakhalin for ten years; also extensive coal fields for development for fifty years.

The Japanese will pay the Russians royalties on oil production ranging from five to 15 per cent and on coal from five to eight per cent.

C. P. P. A. Holds Meeting in Cleveland

actually only thirteen. Of these only six were present. Similarly, when a question was asked as to the number of state organizations in existence at the present time, one member of the national committee stated that there were none actually in existence while another declared that there were some in existence altho he could not name the chairmen.

The afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of a motion by Parley P. Christensen, to instruct the national committee to call a national convention for Feb. 22. Arguing for the motion Christensen, who was the presidental candidate of the farmer-labor party in the 1920 elections, declared: "We must face the fact that altho we made a splendid showing in the past elections, the people who supported us now are beginning to believe that we are dead." A convention even with only three states represented will serve to give the impression that we are alive." Other delegates from Illinois, also argued along the same line. "We must baptize the child and explain the purpose for its existence" was the plea of a delegate from Pennsylvania who also favored an early national convention.

Delegates from New York, Massachusetts and Baltimore arguing against an early convention, pointed out that there are at present no state organizations that would be entitled to send delegates, that a campaign must first be started in the states for the organization of such bodies. "Whom shall we invite to attend this convention" the vice chairman of the national commitee asked. "The unions have withdrawn at the Chicago conference and what would be gained by inviting organizations who have withdrawn?"

Can Do Nothing.

In the course of the debate on this motion the confusion of the participants was fully exposed. Each delegate on taking the floor made an amendment or substitute or supplementary motion until the chairman realizing that nothing could be gained by permitting further discussion, began to put to a vote those motions that he favored. Seeing that the sentiment was overwhelmingly against an early convention and that the supplementary motions and amendments and substitutes were merely the effort of the delegates to conceal from each other their realization of the impotency of the conference. Christensen then made a motion to table all the motions and amendments. When this failed, he declared that the conference has no power to decide anything. That the motions and discussions had already enlightened the national committee and that therefore all the proposals should be referred to the national committee. The delegates all seized upon this motion as a means of evading responsibility. The unanimous adoption of this motion was typical of the conference as a whole.

It was an admittion of th efact that those present were devoid of plan or program. This was so obvious that Oswald Garrison Villard, felt obliged to point out to the delegates who were preparing to leave, that "We must take into consideration the publicity that will attend this conference. Our work here today" he said, "was purely of a negative character." He proposed therefore that the conference shall issue a statement to the press that will reaffirm the principles of the C. P. P. A. (he failed to mention which principles) "That we shall give out to the press that the conference was marked by enthusiasm and uanimity, and that we shall adopt a resolution of tribute to the memory of our great leader whose death occurred since the last formal meeting of our organization." The assembled delegates vigorously and for the first time applauded this "practical" suggestion.

Can't Pay Debts.

While waiting for the return of the committee, Mrs. Edith Houghton Hooker, took occasion to remind the delegates that there is still a "dead horse" lying about in their organization. This horse was in the form of unpaid bills for $2,000 accumulated in the last campaign. She called upon all present to show that the progressive party would continue to live by getting rid of the "dead horse." The conference even failed to accomplish this one delegate declaring "Missouri would be glad to help if I would return with a program but since I can bring no program back I doubt if I can raise any money." Other delegates also expressed their dissatisfaction. "I came here not to decide whether or not we should hold a national convention but to receive some answer to the question that must be answered—What is a progressive?" a delegate from Massachusetts stated No one answered the question, for no one knew. That is the question was not answered directly. Indirectly tho, the conference answered to the satisfaction of the writer. The workers of this country will answer this question by contemptuously brushing aside these muddle heads who call themselves progressives.

The conference for Progressive Political Action is bankrupt because it can no longer continue to delude the workers into supporting them, because those who constituted that organization have proven their total failure to estimate the needs of the workers upon whom they depended for support; because, the "progressives" are representatives of a spineless middle class devoid of plan, program or future.

The demise of the C. P. P. will not be regretted by the workers who will now apply themselves to the task of building a party representative of the ruling class of the future—a party of those who produce all wealth—a labor party.

GEN. CHANG SURRENDERS HIS CAPITAL

Mukden Falls Before Mutinous Armies

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 7.—Chang Tso-lin, the so-called "war lord of Manchuria," ruthless commander of the armies of northern China which have repeatedly suppressed all efforts of Chinese workers, students and peasantry to free themselves from foreign imperialist domination, is overthrown by his own armies and his capital city, Mukden, is within a few hours of capture by the mutineers.

Chang Tso-lin's vast power has collapsed, just as many another "war lord's" power has collapsed like a house of cards, when the engines of war and those who run them—the rank and file of common soldiery—was turned against him.

Troops Refuse to Fight.

Chang Tso-lin relied for a last stand upon his son, Chang Hsueh-liang, to hold back the mutinous armies commanded by a former officer of Chang's, Kuo Sung-ling, at a point one hundred miles south of Mukden near the cities of Chinchow and Kuopangtzu.

When General Kuo's troops advanced to attack, however, the troops commanded by Chang Hseuh-liang refused to fight, their commanders under young Chang, Generals Chang Tso-hsiang and Wan Fu-lin flatly declining to order their troops into action against their former comrades under General Kuo.

The capture of Chinchow followed, a capture which sealed Chang's fate, altho young Chang tried desperately to rally his routed troops at Hsinminfu.

Chang Checks Out.

When Chang Tso-lin heard of the defeat, he called his staff remaining in Mukden to his headquarters, distributed some $250,000 in cash presents to his officers and told them he would surrender the Manchurian capital.

Thus Chang Tso-lin passes from power. What is to come is quite another matter. Rumors and reports, of unconfirmed nature, say that Japan is not so unhappy at Chang's downfall, and even that Japan had something to do with it.

There is a report that the general leading the mutiny, Kuo Sung-ling, spent some time in Japan not long before the mutiny broke out. And there is a rumor that the Japanese manifest a strange unconcern at the passing of Chang Tso-lin, strange considering that they used him for years as their principal tool in north China.

Whether they have merely changed one hireling for another is uncertain. But what is certain is that Chinese soldiers are learning the lesson and power of mutiny.

It now happens that another mercenary, who relied upon Chang's son maintaining his force against Kuo-Sung-ling, is in a hard fix further south. This person is the tuchun (governor) of Chihli, Li Ching-lin. He refused General Feng Yu-hsiang coming from the west, the right-of-way thru Chihli to aid General Kuo. Now that Kuo is victorious, young Chang whipped and Feng's troops advancing, the honorable governor of Chihli is out on the end of a long, cold limb.

Typical Chamber of Commerce.

A typical example of the spirit of the bourgeoisie is seen in the action of the Mukden chamber of commerce. Altho it had only twenty-four hours previously sworn deep vows to stand by Chang Tso-lin, when news arrived of the capture of Chinchow and the spread of the mutiny to the troops of Chang's son, the chamber of commerce met and sent a telegram to the advancing army of Kuo, welcoming him to the city as a "deliverer."

ITALIAN FASCISTI TO ORGANIZE TERRORIST GROUPS IN OTHER LANDS

ROME, Dec. 7. — Premier Mussolini and his fascist hordes not satisfied with the dictatorship over the workers in Italy are planning to extend their control over Italian workers in other countries.

In an official communication of the fascist government to its representatives abroad, it instructs these representatives to open up clubs where Italian workers will meet and listen to fascist commands.

All of the Italian ambassadors, counsuls and ministers are instructed to immediately begin the organization of these fascist groups in foreign lands. Workers, who are opposed to the fascist dictatorship, see in this plan a means which the Italian fascist dictator will use to stifle the opposition and exposures of the dictatorship by workers who escape his rule. These clubs will undoubtedly be used as a means of disrupting union meetings and as committees to terrorize fascist opponents.

Congress Opens with Dawes Now Very Meek and Mild

LaFollette defeated Lenroot's candidate, who was also the Coolidge candidate, in the special election in Wisconsin.

The senate also paid tribute to those of its members who died since the last session. They were Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., Seldon R. Spencer of Missouri, Edwin A. Ladd of North Dakota, and Samuel L. Ralston of Indiana.

Ralston was the only democrat and his place was filled by a republican, an appointee of the ku klux governor, Jackson of Indiana.

Longworth House Speaker.

The house of congress organized in a brief space of time and the Coolidge henchman, Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, was elected speaker of the house by a substantial majority. The democrats voted for Finis Garrett of Tennessee and the opposition republicans voted for Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin.

The first session was brief and the real fight will begin tomorrow when the president's message is read.

Nothing that will draw spectacular fireworks is expected until December 17 when discussion opens on the world court. Then will begin a senatorial battle that will probably rival the great debate on the league of nations that sent the democratic party down to defeat and made a physical wreck of Widrow Wilson.

Victor Berger of Milwaukee is the lone socialist member of this congress. Nothing is expected of him except occasionally to raise an insipid objection. As far as being a tribune for the working class that is the last thing ever to be expected from this defender of the assassins of the working class.

Florio H. LaGuardia of New York was elected on the socialist ticket but he is really a republican and supports the LaFollette insurgent group.

The present session of congress will last for six months and most of the time will be devoted to the tax question and international affairs, with the possibility of attempeted legislation to force industrial conscription upon workers in basic industries of the country.

Women Teachers Ask Same Wages.

HARTFORD, Conn.—(FP)—Women high school teachers of Hartford, Conn., are demanding that they be paid the same wages as men for the same work. The women teachers ask a uniform wage scale instead of the present one with a differential of $300 to $450 yearly between men's and women's wages for teaching the same course.

FILIPINOS AND LATIN-AMERICANS FORM COMMITTEE

To Combat American Imperialism

Steps toward the welding together of Latin-Americans and Filipinos residing in Chicago for a joint struggle toward the liberation of their native countries from American imperialism, were taken Saturday night at a meeting of Cubans, Mexicans and Filipinos, assembled under the auspices of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League, at the Labor Temple, 119 So. Throop St. A telegram of fraternal greeting was sent to the Filipino independence mission now in Washington, and committee of three was elected to proceed with arrangements for further work among the Spanish-speaking population of Chicago—to begin with another and larger mass meeting in the near future. The committee includes Jose Espinosa, Nemesio Felipe and Frank Guiscetti.

Speakers at Saturday's meeting were Nemesio Felipe of the Filipino Association of Chicago, Adolfo Garcia, editor of Solidaridad, and Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League. Despite the small attendance, due to unusually severe weather, the meeting proved to be of great significance and laid the basis for important work.

Against American Imperialism.

"When Latin-Americans," said one of the speakers, "whose own native countries are separated from the Philippine Islands by thousands of miles can be drawn into active support of the movement for Filipino independence, on the basis of the common struggle against American imperialism, it is the beginning of a new epoch—an epoch in which the liberation of all subject and oppressed peoples is clearly foreshadowed."

Avenge Wrongs.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 7—That Knute B. Birkeland, financier and retired Lutheran minister, was slain by an enemy, who rose out of the past to avenge a wrong in a business deal, was the theory on which friends of the dead man proceeded today in their effort to clear the mystery.

COOLIDGE MESSAGE IS THREAT TO LABOR

BRITISH SPIES CAUGHT IN PARIS PRYING FOR VALUABLE MILITARY SECRETS TO USE AGAINST FRANCE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, Dec. 8.—While the French and British statesmen have been singing peans to world peace, spies have been prying out the military secrets of France preparatory to the next world slaughter. Three men and a woman known to be in the pay of British interests are under arrest here today charged with espionage.

The woman has already confessed that the men sent her to make love to French army officers, from corporals to generals, in order to obtain military secrets that would be useful to England in case of war. The principal activity was directed toward obtaining aviation secrets. The girl is a product of the Paris underworld, being known as a "model" in the Latin quarter, sometimes under the name of Mercelle Monseil, and who now claims her real name is Martha Moreuil.

Admitted British Spy

Jean Leather is the leader of the gang of spies and held the rank of lieutenant in the British intelligence service (the spy service of the army) in the world war. He is known to be still employed in that capacity, but instead of spying against Germany and the rebel soldiers in the ranks of the British army he is now known to have been spying for many months against the former ally, France.

His associates in espionage are William Fisher, a Pole who has been naturalized in England and Ernest Oliver Phillips, a native of Birmingham, England.

Leather was operating in a fashionable business section of Paris under the name of "Bleriot Barndebt, wireless manufacturer." His confederates acted as partners. It was Leather who engaged the girl of the underworld, whom he dressed in gorgeous clothes and furnished with money so that she could visit the important air basis and establish intimacies with officers in order to obtain military secrets from them.

London Knows Nothing

LONDON, England, Dec. 8.—As was to be expected the foreign office under the direction of the chief of Locarno, Austen Chamberlain, denies any knowledge of the four people arrested in Paris for espionage. Scotland Yard also denies knowledge of the activity of the quartet. It is expected that the foreign office and the Scotland Yard gang will try to concoct stories of French spies operating in England in order to force Frame to hush the affair, as it is a serious jolt to the pacific waddle about the "spirit of Locarno."

The Evening News, a subsidized sheet of the government, declares in its morning edition today that those arrested in Paris charged with espionage are employees of a subsidiary company of Burndept Wireless, Limited.

Laborites are going to interrogate the house of parliament on the sensational revelations from Paris. Communists in both countries are preparing to launch joint attacks on both governments for their hypocritical chanting of peace anthems, while using every possible means of preparing for war.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

CALVIN Coolidge came to Chicago, told a bunch of fake farmers that they were the cream of the country, that farming is now a fine art and is not practised for the sordid purpose of making profit, but because it develops character. The local capitalist papers gave several columns to this intellectual garbage and more of the same kind, and undoubtedly editorials will follow eulogising the president for his profoundity. The fake farmers beamed like rotarians at a stag party whenever canny Calvin handed them a mouthful of ballot bait and their wives threw cat fits every time Mrs. Coolidge smiled at them.

WHILE Coolidge and the speculating farmers were gorging themselves on political bunk the poor farmers who really produce the eats out in the great open spaces were nourishing a healthy desire to show Coolidge that his political psalm singing does not put any gasolene in their flivvers or Oxford bags on their sons' shanks.

According to reports they are murmuring exceedingly. Every time they hear a bull bellow they think it is Magnus Johnson with a new message of salvation for them. They prefer Magnus' roar to Calvin's whispes tho both are as dumb to the needs of the farmers as the famed Oracle of Delphi.

• • •

WHEN I was in Plentywood, Montana, last 4th of July, the farmers I met were not thinking about the declaration of independence but about the most effective way to get out from under the load of mortgages that was crushing them. When I talked to them of organization, they immediately cocked their ears. When I mentioned bankers, they fished for their shooting irons. Those farmers would collectively inhale a carload of snuff if Coolidge attempted to tell them what he told the gentlemen in the Sherman hotel and after they INDICTED ZEIGLER COAL MINERS GET PELDGE OF AID FROM THE I. L. G. W.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 8.—The following telegram has been sent to the Zeigler defendants by the International Ladies' Garment Workers convention here:

"United Mine Workers, Zeigler, Ill.

"The eighteenth convention of the I. L. G. congratulates you on the valiant struggle you are making to maintain decent living conditions despite efforts of operators flanked by the Ku Klux Klan.

"We protest against the arrest of your members for crimes of which they are innocent and the Ku Klux Klan guilty. We pledge our support to do all in our power to win justice for the indicted miners."

This wire was sent to Zeigler defendants in compliance with motion by Zimmerman and was passed unanimously.

Fokker Sees Quantity Production of Planes Reduce Price to $1,000

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—Anthony H. G. Fokker, aircraft designer, after an airplane trip investigating aviation progress in ten different states, declared that in the near future airplanes would be produced in great numbers and that due to quantity production the price of airplanes would fall to $1,000.

Breaks Into Movie House.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Dec. 8—Jimmy James, arraigned in court here on charges of breaking into a motion picture house, asked that his case be given an early hearing on grounds that he had swallowed 100 needles. He was sentenced to seven months' hard labor.

NEW YORK MEMBERSHIP MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—All Workers (Communist) Party members must be present at the membership meeting that will be held in Webster Hall, 11th St. and 3rd Ave., Sunday afternoon Dec. 13 at one o'clock to hear the reports of the party's Central Executive Committee on the question of party unity and trade union work.

This meeting is very improtant and every party member must attend. Admission to the meeting will be by membership cards only. Bring your membership cards with you.

Sigman Machine Blocking Business at Convention

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 8.—Only today, the eighth day of its sessions, did the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union adopt rules for its procedure. One puzzled delegate rose and asked with some reason, "Are these rules for this or the next convention?"

An amendment by Hyman that specified time be allowed both sides on important questions and each given the privilege of selecting its speakers, was voted down 146 to 136 and the committee recommendation for ten-minute speeches adopted.

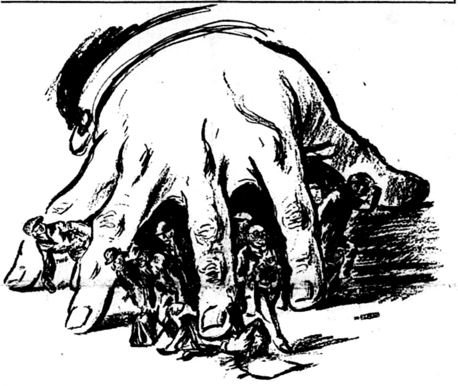
Delegate Portnoy's motion, made following the report of the rules committee, instructing the committee on the work of the G. E. B. to bring in its report Wednesday morning precipitated bitter debate. Antonini, almost hysterical in his denunciation of the left wing, was answered by Zimmerman who charged him with using the language of the capitalist press in terming delegates "stupid and incompetent."

Zimmerman and other left wing delegates renewed their attack on the Sigman machine in the debate on Portney's motion and charged sabotage and obstruction by Sigman of the work of the convention.

The effort of the Sigman machine to hold up the officers' report is now obvious, but under the pressure of the left wing he is making some pretense of speeding up the work of this important committee.

Following the defeat of Portnoy's motion, Sigman entered into one of his long explanations as to why the convention was not getting more work done. These explanations by Sigman are one of the principal reasons for the delay in getting down to work.

THE HAND OF THE LAW



CUBAN WORKERS INDIGNANT AT MELLA ARREST

Communist Is Jailed on American Request

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 8. — For the second time within a few weeks Julio Antonio Mella, yothful leader of the Communist Party of Cuba and instrumental in organizing the Cuban section of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League, has been put behind prison bars by the reactionary native government acting as the servile tool of Wall Street and Washington. Comrade Mella has begun a hunger strike in his prison cell.

Workers Indignation Roused.

Indignation at this new arrest, carrying with it the threat of renewed governmental terroristic methods, is running high on the island, not only among the workers but among all sections of the population that resent the continued subservience of the present Cuban government to American imperialism. The students of Havana, whose monthly organ, Juventud, was founded by Mella, are loud in their protest. A strong rank and file movement is rising against the official administration of the Students' Federation, which betrayed Mella and abandoned him to his fate.

Jailed at U. S. Request.

Mella's first arrest some weeks ago, was in connection with the spectacular campaign of jailings and deportations carried out by the Cuban government at the instigation of Ambassador Crowder. This was the climax of similar campaigns in Costa Rica and Panama, where many workers were imprisoned or deported for the expression of "anti-American" opinions.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL CALLS JAILING OF BRITISH COMMUNISTS BLOW AIMED AT WORKING CLASS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 8.—The presidium of the Executive Committee of the Communist International sends the following telegram to the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Great Britain calling upon it to do its duty towards the working class despite the persecutions and declares the decision of the courts is a decision aimed at the English working class and especially the vanguard of the British proletariat:

"The Executive Committee of the Communist International has received the news of the sentence passed upon our English comrades, with the greatest indignation.

"It regards the sentence as a continuation of the campaign of persecution directed against the English proletariat. The persecution of our comrades is a persecution of the whole working class and the advance guard.

"We are convinced that all class-conscious workers in England will support you against the persecutions of the bourgeoisie. We do not doubt that the English Communists will do their duty towards the working class now as before, despite all persecutions."

PEACEFUL PLATITUDES THE ONLY FEATURE OF AMSTERDAM NEEDLE WORKERS' AGENT AT CONVENTION

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE
(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—The speech to the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union by Martin Plettl, president of the Dentsche Bekleidungs-Arbeiterverband, fraternal delegate from his union and representative of the Amsterdam Needle Workers' Federation, as did the speech of Green, was testimony to the strength of the left wing in the International Ladies' Garment Workers.

Undoubtedly it was also testimony to the fact that masses of the German workers are showing new interest in the and sympathy for Soviet Russia and are supporting more energetically than ever before the efforts of the Anglo-Russian Trade Union Unity Committee.

Lots of Opportunity.

Here was Plettl, one of the leaders in the war on the left wing of the International Federation of Trade Unions, an opponent of world trade union unity, a part of the social-democratic bureaucracy which has led the German workers in chains to the throne of the House of Morgan, a foe of the Russian workers' and peasants' government, speaking to an A. F. of L. Union in convention—the one place in the world where under ordinary circumstances no vituperation is too venemous and no slander too vile, when hurled at the Communist and Soviet Russia, to secure rounds of applause.

But the Sigman machine is not baiting the "reds" just now. It is not a profitable pastime when 75 per cent of the membership is supporting the left wing in which the Communists are playing an active part. So even prominent social-democrats from Wall Street's German colony are told to temper the wind to the shorn lamb.

CAL OFFERS THE PROGRAM OF THE CAPITALIST CLASS AGAINST THE WORKING CLASS OF U. S. AND WORLD

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8.—Impudent threats against the working class of the United States, embodying veiled insinuations of industrial conscription; advocacy of destruction of the Philippine legislature to make the swash-buckling Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood supreme dictator of those islands; determination to defend the imperialist designs on China; greater centralization of governmental powers, the placing of natural resources in the hands of private capitalists, the boast of a formidable army and navy, fake taxation nostrums, claiming credit for first suggesting the Locarno treaties in Europe, and a plea to enter the world court which is the back door to the league of nations, constitute the high lights of Coolidge's message to the sixty-ninth congress.

It is the program of the capitalist government against the working class of this country and the world. A more brazen proclamation of designed plunder never was penned or uttered.

May Outlaw Strikes.

In the opening statement of the message Coolidge says, "Here and there are comparatively small and apparently temporary difficulties needing adjustment."

We learn what these comparatively small difficulties are when the message informs us that "the perennial conflict in the coal industry is still going on" and that the government "has permitted itself to remain so powerless that its only attitude must be humble supplication."

He proposes that, "Authority should be lodged with the president and the department of commerce and labor, giving them power to deal with an emergency."

Threaten to Outlaw Labor.

This is nothing more nor [illegible] than a brazen threat of outlaw[illegible]rikes in basic industries and in[illegible] conscription.

As a means of enforcing a[illegible]ng policy against the working class, Coolidge informs the country that, "Never before in time of peace has our country maintained so large and effective a military force as it now has. The army, navy, marine corps, national guard, and organized reserves represent a strength of about 558,400 men. These forces are well trained, well equipped and in high morale."

Plan to Militarize Population.

To perfect the military might of the nation Coolidge advocates further militarization of the population, thru a "sound selective service act giving broad authority for the mobilization in time of peril of all the resources of the country, both persons and materials."

Any emergency that might deprive the capitalists of their profits can be construed as a "time of peril," and if the Coolidge plan is carried into effect he will have the authority to conscript men for industries as well as for the army.

Perfect Air Services.

Coolidge took a slap at those clamoring for a separate air service, but pleased the aircraft manufacturers by advocating a more efficient service. Since he contemplates no foreign war for a time, the increased power of the air service means that the government will have more planes at the disposal of the industrial magnates to drop bombs on workers or spray them with poison gas in case they go on strike in numbers that menace the profits of their masters.

The armed forces exist and must be perfected, "not in the interests of aggression but in behalf of peace. They

NO FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE BILL TO PASS

Islanders' Desires Simply Don't Count

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. — Another showdown regarding the purposes of American imperialism in the Philippine Islands will come in the present session of congress. Senator King of Utah has introduced a bill under which it is said the Filipino people would be given the independence which they have been clamoring for vainly for the last 27 years.

The measure is said to provide for the calling of a constitutional convention in the islands for the establishment of an independent Philippine republic.

A separate resolution by Senator King would direct the president to negotiate with all powers in the Pacific for guarantees of non-interference with the political independence of the Philippines.

The immediate withdrawal of all American naval forces from Haiti was also proposed in a resolution introduced by King.

No Danger of Adoption.

PHIL MURRAY, HEAD OF U. M. W. OF A., WORRIED FOR CONSUMING PUBLIC

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Usually it is the employers who conjure up in the capitalist press the image of an indignant but long suffering "public" who is the "chief sufferer," so-called of all strikes and the "innocent bystander" victimized by the strikers.

Now, however, the fakers at the head of the United Mine Workers of America are worrying about "the public," the poor and long-suffering "consumer." Philip Murray, international vice-president of the U. M. W. of A. last night said in a speech here that "the strike is a war on the public" which the operators are continuing because "they want to increase the price of coal to the consumer."

Philip did acknowledge that the section of the "public" the operators are particularly after is the miners, whom the bosses wish to drive back with reduced wages and a smashed union.

BOSTON, MASS., DISTRICT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE SUPPORTS THE UNITY RESOLUTION OF THE PARTY'S C. E. C.

BOSTON—(By Mail.)—The district executive committee of District One (Boston) of the party, after hearing the presentation of the party situation by Comrades Jay Lovestone and James P. Cannon, voted thirteen in favor of the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee with none against. Comrade Karras abstained from voting.

The vote was taken after an extended discussion in which all of the members of the committee participated. Comrades Lerner and Bloomfield declared that their first reaction had been against the unity resolution, but after hearing the report of the C. E. C. representatives they were wholeheartedly in favor of the resolution.

The endorsement of the unity resolution by the Boston district executive committee follows an endorsement in Detroit by a vote of 9 to 2, the unanimous endorsement by the Buffalo district executive committee. On Tuesday night the Boston membership held its meeting to discuss and vote on the resolution.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL NEAR WRECK AS ANTAGONISMS FORCE ANGLO-FRENCH IMPASSE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 8.—The council of the league of nations meeting here is the scene of a struggle between England and France that may have serious consequences. The exposure of the activities of British spies operating from Paris in the air bases of French military forces has thrown confusion into the deliberations of the council and a deadlock looms with the members of the council about equally divided on the side of the two conflicting powers.

The first signs of the impasse arose yesterday over the question of whether the league members shall undertake to give naval and military assistance as well as participate in economic and financial measures against nations violating the rules of the league.

Lord Robert Cecil, the British delegate wants to keep indefinite and abstract the status of the assistance to be rendered aggrieved members, while Paul Boncourt of France, insists upon clear definitions. Article 16 of the covenant provides that all members shall aid anyone wantonly attacked, Instead of sending out casual battalions Boncour insists that the full strength of the armed forces of the nations be mobilized and thrown into action in case of a violation of the league covenant. Britain refuses to assume concrete obligations, hence the cause of the first deadlock.

Greece Defiant.

Former foreign minister, Rentis, of Greece, disavowed the pledges of the Greek minister in Paris who agreed to accept whatever findings the league members reached in the investigation of the recent flare-up on the Bulgarian border. He repudiates the agreement to pay a heavy indemnity and presents a counter claim against Bulgaria.

Britain's antagonism is probably stimulated by the decision of the investigators against Greece, as it is known that the Athens government is the pawn of Britain in its designs against Turkey, whose threatening attitude on the question of the Irak boundary menaces the peace of Europe.

Threat of Break.

War clouds hovering over Turkey, the distasteful decision of the investigators against Greece, the recent expose of a brazen spy campaign against France, have caused Britain to be wary about definitely committing itself to a policy of uniting its forces behind the decisions of the league. Geneva may within the next few days become the scene of a definite break between England and France.

This session, called under the pretense of arranging for a disarmament conference in Europe, already confesses failure in that regard. Such a conference is not likely to be held for two years or more and many observers unhesitatingly declare that it will never be held because the growing antagonism between the two principal European powers will burst out into open hostility and wreck the league of nations as well as its creature, the world court.

AMSTERDAM INTERNATIONAL AGAIN DENIES RUSS UNIONS CONFERENCE

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 8—The general council of the Amsterdam International (International Federation of Trade Unions) at its meeting today, decided against calling an unconditional conference with the All-Russian Council of Labor Unions to exchange opinions regarding the admission of the Russian unions to the Amsterdam International.

Upon the question the council divided sharply into a right and left wing, with the solid seven votes of the British re[illegible]ntatives voting in favor of the unconditional conference and the other [illegible]entativs voting against it.

NOW COMES BORAH, THE GREAT LIBERAL, WITH A BILL TO STOP STRIKES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Senator William A. Borah, republican, of Idaho, will introduce a bill in the senate tomorrow to protect the operators of coal mines from future strikes in the coal mining industry, he announced today. Borah declined to reveal in advance the terms of his proposed measure.

Coolidge Message Threatens Labor

are the instruments by which we undertake to do our part to promote good will and support stability among all peoples."

Just as the thugs and gunmen of imperialism thruout the world bomb cities and villages to establish peace, so Coolidge proposes the same thing for the workers of the United States and any other territories unfortunate enough to fall into the clutches of Wall Street.

Filipino Freedom.

The down east Yankee who inhabits the White House at present, is, of course, in favor of freedom for the Philippines—with reservations. They will be granted independence when the benevolent government of the United States has properly educated them to understand what self-government means. Their ultimate independence will be achieved only when they prove that they are sufficiently servile to always do the bidding of the imperialist mauraders and not before. Meanwhile Coolidge says that from "such reports as reach me there are indications that more authority should be given to the governor general, so that he will not be so dependent upon the local legislative body to render effective our efforts to set an example of sound administration and good government." This is an echo of the inability of Major General Leonard Wood completely to crush the Filipinos who have insisted upon maintaining their own legislative bodies. The plea of Coolidge is for unrestrained military dictatorship in the island possessions.

China Also Included.

Speaking of the Chinese customs conference on extraterritoriality the message declared that this government was participating and that at the conference it "will be our policy so far as possible to meet the aspirations of China in all ways consistent with the interests of the countries involved."

Since most of the great powers have extensive interests in China and the House of Morgan, thru the United States government, has insisted upon the full application of the "open door" policy—that is the right of Morgan to challenge in China every other power, the Chinese workers can readily anticipate to what degree their aspirations for national liberation from the yoke of imperialism will be consistent with the interests of the United States imperialist robbers and assassins.

Centralized Government.

Further centralization of the powers of government are advocated upon the basis of the report of Henry G. Dalton, appointed to investigate the whole problem of the United States shipping board and the emergency fleet corporation. In the shipping board report, separate from the message, the policy of forcing private concerns purchasing parts of the fleets reveals further strengthening of the military power of the country. One of the regulations require those private capitalists purchasing ships from the government to equip them with Diesel oil burning engines so they will be useful for impressment into naval service in case of emergency.

Muscle Shoals to Ford.

That it is the aim of Coolidge to enable the private capitalists to plunder the natural resources of the country to their heart's content is planly set forth in his message where he deals with Muscle Shoals.

"The problem of Muscle Shoals," says Coolidge, "seems to me to have assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance. It probably does not represent in market value much more than a first class battleship, yet it has been discussed in congress over a period of years and for months at a time. It ought to be developed for the production of nitrates primarily and incidentally for power purposes. It would serve defensive, agricultural and industrial purposes. I am in favor of disposing of this property to meet these purposes."

Thus Henry Ford's desire to gain control of this rich mellon with but slight expenditure will be realized, if Coolidge has his way, and there is no reason to doubt but that the full implications of the vicious message will be carried out.

Tax Nostrums.

Dealing with the proposed Mellon revenue act, Coolidge was very cautious, but it was evident that he is determined to jam the thing thru, in spite of the opposition which has already exposed it as a fraud.

On the question of foreign debts he enumerated those countries that had settled and those that were in process of settling. He expressed a desire to see Europe stabilize all currency, which means returning to the gold standard so that the debts to the United States may be reckoned in terms of gold.

Locarno—His Idea.

Speaking of the results of Locarno, Coolidge professed to see a great advance toward peace and informed the drowsy congressmen and senators, "The Locarno agreements were made by the European countries without any formal intervention of America," said the message, "altho on July 3 I publicly advocated such agreements in an address made in Massachusetts.' Some of the senators who heard the message droned off by the reading clerk remarked that soon the president would be taking credit for everything that had ever happened.

World Court Proposal.

They were still more astonished when in a few moments the message dealt with the world court and while advocating adherence to this tribunal, described by Borah as the back door to the league of nations, proclaimed it an American idea.

"A well-established precedent marks America's effort to establish a court of this nature. We took a leading part in laying the foundation on which it rests in the establishment of the Hague court of arbitration. It is that tribunal which nominates the judges who are elected by the council and the assembly of the league of nations."

The question of the world court is slated to come up on December 17 and at that time will begin the fiercest battle of the sixty-ninth congress, according to political observations.

Slams Awakening Negro.

Before concluding his message with a reiteration of his threat to enforce industrial conscription by denouncing 'wasteful quarreling over the returns from industry" and insipid drivel about "willing to work in harmony with the abiding purpose of a divine providence," he took a side-swipe at Negro workers by declaring that they had a right to live their own lives under the protection of the public law but that this "does not include any license to injure others materially, physically, morally, to incite revolution, or to violate the established customs which have long had the sanction of enlightened society."

Some of those enlightened customs are known to millions of Negro workers who have seen their fellows mobbed and burned to death by the "best people." The enticing of large numbers of Negro workers into industry is signalized by the president of the United States officially recognizing the revolutionary implications of such migration and warning against inciting revolution among them.

As for the agricultural workers Coolidge merely repeated in brief remarks the banalities of Monday's speech before the fake farm congress in Chicago.

Challenge to Workers.

Coolidge's message is a challenge to the working class of the United States and to all the suppressed classes now under the domination of American imperialism. This one document has accomplished the feat of embodying the threat of the iron fist of the government against all the oppressed workers and farmers of this country as well as the colonial workers who are struggling to liberate themselves from the thralldom of dollarocracy.

As against this threat the working class must raise the slogan of a labor party that will struggle against the Wall Street monster and its puppet in the White House.

COOLIDGE HAS SPOKEN!

How About Workers and Farmers?

CAL COOLIDGE, Wall Street's president, has spoken. In his speech at Chicago, Monday, and in his message to congress, delivered on Tuesday, he stated clearly the program of America's plunderbund in its hunt for greater profits.

He has directly and boldly attacked both the workers in the city and on the land. He is their enemy. He speaks for their enemies. Let workers and farmers everywhere write in their views of this program. What have you workers and farmers got to say about it? The DAILY WORKER has been publishing articles, editorials and news stories on these questions for the past several days. Large numbers of copies of these issues have been distributed. The DAILY WORKER would like to publish a whole page of letters from workers and farmers telling what they think of Coolidge's speech and his message. Sit down now and write your letter and send it in to The DAILY WORKER, 1113 West Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

RULERS WEAR OVERALLS IN SOVIET MEET

Metal Workers' Union Meets in Palace

By Clement Lamar.

(Special Moscow Correspondence to The DAILY WORKER.

MOSCOW, Nov. 18,—(By Mail)—Last night, in the Hall of Columns of the House of the Unions, formerly the House of the Nobles, there opened the seventh congress of the All-Russian Union of Metal Workers, with 478 delegates representing 685,000 members present and about a hundred more expected today. The huge balcony was filled with guests, and on the stage around a table decked with red were seated the Swedish, Norwegian and Finnish delegations from the metal workers' unions.

Rulers in Overalls.

Thousands of fancy bulbs encased in sockets which were built into costly crystal chandeliers cast their light upon the hudreds of delegates and guests, almost all of whom came dressed in their working clothes. Many of the delegates were bearded men and there were not a few women. Two women were among the 39 elected to the presidium of the congress.

After a military band had played the International, A. Lepse greeted the congress in the name of the executive committee of the All-Russian Union of Metal Workers, briefly reviewed the period of almost two and a half years which intervened since the last congress, calling attention particularly to the great progress made in the matter of production which already in the fiscal year 1923-24 had passed the production planned for the year 1926-27.

Production Increased 70 per Cent.

The year 1924-25 showed an increase in production of 70% over the previous year and all signs pointed to a healthy increase during the coming year.

When he remarked that since the last congress the Russian workers and peasants had lost their great leader, Lenin, the huge audience stood up as one and the band played the funeral march. Such a rendering of the funeral march no American who has not been in Russia ever heard.

Review Errors and Accomplishments.

After paying honor also to the memory of Frunze and the metal workers who died since the last congress the delegates heard the greetings of Tomski, the president of the All-Russian Federation of Trade Unions, Djerzinsky, the president of the Supreme Council of National Economy, and Losovsky, the general secretary of the Red International of Labor Unions.

All of the speakers dealt not only with the great accomplishments of the last two years but also with the errors discovered in their course and with the new problems confronting the workers of the U. S. S. R.

Djerzinsky ended his speech with the remark that in the struggle for Communism the metal worker stands in the front lines—"Long live the metal workers." Both of the other speakers dealt at length with the international situation.

Shows Who Rules Russia.

The remarks of Losovsky that the workers of the capitalist countries despite the capitalistic press assisted by the social-democratic press looked with sympathy and love upon the efforts and achievements of their Russian brothers brought forth tremendous applause which rose to thunder when the Swedish, Norwegian and Finnish delegations were presented to the congress.

The great number of workers in their working clothes seated or walking about in the great and beautiful lobbies and in the smoking room of the former House of the Nobles was rather a strange sight to an American; but it furnished vivid and incontrovertible proof that the ruler of Russia is indeed the worker of Russia.

Only Platitudes From Official of German Needle Trades

It must be said that the Sigman wolves are very lamb-like indeed.

Russia Barely Mentioned.

Only once did Plettl mention Russia. It was in referring to the internal struggle in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and while he urged them to unite their forces he said that he could not advise "any more than England or Russia could advise the German trade unionists."

His speech was ordered printed in the minutes but why I am unable to say unless as a courteous gesture from the Sigmanites to one of their ilk in Germany. The speech itself contains little but platitudes. It is additional confirmation of the suspicion long entertained by workers that when these gentlemen cannot, for very good reasons, launch an attack on the left wing and its program, they have nothing to say that could not be said by a not too bright ten year old child providing the child was a supporter of capitalist democracy

Big Business Congress in Role of Santa Claus to America's Profiteers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the "big business" congress is down to work and promises to get out the new "economy" taxation bill before Christmas. This bill is to be in the form of a holiday gift to the great profiteers. In the role of Santa Claus, congress will rush thru this measure cutting the taxes now supposed to be levied against huge incomes and swollen profits, by hundreds of millions of dollars, transferring them more effectively to the shoulders of the workers and farmers, the producing class. While this congress, therefore, comes to the parasite rich as a gift bearer, it knocks at the doors of the toiling many as a pillaging tax gatherer.

• • • •

All this is the basis for great satisfaction on the part of the profit takers. The opening of congress is hailed by them with joy. One need only turn to the financial pages of their kept press. O. A. Mather, the "financial expert" of the Chicago Tribune, declares.

> "For the first time in years the convening of congress yesterday was a welcome event in the financial world. The general hope and belief that it will be a 'business' congress, marked by much 'constructive' legislation, was heightened by the tenor of President Coolidge's address in Chicago."

• • • •

Even before congress had assembled in Washington, the "expert" of the New York Times wrote:

> "On the eve of the reassembling of congress there is a marked absence of the perturbation among business men that has been so customary on such occasions in a number of instances."

• • • •

These two quotations, that could be amplified by extracts from every capitalist sheet in the land, should convince all workers and farmers that the demo-republican congress isn't going to turn out any legislation that will be in the least helpful to them. The democrats conducted a fake scrimmage on the opening day in the selection of a speaker. But when Nicholas Longworth, Coolidge's spokesman, had been selected, the democratic floor leader conducted the manager of the republican steam roller to his place of power, to show that there was no ill feeling between them.

• • • •

"Constructive legislation" consists of all such laws as will aid the business interests in more effectively plundering the masses. Any legislation against "business" is denounced as Bolshevism.

• • • •

If the bankers, the landlords and the food speculators are satisfied with Coolidge and his congress, as they are, city and

Which means that the profit press gloats over the fact cago Tribune says:

> "Financiers and business men welcomed as sound policy President Coolidge's unqualified opposition to any government price fixing schemes for agricultural products."

And in the same breath:

> "Radical agitation is not expected to make much progress in this congress."

Which means that the profit press gloats over the fact that the workers and farmers have not been conscious enough of their own interests to send their own representatives into congress to make the fight for them.

• • • •

No help for the farmers. But new aid for the railroads, shown by the fact that the stock quotations mounted higher on the money exchanges as congress met. There are many railroad senators and representatives, in Washington, speaking for multi-millionaire railroad owners, not underpaid railroad workers. While bankrupt and landless farmers are flocking to the cities, the railroads in October showed the LARGEST NET REVENUE FOR ANY MONTH IN AMERICAN RAILROAD HISTORY.

• • • •

Need more be said to show that Wall Street's government in Washington is a class government, defending the private property interests of the exploiters?

Must additional arguments be presented to show that the workers and farmers need their own class power to advance their interests as a class? If so, then this "big business" congress will present them to the plundered American masses in a myriad, brutal forms.

Predict No Bill for Independence of Filipinos Will Pass

the Filipino independence bills, introduced by Senator King, the secretary of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League pointed out that the huge republican majority in congress makes is possible for a democrat like King to introduce such measures without the slightest fear that they will be adopted.

President Coolidge, he remarked, has repeatedly expressed himself as opposed to liberating the Filipinos from imperialist rule, on the grounds that they "are not ready" for it. Moreover, he has given full support to ex-Secretary of War Weeks and Gov General Wood in their frankly anti-independence policy.

Desires Don't Count.

Wood recently vetoed a bill passed by both houses of the Philippine national legislature calling for a referendum of Filipines on the question of complete and immediate independence, thus showing that as far as American imperialism is concerned the desires of the Filipino people have as much to do with the case as the flowers that bloom in the spring. Sen. King's platonic gesture will be given no greater consideration.

It is not in congress that the hope of Filipino liberation lies but in the strength of the Filipino people themselves, and in the support they receive from other oppressed peoples of the "American empire," and particularly in the support of the revolutionary working class of the United States.

CREATE CLASS COLLABORATION BY LAW; RAILWAYS AND UNIONS PLAN 'BOARDS OF ADJUSTMENT'

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8.—Class collaboration proceeding upon the basis of a "harmony of interests" between the working class and the employing class, has become almost the law of life for the high-paid bureaucracy of the American labor unions.

Faced with an economic depression and an attack upon the unions, the bureaucracy, instead of uniting all unions for militant struggle, seek to avoid a fight and come to terms for a remnant of concessions. But now the bureaucrats of the railway unions have entered into a pact to be sanctified by law, which surrenders without even this remnant.

Union Officials Surrender.

The executive officials of fifteen standard railroad labor unions have entered an agreement made with a committee of the Association of Railway Executives, to present a bill in congress as a substitute for the Howard-Barkley rail labor bill, to provide for "boards of adjustment"—opn which representatives of the unions and of the rialroad companies are to sit in sweet "harmony."

This is the result of months of secret negotiations and a recent three-day conference in Washington. The scheme is so pleasing to the railroad companies that even the hard-boiled open shop Pennsylvania railroad is willing to come in on it, and the only question that seems to be agitating the hearts of all concerned is whether the chief train dispatchers should be brought into the "boards of adjustment" as labor representatives or as company officials.

Don't Exclude Company Unions.

So far as can be ascertained, the scheme does not even exclude company unions, thus giving the labor unions entering the pact not even the doubtful benefit of exclusive recognition. Nor is it clear what the attitude will be in the "boards of adjustments" to the Federated Shop Crafts whose 1922 strike is still being continued officially. The scheme practically forbids strikes.

The bill to legalize this unprecedented surrender by the union bureaucrats will be, so it is said, backed by both republican and democrat leaders in congress and given early hearings and prompt report. What the judgment of the rank and file of the unions will be, once the scheme is put into operation, remains to be seen. But if it turns out as predicted, a wide revolt of the membership is sure to ensue.

PATRIOTS WOULD CONTROL FOREIGN LANGUAGE PRESS

Demand Constitution Be Printed in Each Issue

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 8.—A move to force all foreign language newspapers in this country to print in each issue in English half a column on the constitution or the history of the United States, was launched by the allied patriotic societies at their meeting at the army and navy club, 30 West 44th St., New York City.

"There are 2,000 papers published in this country in foreign languages," declared Dwight G. Braman, president. "They attack our government under cover. Their influence is insidious. They are restricted by present laws only from publishing their blasphemous statements on envelopes or mailing wrappers."

Frank H. Kininicutt of the American defense society read a bill that had been drafted to be submitted to congress. It provided that the commissioner of education furnish the foreign language papers with suitable material, that the paper publish both English and foreign language versions and that the publications failing so to do be barred from the mails.

Want It Made "Stronger."

Following the objection of Hugh Adams, also of the American defense society, that the bill was "not strong enuf, because a publication might print the fact that the material was contributed by the government," the report of the bill was recommitted to the committee, with the recommendation that Adams collaborate on it and that the committee then "confer with the commissioner of education and with such members of the house of representatives and the senate as show their interest."

A committee of three was appointed "to investigate such societies as the Civil Liberties Union, and American Association for the Advancement of Atheism." H. L. Bowlby, general secretary of the national lord's day alliance, said that "many intelligent men have fallen unwillingly in the trap of the Civil Liberties Union." The committee was ordered to "report so that these societies may be exposed to the authorities."

At a recent meeting of the allied patriotic societies, which was then reported in The DAILY WORKER, a drive to prohibit the Workers (Communist) Party, from appearing on the ballot at next year's election in New York City, was started, by electing a committee which with the assistance of President Vorhees, of the board of election, who is also a member of the allied patriotic societies, will plan the necessary action to achieve its fulfillment.

If you want to thoroughly understand Communism—study it.

MOSCOW METAL TRADES UNIONS INVITE GERMANS TO SEND DELEGATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.,—(By Mail)—The following telegram sent by the presidium of the fifth congress of the Metal Workers' Union of the Moscow district calls upon the German Metal Workers' Union to send a delegation to Moscow where they will be able to study the conditions under which workers in the metal trades in the Soviet Union work and to establish closer relations between the two unions:

"The fifth congress of the metal workers of the Moscow district which has just taken place sends proletarian greetings in the name of hundreds of thousands of organized metal workers in the Moscow district to the metal workers in Berlin. It instructed the chairman of the district committee, Striyeffsky, to send an invitation to the Berlin metal workers in the name of our congress, to visit Moscow, and to study the development of the metal industry and the life of the workers and the nature of their trade union organizations.

"Long live the unity of the metal workers of all countries!

"Long live the international unity of the revolutionary working class movement!"

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

Article six, yesterday's instalment, told us of Britain's maneuver to grant concessions to the rebellious Chinese masses.

ARTICLE VII.

By L. HELLER.

THE Shanghai Trades Council was formed at the very outbreak of the strike, and soon gained general recognition as the center of the labor movement. Its popularity thruout the country is enormous. To it flock with their various businesses not only the labor organizations and various groups of workers, but all the various institutions; the civil and military authorities negotiate with it, the entire stored-up hatred of the imperialists has been focussed upon it and they are constantly working to undermine it with all the means at their disposal.

The Shanghai Trades Council is the leading light in the joint committee, in addition to the council, of the Student Council and the Committee of the Street Unions which comprises petty businessmen. The Trades Council has not only developed propagandist and organizational activities among the strikers, but, with the aid of its daily, devoted to political and trade union affairs, and of the specially created press bureau, which circularizes all the Chinese newspapers with daily information bulletins, it has exercised a decisive influence in the moulding of public opinion and in the growth of the national consciousness of the Chinese masses. Its prestige among the Shanghai workers is unchallenged. The latest events have proved this beyond any doubt. Only because it enjoys the complete confidence of the great masses of the Shanghai workers was the Trades Council able to put thru such a complicated maneuver as was that of shifting from the fundamental national demands to economic issues, and retaining at the same time the integrity and solidarity of the proletarian front. For it must not be forgotten that apart from the enormous outside difficulties, the very make-up of the body of the strikers contains within itself tremendous handicaps for the mere direction of the strike, and even more so for the execution of drastic strategic turns. Indeed, the main body of the strikers consists of textile workers, seamen and dockers. The textile workers are in their great majority women. Among the dockers there are plenty of migratory, semi-tramping elements. As a whole the strike movement has rallied the entirely untrained sections of the proletariat that have only recently got into touch with any movement. The art of maneuvering such masses, of making sharp turns, requires, in addition to a certain political maturity, cleverness and tact on the part of the leaders, and also, and particularly, complete confidence in them on the part of the masses.

THE main body of the strikers was made up, as is known of the workers employed in British and Japanese establishments. The latest dispatches indicate that the strike in the Japanese factories has been settled in a manner denoting a serious, even if incomplete victory for the workers. The workers of the British establishments still continue to strike. This again bears witness to the strong contact existing between the council and the laboring masses. Only this contact permits of such organized step by step liquidation of this grand strike, when one section of the front is being liquidated, while at the others the struggle continues unabated. The entire weight and force of the struggle will now be concentrated against Britain, and this is the best guarantee that on this front as well the Shanghai workers will be victorious.

The Hongkong strike, tho a direct continuation of that of Shanghai, has, however, one distinct aspect. Its character is purely political, it being a clear expression of the national emancipation struggle conducted by the revolutionary means and methods at the disposal of the working class.

In contra-distinction to Shanghai, which is a Chinese city with special settlements and concessions for foreigners the Hongkong island is a purely British colony and a "crown" colony at that, that is, a colony subject to the "crown" which appoints its goveronr and vests him with the greatest powers. However, the working population of this island, running up to 600,000 people (as against 8,000 Britishers) is entirely Chinese.

IT is hardly possible to name another place on the Pacific where British imperialism has been revealing itself more nakedly, more insolently, than in Hongkong. A handful of big capitalists, backed by an adequate military force under the command of the governor, is having full and unlimted sway on the island. There is one trouble, however; within six hours travel by steamer on the opposite shore is Canton (the capital of the Kwantung province, with a population of close to 40,000,000), the foremost revolutonary city in China, with its Kuomintang government, friendly to Soviet Russia; a city where the labor government is developing freely, and where a revolutionary army of workers and peasants has been created. In short, a city that is the very opposite of Hongkong, which hates it with the deepest hatred as a hotbed of the "Bolshevist germ" that is spreading thruout China portending nothing good to Britishers. The working population of Hongkong, in turn, have nothing but the heartiest hatred for their haughty oppressors and look with hope to Canton, with whom they maintain the liveliest connections. No wonder that it was precisely in Hongkong that the Shanghai events aroused not only a sympathetic, but a much more effective response. The proximity of Canton played a decisive part.

The Hongkong strike was led by the executive committee of the All-China Federation of Trade Unions. The latter is a very young organization, formed at the All-China Trade Union Congress early last May. Backed by the active support of the Canton masses and of the government, the federation executive has been successfully handling this extremely difficult problem.

The Hongkong strike—and this must not be forgotten—is limited to a small island, dominated by a true despotism with the entire power, both civil and military, concentrated in the hands of an autocratic British government. Nor should it be forgotten that the Hongkong strike hits the pockets of the British capitalists more painfully than that of Shanghai, where the Japanese interests are more directly affected. And finally, it should also be remembered that the Britishers wanted to make of Hongkong an example of the superiority of their methods of quelling disturbances. There is much "interference" in Shanghai on the part of other countries and this leads to a lot of red tape and wavering; in Hongkong, however, there is a "purely" British rule, which knows what it wants and how to get it. Yet despite the fact that the authorities really did not stop at anything, including shooting, corporal punishment and mass deportations; despite the fact that they recruited scabs everywhere, in the Philippines, in the adjacent Portugal colony Makoa, etc.; in spite of the fact that even the Russian white guards were rallied to this glorious business of strikebreaking, despite all this the Hongkong strike, led by the Canton federation, turned into a general strike affecting every branch of employment.

AS a result, after two months of struggle, Hongkong is ruined. Unable to crush the strike unaided, Hongkong has been appealing to London, demanding intervention, military interference, an occupation, or at least a complete blockade of Canton. As has already been stated there is every ground to believe that these militant outcries will hardly be heard in London. The conservative government, is, of course, "at heart" with the Hongkong reactionaries, but conditions at home, and abroad, particularly in China, are such that England will hardly dare to decide upon an intervention in Canton. A war with Canton would be a challenge to all of China. For the Chinese masses have become a nation.

YOAKUM OF FRISCO RAILROAD IS TRYING TO FOOL THE FARMERS INTO FRAUDULENT CO-OPERATIVE SCHEME

By J. E. SNYDER.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 8.—The American farmer has tried many times to emancipate himself during the past sixty years from the grip of the various capitalist groups that have come up during that time.

The Alliance movement back in the eighties followed up by the populist movement in the early ninties were bold attempts, to step out some, politically and organizationally, but both movements were burdened by a horde of bankrupt "petty bourgeois political speculators" who made them, finally apendages of the old political parties. For instance when the politicians "fused" the populists in 1896 with the Bryan Democrats and later on with the Roosevelt republicans.

In our contention that the farmers' movement, as well as the wage workers movement, needs a scientific nucleus, such as the Communist idea and organization furnishes, we do not want it to appear as a mere egotistical assumption. We need only point out how well our leaders of the past understood the fate of the American farmers political efforts. It was Frederick Engels, co-worker with Karl Marx, who wrote, in 1892 to his friend Sorge that "the American farmer as a class have not the strength for the formation of an independent political party. They can only fight the bourgeoisie and its big parties under the leadership of a mass party of the American workers, which in turn is led by a Marxist party."

False Co-operatives.

The invasion of men like Yoakum of the Frisco railroad into the ranks of the leaders of the American Farmers Co-operative movement shows the same "decoy duck" tendencies as took place in the political movements of twenty-five years ago. The American farmer must soon learn that he cannot cooperate himself out of bondage without joining forces with the wage workers organizations, and then going much further, in establishing an economic and political unity that can withstand the combined financial and industrial plunderbund. It matters not how much you farmer editors talk of "peaceful means", in bringing about a change, all of you acknowledge to me in private that "The capitalist will not surrender without a struggle." We simply ask you and your fellow farmers if you are going to wait until the day of the struggle to prepare yourselves even theoretically for the struggle? If so, you have not seen the mounted gatling guns on the top of skyscrapers, nor witnessed the capitalist doing target practice along the shores of Lake Michigan in Chicago, nor seen the dupe clerks and other flunkies doing the "hep, hep, hep," in the capitalist arsenals in the cities of the entire nation.

So far, brother farmer, you may go alone with your cooperative societies and no further, than the big boys want you to go, until they first stop you with injunctions, as they did the raisin growers, and if they cannot stop you that way they will shoot you into submission as they do workers who fight their battles alone in isolated unions.

Yoakum is but the agent of Hoover and Hoover is the agent of big business and banking. Yoakum would furnish you a leadership from the top and the top is Wall Stret. In matters not, understand me, if every act of Yokum is sincere and every dollar he spends is because of principle, the results will be the same. As Bryan led you into the old democrat party so Yoakum will lead you into the Wall Street shearing pen.

Mr. Yoakum carries in his paper "The Farm Magazine", the very same kind of cartoons that were carried in populist papers, thirty-five years ago. Those papers were usually edited and controled by men of about the same state of mind as Yoakum. I warn you again, as they led you then so he will lead you now, unless you give up your "independence" and come to the full realization that all labor is interdependent and must form a united front in a labor party.

British Rubber Trust Raises Bar on Export

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, Dec. 8—It was announced by the colonial office tonight that all restrictions upon the export of rubber from Ceylon and Malaya have been lifted.

HUNDREDS OF POLISH WORKERS ARRESTED IN CRACOW AND WARSAW

BERLIN, Dec. 8—Recently, new mass arrests and searches have taken place in the Warsaw district of Poland. Approximately 150 people were arrested. Eight among the arested are suspected of being members of the Communist Party.

Apart from these arrests, numerous other arrests of suspected Communists have taken place in connection with the celebrations on the occasion of the eighth anniversary of the October revolution and the second anniversary of the Cracow insurrection. Many arrests took place in Cracow and in other towns.

It is reported from west White Russia that the process against the committee of the Communist Youth has taken place at Baranovitschi. Seven youths have received sentences of imprisonment of ten months each. Three others were sentenced to three years' imprisonment each. The remaining accused were released.

In the village of Glubokaya in the Disnaer district, a process has begun against 20 peasants. The accused have been under arrest since 1923.

Lithuanian Clergy Must Resign Church or Leave Politics

KOVNO, Lithuania, Dec. 8.—Much consternation has been caused in the Roman clerical forces here by the letter sent by Pope Pius XI to the Bishop of Lithuania telling him that all catholic priests active in politics must resign as clergymen, on the grounds that their behavior in the government is "tending to compromise the church" and "alienate confidence of the people."

This letter has caused a great stir in clerical circles as it is the Roman catholic clerical party that dominates the political life of Lithuania.

Clericals Arrest Workers

Mass arrests and persecutions of workers by the clericals themselves has been practiced to much an extent that many workers have stopped attending church. The confessionals were used by the priests as means of obtaining information on which arrests would be made.

Outlaw Trades Union

The trades unions of Lithuania were crushed and in their place, clericals trades unions were formed.

The clerical government, with the able assistance of the Lithuanian social-democracy, has arrested hundreds of workers on suspicion, kept them in jail for years and then when the time came for their hearings they would be released and told that there were no charges against them.

STATE BANK OF UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS ASSETS $200,000,000

By WILLIAM F. KRUSE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 8.—The most recent financial statement of the issue deparmtent of the State Bank of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics shows assets of almost $200,000,000, of which $54,000,000 are covered by gold and platinum and $11,500,000 by foreign currency. The assets are sufficient to cover $8,000,000 more than the total issue of bank notes to date.

The total issue of "chervonetz" to date amounts to $75,685,676. The chervonetz contains 119.4826 grains of fine gold and is equal to $5.14½.

The chervonetz notes mostly in circulation are in denominations of one, three, five and ten. In addition there are one, three and five ruble notes, silver coins of 10, 15, 20 and 50 kopeks and one rouble, and copper coins for one, two, three and five kopeks. The coins are all beautifully designed and well minted.

Fail to Expel Communists.

LONDON—(FP)—Exclusion of the Communists, voted by the Liverpool Labor party conference, is hitting some snags among labor bodies. The decision does not apply to the trade unions, over whose internal affairs the Labor party has no control, and which refuse to discriminate against Communist members. Communists still remain members of the Labor party by virtue of their trade union membership. Many even of the local Labor parties have refused to carry out the decision and have even nominated Communists as their candidates for public offices. In the recent elections 22 Communists ran in London alone as duly nominated Labor candidates, and the same held true of a number of other localities.

Collecting for Virginia Miners.

ST. LOUIS—(FP)—The St. Louis waitresses' union is utilizing its office as collection headquarters for donations of clothing for the striking West Virginia coal miners, in whose behalf a nationwide appeal has been issued by the A. F. of L. The woman's auxiliary of the machinists is cooperating and a citywide canvass of the labor movement is being made. The response has been generous.

Raise Pay of Mayor's Aid But Down Firemen

ST. LOUIS—(FP)—The St. Louis board of estimates and apportionment, under the new anti-labor mayor, composed of the mayor as chairman, the comptroller and the president of the board of aldermen, discarded all traces of consistency by approving a salary boost of $1,800 a year for the mayor's secretary, fixing his pay at $6,000. The board, which passes upon salary ordinances enacted by the aldermen, vetoed a $25 monthly pay boost which was granted the city firemen by a 3 to 1 referground that the city was broke. The firemen have asked the supreme court to decide if three politicians can override a mandate of the people.

Keep Red Flag Flying

LONDON—(FP)—All efforts to displace the Red Flag as the anthem of British organized labor have failed, according to the admission of The Daily Herald, which has been running a competition to discover whether a better labor song than the Red Flag could be written or composed. The judges have decided that not one of the songs sent in is worthy of the prize and so no prize is to be awarded.

The competition was started after a speech of Ramsay MacDonald in which he criticized the Red Flag and said, "We still want our great labor song." MacDonald's criticism brought a deluge of protests from labor circles all over the country. This song has so long been associated with every labor struggle in Great Britain, that a remarkable emotional loyalty to it has been developed among all sections.

PRAVDA GREETS CZECH WORKERS ON ELECTIONS

Communist Party Polls Million Votes

By IMPRECOR

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 8.—The Pravada welcomes the election successes of the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia which has received a million votes and has become the second strongest party in parliament.

Svery seventh elector in Czecho-Slovakia has declared himself a conscious enemy of capitalism and a supporter of Communism. The success is all the greater because the Czech party recently experienced an internal crisis from which the social-democrats had hoped much.

The so-called independent Communist party with Bubnik at its head, embracing the renegade elements, did not receive a single seat. The victory in the elections was the victory of the Leninist policy over the opportunists.

The elections have proved beyond doubt that the Communist Party is the strongest political factor in the Czecho-Slovakian working class movement. The success will naturally result in an increase of the work carried on by the party amongst the masses. The recruiting strength of the party must be increased and the existing foothold among the peasantry and the national minorites must be enlarged.

In the future it must be prevented that German workers give their votes to the social-democracy. The Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia has accomplished excellent electoral work. The revolutionary proletariat of the whole world sends the brother party in Czecho-Slovakia its warmest greetings.

Senator Berenger Will Negotiate French Debt Settlement with U. S.

The mission of the ambassador is expected for a duration of six months, and if the debt is not settled within that time, the powers of the mission will be renewed.

NEW YORK SHOP NUCLEUS NO. 2 PLANS CAMPAIGN

Start Membership Drive in Shoe Shop

By SIDNY JONAS.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — Shop nucleus No. 2 was organized in a shoe factory where 70 workers were employed. At the first meeting of the nucleus when four members were present they elected an organizer, secretary and a literature agent. The nucleus decided to get control of the shop committee. They also decided that every member of the nucleus should concentrate his Communist propaganda on two workers in the shop and try to make them Communists so that they should be able to join the nucleus.

The following are a few examples which illustrate how successfully the nucleus carried on Communist propaganda in that shop.

Raise Slogan in Shops.

The first work of the nucleus was to utilize the sentiment of the workers not to pay for the shoes that they spoiled. The nucleus introduced the slogan not to pay for the shoes and made it a shop issue against the bosses and the reactionary shop chairman who believes in class collaboration. The result was that the workers of the shop elected our comrade as shop chairman. Thus the nucleus is actually in control of the shop and all the questions that arise the shop meetings are first considered at the meetings of the shop nucleus.

Active in Elections.

The nucleus was active in the election compaign of Comrade Ben Gitlow for mayor. They brought the campaign literature right into the shop and held four successful open-air meetings near their shop at which Bert Wolfe, candidate for assembly in the district, spoke on campaign problems. The comrades of the nucleus made a collection for the party campaign and urged the workers of the shop to wear Gitlow buttons.

The shop nucleus is active in getting subscribers for The DAILY WORKER and the language press. Every member of the nucleus must be a subscriber. Besides this, the nucleus itself gets five copies of The DAILY WORKER and five "Workers Monthly" which they distribute free to the workers. This will be continued until these workers become subscribers, and then the literature will be distributed to other workers.

Helps DAILY WORKER.

The nucleus was successful in collecting $13. in the campaign to save The DAILY WORKKER. This was done in addition to the tax that the party members pay and does not include collections made for the "Freiheit."

The nucleus just organized a social club thru which we will try to attract the majority of the workers of the shop.

Urges Workers Into Union.

The nucleus is also active in the organization campaign of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union. It distributes leaflets in the unorganized shops and tries to get the workers into the union.

The nucleus together with the club is arranging an affair, the profit of which will go to the organization fund of the union.

The result of this activity, is that the nucleus increased its membership from 4 to 7 and having 2 candidates.

Youngtown, O., Notice!

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 8.—Reorganization of the party in Youngstown, Ohio, will take place on Sunday, Dec. 13, at 1 p. m. sharp, at the Hungarian Hall, 333½ West Federal street. Every comrade must be present.

BUFFALO DISTRICT MEMBERSHIP IS UNANIMOUS FOR PARTY'S CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE AND UNITY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(By Mail.)—The district committee of Buffalo after a thoro discussion of the Central Executive Committee's unity resolution voted unanimously to indorse it. Eleven members of the committee were present. There was considerable discussion and many questions were asked.

Comrades Lovestone and Cannon represented the Central Executive Committee.

In the afternoon a general membership meeting was called to discuss the unity resolution and the party's trade union policies and activities. Comrade Sullivan, the D. O., presided.

Opening the meeting Comrade Lovestone gave a picture of the difficulties in which the party found itself at the close of the last convention. He outlined the major tasks of the party.

"This unity resolution is not another scrap of paper in a factional war," he said. "It is a political document of major significance and finds its orign in the sincere conviction of the best Communist elements in our ranks that the time has come to unite on the basis of the Comintern line for the party above all groups. This resolution is not a victory for one or the other group but is a victory for the party and the Comintern in the sense that greater numbers of our members are now solidly lined up for the Communist International and will be ready to repel the efforts of the enemies of our party to discredit and destroy our Communist movement," was the keynote of Comrade Lovestone's address.

The main features of the party's proposal to make the winning over of the proletarian masses and not the capture of trade union offices per se as the main objective of our activities in the labor unions were discussed by Comrade Lovestone. "We must build a system of powerful party trade union fractions and have these fractions function as the dynamo, as the steel rod in a broad progressive, a broad left, bloc. We must carry out the Profintern program and the parity commission resolutions on trade union work by deed as well as by word," was the conclusion reached by Comrade Lovestone.

Comrade Cannon aroused enthusiasm among his interested listeners when he said: "The last time Comrade Lovestone and I spoke on the same platform we spoke against each other. We are now here together speaking on the same platform, for the same cause, for the line of the Comintern. We have united for the Communist Inuternational."

The main theme of Comrade Cannon's report on the unity resolution was that the Central Executive Committee was preparing the membership for the next decision of the Comintern. "We are not speaking of old decisions. We are speaking of the coming tasks. It is our duty to save as many members as possible of the former majority from collision with the Communist International. We must unite only on the basis of the Communist International policies and line. If any one has doubted our proposals or has been skeptical about the executing our our unity program let him look at the results of the Finnish convention. The right wing in our party and the enemies of our party outside have been anxiously awaiting disruptive developments at this convention. They all had hoped for a split at this convention. The results achieved here are a distinct disappointment to the enemies of our party and a signal for success and hope for our party."

Comrade Cannon declared that the Finnish convention was the beginning of a real campaign of Bolshevization of the Finnish Section which will make this section one of the bulwarks of the party adhering strictly and energetically to the policies of the C. I.

After questions were answered by the Central Executive Committee representatives a vote was taken on the resolution. The Central Executive Committee resolution was carried by a vote of 58 for and none against. Both representatives of the Central Executive Committee emphasized that the comrades should vote the resolution only if they are genuinely and sincerely convinced that it is worthy of their support. Special stress was laid on the point that the members should not and need not vote for the resolution out of a sense of discipline or loyalty to the Central Executive Committee.

NEW YORK WILL DISCUSS UNITY RESOLUTION SUN., DEC. 13 AT WEBSTER HALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—A general membership meeting will be held on Sunday, Dec. 13 at 1 p. m. at Webster Hall—119 E. 11th St. where Comrades Jay Lovestone and James P. Cannon will report for the Central Executive Committee on the unification of the party and our trade union work.

The membership of New York where the resolution will be discussed for the first time must come out in full force to this meeting. Only the politically backward elements of the party will stay away from this membership meeting..

GERMAN SOCIAL-DEMOCRACY IN A NEW CRISIS

Choose Between Masses and Hindenburg

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—The German social-democracy faces a crisis, in which there seems to be no compromise door thru which to flee to political safety.

Unemployment is growing rapidly with the increasing depression of economic life. Bankruptcies and soup kitchens testify to the failure of the Versailles treaty to save Germany, the failure of the Dawes plan to save the Versailles treaty, and the failure of Locarno pacts to save the Dawes plan or make it work.

In this situation, so perplexing to the social democrats, who deliberately turned over the reich to Hindenburg the agent of big capital, in exchange for the presidency only of the Prussian landtag, two pressures, like the upper and nether millstones, are weighing upon the gentlemen of the Barmat international.

Unite Against the Workers.

First, Hindenburg is forcing successfully all right and center parties to consider a big coalition, to include everybody from the social democrats to Stresemann's people's party. And against whom is this coalition to be directed? What peril faces German capitalism to cause it?

What else but the possibility of a new wave of proletarian revolution in a situation ripened by economic depression, unemployment and starvation while—to the east there lies the example of Soviet Russia, from which labor delegations are coming with tales of security and food under the regime of the Bolsheviks.

Communists Offer Fighting Alliance.

Second, there is the sudden and uncomfortable pressure being put upon the social democrats by the Communist Party of Germany, taught by experience and the leadership of the Communist International that work among the masses in the trade unions is not a phrase for inner party discussion but a profound prerequisite for revolutionary action. The Communist Party of Germany is offering to the socail democrats and their followers in the trade unions, a new alliance "to fight hunger and unemployment."

The social-democratic leaders are meeting today in caucus to determine their course. They would undoubtedly like to lick the spurred boot of Hindenburg and enter a Weimar coalition as he requires.

A Dilemma for Socialists.

But they know that if they do, the workers in the trade unions and the whole impoverished mass of workers and small bankrupt bourgeois, will turn to the Communists to "fight hunger and unemployment" with Bolshevik weapons.

What are the distracted leaders of the German social-democracy going to do? A coalition with the capitalist parties is a part of their nature. Yet the danger is that they will be unable to take the social democratic workers along with them, and if these masses desert the social-democracy and go to the Communist Party for leadership the road to revolution is cleared of a great obstacle.

Trade Principles for Jobs.

Indications are that they will take the risk of losing the masses to the Communists and enter the Weimar coalition if they get a few political jobs and if the people's party promises not to place said jobs in jeopardy by kicking over the coalition soon after it is set up. The motto of the German socialists in all crises will be followed: "When in doubt, betray the workers."

WORKERS' CLUBS -:- By Israel Amter

THE reorganization of the party necessitates that the party find ways and means of carrying on its work among the workers of divers languages. Workers' clubs are one of the means whereby this will be accomplished. These workers' clubs will be the social and cultural center of the life of the proletarian masses of the cities. These clubs with their dramatic, musical, athletic, educational and propaganda sections will attract large numbers of workers who today find no place to go to but the movies or poolrooms.

These workers' clubs mean a broadening of the party work among the workers and take due note of their national characteristics. In these clubs we can also develop children's sections, which will attract their parents and draw them away from the influence of the bourgeois politicians, who devote considerable attention to their compatriots.

The movement for the workers' clubs is growing in District 6. The district executive committee has paid particular attention to the question of workers' clubs.

Cleveland Begins Organizing.

IN order to bring about the organization of workers' clubs in District 6, the district executive committee called a meeting of the district committees of the federations, adding representatives of the various other language groups. Eleven language groups were represented at a conference on November 29. Reorganization of the party, workers' clubs and work of the party in these clubs were discussed. The reports of the comrades on the situation in their branches in Cleveland and outside in the district showed clearly what the workers' clubs will signify for the party work. In one of the language groups a club will be formed in the very near future with a membership of 250. The prospects for the growth of this club are splendid. In the weaker language groups the workers' club will be a great stimulus to general party work among the workers of this particular language.

THE district executive committee of District 6 is well aware that the aware that the comrades will readily and gladly perform the work in the clubs, since it falls in line with the work that some of the former federations have primarily devoted themselves to. It is clear that work in the shop nuclei will be difficult for some of the comrades until they get accustomed to it and have adapted themselves to the new situation and the new form of work. Nevertheless in order that the morale of the party members may not be reduced and that the present work may not be disorganized, the workers' clubs will be formed without delay, so as to enable the effective functioning of our language fractions amongst broader masses. They will be kept in hand by the district executive committee and given the proper attention. No comrade will be allowed to devote his energies to the building up of the clubs to the detriment of his nucleus work. On the contrary, the workers' clubs will play the proper role in the work of the party: they are to be auxiliaries from which the party will gain recruits.

The present outlook is that District No. 6 will set the pace for the rest of the party in the formation of workers' clubs.

CHECKER TAXI CO. UNDERPAYS NEGRO WASHERS

Got Decent Pay When Company was Unionized

By ALBERT E. WELLS.
(Worker Correspondent)

The Colored washers employed by the Checker Taxi Co. here working under the most miserable conditions in existence at this company.

When this company was first started, and was under the union jurisdiction the washers and the floor employes belonged to the union and received the union scale. The car washers at that time were getting 35 dollars a week and had their regular hours. But at the present time they must stay until all the cars are washed and they receive the enormous sum of $20 to $22 a week, with $36 for the slave-driving formen.

Working conditions are so bad that the washers can't do a thoro job, and when you pass by a Checker Taxi company stand, you see the drivers cleaning their own cars.

Wages of Employes Go Down with Cut in Price of Nash Cars

By a Worker Correspondent

KENOSHA, Wis., Dec. 8.—With the reduction in the price of the Nash Automobile comes a cut in wages for the workers of the Nash Motor Company.

The workers here are unorganized, consequently it is easy to affect a cut in their wages. All the employers need do is announce that there will be a cut in wages which they did.

By cutting the selling price of their car the company gains a larger market. There are plenty of workers anxious to get employment and they have plenty of space for them. The money gained by the reduction will pay for the additional help and the company will squeeze the loss out of the workers strength. The worker is always the victim of the bosses greed, when he is unorganized and fights alone.

Put a copy of the DAILY WORKER in your pocket when you go to your union meeting.

TAILOR GETS 250 DAYS IN JAIL FOR WIPING PAINT CAN WITH FLAG

By L. R. RINDAL.
(Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 7.—Jake Ball, a tailor, was arrested at his shop, 1 5 West Third street. Desecrating the U. S. flag was the charge. Bail $1,000. He is said to have cut the American flag in two pieces and using it as a floor covering while painting his tailor shop, walking on it and setting a bucket of paint on the emblem.

The defendent's attorney pleaded at the trial, recently held, that his client did not know he was guilty of any wrong-doing in using the flag to wipe off a paint can.

Judge Chambers would not be swayed. Ball was convicted. His attorney, Claude Morton moved for a new trial which was denied. Oral notice of appeal was given. Sentence: 250 days in jail.

PROLETARIANS CONTROL ELECTRICAL INDUSTRY IN BAKU WHICH FORMERLY SQUEEZED PROFITS OUT OF WORKERS

(By a Worker Correspondent.)

BAKU, U. S. S. R. (By Mail.)—Our enterprise which is called "Electro-Tok" belonged until 1920 to a small handful of bankers—Electric Power Limited. This society, like all capitalists, only thought of how to squeeze as much juice out of the workers for the sake of their own profit and all legitimate demands of the workers were cut short by merciless measures, including throwing the workers out on the streets.

Workers Take Control.

In 1920, after the proletariat has been able to tear oil-bearing Baku out of the hands of the Mussavat and British robbers by heroic efforts, and to establish the power of workers and peasants, all large enterprises, including Electro-Tok were nationalized. But all this heritage which the proletariat obtained from the capitalists, was ruined to such an extent by the seven years imperialist war, by the national interecine strife and intervention, that it was difficult even to think that we could some time or other be able to restore it, let alone even dream about making any great progress with it.

There were many difficulties, but the proletariat who conquered heroically on the military front, showed its heroism on the labor front. We had to suffer many depriviations, we received milliards of rubles for our wages, but there was nothing to buy on the markets with these milliards.

We actually commenced the most active work for the restoration of our industry from 1922-23 after things had quietened down a little after the war, and during the past three years we have made great progress.

Install New Stations.

All the old antiquated equipment of our electric stations was relegated to the archives, and new and more highly perfected and more economic turbines were installed in their place. We did not only replace the old scrap by new equipment, but also increased to a large extent the power of our stations. In 1919 the power of our stations equalled 45,800 k. w., in 1924, 72,750 k. w., and what is more at present times still another turbine is being prepared for 17,500 k. w., while a 20,000 k. w. turbine has also been ordered. During this short time we have succeeded in electrifying almost the entire Baku oil industry. In 1919 our stations supplied 126,047, 423 k. w., in 1924 270,867,318 k. w., of which 90 per cent went to the oil industry and the remaining 10 per cent to the tramways and town electric light supply. 95 per cent of paraffin lighting has been replaced by electricity.

These figures give a clear picture as to how our electrical industry, which is the motive power of the entire Baku industry is developing.

Our material postion is also improving in proportion with the development of our industry. Our wages increase almost every 5 or 6 months. In a few days we are expecting a wage increase of 25-30 per cent.

Educational Activities.

We are not only taking part physically in the restoration of our industry, but we ourselves are also the helmsmen. In our enterprises just as in all Soviet undertakings we have a system of industrial conferences. These conferences are composed of representatives of the factory committees of workers of all crafts, of the employees and a representative of the administration who settle all questions of production, and take into consideration and correct in good time all errors and abnormalitics, occurring in our industry.

There is a wall-newspaper in our industry in which the workers themselves show up all abnormalities occurring in our production and life and on the basis of these notes, steps are immediately taken to remove these abnormalities. The more important defects are dealt with in the Central Baku and even in the Moscow newspapers, and on the basis of these measures are immediately taken by the higher organs.

During the first years of the revolution, comrades, it was very difficult for us, now only we are commencing to come out on the wide path of socialist construction.

Build Good Homes.

At the present time Electro-Tok, besides raising and perfecting production, is also occupied in building new garden cities for its workers in the White Town and at Bibi-Eibat. Fine houses are being constructed there. The garden city construction of Electro-Tok is expected to be finished in the near future, and not one worker will remain living in the old capitalist death traps; everyone will be living in clean, roomy and comfortable apartments, in the very best parts of his own district.

Shoeworkers Need Amalgamation to Put New Life Into Union

By S. SEIDEL
(Worker Correspondent)

BROOKLYN, N. Y. Dec. 7. — The conditions in the shoe trade in Brooklyn, N. Y. are going from bad to worse. The organizations existing are helpless. The Protective has not yet grown powerful enough, the American Shoe Protective Union is powerless from lack of proper leadership and organization. The masses in the shoe trade in general are discouraged and despondent, looking for a way out of the terrible mess in their trade. The American Shoe Protective Union in particular, dominating the greater part of the organized shoe workers, will not, in my opinion improve any conditions or organize the shoe trade as it stands now.

Lack of Confidence.

Lack of confidence of the membership and the masses of shoe workers, corruption and dissension among the incapable leadership, is a barrier in the way of creating any form of real labor union.

Especially the last mock stoppage and the so-called agreement signed between the American Shoe Protective Union and the Associated Shops ruined the prestige of the union and snuffed out the last hope of many active members to band up a strong labor union out of the American Shoe Protective Union.

Amalgamate!

The only salvation, according to my opinion at the present, is the awakening to activity by the rank and file of the shoe workers, and by the amalgamation between the American Shoe Protective and the Shoe Protective Union as a base toward amalgamation of all the shoe workers of all the unions in existence.

The fusion of blood from the younger veins of the Shoe Protective Union with the older blood of the American Shoe Protective Union will create a real labor union which can be an important power that would help improve conditions in the shoe trade, and it is the duty of every active member of both unions to exert every effort to see to it that the propositions agreed upon at the conferences in June, 1925 should be put into immediate effect.

Automatic Fog Signal Is Devised in France

LA ROCHELLE, France, Dec. 8.—An automatic bell signal to warn ships of fog, which is operated by fog, is being tried out in the harbor here. The invention consists of a beam of light and a photo-electric cell. The light is set up on one side of the channel and focused on the bell which contains the photo-electric cell. When the beam of light fais to reach the cell, it causes the bell to ring.

3 RAIL WORKERS MEET DEATH IN TRAIN EXPLOSION

Company Blames the Dead Engineer

By A Worker Correspondent

NEWARK, Ohio, Dec. 8.—The engineer, fireman and brakeman met their death on the Pennsylvania railroad near Newark, Ohio, a few days ago, when a freight engine blew out the crown sheet scalding them with steam. Fireman and brakeman were killed almost instantaneously. The engineer lived a few days in untold agony.

While the engineer lived there was no investigation. The engine was carefully guarded and inquiries into the cause of the explosion were unanswered. Immediately after the burial of the engineer the company officials issued a statement placing the entire blame on the murdered engineer. But the employes know that the engine was run for 175 miles without proper inspection or repairs.

This is the railroad that so bitterly fought the shopmen in the 1922 strike, refusing to recognize their unions, and establishing company unions which they forced the workers to join with the result that the best mechanics have gone to other roads. The company employs inexperienced mcehanics for the very lowest wages. Human life is held very cheaply by the union smashing Pennsylvania railroad.

TELLING the horny-handed farmers that they are full of virtue will not do them any good. They would rather be full of roast duck. An Irish peasant had a fight with his brother over a piece of land. One of them told the truth and lost. The other perjured himself and won. The fellow who lost was consoled by the parish priest with the thot that his brother would go to hell.

"That's damn poor consolation for me," replied the loser. "How will I know he is in hell unless I go there myself?"

The American farmers are mighty good fellows and are willing to admit it but they are not crazy about waiting until they get their pie in the sky while the bankers, the commission men and the railroad magnates—usually chips of the same block—get theirs right now, without getting up at six o'clock in the morning and taking eighteen-hour involuntary sun baths for it.

CHINA is making the capitalist editors sit up and take notice. That is because the American capitalists are taking notice and their editors are compelled to study geography and locate the whereabouts of the so-called celestial empire. Some of them regret that China is resorting to force to solve her problems. Somehow or other the idea got abroad that the Chinese were peaceful people. A most unjustified slander! But that is beside the question. What the capitalist powers regret is that the Chinese people are now learning to indulge their propensity for carving human anatomies by slicing the tools of imperialism instead of each other.

I CANNOT restrain myself from chuckling lustily whenver I think of General Feng, known to fame as the "Christian General." It appears that Feng was more or less of a pacifist until the missionaries got hold of him. Having soaked some christianity into himself he saw the beauty of that religion for offensive purposes, threw down his prayer book and picked up a sword. After training for a while with Wu Pei Fu, he gave Wu the air and is now chasing the last outstanding military lackey of foreign imperialism into the Yellow Sea. The fellow who is getting chased in Chang-Tso-Lin, once war lord of Manchuria.

WHAT excites my mirth about Feng, is how the capitalist powers got disappointed in him. Formerly they boasted of his stern if sometimes drastic righteousness. They used to tell a good story of him when he was in good standing. One day Feng was walking along the street of a city, he had just occupied. A peddler was selling salted peanuts or something of the kind. Feng invested a little money in the peddler's goods. He overcharged the general one hundred per cent. Feng asked the peddler if this was his regular price. The peddler answered in the affirmative. Whereupon the "Christian General" informs the peddler that he would be regretfully obliged to behead him for the good of the peddler's soul and of China, and suiting the action to the word, he lopped off the offending head there and then. This block-chopping was hailed by the capitalist press at the time as a happy omen for China.

BUT it all depends who's head is on the block. Feng was convinced that

BUT it all depends who's head is on the block. Feng was convinced that the greatest evil that afflicted China was foreign imperialism. He is now the outstanding military leader of the forces working for the unity of the country. He is sympathetic to Soviet Russia and recognizes the right of the workers and peasants of China to organize for their own protection and advancement. Judging by present developments it will not be long before China, a battling ground for rival tuchuns in the pay of the foreign imperialists will have achieved national unity, thus taking a long step forward on the historical road towards the emancipation of the workers and peasants of that country from exploitation, native as well as foreign.

Christianity Triumphs Over Damascus Druses with Aid of Airplanes

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BEIRUT, Syria, Dec. 8.—The Druses have given an answer to the demand that they submit to French rulers, couched by Jouvenel, the Paris journalist now governor of Syria under the mandate from the league of nations, as "peace to those who want peace; war to those who want war."

The Druse answer was that they wanted independence and they said it with bullets by an attack on Damascus. They held large sections of the city and its suburbs until yesterday morning, when heavy French forces were thrown against them.

Airplanes bombed the quarters held by them, regardless of the slaughter of natives who took no part, of women and children non-combatants. Machine guns swept the area and artillery of Fort Gouraud pounded the sections with shells made by willing christian hands.

The population fled in panic and the Druses fought so valiantly that ninety dead were left on the battlefield. But they finally were forced to evacuate.

COOLIDGE IGNORES THE DEMAND OF AMERICAN NEGRO LABOR TO FREE IMPRISONED HOUSTON SOLDIERS

President Calvin Coolidge has completely ignored the demand of the American Negro Labor Congress for the release of the 21 members of the 24th infantry that are now rotting away in the Leavenworth prison.

More than eight years ago, 54 Negro soldiers, members of the 24th infantry were railroaded to jail because of their heroic defense of a Negro woman who was being brutally beaten by a number of white policemen. Of this number 13 were hanged and the remaining 41 were thrown into prison. Some have been paroled.

Minor Official Answers.

The American Negro Labor Congress demanded that President Coolidge release the 21 that are still in prison. Coolidge did not answer this telegram of protest but let a minor war department official do so.

In the following letter which was sent to the congress by a minor war department official, an attempt is made to sidetrack the question of an immediate release by telling of "action" by a parole board which shortened some of the sentences:

"Mr. C. Henry,
"Chairman, American Negro Labor Congress,
"Chicago, Illinois.

"Dear Sir: Your recent communication, addressed to the president, relative to the former members of the 24th infantry now in confinement, has been referred to the war department for consideration. In response, I am directed by the secretory of war to advise you as follows:

Pass Buck to Parole Board.

"The cases of the so-called Houston rioters have been considered by the war department many times since their confinement, including a special investigation by a board of officers appointed by the secretary of war early in 1924 for the purpose of considering the cases of military prisoners and making recommendations relative to the question of clemency. Of the 55 of these men who were in confinement when the board of officers visited the United States penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kansas, 30 were serving life sentences. As a result of the recommendations of the board of officers, made after a most careful and exhaustive investigation of each case on its individual merits, ten of the thirty men under life sentence received reductions in their sentences that made them eligible for release on home parole in the calendar year 1925; and the remaining 20 received reductions from life to thirty years, which will make 16 of them eligible for home parole in 1927, and four of them eligible for home parole in 1928.

Refuses Action.

"In passing upon these cases great weight was laid upon the evidence presented at the trial and the conduct in confinement of the prisoners concerned; and the investigation showed that the men whose sentences were reduced to thirty years were the more deeply involved in the affair and had the poorer records of conduct in confinement. Of the other twenty-five prisoners involved in the Houston riot, serving sentences of less than life at the time of the investigation of the board, 19 were eligible for parole in the calender year 1924, and six in 1925.

"In view of the foregoing, the department does not feel that it can take any further action at this time in behalf of these prisoners.

"Very truly yours,
"Robert C. Davis, Major General."

The New Land Slavery

Capitalism in its inexorable march brings all forms of production under its sway. Having filled almost every available industrial center with its machines to which millions of wage slaves, deprived of all property except their power to labor, are chained by the ever-present threat of poverty and hunger, and having extended its talons to the remotest parts of the globe it now reaches out for more slaves to satisfy its insatiable greed.

The "free" framers are now falling under the domination of big capital. The Coolidge speech delivered in Chicago Monday clearly revealed the process by which this is being brought about. Low prices of farm products, the necessity for buying modern machinery to compete with the larger farms, forces the tillers of the soil to appeal to the banks for funds to tide them over the period of depression. The sighed-for prosperity does not come. Forced to dispose of his produce at less than the cost of production the farmer becomes hopelessly enmeshed in the clutches of the bankers.

Mortgages in the hands of the bank enable these institutions to dictate to the farmers the manner in which they shall conduct the farms that formerly were their own. The farmer becomes a land slave, doing the bidding of the agents of the milling trust, the packers, and other great industrial combines depending upon the land for raw material. The whole population suffers thereby. It is not a question of production for the use of all society, but for the profit of the master class.

Coolidge, in his speech, compared the land slaves of former times with the so-called free American farmer. He said:

> "In the early beginnings of organized society the main form of wealth which was plentiful consisted of land. It was almost the sole source of production. Always in theory, and usually in practice, all land belonged to the crown."

Under that system the king bestowed the use of the land upon his retainers, the feudal barons, and furnished him with serfs attached to the soil. With the coming of capitalism the serfs and free men inhabiting the land were scourged from the soil and the land turned into sheep walks so that raw material could be obtained in abundance for the woolen mills of the new industrial cities that were rapidly growing.

In this country a process not dissimilar is going on, except that it is for a different purpose and in a higher stage of production. The land is falling into the hands of those who wear the crown of imperialism. Their retainers, the country bankers are permitted to dominate the landed estates and the farmers and their families slave with modern farm machinery as the serfs slaved.

The analogy can be carried still farther, according to reports from A. C. Miller, the lone Communist member of the state legislature of North Dakota. In that state whole townships of small farms are being destroyed, the fences are being torn down and in many instances two or three workers with tractors are farming a whole township. The small renter is being hounded from the farms formerly obtainable, while large-scale farming razes the very houses they formerly inhabited, using the lumber for fire-wood. And, just as in the days of the bloody legislation of Henry VIII and Elizabeth, the former tillers of the soil and their families are being driven into the cities to swell the ranks of the unskilled laborers.

One thing only will save the farmers. That is to make common cause with the industrial proletariat and help us build a powerful party that will challenge the power of the capitalist class, that today is repeating on a far greater scale the devastation wrought at the dawn of this bestial system of slavery.

Among Those Present

When members of congress at Washington were voting for a speaker of the house there was one who refrained from voting for anyone. That was the socialist, Victor L. Berger, who merely voted "present." Being an exceedingly modest man he did not vote for himself. Should he stand opposed to the old party machines the democratic and republican time-servers might consider him "impractical." After all, Victor doesn't mean to harm the capitalist class. His one proposal is to convince them that they would be much happier if they would only agree to sell the industries of the nation to the working class. Being an exceedingly practical man he does not bother about such trivial details as the ability of the workers to purchase, under the wages system, the property of the capitalists. His antics in the sixty-ninth congress, so auspiciously launched, will be worth watching.

Important news event: Vice-President Dawes did not break the gavel on the desk when he opened the session of the United States senate last Monday. Which reminds us of the advice one of Henry L. Dana's editors said constitutes news: "If a dog bites a man that is not news, but if a man bites a dog, that is news." When Dawes refrains from his Kiwanis club slap-stick comedy that is indeed news.

Rev. Albert Sidney Gregg, superintendent of the American Civic Reform Bureau has been convicted in a Cleveland court of sending obscene matter thru the mails. We do not know whether the objectionable material were excerpts from that compilation of filth known as the holy bible, or from some less obscene source. Perhaps it was the twelfth verse of the thirty-sixth chapter of Isaiah.

We have many times heard of foolish farmers and workers with bourgeois ideas trying to impersonate bankers, but for the first time in Chicago we had the spectacle of bankers impersonating farmers, and the president of the United States solemnly addressing them as farmers.

Encouragement for the Chinese voiced by the Hon. Cal Coolidge in his message to congress: "It will be our policy, so far as possible, to meet the aspirations of China in all ways consistent with the interests of the countries involved."

Coolidge concluded his message with reference to divine providence, but he does not depend for support upon any such fantastic concepts. He emphasized the power of the armed forces of the country

The Revolt in the A. C. W. U. in New York

By MORRIS BACKALL.

WHEN one visits New York and sees the change that took place among the rank and file of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, he feels that a new spirit prevails among the members of organized labor in America. I visited a meeting of Local 9, of the I. L. G. W. U., and heard the discussions and problems presented and saw that a new life had rejuvenated among the rank and file.

But the storm center now in New York shifted to the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union. There a real fight is on. A real revolt is taking place and the causes are as real as a immediate as it was in the I. L. G. W. U. that brought about the success of the rank and file, of the progressive elements and of the left wing groups.

Back Where They Started

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union started as a real progressive organization. The tailors in the shops in New York as in Chicago, Rochester and Baltimore, expected a new era in their life. They organized as a result of the great revolt against the reactionary United Garment Workers' Union. But now after years of real struggle they find themselves confronted in a revolt against their leaders and against the methods and tactics that are still prevailing in their union.

It is surprising to find that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in New York is conducting itself just as the garment workers' union of the past, against whom the present leadership of the Amalgamated declared a revolt and on whose ruins they built up the present organization.

The Garment Workers' Union had a small membership and its methods and tactics grew out of this old-fashioned and small organization but the tailors' union developed to a very wide and broad organization. From 3,000 membership the Amalgamated union in New York counted already 70,000 members. So it is evident that they could not live and grow and develop under the same organizational forms of the United Garment Workers.

Craft Autonomy

In New York, especially among the Jewish workers there exist now an operators' local, a pressers' local and a tailors' local. Every local conducts its business separtely, with full autonomy. The old trade autonomy prevails there. The locals conduct their business entirely independent of locals of other nationalities.

The Italian and the Latvian workers do have industrial locals on the basis of Local 39 in Chicago, but their locals have no relations with the Jewish workers and the Jewish workers themselves have no industrial relationships, so it is evident that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union in New York is still organized on the old-fashioned Garment Workers' Union basis.

Why does such a situation exist in New York?

As They Found It

Very simple. The Jewish workers were organized in the Garment Workers' Union in New York. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union found them organized and left their form of organization untouched. First, because this is a very desirable form of organization for the leaders. They can make maneuvers with one local against the other. If the tailors are dissatisfied with the leadership, the leaders can get on their side the operators, or the pressers.

Second, because the leaders of the A. C. W. U. were never in touch with the rank and file of the locals but with the cliques that had to grow and develop under such old-fashioned forms of trade autonomy and for the cliques in the locals it was very desirable that the different locals should exist, even when they are a detriment to the growth and development to the union as a whole.

Three Joint Boards

But besides the remnants that are left of the Garment Workers' Union in the organization of the Amalgamated, in the form of local trade autonomy, there is yet in New York a remnant of three separate Joint Boards which are called among the rank and file, three separate kingdoms, in the same industry. These are: the Joint Board of the men's clothing, children's clothing and cutters. They conduct their business in such a fashion that they may contradict the needs of each other.

They are a detriment to the unity and solidarity of the workers in the whole industry and they are working havoc with the interests of the union as a whole. And very often they become instruments of destruction when it is desirable to the cliques and the officers of the unions.

Shortsighted Tactics

The cutters, for instance, never considered the conditions of the workers of the entire industry and when they received concessions on account of the workers of the other locals, they even often refused to strike and to fight together with the workers of the entire industry. The cutters became a kingdom and a state within the A. C. W. U. of America.

The leaders always said: "We cannot undertake a fight within the locals and the Joint Boards." But the truth of the matter is that in their striving for power they forget the real needs and problems of the workers. They were afraid that in a united and organized industrial union of the tailors in New York, the rank and file may take away the power of the leaders and determine themselves their own destines and mode of life. And for the same reason the leaders are against the shops delegate system. Because this also would create an organizational system of leadership in the rank and file.

Unjust Representation

The second great evil that is also left as an inheritance of the Garment Workers' Union is that the Amalgamated organizations all over the country, Chicago, Rochester, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, has a Joint Board, constituted not in the form of proportional representation, but of delegates of the locals. A local of 40 members is represented by as many delegates as a local of 3000. And these small locals are mostly those that need the financial support of the Joint Board and the General Executive Board. They cannot live on their own sources So they must dance to the whistle of the officials. If not they will not receive a penny.

These "hand-raising" representatives of the Joint Boards, as they are called among the tailors, are always forced to act as the officials demand of them even against the interest of their brother workers. And the membership of the largest locals have no possibilities to defend their own interests in their own union.

These terrible forms of organization within the A. C. W. U. led to the complete degeneration of the union in New York. Therefore the rank and file organized in revolt against these conditions. If this revolt does not succeed, the tailors of New York will again taste the slavery of the sweating system, when men's clothing will be made in kitchens and cellars.

The Evil of Piece Work

The degeneration in the A. C. W. grew out of the tactics of the Amalgamated leadership, that undertook the "heroic" task of throttling every spark of protest of the progressive elements in the union. It developed out of a very definite and very immediate problem of week work. To the bosses and the officials, week work is like a bone in their throat. When there is piece work in the shops the bosses feel as in heaven. The workers speed the very life out of themselves. They forget the union and think only of the bundle. The struggle is then between the workers themselves for the bundle.

The Amalgamated leaders did carry thru piece work in some cities because it is also for their interests. There is less work in the shops for union agents. There is a bitter struggle between the workers themselves and the union agent stands still and laughs and it is quiet in the locals, but when the leaders tried to carry thru piece work in New York the general office of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union felt a very strong opposition from the ranks of the progressive elements and class-conscious workers in New York.

So the General Office sent in receivers (its own men) to the most important offices of the union, and put its nose in the very life and struggles of the rank and file in the New York local unions and demoralized with its tactics the entire union in order to bring pressure and compel the tailors to accept piece work, because they thought the rank and file will find out in time that piece work is better than nothing—than a disorganized and a degenerated and a ruined industry.

It is idle to say this tactic really demoralized the industry and brought ruin and degeneration in the ranks of the Amalgamated. Hillman's sixty agents do not organize the trade but are conducting a campaign against the left elements—the workers leave the union and in order to bring the degeneration to a complete success, Hillman took back Harry Cohen whom Hillman himself brought to responsibility for taking graft to the amount of $40,000 from the bosses and Alex Cohen, who spent $30,000 of the union's funds, for which he could not give an accounting, knowing that the return of these two men into office will complete the degeneration of the A. C. W. U. in New York.

The rank and file therefore revolted. They want to organize the Amalgamated on a healthy industrial basis, led by the workers themselves thru their own elected and trusted representatives.

The revolt grew out of the burning needs of the tailors in New York. Those that did not lose their faith and class-consciousness, are organized in a solid group to conduct this revolt. The workers all over the country must assist the revolting A. C. W. U. members in the revolt as they did the revolt in the I. L. G. W. They need both financial and moral support.

Review of the Farm Needs of Soviet Union

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Here is the second instalment of the speech delivered by D. N. Borodin, director of the Russian agricultural agency in America, at the reception tendered in Chicago to the representatives of the Soviet government in this country by the American Rambouillet Sheep Breeders' Association. In the first instalment, published yesterday, Borodin told of area, population, racial character of the population and the main crops of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. In concluding the instalment he told of the development of the textile industry in the Soviet union. Today's instalment follows:

Russian Agricultural Agency in America with Offices in New York City.

Commissariat of Agriculture or shortly Narkomzem recently published a statement on the condition of animal industry in the U. S. S. R. We have the figures. What happened with the crops during the war was more catastrophic in animal industry. The most complete figures are given for Russia proper for different periods. They are as follows:

	Horses	Live Stock	Ewes	Goats	Swine
1916	31,388,000	50,386,200	81,281,500	3,215,100	19,488,000
1923	20,034,700	38,567,100	55,150,200	1,594,300	9,104,700
1924	21,980,300	45,609,000	66,552,500	2,027,300	16,764,800
1925	23,146,500	48,246,300	73,638,500	2,436,200	16,222,100

THE total amount of horses in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics for 1924 have been estimated at 23,854,200. The amount of horses in the year of 1923 in comparison with 1916 (100) was 63.8% and in 1924, 80% and in 1925, 73.7%.

Live stock is increasing more rapidly and in comparison with the same year of 1916 (100) was in 1923, 76.5%; in 1924, 90.5% and in 1925, 95.8%. The dairy cows in this year increased in quantity in comparison with the previous 6.8%. The total amount of sheep for the same year have been estimated as 74,824,900.

The sheep in the U. S. S. R. in 1925 reached about 90.6% of the amount of 1916 (100). The growth of the sheep is indicated in percentage in comparison with 1916 as follows:

1916	1923	1924	1925
100%	67.8%	81.9%	90.6%

The increase in one (last) year reached 10.6%. The adult sheep increased 10.3% and the lamb 10.9%. These are the average figures but some sections of the U. S. S. R. like Bashkiria had the increase of 38.6%. In northeastern part of Russia it was 32.1%; in Viatkia about 13.8% and in Ural, 23.2%.

The sheep in U. S. S. R. can be divided roughly in four distinct types and only one type belongs to the fine wool type. The Russian sheep (Romanovsk, Caucasian and others) is delivering mutton and wool for general consumption in the union and is supplying a carpet wool for export, the low grade wool is being used by peasants for textile purposes for woolen shawls, etc.

THE Karakul and Persian sheep are native in the mountainous region of Bookhara and Afghanistan and are raised by natives for lamb skins known as Caracul, Astracan and Persian. But in the native land in Bookhara, this kind of sheep are raised for mutton and wool primarily. The lamb skins of caracul sheep are the object of the export from Russia to this country. The interest in the caracul a few years ago was very acute in this country. The American explorers and Dr. Young introduced caracul sheep into this country and into Canada and this type is raised in many American farms.

The fine wool type of sheep suffered very badly during the civil war and world war but is at present on its way to restoration. Commissariat of agriculture recognizing the necessity of re-establishment of fine wool sheep industry recently undertook the steps known to American Rambouibier sheep breeders. That was only a part of the program.

The swine industry is quickly re-established at the present time and the total amount of the swine in the U. S. S. R. is increased enuf to meet the demands for hams, lard and bacon. The movement of the re-establishment was as follows:

1916	1923	1924	1925
100%	46.7%	86.0%	83.2%

THE decline from 1924 to 1925 is caused by the over-production of the low grade swine which cannot be marketed on the outside market. The commissariat of agriculture or Narkomzaem started the intensive propaganda of the improvement of breeds of swine to meet the demand. Last year some Yorkshire type swine have been bought in England to stimulate the production of bacon. The bacon plants have been established in many places of the union and the products have been standardized to meet the market demand.

The Russian textile industry is in need of fine wool and imported a vast quantity of it. The program of the near future is the establishment of the fine wool sheep industry to meet the national demands of the U. S. S. R.

Poultry industry is one of the very important industries for the small farms of Central Russia. It is estimated that in 1922 about 13,971,102 farms are raising fowl of different types. According to statistical data of the central statistical bureau of the U. S. S. R., in 1920 there have been 89,973,400 heads of fowl divided according to types as follows:

Chicken	77,123,100
Geese	8,228,900
Turkeys	442,100
Ducks	3,963,400
Others	65,900
Total	89,973,400

THE production of the animal industry is immense but consumed mostly within the country and only dairy products, poultry products, hides bristles and swine are exported. The condition of the animal industry can be shown by figures presented recently by the central statistical bureau of the U. S. S. R. for the year of 1923-1924. The total amount of steers and cows fattened for meat have been estimated as 3,981,000 in counties and 103,000 heads in cities and the suburbs. They can be divided as follows:

	County	City
Steers and cows	3,981,000	103,000
Spring Veal	5,618,000	905,000
Fall Veal	2,123,000
Sheep and goats	27,684,000	132,000
Swine	10,699,000	149,000

The production of different meats using weight measures in poods (pood =36 English pounds) was as follows, for the years of 1922 and 1924:

		Turkestan Far East
	County	Caucasus	City
Beef	34,188,000	3,900,000	931,000
Veal	14,814,000	993,000	1,013,000
Mutton	24,175,000	3,780,000	106,000
Pork	44,314,000	1,132,000	744,000
	118,073,000	10,516,000	2,794,000

The production of hides and skins of different type can be also estimated as follows:

Steers skins	702,000	163,000
Other grades	4,180,000	452,000	134,000
"	3,192,000	215,000
"	5,618,000	416,000	905,000
Sheep	38,288,000	4,006,000	187,000
Horse	1,170,000	95,000	40,000

In weight measures it will be about 14,564,000 of poods. The production of the dairy industry comprised in 1923, 1924, about 1,314,074,000 poods of milk and 55,757,000 of butter fat. The production can be divided as follows:

County	1,314,087,000
Caucasus Turkestan Far East	60,415,000
City	67,264,000

The production of wool in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in 1923, 1924 was 4,444,000 poods.

One of the very important items of the export of the products of animal industry in the U. S. S. R. are the bristles. The production of which in the same year was about 100,000 poods.

Dressed poultry and other fowl of different kinds was 65,208,000 from which amount 7,880,000 was from Turkestan, Caucasus and Far East.

The production of eggs for the total union was 5,032,172,000 from which 393,739,000 was from Turkestan, Caucasus and Far East. Feather production, part of which has been exported, was 177,000 poods.

In the U. S. S. R. to the animal industry usually is added also the bee-keeping, products of which in 1923, 1924 brot 1,409,000 poods of honey from which amount 152,000 came from Caucasus, Turkestan and Far East. At the same time, 87,000 poods of bee wax have been produced from the territory of the U. S. S. R.

Agricultural Exports.

THE exports of agricultural products of the U. S. S. R. are comprised chiefly of grain, such as rye, wheat, barley, oats, of fibre flax, butter, eggs, pork and swine, dressed poultry, bristles, hides and skins, furs, lumber, tar, seeds and drugs.

Agricultural export fell in 1913 when it was 1,421,000,000 gold rubles to 10,000,000 gold rubles in 1920-1921, the dark days of Russian agriculture. It reached in 1923-1924, 290,000,000 gold rubles in the last period of 1924-1925 with the tendency to reach in 1925 and 1926 about 650,000,000 gold rubles.

The Needs of Russian Agriculture.

It is absolutely necessary to improve and to stimulate the agricultural education or extention work, (agricultural co-operation and technical improvement of the methods of agriculture.) The movement is recognized as very important in the life of the nation. To change the system of crop rotation, diversified farming, pure seeds, best breeds of animals and fowl, mechanization, pest control, electrification of farms are the most vital point of the agricultural work of agronomist and commissariat of agriculture in the U. S. S. R.

What the Russian peasant needs is up-to-date farming machinery and this, only the United States can give him. The old Russian school learned from the German text books and was very theoretical and not in close touch with the farmer which had been established. The extension work was very limited and the assistance of the county agent was only or mainly for the landlord. The landlords used the scientific agriculture methods of a German type but the peasant was outside of those improvements.

What America can give to U. S. S. R.

Pure seeds of the grains and forage grasses, such as Sudan Grass, Alfalfa, Timothy, grains like Marquise, Kota, Kamota, new strains of grains worked out in experimental stations of America were the first things received by Russian peasant from America in 1922; first in ounces and pounds, later in bushels, carloads and steamer-cargoes.

Harvesting machinery bindertwine, tractors, threshers, disc-harrows, rakes, tractor plows, wind-mills, sprayers, dusters, separators, incubators, etc., was the main items of the import from this country by the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics in 1923-1924.

Now came the time for animal industry and poultry. First have been shipped to Russia a fine breed of chickens, second, fine wool sheep and swine. The eye of the commissariat of agriculture is looking forward to the next years to meet the demand of the real power of the U. S. S. R., the Russian peasant, and what will be next can be predicted. After the peasant will be supplied with seeds, machinery, pure breed livestock, the country will need canning machinery, oil presses, reflectors, butter making installation, machinery for factories to work out the products of agriculture and all of that might be purchased in America.

A Russian agricultural agency has been established in America in 1921, in full accord with the U. S. department of agriculture from one side and the commissariat of agriculture or Narkomzem of the U. S. S. R. on the other. This country has been visited by many leading scientists and agronomists from the U. S. S. R. After their return, they described what they saw in the United States and this information has been added to their reports sent periodically by Russian agricultural agencies in America to the commissariat of agriculture, experimental stations and agricultural colleges in the U. S. S. R.

Many purchasing commissions came to this country with men of energy, devotion and knowledge. One such commission sailed recently for Russia after a cordial reception in this country.

May we assure you, gentlemen, that that was just at the start. The visit we refer to of Mr. M. S. Pereferkovich and Prof. M. F. Ivanov commanded by commissariat of agricultural or Narkomzem is the turning point in the policy of Narkomzem. That was the first step and a serious step towards the establishment of an exchange in the agricultural line. I am extremely sorry that both gentlemen mentioned above are not here and can't add some details to what I have said.

Dodged Taxes Could Pay Firemen's Raise

CHICAGO—(FP)—The taxes dodged by a single big antiunion trust would practicaly pay the entire sum needed by Chicago's city fire fighters to bring their wages to the level of a score of other American cities: The Firemen's Association of Chicago, local 2 of the Intl. Association of Fire Fighters, is on the warpath to make this trust and 34 other big fellows come across. The union is not asking for an increase in the general tax rate nor that the big fellows be pounced upon unfairly. It wants no more than that the wealthy be taxed on their holdings at the same rate as the poor have to pay.

The U. S. Gypsum Co., the nonunon openshop plaster trust, would be paying Chicago $640,000 a year in taxes if it were assessed as heavily in proportion as the small home owner or storekeeper. But it actually pays $40 (forty dollars) a year. Responsible financial houses place its valuation at $55,000,000 while the tax assessors placed it at $1,000, with a taxable basis of $500. The firemen want to see the city get the difference between $640,000 and $40.

There are 2,500 firemen on the city force, the great majority unionized. A flat raise of $300 demanded by the union would cost the city $750,000. The U. S. Gypsum's $639,960 check for dodged taxes would almost cover that and there are 34 other big fellows on whom the union has the goods. The hearing before the board of review commences Dec. 9.

U. S. Approves Fascist Dictatorship Regime, Says Italian Leader

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Dec. 8.—The United States gave its approval to the fascist government when it accepted the settlement of the Italian debt. Count Volpi, finance minister, declared today in the senate, when he made a speech thanking the senate for its approval of the debt settlement. Italians count on big loans from United States bankers to aid Italian industry.

COO[illegible]IDGE'S CHALLENGE TO LABOR

The Workers Must Fight for a Labor Program Against the President's Capitalist Program

Manifesto of Central Executive Committee of Workers (Communist) Party

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has fulfilled his constitutional duty of informing congress upon the state of the union. His message to congress is a challenge to every wage worker and exploited farmer of this country. The president speaking for the capitalist exploiters, the employers, bankers, railroad owners, grain and food trusts, declares that all is well in this country.

"It is exceedingly gratifying to report" says the president in his message, "that the general condition is one of progress and prosperity."

THIS view of the situation no doubt will satisfy the great corporations which are coining millions of dollars of profit out of the labor of the wage workers. It is satisfactory to the railroad companies which, thru high freight rates levied upon the products of the farmers, enjoy "general prosperity" as the president mentions in his message. It will be satisfactory to the great banking houses of Morgan, the National City Bank and other similar institutions which are reaping rich profits here and abroad thru support of the government.

But the workers and exploited farmers of this country will not share the president's optimism. The 158,000 anthracite coal miners who have been on strike for three months in order to win an addition to their wages which will enable them to live like human beings and for improvements in their working conditions, do not agree with the president's beautiful picture of capitalism and "progress and prosperity.

THE textile workers who have been forced to accept cuts in their wages in an industry protected by high tariff granted by the government are not sharing the prosperity about which the president waxes enthusiastic. The more than a half million bituminous coal miners who for several years have suffered from long periods of unemployment and low wages and whose standard of life is now under attack by the coal operators, do not find things satisfactory as the president pictures them to be from the standpoint of the capitalist exploiters.

The two million workers who could not find jobs thru which they could earn a living in the year 1924, the greater part of whom are still unemployed, are not sharing in the prosperity of those who make profits out of the labor of the workers.

THE clothing workers of this country who have had to fight against repeated attempts to cut their wages, who have had to meet long spells of unemployment are not as prosperous as those whom the president represents.

Every worker who thinks at all, knows that ths recent times in this country have been a period of vicious attack on the standard of life of the workers thru cutting wages and making worse their conditions of work. They know that there has been a drive by the employers to destroy the trade unions in order to make the workers helpless against the attack by their capitalist exploiters.

The millions of exploited farmers who have been driven from the farms, the millions of exploited farmers who are eking out a bare existence under the exploitation of banks, railroads and marketing associations who take most of the products of their labor, are not sharing in the president's "progress and prosperity."

WHEN the president pictures the present time as one of "progress and prosperity" he is not speaking for the workers and exploited farmers. He is speaking for those who oppress and exploit the wage worker and farmer. He is telling the workers in the name of their capitalist exploiters that they must not expect anything better than the conditions from which they are suffering.

The Program of the Capitalist Exploiter.

THE president, in his message, does not only express this general view in regard to the situation in this country, which will be resented and rejected by every wage worker and exploited farmer, but every specific recommendation to congress made in the president's message is a recommendation in the interests of the capitalist exploiters and against the interests of the wage workers and exploited farmers.

The president presents a program to congress which will increase the wealth and the power of the capitalists in this country and asks the workers to be satisfied with the crumbs which may fall from the table. For the president and the class for which he speaks, the workers and exploited farmers exist only to serve and enrich the capitalists of this country. No proposal made to congress improves their standard of life, relieves them from the hardships and suffering which is their lot under the capitalist system.

Here is the president's capitalist program:

Taxation.

THE president speaks at length about this question. He lauds the proposal of the congressional committee embodying a new tax bill presented to congress. But does this tax bill take any burden from the back of the workers? The most important phase of the bill is the reduction of surtaxes upon the swollen incomes of the big capitalists. The Rockefellers, Morgans, Fords and all the other millionaires and billionaires will save hundreds of millions of dollars thru the tax bill offered to congress, but the workers are to continue to pay the tax on their moving picture theater admission tickets. The tariff which increases the cost of the necessities of life for the workers is not reduced. Every big capitalist will join in the hallelujah of joy because of the president's tax reduction program but the workers must pay as before.

Militarism—Imperialism.

THE president boasts in his message "Never before in time of peace has our country maintained so large and effective a military force as it now has. The army, navy, marine corps, national guard, and organized reserves represent a strength of about 558,400 men."

In spite of this great military force the president demands of congress "a sound selective service act giving broad authority for the mobilization in time of peril of all the resources of the country, persons and material, is needed to perfect our defensive policy in accordance with our ideals of equality."

UNITED STATES BACKS TURKEY, SAYS PARIS PAPER IN EXPOSE WHICH MAY LEAD TO NEW WAR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, Dec. 9.—All Paris is engrossed in war talk today because of events of the past few days. Following close upon the heels of the exposure of the spy activities of the British foreign office in Paris, comes a startling expose to the effect that the United States of America is supporting Turkey, not only morally, but materially in its dispute with Great Britain over the Mosul oil concession. It is the powerful backing of the Rockefeller oil trust that enables the Turkish representatives to hurl defiance at Britain in the council meeting of the league of nations now taking place in Geneva.

The Paris Midi, a newspaper of wide influence and circulation, published the expose today in flaming headlines on the front page, bearing the words "British interests versus American oil interests." The article concluded with the query: "Will it mean war?"

France Also Interested.

That the impasse at Geneva means the widening of the breech between Britain and France no one can deny. It is also undeniable that the leading oil interests of France are subsidized by and working with Standard Oil against British interests in the middle east. The Mosul oil question which appears as a struggle between Britain and Turkey is the open form of a titanic struggle that is raging between British and American oil interests. While the Turks have their own national interests to serve, nevertheless it is a known fact that they cannot presume to challenge Britain unless they have powerful backing from a power equally as great. That

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THERE was dirty work done when the French police arrested three British spies and their French female accomplice almost before the sound of Briand's smacking kiss of amity on Austen Chamberlain's cheek was lost in the ether. The arrests hung a lovely mud clot on the soulful right eye of the Locarno pact, which was to sound the death knell of war between the European powers. We know the wily and slippery diplomats of England and France will outlive the shock but we tremble for the health of our pacifists.

• • •

IT is true that the Communists warned the pacifists that the Locarno pact was merely an accomodation between thieves, plus an alliance against Soviet Russia. The only obstacle in the way of an iron clad alliance is the incompatibility of interests between the capitalist powers

LABOR DEFENSE ANNUAL BAZAAR OPENS TONIGHT

Class War Prisoners' Handicraft on Sale

The third annual Chicago "Labor Defense" Bazaar begins tonight at NoNrthwest Hall, North Ave., and Western. The admission is free to all comers tonight. The local committee has already announced its aim and purpose—to raise $2,000 for the Zeigler miners' defense, and states that the postponement of the Zeigler trial to Feb. 2 makes the need no less urgent—the danger to these militant progressive miners no less imminent.

The bazaar committee reports a greater and richer variety of goods for sale, contributed and collected by the branches and members of the International Labor Defense—Local Chicago, than ever before. Among the attractions are articles made by class-war prisoners, a childrens's booth, a "honey-moon" shop—for workers, a literature and poster display, and various counters of all sorts of useful and desirable things, such as scales to weigh the baby, radio to entertain the kids, toilet articles to clean them, with foodstuffs to feed 'em, jewelry and rings for the vain—literally thousands of things to choose bargains from, says the committee.

Announcement of the great international entertainment program for each night—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—will be made in the following issues of the DAILY WORKER.

CHILE COMES BACK WITH A VOTING PLAN

Demands Plebiscite by February 1

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 9.—The plebiscitary commission, headed by the august Gen. "Black-Jack" Pershing, meets this morning and it is expected all three representatives, including Senor Edwards of Chile who withdrew last week in protest against the delay, will attend.

Make Demonstration.

The Chileans are to make a demonstration outside the barracks where the commission meets. Inside Senor Edwards is to present a resolution demanding that a date be fixed for registration and voting. This proposes that the committee which is supposed to look after registration and supervise the election must report by December 10, and all arrangements must be completed by Dec. 15.

Senor Edwards will ask also that the registration boards for voters be opened by December 20 and remain open until January 10, the plebiscitary vote to determine to which nation, Chile or Peru, the disputed territory is to go, be held on February 1.

Get 'Em Used to It.

If Pershing rejects these proposals, it is clear that the United States is delaying the solution of the dispute while it keeps American armed forces in Latin-America in order that Latin-Americans become accustomed to their being bossed by U. S. marines and soldiery.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A bust of John D. Rockefeller, the work of J. O. Davidson, was unveiled in the main hall of the Standard Oil building.

ELECTRIC TRUST ASKS 'FARMERS' FOR ASSISTANCE

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, which has been accused of controlling the electric lighting and power of the nation before the federal trade commission and has its eyes on the Muscle Shoals project and has applications in Washington for 400 more water-power projects filed by its subsidiaries urged the banker-farmers at the American Farm Bureau Federation meeting here to support the "American manufacturing interests" in the development of water-power projects in America.

Young also urged these large landholders and bankers, who are making life miserable for the real farmers, to join the manufacturing interests in a drive to electrify the railroads, starting at congested terminals and extending to mountain grades "where steam locomotives are inefficient."

LEFT WING IN GARMENT WORKERS' CONVENTION WHIPS MACHINE ON CIVIC FEDERATION AND FASCISM

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—The special convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union today condemned the bloody Mussolini government of Italy and complimented the Italian locals of the organization for waging a fight against the fascisti in America who are the representatives of the enslavers and murderers of the Italian workers.

The resolution was introduced by an Italian local and was amended by Delegate Rubin of the left wing, to include the demand that the United States government sever diplomatic relations with the Mussolini government.

Dubinsky Tries Obstruction

Dubinsky, chairman of the resolutions committee refused to include the amendment in the committee's motion. But the amendment and the committee's recommendations were unanimously adopted.

Also by unanimou vote the convention condemned the Civic Federation as the worst enemy of labor and demanded that all labor official sever connection with it. Rose Wortis pointed out that adopting resolutions and placing them in the minutes was not sufficient, that the delegates to the American Federation of Labor must have courage to make the floor and

NEW YORK HIRES THREE LARGE HALLS FOR COMING LENIN MEMORIAL MEETING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—On Jan. 24 a Lenin memorial meeting will be held. Due to pressure from the American Flag Association and other capitalist agencies Madison Square Garden has been refused us.

We have therefore been forced to select a number of halls as there is not a single hall in the city large enough outside of the garden. We have secured New Star Casino, Central Opera House and Millers Grand Assembly and have also an option on three more large halls in the city. We can fill six halls with 20,000 workers and show the authorities they can not stop us from celebrating the Lenin memorial nor can they stop the growing numbers who will attend.

RUSSIAN METAL TRADE UNIONS HOLD CONGRESS

Conference Stands for Trade Union Unity

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R. (By Mail.)—The seventh national congress of the Metal Workers' Union in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics opened in the Trade Union House here with the members of the Norwegian, Swedish, Finnish and Lettish metal workers' unions present being enthusiastically elected as honorary members of the presidium.

Comrade Tomsky, the chairman of the Trade Union Council of the Soviet Union delivered a speech of greeting in which he pointed to the unexampled development of Soviet industry without outside assistance and to the numerical, cultural and political growth of the working class in the Soviet Union. The Soviet unions carry on an immense cultural work and the self-confidence of the working class which takes an active part in the work of socialist reconstruction has developed strongly. The Soviet unions are no longer isolated, the economic blockade of the bourgeoisie has suffered the same fiasco as the attempt to isolate the working class of the Soviet Union.

Thru the fraternal delegations which have visited the Soviet Union the working class has come into direct contact with the working class in almost all the European countries. The idea of international unity has been accepted by the majority of the international working class.

Need of World Unity.

Lepse, chairman of the Metal Workers' Union, greeted the metal workers delegated to the congress from abroad. His declaration that altho they were affiliated to the Amsterdam International they were nevertheless prepared to fight together with the Russian metal workers for international unity met with loud applause.

Djerjinsky, chairman of the supreme economic council of the Soviet Union, stressed the importance of the army of metal workers in Russia, 700,000 strong, as decisive for the whole economy of the Soviet Union, for the level of industry, and in particular for the level of agriculture.

"The enemies of the Soviet Union reckoned that it would not be able to re-establish its heavy industries, but the literally tumultuous advance of the metal industry in the Soviet Union in the years 1924-25 has proved the contrary," declared Djerjinsky. "This advance created a firm basis for the work of socialist reconstruction. This success is chiefly due to the firm will of the working class which stands at the helm in the Soviet Union. The industrial inheritance from the bourgeoisie is as good as exhausted and a program of wide-scale building, particularly of factories, is now on the agenda. The pre-war level must be overtaken. It is true that without credits from abroad the work of economic reconstruction will be slowed down, but the working class of the Soviet Union will nevertheless accomplish its aims. The alliance of workers and peasants remains the basis for the work of reconstruction which is being carried on by the non-party workers unitedly with the Communists in all trade unions."

R. I. L. U. Greets Congress.

Comrade Losovsky greeted the congress in the name of the Red International of Labor Unions. He pointed to the effects of the economic recovery in the Soviet Republics, to the growing influence of the Soviet Union in world politics, to the attraction of the Soviet Union for the international working class, to the immense growth of the revolutionary movements in the colonial and half-colonial countries, etc.

Losovsky greeted the delegates from abroad in particular and called upon them to take an energetic part in the struggle for international trade union unity and concluded his speech amidst storms of applause with the cry: "All roads lead to Moscow, to the heart of the world revolution!"

Swedish Union For Unity.

Eckmann, chairman of the Swedish Metal Workers Union, greeted the congress, thanked the Russian comrades for their invitation and declared: "Despite various differences of opinion, we greet the achievements of the Russian revolution with all our hearts. It has shown the world an unexampled display of the creative force of the proletariat in the construction of their own state. The Swedish proletariat has gone another way, but we firmly hope that the idea of international unity will soon triumph and that the Russian metal workers will be able to enter the family of international metal workers as equal and welcome members."

Arndsen, the representative of the Norwegian metal workers, stressed the fact that the Norwegian trade movement had completely joined the struggle for unity. He declared that bourgeois Europe was in a state of cultural and economic decay, whilst Soviet Russia was at work upon the construction of a new world. In his opinion, the question of international trade union unity would play a decisive part in the coming struggles of the European working class.

SOCIALIST WRITER, WORKING ON CAPITALIST SHEET, IN ROLE OF GO-BETWEEN FOR SIGMAN MACHINE

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—Edward Levinson, member of the editorial staff of the socialist New Leader, convention correspondent for the New York World, and press agent for Sigman, combines here three functions which disclose the complete absence of any difference in principle between the Sigman machine, the socialist press and the capitalist sheet.

Aids Capitalist Press.

Levinson is the guide, counselor and friend of the capitalist press representatives at the convention. It was Levinson who, in his capacity as press agent and all around lackey for the worst elements in the International Ladies' Garment Workers, sent in a crookedly concocted story misquoting Hyman as to the abilities of certain left wing delegates.

It is Levinson of a socialist newspaper staff who interprets the convention debates and describes personalities for the benefit of the capitalist press reporters so that the left wing is made to appear in the worst possible light. The New York World has publish the most vicious stories that have yet appeared and for them the Sigman machine must take responsibility.

It is noticeable that this organic connection between the socialist and capitalist press and the Sigman machine is carried into the officers report wherein the New Leader is commended for services rendered.

Slimy War on Left Wing.

The Sigmanites are using the capitalist press in their war on the left wing and thru Levinson plan to make the Communists the center of attack in the press by using the columns of the World to which Levinson has access.

The mechanics of the thing will be to play up Zimmermann, a Communist, as the real leader of the left wing and strive to conceal all other basic organization questions by giving Hyman little if any publicity. The desperate situation of the Sigman machine and its essentially unscrupulous character can be shown in no better way than by this truckling to the capitalist sheets.

If you want to thoroughly understand Communism—study it.

Boston International Labor Defense Arranges Ball to Meet New Year

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—The International Labor Defense of Boston will greet the new year with a dance at Convention Hall, for the purpose of raising funds for the release of class war prisoners and others in danger of being sent to capitalist dungeons. The dance committee holds that no more appropriate manner could be found of spending this evening, usually given over to some form of festivity than to attend this affair, when you can at once enjoy yourself and assist our comrades languishing in jail.

The committee in charge intends to establish the International Labor Defense dance as the greatest event on the workers' social calendar and has engaged one of the finest orchestras in Boston. Tickets are 75 cents each.

Committees of the International Labor Defense are canvassing local unions and other workers' organizations in Boston seeking their support for this undertaking and asking affiliation to the local section.

RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS CONDEMNS TRIAL OF TWELVE BRITISH COMMUNISTS

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The Executive Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions addressed a telegram to the condemned English Communists expressing its fraternal solidarity with the Communist Party of Great Britain and with Minority Movement, and describes the attack of the Baldwin government upon the Communist Party of Great Britain and the Minority Movement as the first step in a great offensive against the vital interests of the whole English working class. The attempt to make the Communist Party of Great Britain illegal is an attempt to make the offensive of the employers easier to carry on. This attack takes place after the decisions of the labor party conference in Liverpool against the Communist Party and against the Minority Movement.

The internal connection between these decisions and the court sentence is obvious. That section of the English working class which honestly voted for the proposals of MacDonald in Liverpool, is now able to see thru the trial of the Communists, for whom it actually prepared the way. The Red International of Labor Unions firmly hopes that the whole English working class will feel the London sentence as a blow directed against it and will give the bourgeoisie the necessary answer.

ITALIAN POLICE FRAME WORKERS' ORGANIZATIONS

Fascists Attempt to Destroy Opposition

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.— In a proclamation to the Italian workers and peasants, the executive committee of the Communist International points out that the recent complot against Mussolini was organized by the fascist police with the intention of destroying workers and other organizations.

Pauperize Workers.

It is further pointed out that in order to pay the war debts to America, the Italian workers, who are at present struggling with high food prices and low wages, will be further pauperized by the fascisti.

The proclamation calls upon the workers and peasants in Italy to unite and overthrow the fascist regime and follow the lead of the Russian workers.

Workers and Peasants Unite!

"Peasants and workmen", declared the Communist International, "it is impossible to succeed by acting separately. Terrorist acts are the weapons of those who are tools in the hands of provocateurs. Peasants and workmen! You will not find salvation by applying constitutional opposition. Your salvation and deliverance from fascist oppressors and murderers rests in your hands. Unite and organize for your defense. By uniting in the defense of your freedom and bread, you will conquer the regime of murder which shames your country.

Follow Russian Workers Lead.

"See how the proletariat and peasantry of Russia, thru a strong and active organization, abolished the czarist regime. What they did against the czar can be done by you against the tyranny of the fascisti. The proletariat everywhere will be with you in your struggle."

CALLES HAS HIS EASY SIDE FOR CAPITALIST OIL WELL INVESTORS

MEXICO, CITY, Dec. 9. — That President Calles does not spend all his time showing his teeth to United States imperialism for Mexicans to marvel at his courage, is indicated in the interview of an oil man of the United States, who says, "Calles understands the necessity of encouraging the oil men and attracting oil capital to Mexico, therefore he is trying to make the exploitation of oil easier and more satisfactory to the investors of capital."

At Calles' order the ministry of industry yesterday issued a decree to facilitate oil exploitation, making the terms easier and extending the boundaries of oil areas.

Wells on the lands of the national railways are producing more than 100,000 barrels a day. The government has ordered thirty more drilled, probabaly to turn over along with the railways, to private owners, all ready for them.

Storage of oil is being made heavily along the railway lines to keep in case of strikes and political trouble.

themselves. The pacifists gurgled with joy when the pact was signed, just as they did when Wilson declared war on Germany "to crush kaiserism" and later on when he framed the "fourteen points" and again later when he sponsored the league of nations.

THE pacifists are always hoping against hope that the capitalist tigers will park their claws in cold molasses and go on a milk diet, instead of living on the flesh and blood of the working class and oppressed peoples—their natural diet. The pacifists as a rule live on incomes drawn from the same source, so they would like to continue to do so, while enjoying the thrill of swinging a wicked puff a the cashier now and then. The pacifists want the present system to continue, but they would like to dress it up like a Sunday school teacher.

• • •

THE British spies were commissioned by the same government that infests Soviet Russia with "intelligence experts" to get the facts on the latest developments in French war aviation. This means that England looks with a jaundiced eye on her neighbour across the channel, and the osculatory exchange between the volatile Briand and the aristocratic ice berg Chamberlain did not halt the activities of the British intelligence departments for one moment. Of course, this is no news to anybody but a fool or a pacifist. Capitalist powers trust each other about as much as insurance agents.

THE league of nations is in trouble again. And so is the world court. Both are related. In fact the court is a feeler for the league. Britain wants the oil that is buried generously in the subsoil of Mesopotamia. The particular spot is Mosul. England has no more right to the oil than "Yellow Kid" Weil, of Chicago, our outlawed confidence man, who refuses to join the chamber of commerce and be a regular fellow. Turkey also wants Mosul, and the natives being a good deal like Turks, appear to have a reasonable claim to it. England however, being tender hearted, fears that the Mosulians would be unhappy under the Turkish "yoke."

• • •

BEING of this opinion England will have the oil if it costs her the last Hindo soldier in her armies. But in order to have the support of the good ladies of Fifth Ave., Newport and the Chicago Gold Coast, England calls on the lague of nations to do its duty. The lague tried to do so, but the thumb of Turkey's right hand flew to a finely chiseled nose and England tried the world court. A loud "haw-haw" from Turkey greeted her new dodge. But England continued her efforts to save the Mosulians from Turkey. Finally the world court, alias England, decided that Turkey must abide by the unanimous decision of the league council, minus the votes of Turkey and England on the question of oil rights in Mosul. The Turks having a sense of humor, laughed moderately and then told the league to go and chase itself. Mussolini did the same thing, when he suddenly turned loose, his cannon on an island full of Greeks. Nothing happened to him, human beings not being as precious as oil. Just now it looks like trouble between England and Turkey over Mosul. It will be interesting to watch what will happen to the Locarno pact. It may work for England, but it will not bring peace.

THE son of a Chicago millionaire was sentenced to life imprisonment a few years ago for murder. He is now enjoying the open air. Far be it from us to suggest that the family millions had any effect on governor Small's parole board, but one cannot help thinking that had he been a penniless murderer, he would spend the rest of his life behind the bars, or get his neck broken on the gallows.

• • •

JUST what we expected happened to the famous anti-injunction bill, secured by labor leaders, thru the assistance of their "friends" in the Illinois legislature. Judge "Dennie" Sullivan landed a haymaker on its jaw and it is down for the count. In fact it is not longer of any account. The law provided for peaceful picketing. The labor fakers boasted that what the workers need is patience. This virtue would bring them relief from the more onerous burdens now laid on them by the employers. "See the anti-injunction bill" they chortled. But the law is dead, at least temporarily. Yet it is enouraging to note with what never failing hope the labor fakers renew their fight to have another similar law placed on the statute books.

• • •

THOSE labor leaders are sanguine. They have no reason to be otherwise. Even tho capitalist legislators may refuse to pass laws that might benefit the workers, and capitalist judges are sure to kill such laws if passed, the labor fakers, will be given soft berths by the employers, in case the union payroll gets congested. In the meantime, pickets are arrested and strikes are lost while the fakers hob nob with the capitalist politicians and if somebody suggests that the workers should organize a labor party, he is frowned upon and told that the non-partisan policy of rewarding friends and punishing enemies has "worked." Yes, for the enemies of the workers and for the labor fakers.

Only Soviet Program Can Realize Disarmament and Bring Peace to the World

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, an invitation is going forward from the council of the league of nations to the Union of Soviet Republics asking it to send representatives to participate in the work of a special commission to arrange for an international disarmament conference. Indications are that the Soviet government will accept. Christian Rakovsky, Soviet ambassador at Paris, says:

> "We are ready to participate in any pacification effort in Europe, in economic conferences, in disarmament conferences, but we cannot enter the league itself because we would be in the unfair position of one lone socialist state facing all the other states united by the same economic conception and the same social conception."

That short explanation, however, will never seep into the brains of those who edit the kept press, like the editor of the Chicago Tribune. They refuse to understand it. Every participation by Soviet rule in the affairs of the capitalist states is interpreted by them to mean that the Soviet Union is being brought closer to the profit governments, that the Union of Soviet Republics will ultimately join the league of nations.

• • • •

Soviet participation in many of the conferences of the league, however, like the gathering called to consider European waterways, can be used to benefit and strengthen workers' and peasants' rule. The greatest service, however, that Soviet spokesmen attending a disarmament conference can render world labor is to blast the peace pretensions of the imperialist governments. This they invariably must do.

The Soviet Union alone can enter a disarmament conference with sincere intentions. Following its overwhelming defeat administered to imperialist intervention it reduced its army to a mere frontier guard. It makes no lavish expenditure for huge naval armaments. It champions an economic order that will eliminate commercial rivalry between nations, and groups of nations, that alone makes world peace possible.

All this the Soviet representatives told the world in the discussion of disarmament at the Genoa conference of the league of nations in 1922. It was denounced, of course, as Bolshevik propaganda.

President Harding did not invite the Soviet Union to participate in the disarmament conference held in Washington. Since Coolidge ascended to the presidency, he has been trying to call the gathering that is now to be undertaken by the league, and to which the United States and Germany, as well as the Soviet Union, have been invited.

• • • •

Coolidge indicates that the United States will participate. It will be interesting then to watch the Wall Street political agents squirm under the questions of the Soviet representatives demanding to know why Coolidge, in his annual message to congress boasts of the formidability of the U. S. army and navy and demands the militarization of the American population and industry. The dollar representatives will not answer, except to evade, but the Russians will tell them that it is because dollarocracy needs naval, land and air armaments to seek and maintain foreign markets for the sale of its surplus products, and new fields for investment and exploitation. It can only get and hold them thru maintaining greater and stronger armaments than those of any other capitalist nation.

• • • •

This condition is dawning more and more upon the minds of American workers and farmers. They are realizing that the Soviet method is the one that safeguards their interests and gives real promise of world peace. They are turning their backs upon the Wall Street plan that calls upon them to bleed and die for the imperialists' dollars in endless wars as long as capitalism lasts.

LANDLORDS TELL OF BEING FORCED INTO SOCIETIES

A delegation of fifteen witnesses, members of the Real Estate Owners' Association of Chicago, appeared before Chief Justice Thomas J. Lynch and placed charges against a number of agents who have virtually controlled their property.

They brought out that they were forced by the fear of having their homes and stores bombed to join the association and that after they had joined they were told that the renting of the stores would be in the hands of a business agent.

Bombs Emphasize Remarks.

The moment any attempt was made to rent the store to someone that the business agent did not approve of, a bomb would emphasize the agents' remarks.

A number testified as to how wholesale dealers refused to sell goods to them when the association had levied a fine against them and they had not paid promptly enough.

Business Men Use Bombers.

Chicago is being treated to bomb trust revelations in which business men are the backers of bombers and have used them quite frequently to bomb their competitors' stores. The business men's associations are also using bombers to "line-up" members into their associations.

B. & O. Engine Blast Kills Cabmen; Unusual Incident Investigated

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 9—An investigation was begun today into one of the most unusual accidents in railroad history—the explosion of a traveling locomotive last night resulting in the death of Engineer R. J. Ryan of Wilmington, and Fireman A. W. Churchman of Philadelphia, and injury to ten passengers.

The locomotive, attached to B. & O. train No. 49, Philadelphia to Baltimore, was traveling about 30 miles an hour, when the boiler suddenly exploded. The engine turned turtle and two cars left the track, shaking up the passengers.

LOSOVSKY SHOWS CONSERVATIVES JAILED WORKERS

Denounces Class Nature of British Courts

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9—In an article in the Pravda, A. Losovsky, head of the Red International of Labor Unions, points out that the persecution of the Communists in England is directed by the conservatives in power and shows the class character of the British government.

In referring to the recent trial of the twelve Communists who were sentenced to jail, he declares: "It was the direct work of the conservative party which is now at the state helm in England and to which both the attorney general and the judge belong. The only 'crime' of the Communists on account of their membership of an alleged illegal Communist Party, a party which has actually existed for 6 years in full publicity, consisted in the fact that the theory and practice of Communism is not taken into account in the English constitution."

Losovsky then points out how miserably the original intention to produce proofs of a financing of the English Communist Party from Moscow has collapsed, and been given up by the court.

"When one takes into consideration the paternal attitude of the same courts and the same police towards the fascist organizations, then the whole shamelessness of this 'justice' comedy is clear," writes Losovsky.

"The English bourgeoisie, which for years together with the reformists, has contended that bolshevism is an imported article and that it could not win a place on Anglo-Saxon ground, now sees itself faced with a growing Communist Party and it seeks to save itself by fighting with the weapon of intimidating processes.

Destroy Democracy Myth.

"The English bourgeosie has destroyed the whole decorum of formal democracy, of juridical independence, of bourgeois freedom, etc., it goes around those sections of the constitution which hamper an oppression of the working class. All English workers who still accept the so-called independence and classlessness of the courts as realities, have now received an object lesson and can no longer fail to recognize the true class character of the juridical vengeance inflicted upon the Communist Party."

Follows Vassals Footsteps.

"The English bourgeoisie is following in the footsteps of its vassals, [illegible] Poland, Roumania and Bulgaria, [illegible] considers that the time is ripe to introduce its colonial regime into England itself. This is least of all a proof of the stability of the conservative government and the class which it represents. The sentence against the Communists means the opening [illegible] new stage in the history of the British working class movement. The task of the conservative government was to disorganize and isolate the Communist Party, but in fact, exactly opposite results have been achieved. Without doubt the whole English working class movement will occupy itself earnestly with this question.

"The trial of the English Communists has ended, the trial of the English bourgeoisie is beginning!"

FARMERS OPPOSE ELECTRIC TRUST POWER SCHEMES

Master or Slave Is Big Issue

H. C. Fillmore

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NORTON, Mass., Dec. 9.—The project to harness the tides in Passamaquoddy Bay, lying on the Atlantic coast between Maine and New Brunswick and by a system of locks and dams develop 750,000 horse power continuously, is a scheme that is being fostered by the power interests and opposed by the farmers of New England.

As to how this super-power scheme strikes the New England farmer generally is seen in an article appearing in the New England Homestead which says: "Super-power is here, not afar, off. Last week saw the completion of negotiations that have been under way for weeks whereby the New England Power Co., Power Corporation of New York System, Stone & Webster and International Paper Co., have pooled their holdings in the electric light and power system covering a large part of New England and Northern New York. These interests own hydro and steam plants having an output of more than 1,000,000,000 kilowatt hours annually . . . this output can be increased five times the present amount.

Master or Slave?

"Shall super-power master or serve New England?

"Shall rural manufacturers villages, and farms be regenerated or shall our white coal be drained away to other districts?

"Squarely up to people, what will they do? New England Public Service Co. advertises that 12 months earnings to July 31, equalled over 20 per cent on its new offerings of 80,000 no par prior lien preferred at 100. per share.

Huge Power Earnings

"This means that present rates are so high as to net nearly three times the proposed 7 per cent dividends upon all this new stock. It is advertised that such earnings have increased over 44 per cent in two years.

"Add the changes now being caused by busses supplanting trolleys and railroads, the effect upon New England of pending efforts for higher or lower freight rates, not to mention higher phone rates granted in Massachusetts and about to be demanded in our other states, is not the Homestead amply justified in warning the public to beware lest some of these factors become our masters instead of our servants?"

Big Business Smiles Up Sleeve at Co-ops.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Co-operative activity in marketing and supply, in the United States, goes in waves, and only with these recurrent "bursts of enthusiasm," says the report of the committee on methods of distribution to the nationwide business mass meeting which is staged for Dec. 14-15 in Washington. This report is called a study, and was drawn up by L. H. D. Weld, of the commeercial research department of Swift and Co., of the big three meat packers. In general, it points to the chain store and giant commercial house as the logical type of modern marketing, and denies that any fundamental change can be made whereby the middleman will be eliminated.

"Co-operative marketing", says Weld, "exists primarily in the field of agriculture. Few manufactured products are marketed co-operatively, except butter, but many manufactured products are purchased co-operatively by the farmers. The first great co-operative wave was during the Granger movement of the '70s. In spite of these ups and downs the general tendency of the movement is decidedly upward."

Allot Forest Lands.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The separation of so-called forests of local importance which are only to serve the needs of the local peasantry from the general state forests has had the following result: in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics 15,400,000 desiatins of forest land have already been handed over to the peasantry for use, namely, about 145 per cent which is one and a half times more forest land than the peasants possessed hitherto.

ESTHONIAN COURTS JAIL WORKERS FOR UNION ACTIVITIES

REVAL, Esthonia, Dec. 9. — The court here sentenced a worker, Goruschkin to 7 years hard labor for proposals made by him in a trade union meeting in 1921. His crime was a proposal that the Esthonian trade unions should affiliate with the R. I. L. U.

Court in Dorpat sentenced two young workers, both minors, to 4 and 6 years imprisonment respectively on account of alleged activity dangerous to the state carried on by them inside the trade unions.

GARY DEMANDS CONGRESS PASS MORROW REPORT

Angered by Demands for Investigation

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the steel trust and a loud advocate of perparation for war, expressed his ire at those in congress who are fostering the move to investigate the investigators that conducted the Dwight W. Morrow report on aircraft, and demands the immediate passage of the recommendations by congress at a meeting of manufacturers of armament and chemical gases here.

The Dwight W. Morrow report minimizes the danger of an air attack and shows that it is necessary to increase land and water fortifications. It also rejects Colonel William Mitchell's idea of an independent air service.

Gary, who has made millions in steel that he sold to the United States and foreign powers during the world war is opposed to the air service being developed as an independent arm as it might seriously hurt his money-making.

"We view with apprehension the possibility that national defense may become the football of politics in the forthcoming session of congress," bewailed the steel magnate. "There appears to be a desire on the part of a certain element in congress to investigate the investigators and so prolong the controversy ad infinitum, whereas, what the army and navy really most need at this time is a moratorium of agitation from within and investigation from without."

"Bible Crusaders" Start Drive in Legislatures for Anti-Evolution Laws

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 9.—George H. Washburn, Boston millionaire and friend of the late William Jennings Bryan, led the advance guard of his "bible crusaders" into Tampa, Fla., recently, to begin a campaign "to seek legislation curbing teaching of the evolution theory on the ground it undermines faith in the bible."

Washburn has donated $100,000 to the campaign and asserts that he will give as much more if it is needed. The "crusade" will move from Florida northward. In Washington a national headquarters will be established.

Evangelism, radio and a new magazine, the "Crusador's Champion", will be the instruments of propaganda.

Announcement that an anti-evolution bill will be offered in congress has been made by several representatives.

Ferguson Mansion Busy Scene as Legislators Confer with "Governor"

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 9.—"Ma" Ferguson's mansion here is a busy scene as senators and members of the state legislature are called in by the real power in Texas, Jim Ferguson, to prevent the special impeachment session which is threatened to be called.

Speaker of the house, Lee Satterwhite, has about 50 signatures to a petition calling for a special session. It requires 100 to constitute a quorum. Jim Ferguson, who has been handing out juicy plums to his confederates, is conferring with as many members of the house as he can, getting their promises not to attend the special session.

As far as the senate is concerned, the Ferguson gang feel quite confident that the senate high court of impeachment will refuse to take any action against them.

WORKERS MUST COMBAT ATTEMPT TO KILL RAKOSI

First Stage of Fight Has Been Won

(By INPRECOR.)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—In an issue of the Pravda, Comrade Bela Kun, head of the short-lived Hungarian Soviet which was overthrown by the funds contributed by American bankers to "aid the starving Hungarians," points out that the first stage in the fight to save the life of Mathias Rakosi, a former people's commissar in the Hungarian Soviet, has been won. He points out that his transfer from the extraordinary court to the civil court will not mean the saving of his life, unless the workers continue their energetic activities on behalf of Rakosi.

"Thanks to the determined and energetic action of the Hungarian working class, the international proletariat and all honest intellectuals of the old and new world, the first period of the struggle to save the lives of Rakosi and his four comrades has been successfully brought to a conclusion," declares Bela Kun.

Praise Heroism.

Bela Kun then praises the cold-blooded heroism of the accused before the extraordinary court and points out that the transfer of the process to an ordinary tribunal is due to the following considerations:

1. The pressure exercised by the Hungarian workers and peasants upon the Hungarian government. This was so great that even the allies of the government, the social democrats were compelled not only to protest against the extraordinary court, but also to bring forward the question of legalizing the Communist Party.

2. The unexampled solidarity of the international working class which carried thru an immense protest action, a protest action which was sabotaged only by the most corrupt elements in the Second International, MacDonald for instance, and which was supported by prominent scholars, men of science, literature, art, etc., all over the world.

3. The split in the ranks of the Hungarian ruling class itself: whilst Horthy is wholly in favor of extraordinary courts, Bethlen is in favor of using them only in execeptional circumstances.

Acting under the pressure of the fascists, the government handed over Rakosi to the extraordinary court, and now the transfer of the process to an ordinary court is intended to represent the reintroduction of the so-called regime of legality.

To Legalize Murder.

Bela Kun stresses the fact that it is only the first stage in the struggle for the life of Rakosi which has been won, and that his life is in danger from the ordinary court also, as this latter is treating his actions during the proletarian dictatorship as criminal. The process will have an immense political importance as far as it deals with the question of legalizing the Communist Party. The Communist Party of Hungary is naturally aware of the exact importance to be attached to the hypocritical bourgeois and social democratic demands for the legalization of the party, and whilst exposing this hypocrisy it will struggle with strengthened powers for its legalization and its growth into a mass party.

Plantation Owners Hold Filipino Girls in Bondage for Debts

MANILA, Dec. 9.—Cases of young girls who must serve from one to seven years in bondage to a plantation owner for debts ranging from $27 to $75 have been uncovered in the Occidental Negros Province.

At a plantation near Isabella, many girls are pressed into bondage by the plantation owners for debts and are forced to work many years for these debts without pay. While working on the plantation, all of the food, clothing and shelter are deducted from the girls' "wages" and as the plantation owners do as they please ,the girls go further and further into debt.

A number of charges of illegal detentions and homicide have been filed against some of the plantation owners. But as the governor general's office and the plantation owners work hand in hand it is not expected that the trial will alleviate this condition.

Production of Steel Increases in Russia

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—Reports recently issued on the production of the South Steel Trust (Yugostal) show that the business year which terminated on October 1 has been a record one. Production which amounted in the previous year to 53,100,000 roubles increased to 116,500,000 roubles, namely, an increase of 119.5 per cent.

Steel production has increased 128.7 per cent as compared with the previous year, and the production of rolled iron 135 per cent.

The number of worker semployed was 37,200 in the first quarter of last year and 59,000 at the end of the year. In the trust coal mines the yield of coal has increased 50 per cent, whilst the amount of coal used by the trust itself has decreased.

RUSSIAN AND BRITISH TRADE UNIONS DISCUSS WORLD UNITY IN BERLIN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—Michael Tomsky, chairman of the Russian trade unions, is here to meet the delegates from the British Trade Union Congress on the question of world trade union unity. Alexander Bogadov, Gregoire Melnitchansky, Jean Lepse, Theodore Ugarov and Jacques Yaglom, all members of the presidium of the Russian trade unions accompanied Tomsky to Berlin.

The British delegation consists of Hicks, Pough and Findley.

"While the direction of the conference work and the activity of the British-Russian committee depend upon the decision of the active members of the Amsterdam international," declared Tomsky, "we hope that the conference will strengthen international uniformity. Undoubtedly we shall find a common language in our conversations with our English colleagues. Despite all obstacles unity will finally triumph, because the vital interests of the proletariat demand it."

This conference of the Russian and British delegations is being called in conformity with the decisions of the Scarborough Trade Union Congress.

WEALTHY FIRMS MAKE WAY WITH $250,000,000 TAX

Large Corporations Dodge Laws

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 9. — Charges that powerful corporations in the oil, steel, and metal industries have benefited to the extent of $250,000,000 in the settlement of disputed tax cases is made in a preliminary report to the senate committee investigating maladministration in the internal revenue bureau.

To Report Loop-Holes.

The committe will consider reporting to the senate a number of loopholes that the rich corporations have been able to find in the income tax laws and claims are made that $600,000,000 has been deducted from the incomes of large corporations thru allowances for amortization.

Legal Fixers.

Undoubtedly there are "legal fixers" in high places in the government who are able for "considerations" to "fix" a corporations' tax bill, just as there were a John T. King, Jesse Smith, Ned Thurston and others in the department of justice and alien property custodian's office and in many other departments of the federal government, and the committee will discuss whether it will investigate who these legal "fixers" are. A number of sessions have been held of the committee behind closed doors and the proceedings are held in secrecy.

At an enthusiastic organization meeting, Maria Beuder was elected secretary. Dutch Indies Workers Fight Imperialist Rule

HAGUE, Dec. 9.—The workers of the Dutch Indies are carrying on already for years a hard struggle against the Dutch imperialists. Thousands of workers and peasants have been thrown into prison for their fight against the terrible exploitation, the brutal acts of violence and oppression of the Dutch government. The struggle of the workers is being carried on under the leadership of the Communist Party of the Dutch Indies and of the national revolutionary organizations "Sarekat Rayat," and furthermore by the trade unions. During the last strikes in August of this year all leaders of the local trade unions were arrested. All strikes are suppressed by brutal means. In the strike of the dockers which took place recently in Belawana, the demonstrators were dispersed by force of arms and many workers, and women fell victim to the brutal police.

Agricultural Co-operative Society.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The society has 38,000 consumers' co-operatives and 420 agricultural co-operatives. On July 1, 1925, the co-operatives included 5,000,000 peasant farms, whilst in October of the previous year they included only 3,00,000.

On January 1, the total capital of the society amounted to 712,000,000 roubles and on July 1, already to 900,000,000 roubles.

GREECE REFUSES TO TAKE BLAME FOR INVASION

League Council Meeting to Fix Indemnity

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 9—It is expected that the league of nations council will endorse the findings of its special commission calling upon Greece to pay a heavy indemnity to Bulgaria for its invasion. Greece is dissatisfied with the decision of the league of nations special commission and points out that she did not invade Bulgaria, but that she did just what the Italians did at Corfu. She claims her act was punitive.

Must Pay $6,000,000.

Bulgaria demanded the league make Greece pay $10,400,000 for the death of 12 Bulgarians and the discomforts caused by the Bulgars who fled from the villages and also $6,200,000 for the loss in livestock, equipment, etc., which Greek soldiers stole from the Bulgarian villages. The league of nations commission recommended that Greece pay $2,000,000 on the first charge and $4,000,000 on the second, making a total of $6,000,000.

To Fix Sentries.

It is also demanded that a special guard of old men under civilian supervision be placed at the frontier and that the sentries be 800 yards away from the frontier and be connected with the rear by means of telephones and that a special commission of officers appointed by the league of nations inspect the frontier for the next two years to see that the program is carried out.

Depositors to Get Only One-Third from Bank That Failed

GREAT FALLS, Montana, Dec. 9. —Federal Judge Charles N. Pray, authorized F. D. Williams, receiver of the First National Bank of Lewistown in Fergus county to pay a dividend to the depositors that will reach $1,000,000.

Plans have been under way for several months to pay a 30 per cent dividend to the creditors. Final authority to pay the dividend and the exact amount will be announced by the comptroller of the currency.

At the time this bank closed its doors two years ago its liabilities amounted to over $3,000,000.

ATTEMPTS AT FORMING CZECH CABINET FAIL; RAIL AT COMMUNISTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia; Dec. 9.—In a note to the president, former premier Svehla, bewails his inability to form a cabinet as the catholic people's party refuse to enter a cabinet in which a socialist will be granted the ministry of education. In his letter he bitterly condemns the Communists, who are the second largest party in the parliament and refuse to enter into the coalition cabinet.

The job of forming a cabinet was then turned over to M. Sramek of the catholic people's party. He had no better luck than did Svehla.

Official circles are now discussing the turning over the formation of the new cabinet to M. Bechine, leader of the social-democrats. It is not expected that he will form a cabinet any more successfully than the others.

Tirades against the Communist fraction in parliament are being delivered daily as the Communist group is looked upon as having the balance of power and the only united delegation in the national assembly.

SOVIET JUSTICE SEIZES KILLERS OF 500 WORKERS

Czarist Money Bought Gang of Murderers

MOSCOW, Dec. 9—The long arm of revolutionary justice has laid its hands upon the murdereds of revolutionary workers under Czar Nicholas. Fifteen of these private assassins who are charged with having strangled to death nearly 500 revolutionary workers under czarism, were arrested yesterday. They operated secretly and were paid by the czar's agents to make away with revolutionists.

The evidence, as set forth in the local press, says that they received from $10 to $50 for each execution, and that one of them, a priest named Rosanog, who officiated at the hangings, received $1.50 for each prayer on the gallows.

The place of execution is said to have been in the cellar of a private house. There was a large table and on it a chair. Attached to the ceiling was a stout rope from which the victims were suspended when the chair was trust from under them.

Our London Letter -:- By Tom Mann

Irish Boundary Problem

LONDON, Eng.,—(By Mail)—The resignation from the boundary commission of the Free State representative, Professor MacNeill, is a matter of grave consern. The commission consisted of three, the chairman being Justice Feetham of South Africa, Mr. J. R. Fished representing Northern Ireland and Prof. MacNeill.

It has been understood all along to have been a matter over which serious trouble might arise. The Free State, and the northern government having used the most emphatic language with regard to their respective claims, the Free State were exceptionally vigorous in staking their claims and the Northern men were equally emphatic, the government hoped to secure agreement by appointing a South African Judge as president, and all worked smoothly, at least on the surface, until a few days ago when the Free State representative tendered his resignation.

This matter may be adjusted, but it may also prove to be impossible to do this, and if a decision is given that will receive the backing of the British government, then civil war follows and the end thereof no man can see.

The Trial of Communists

THE trial of the twelve Communists now proceeding at the Old Bailey has already proved highly advantageous to the Left Wing movement. The wonderfully clear and explanatary speeches given by the defendents Pollitt, Campbell and Gallacher has made a distinctly favorable impression on the public and whilst it will require much more than this to make them truly class conscious it is something to know these comrades have acquitted themselves like men. The trial is expected to finish in two more days.

Houses for the People

THERE is still a most serious shortage of houses for the workers throughout Britain. I was at a small town in South Wales. Fifty houses only are going up there, three hundred applicants are on the list as in urgent need of a house. I have just returned from Coventry a place of only one hundred and thirty thousand inhabitants, there is at the present hour a demand in Coventry for over five thousand houses. Overcrowding exists to a deplorable extent, the government are trying now to force along the building of steel houses, but these are seriously objected to by the workers.

Deportation of Australian Union Officials

THE Australian government have passed an amending act to empower them to deport any worker not of Australian birth. Tom Walsh the official of the Australian Seamen's Union has been a very capable official, and has helped the members to maintain their standard by means of vigorous action through the union when attacked by the ship owners.

Some months ago an award of the federal arbritration court was given fixing the wages to be paid by ship owners and this was signed by both parties but some of the Australian shipowners violated the agreement by chartering ships in England at wage rates much lower than the Australian. The cargoes in such chartered ships were treated as "black" by the seamen and this led to a number of ships being laid up in Australian ports.

The prime minister in the name of the government demanded of the men that they should handle the freight and man the ships. The union, led by its officials, Walsh and Johannsen, insisted upon the carrying out of the award, and the men stuck to this and for this the union officials are to be deported, confirming what we have long since learned that capitalism is the same in all countries.

Would Like To Know

THE Left Wing sections of the trade unionists in England are often asking when the Left Wing sections of the U. S.A. are likely to meet in friendly conference with them. Not the stereotyped hard boiled supporter of the capitalist system but the men with a vision, not the persons who prate about one hundred per cent Americanism, but the men who know that the times demand a fundamental change in the economic basis of society, and are ready and determined to each do as man's share to get rid of the existing regime of production for profit for the boss class and to bring in a system of production for use on a sound co-operative basis.

ITALIAN YOUTH WILL BE TAUGHT FASCIST IDEAL

Mussolini Bares Aim Before Teachers

ROME, Dec. 9—Premier B Mussolini, who now has more in his hands than any of the an emperors of Rome ever dream in an address before the Fir tional Congress of the School oration here laid down that in t ture the school children of Italy be taught fascist ideals.

"The government makes it im tive that the school shall be insp by the ideals of fascism," decl Mussolini. "That the school shall only not be hostile to fascism and the attacks of fascism, but that in a grades and by every institutional instruction the Italian youth shall be educated to comprehend fascism and the noble aims which fascism proposes to acomplish."

Fundamental Change.

He then went on to tell those that were at the congress that they might just as well recognize the fundamental change that has been accomplished in Italy, by the decree passed by the fascist marionette parliament.

"It was not only a change in the government, but a real political and social revolution, which in all probability will leave nothing of that which constituted the old regime," declared the fascist dictator.

He ended his talk before the gathering telling them that many items that were now on the school curriculum would be taken off as he intended to make the schools "educative, formative and moral" and laid great stress on the teaching of fascist ideals to the youth.

Workers' Children Get Special Terms in Soviet Schools

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The Moscow Soviet has introduced a new regulation regarding school fees, according to which education in the elementary schools is free of charge. In the higher and technical schools educational remains free of charge for the children of Red army men, sailors, invalids of labor, pensioners, unemployed and all workers whose earnings are less than 75 roubles a month, all artisans who do not employ hired labor and whose income does not exceed 75 roubles a month.

Manual and office workers earning between 75 and 100 roubles a month, pay a school fee of one rouble a month for their children, the school fees are graded according to the earnings of the parents, the maximum fee being 12 roubles a month. Artisans not employing outside labor power pay the same as workers.

For families with several children of school age, the general school fee must not exceed 10 per cent of the father's wage.

People belonging to free professions, trades people, clergy, etc., pay 160 to 220 roubles a year.

All those who have to pay property tax, namely members of the bourgeoisie, pay 300 to 380 roubles a year.

Soviet Union Plans 207,000,000 Ruble Agricultural Credit

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The plan of the people's commissariat of agriculture provides for next year agricultural credit to the amount of 207,000,000 roubles. This includes: 23,000,000 roubles for the purchase of agricultural machinery and implements, 10,000,000 roubles for cattle, 9,900,000 for tractors, 11,000,000 roubles for making land arable and for settlement purposes, 6,100,000 rubles for reforestation, etc., 19,000,000 roubles for the agricultural machinery industry, the remainder being assigned for seed cultures, cattle breeding and co-operatives.

Soviet High Schools.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—In the current year, 2,323 people were admitted to the high schools of the Ukraine including 967 workers, 558 peasants, 646 office workers and others.

COOLIDGE'S CHALLENGE TO LABOR

Manifesto of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party.

Why are the working people of this country burdened with a military establishment greater than ever before in its history? Why does the president propose a new law making it possible for the government to draft every person in this country into the military establishment?

The wage workers and exploited farmers in this country will find the answer in the imperialist policy followed by the government in support of the great financial institutions. The great international banking houses are making investments for the American capitalists all over the world. They formulated the Dawes plan and loaned hundreds of millions under this plan. They are making their investments in China. All of South America is becoming the domain of the American financial magnates. The great military establishment the president boasts of and his proposed new law are for the purpose of defending the investments and profits of the great banking houses.

The president wants this country prepared for new adventures in support of the bankers such as those in Haiti, Santo Domingo, Nicaraugua, the recent sending of American soldiers into Panama. We must be ready to subdue Mexico and the South American countries should they endanger the investments and profits of the Wall Street bankers. We must be ready to collect from Germany investments under the Dawes plan. We must be ready to fight for the interests of the American bankers in China.

The president shows what he means the great military establishment to be for when he says about China "It will be our policy so far as possible to meet the aspirations of China and always consistent with the interests of the countries involved." He means consistent with the interests of the big international banking houses which are exploiting the Chinese people.

THE president's talk about Philippine independence is of the same character. He would teach the people of the Phillipines self government and proposes "more authority should be given the governor-general so that he will not be so dependent upon the local legislative bodies to render effective our effort to set an example of sound administration and government."

These proposals of a big military establishment of a draft law are proposals for Wall Street but not for the American workers and exploited farmers.

Registration of the Foreign-Born.

THE attitude of the president speaking in the name of the capitalist class is brot out clearly in his discussion on immigration and the foreign-born workers in this country. Secretary of Labor Davis has openly advocated the registration, photographing and finger-printing of the foreign-born workers, which is part of the plan of the big capitalist employers to make the foreign-born workers cowed wage slaves who will not dare fight for a higher standard of life.

Thru intimidating the foreign-born workers and lowering their standard of life the capitalists of this country hope to reduce the general standard of labor. Now the president comes out with the proposal for such registration and finger-printing. He says in his message "if investigation reveals that any considerable number (of foreign-born) are coming here in defiance of our immigration restrictions it will undoubtedly create the necessity for registration of all aliens."

Under guise of enforcing the immigration law, the president proposes the creation of a weapon thru which the capitalist can enforce greater economic slavery on both native and foreign-born workers in this country.

The Negro Worker.

THE stirring unrest among the Negro workers has aroused fear in the hearts of the exploiting class of this country that the twelve million Negroes will organize themselves together with their white brothers in a struggle against the conditions from which they suffer. The president in his message endeavors to calm this unrest with pious words, declaring that there must be equality before the law for the Negroes of this country. But he makes no concrete proposals to remove these injustices from which the Negro suffers.

The Negroes are supposed to be equal before the law and the president offers nothing new in expressing this pious wish. Does he propose any measures against the Southern states which have disfranchised the Negroes? Does he propose any measures in the Northern states, where all kinds of race discrimination is practised against the Negro? Does he propose that the Negroes organize so that they may win decent standards of life in the industries where they are doubly exploited?

The president's utterances about the Negroes are intended to still the growing wrath of the Negroes against race discrimination and double exploitation, from which they can only save themselves thru organization and cooperation with the white workers in the fight against the class which President Coolidge represents.

The Exploited Farmer.

FOR the farmer, the president again has nothing but words. He goes back to 1900 in an endeavor to prove that the farmer is better off today than he was a quarter of a century ago. He tells the farmer who has suffered poverty and degradation thru the deflation period since 1920-21 that this was expected and could not be avoided.

The president does not seem to know that the farmers are suffering thru exploitation of the bankers who hold mortgages on their farms, to whom they have had to urn in order to save themselves from starvation during the deflation period. The president does not seem to know that the farmers are suffering because of the high freight rates they are obliged to pay to the railroads for transporting their goods to the market. The president does not seem to know that the grian elevators, the packing houses, are exploiting and robbing the farmers of their products because of their extortionate charges.

The president proposes encouragement of cooperative marketing as the panacea, but the cooperative marketing associations will have to use the railroads, pay the high freight rates, the farmers will have to get their loans from bankers who charge them extortionate interests just the same.

The president's proposal in regard to the exploited farmers is not to help the farmers but to safeguard the interests of the exploiters.

A Blow at Labor.

IN his discussion of the coal industry and the railroads, President Coolidge comes out openly with his program directed against labor.

In discussing the coal industry, he says:

"At the present time the national government has little or no authority to deal with the vital necessities of life of the country. It has permitted itself to remain so powerless that its only attitude must be of utmost supplication. Authority should be lodged in the president and the departments of commerce and labor, giving power to deal with an emergency."

In speaking of the railroad industry, he declared:

"A strike in modern industry has many of the aspects of war in the modern world. It injures labor and it injures capital. If the industry involved is a basic one, it reduces the necessary economic surplus and increases the cost of living. It injures the welfare and general comfort of the whole people. It also involves a deeper cost. It tends to embitter and divide the community into warring classes, and thus weaken the unity and power of our national life."

These two quotations, altho carefully worded, have only one meaning. The president proposes to invest in the national government the right to prevent strikes by the coal miners and the railroad workers. He proposes to wrench out of the hands of the workers in these industries the only weapon they have thru which they can force the capitalist exploiters to give them more of what they produce thru their labor power. He proposes to put them under the rule of government departments functioning in the interests of the capitalist owners of the industries, he wishes to make of the workers not only wage slaves economically thru the capitalists controlling their right to work, but to compel them to work against their wishes so that their last weapons against their capitalist exploiters will be wrenched from their hands.

Exploitation of the Workers.

ALL of the above proposals of President Coolidge are an expression of what he thinks should be the conditions in this country and with it the entire capitalist exploiting class for whom he speaks. The president outlined his view on this question in the closing words of his message. He said:

"After all, there is but a fixed quantity of wealth in this country at any fixed time. The only way we can secure more of this is to create more. The elements of time enter into production. If the people have sufficient moderation and contentment to be willing to improve their conditions by the process of enlarging production, eliminating waste, and distributing equitably, a prosperity almost without limit lies before us. If the people are to be dominated by selfishness, seeking immediate richness by non-productive speculation and by wasteful quarreling over the returns from industry, they will be confronted by the results of depression and privation. If they will continue industrious and thrifty, content with their fair wages and moderate profits, and the returns which accrue to the development of our national resources, our prosperity will extend itself indefinitely."

What is the sense of this paragraph? Nothing more than that the workers and exploited farmers of this country must not expect to secure for themselves a larger share of the wealth now produced in this country. According to reliable statistics, 5,290,659 in this country in 1919 received $23,362,317,049 of the national wealth produced, while the remaining 32,278,411 of those gainfully employed received only $34,592,405,292. The president's proposal is that the thirty-four million of those gainfully employed, who just got enough out of industry for a bare living, are not to fight to secure for themselves a larger share of the present products of industry, and that the five million who got over 23 billion dollars are to continue to get this share of the products of industry.

The president says to the wage workers and the exploited farmers: "You must be satisfied with your lot. You must stay where you are. Unless you can increase the amount of profits and dividends for the capitalist exploiters thru increased production, then maybe you can get a little more for yourselves."

A Challenge to the Wage-Workers and the Exploited Farmers.

THE president's program is the capitalist program of war against the workers. It is a program for use of the governmental power against the workers to help the capitalists save their immense fortunes and to amass even greater wealth for themselves out of the labor of the wage workers and exploited farmers.

The president's party, the republican party, supports this program. The democratic party supports this program.

The wage workers of this country, if they want to win a higher standard of life thru securing more of what they produce, if they do not wish to see the unions smashed and the right to strike taken from them, must organize their power to fight against this capitalist program. If the exploited farmers want relief from the exploitation of the banks, the railroads, the marketing associations, they must also organize their strength for a struggle against the capitalist exploiters.

The capitalist exploiters control the governmental power thru the republican and democratic parties. They use it to advance their interests and against the workers. The workers and exploited farmers must get into the struggle to take this governmental power out of the hands of the capitalists.

The formation of a labor party to fight in the interests of the workers is the first step in this struggle. The labor party must be built upon the existing organizations of the workers—the trade unions, co-operatives, fraternal societies, etc. In every city and every state these organizations of workers should send delegates to central conferences to form a labor party to enter the political arena to fight the battles of the workers.

The exploited farmers must organize their power and ally themselves with the labor party in the struggle against the capitalist exploiters. The existing organizations of farmers should be the basis for forming in every state an organzation of farmers thru central conferences which will ally itself with the workers in the fight against the exploiters.

Workers, exploited farmers! Form a labor party and an alliance between the wage workers and exploited farmers against the capitalist parties of Coolidge and Morgan. This is the answer which the wage workers and exploited farmers must make to Coolidge's capitalist program.

Every trade union, every co-operative society, every fraternal organization of labor should take the initiative to help form a labor party by placing themselves on record for local and state conferences toward that end.

Every organization of exploited farmers should endorse the calling of a state conference of farmers to form a farmers' bloc which shall ally itself with the labor party in a fight against the capitalist program.

The Program for the Struggle Against the Capitalists.

AGAINST Coolidge capitalist program there must be set up a program in the interests of the wage workers and exploited farmers. The workers and exploited farmers must fight for the following proposals as blows against the capitalist exploiters:

1. Against militarism and imperialism.

Against the waste of the wealth produced in the country for maintenance of a great military and naval establishment. A struggle against the maintenance of a great army and navy to protect the capitalist interests. Independence of the Philippines. The withdrawal of American soldiers and marines from all foreign territory. The right of Cuba, Porto Rico, Haiti, Santo Domingo, South American countries, to determine their own affairs. Against intervention in China to support the international bankers.

2. Against registration of the foreign-born workers.

A determined struggle against the proposals of President Coolidge and Secretary of Labor Davis to register, fingerprint and photograph the foreign-born workers of this country.

3. Equality for the Negro.

Fight against all racial discriminations against the Negro. For complete political economic and social equality for the Negro.

4. No laws against strikes! Against injunctions!

Determined opposition to the enactment of any law which will take from the workers the right to strike. Against the use of the injunction in labor disputes. Support of the right of the workers to organize and of the amalgamation of the existing unions in strong industrial unions in every industry. Organization of the unorganized workers.

5. Nationalization and workers' control.

Immediate nationalization of all large scale industry such as mining, railroads, steel, or other large scale industry. The establishing of workers' control and participation in the management of industry.

6. Help for the exploited farmers.

Land for the users. Nationalization of the railroads, grain elevators, and other marketing facilities and control of these by the economic organizations of the working farmers, in co-operatino with the workers in these institutions.

Control of the farm credit system by organizations of the exploited farmers.

Organization of the farm laborers in labor unions along the line of the organizations of the city workers.

7. Establishment of a workers' and farmers' government in the United States.

Workers and exploited farmers! The establishment of a labor party, the organization of the exploited farmers to co-operate with the labor party in the struggle against the capitalist exploiters, are the only answer the workers and exploited farmers can make to Coolidge's capitalist program.

Let the American workers and exploited farmers declare their independence from the capitalist exploiters.

Forward to the organization of a labor party!

Forward to the fight against the capitalist program!

Forward to the workers' and farmers' government of the United States!

fight for them. "So far they have not done so," she said.

Left Wing Not Satisfied with Words

Antonini of the right wing and twice a delegate to the A. F. of L. convention objected to Wortis' remarks questioning the courage of the delegates. Dubinsky pointed out that at two previous conventions of the I. L. G. W. a similar resolution had been passed, thinking by this to stall on the present resolution.

Delegate Zimmerman of the left wing then demanded to know why Antonini, who was a progressive in those days did not fight at the A. F. of L convention for these resolutions. No answer was given.

Sigman piped up with the remark that the United Mine Workers of America had forced John Mitchell to withdraw from the Civic Federation. He then closed up without saying what that had to do with the case before convention.

Furriers' Urge Class Struggle

The convention opened with a telegram from the Fur Workers' union, urging the I. L. G. W. convention to join with the Furriers in the movement for amalgamation of the different crafts into an industrial union, the movement for world trade union unity, and to make the needle unions organs of class struggle.

A telegram was also received from Mike Rosen of the New York Purcell Committee, urging the convention to send a labor delegation to Soviet Russia and to take a stand for world trade union unity. Both telegrams were read amid great applause.

Trade Demands Taken Up

The resolutions committee began to report on twelve resolutions demanding week-work, a forty-hour, five-day week, a minimum living wage and eqqualization of wage standards.

There are three resolutions pointing out the centralization of the needle industry and demanding the expiration of all agreements at the same time in the United Satles and Canada.

Resolutions are presented from Locals 41 and 38 of New York demanding a general strike in the field covered by them to enforce agreements and to organize the industry. The incoming executive board was inructed to call a general strike if it is deemed advisable. Local 38 is now on strike against the Metropolitan Opera house over the making of costumes.

Turks Denounce Court.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 9. — Turkey has refused point-blank to accept the decision of the league of nations over the settlement of the Mosul Oil dispute with Great Britain.

Munir Bey, Turkish minister to Switzerland, who is representing his government at the council of the league now being held, declined to accept the world court's competence to give an advisory opinion to the league council, and declared that he would no longer participate in the council deliberations unless instructed to do so by the Angora government.

The dispute arose last June when the British asked to refer the Mosul dispute to the world court. At that time Turkey objected to the compromise. When the decision of the court was reached a few weeks ago, Turkey again declared she would refuse to recognize the authority of the court.

Boston Membership Is Overwhelmingly For Unity Resolution of the C. E. C.

BOSTON, Mass., December 9.—The Boston membership meeting, by a vote of 99 against 22, supported the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee at a meeting at which James P. Cannon and Jay Lovestone spoke as the representatives of the Central Executive Committee. The question was debated at the meeting which began at eight o'clock and lasted until two o'clock in the morning.

Efforts of a small group in opposition to the resolution to sabotage the meeting and prevent a vote were defeated by the demand of the overwhelming part of the membership present for an orderly meeting and open discussion and decision of the question.

The opposition even went so far as to attempt to prevent a collection being taken for the support of the meeting. One of the opponents of the Central Executive Committee resolution, Comrade Konikow, who has always been a Loreite, openly defended Lore in the meeting, thereby consolidating the Communists who supported the Central Executive Committee resolution, who were eager to repudiate any suggestion of support of the opportunism and non-Communist views of Lore.

The Boston membership meeting was the third of a series of meetings held in the larger party centers. The total vote of the members at these meetings shows that over 90% of the membership are supporting the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee. The same is true of the comrades in the District Executive Committees, only two votes having been registered against the resolutions in the three District Executive Committees, those of Detroit, Buffalo and Boston, where the whole matter has come to a vote during the present trip of the representatives of the Central Executive Committee.

Send in orders immediately. Distribute the manifesto to every worker in your community.

Make Coolidge's drive against the workers the beginning of a great struggle of the workers in support of their own interests.

Workers Write About the Workers' Life

BAKU BUILDING WORKERS SOLVE CULTURE NEEDS

Educational Activities Conducted on the Job

By BENDERSTEV.

(Worker Correspondent)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R. (By Mail)—This year the building season has been conducted much more energetically than last year. There has been an increase in the influx of new building workers from the villages, who had taken up agricultural work during the time of the poor development of industry in the industrial centers and during the civil war. The union is commencing to draw this mass of newcomers into participation in trade union cultural work, and educating them into the proletarian family.

The building workers, in general, by the very nature of their work are considered as part-time workers and despite all desires it is impossible to attach them to an enterprise as can be done with factory workers. Therefore it is considerably more difficult to conduct cultural-educational work among seasonal workers in view of the scattered nature of their work, than among the workers of factory and workshop enterprises, who work in groups in one place for several years at a stretch.

They Find a Way.

The Azerbaidjan Builders' Union, taking into consideration the present position of the workers, has transferred all cultural-educational work from club premises to the place where the work is being carried on where it is conducted in the open air and on platforms quickly put together by the workers themselves. Performances and cinema shows are given connected with the workers' productive life. A lecture is given before each cinema performance. The lectures are read in the Armenian, Turcic and Russian languages and in the Turcic study circles the Turco women also take part. On the Asebaidjan-Turc holidays, the clubs have in some places been overcrowded with Azerbaidjans and their wives, who, prior to the Soviet regime wore chadrachs and did not appear in public places.

We may see how popular such performances are becoming among workers from the following cases. For instance, workers and their families come to the settlement Banagody from the Baladjeri station which is three versts distant. At a cement works, three versts away from Baku, workers come from the town on the days of the performance and at the Stenkaresin settlement belonging to Asneft, near Sabunch, where 1.200 workers are engaged in constructing the workers' settlement, the workers come from Sabunch and Baku districts which are six versts away. Here up to 2,000 workers assemble. The administration, observing the development of cultural-educational work among the workers at a place of work, has fitted up a club.

Study Circles.

Recently the organization of circles at the place of work has increased. The workers have formed their own study circles so as to be able to arrange performances more frequently. In the days of preparation for the study circle work the workers are so interested in their studies that very often they go straight from their work to the study circles without having had any dinner.

In all buildings under construction wall-newspapers are issued, and dramatic and sport circles formed; (Azneft presented several bicycles for the sport circle) chess circles and "down with illiteracy" societies, whose members teach the illiterates to read and write. Lectures are given on trade union, productive and scientific themes in the various languages. Excursions are undertaken to factories, rest homes, and country resorts, etc.

That is the kind of work that is being carried on among the building workers in the Azerbaidjan Soviet Republic.

Los Angeles Babbits Refuse to Face Facts

By A Worker Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9. — In spite of all the faith cures of the Los Angeles Babbits that city is hard hit. People "in the know" assert that there is vacant housing accommmodation here for 200,000 people without using the apartment houses at all. Other towns are proportionately hard hit. Long Beach has accommodations for probably more than 85,000.

The oil field, in which I am employed, is dead. Drilling has practically come to an end, and only a few of us are still hanging on by their eyelids and expecting them to slip every day and yet, as hinted above, the local Babbitry here using christian science or faith cures will tell you. "Yes, business is good."

FRUITS OF VICTORY IN A. C. W. STRIKE NOT ALTOGETHER SWEET; OFFICIALS KEEP PEACE POLICY

By BEN GORDON.

(Worker Correspondent)

The results of the recent strike the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of Chicago and New York waged against the International Tailoring company and J. L. Taylor company of Chicago and New York, proves conclusively the fallacy of the compromise peace policy of the A. C. W. officials, and that real victory in any struggle between the union and employers can only be won thru a fighting policy.

The forces that carried on this struggle against the A. C. W. in these 19 weeks of strike were the most powerful combinations of employers with the avowed purpose to annihiliate the A. C. W. This fully justifies the claim that a militant policy must be the policy of the A. C. W. It is true that when the strike actually came, preparations were made to rally the workers in mass support, but the conditions upon which the strike was settled, though forestalling annihilation by the employers, yet were by no means that of a victory.

Did We Strike for This?

The conditions in the shop of the two companies are actually worse than before the strike. In the tailor shops wages were cut in some sections about 7 per cent. The cutting rooms increased their speed-up system. Production has increased about 7 per cent with no increase in wages. And we find some workers who are employed by those firms which are not members of the A. C. W.

This "victory" does not in any way compare with the demands of the workers before the strike. And it must be said that the demands were modest and somewhat as follows:

1—The renewal of the old agreement and all its shop conditions therein.

2—No wage cuts.

3—No readjustments.

4—No increase in production unless wages are simultaneously increased.

5—No worker to work in the shop unless he or she is a member of the A. C. W.

In Chicago no strike has taken place for the last six years. So sure and so willing were our officials to concede and to compromise with the employers on all differences that arise occasionally between the employers and the union, that they permitted the International and J. L. Taylor to finish the busy season and operate for six weeks after the old agreement expired, thus giving the International Tailoring and J. L. Taylor company ample time to prepare for this 19 weeks struggle that has just come to an end about two weeks ago. All this was done in the hope that their peace and compromise policy would keep on.

The leadership of the A. C. W. is to be condemned not for arranging agreement betwen the union and the employers, but because such agreements were based upon a policy of that "truce" and were at the expense of the workers and not of the bosses. To permit employers to choose the time for giving battle to the workers, to approve of wage cuts, readjustments, etc., is by far too big a price for any organization to pay for any "truce," even if peace between classes is possible.

The Result of a Policy of Peace

This strike is but another example of the officials peace-policy. Without question this was one of the most significant strikes that the A. C. W. ever encountered. The loss of this struggle would have meant the shaking, or probably the breakdown of the very foundation of the Chicago organization. It would have meant that the United Garment Workers (Rickert's scab organization) would again try its hand in the men's clothing industry. The International Tailoring company and J. L. Taylor, the most powerful corporation in the men's clothing industry, was chosen by the manufacturers to lead the struggle against the union.

The lavish victory celebration and the congratulating telegrams from other union officials could not and did not cover up the actual results of this 19 weeks struggle. At any banquet or victory celebration meeting, the workers may have for a moment forgotten themselves. But to them when they got back to their bench, finding a wage cut and the increase in production as well as facing some strike breakers whom they so bitterly fought during the strike, who are today working the shop. The latter is no easy thing to swallow. No striker can tolerate a scab after a 19 weeks fight.

Have Learned Nothing.

Thus far we find that this strike has not changed the view of the officials towards the employers the least bit. They are still ready to proceed with the same methods of compromise in the disputes arising. Such a policy will undermine the very things that had been won for the organization at the price of painful struggle.

The militant workers recognize that an end must be put to such a policy, that a fight must be made in an organized manner at local and shop meetings, as well as in the shops, against such a policy, if the Amalgamated membership ever hope to attain union conditions in the men's clothing industry.

WORKER CORRESPONDENCE ROUSES THE INTEREST OF LABOR IN THE SHOPS

In the following little report made by a comrade to his street nucleus is a concrete example of the interest the worker correspondents' department in The DAILY WORKER is arousing among workers in the factories and shops:

"In our shop we have about 300 workers. Since the reorganization of the party I have been instructed to organize an I. L. D. group in our shop. I must work cautiously because the bosses' informants have their ears wide open. Yet, even with my careful and very slow handling of the work, I am getting splendid results. And The DAILY WORKER Correspondents' section is a great help to me. Formerly when I left my DAILY WORKER on top of my locker I found it there just as I had left it. But now, when lunch time comes, I must make the rounds of the 17 members we have in the I. L. D. group before I can locate my paper. Invariably every one of them has tried to get a look at the paper and made a dash for it seeking out the Worker Correspondents' section. Usually five or six have to be asked before I can get my paper."

This little story tells better than anything we can say how important and worthwhile are the contributions you can send in.

Keep The DAILY WORKER before the workers in the shops and the factories and the mills. Send in your story!

Freed by the Bolshevik Revolution

It is with much pleasure that we print the following letter received from D. Lazarini, a woman worker correspondent in Russia. We are sure that all who read it will feel keenly what the revolution has accomplished for all workers. To bring such a healthy and inspiring viewpoint towards life to the oppressed peoples for whom there seemed to be nothing but endless drudgery and darkness is indeed an achievement worth striving for.

We hope it will inspire some of our women worker correspondents to reply to her so that she may learn something of the life of women workers in this country for which she expresses such eagerness.—Ed. Note.

DEAR COMRADES: Having a strong desire to know something about your life I want at the same time to tell you something of my own life, as my experiences will show you how the women of the oppressed nationalities lived in the old Russia and how they are developing now. I am of Greek nationality and was born in an out-of-the-way village in Turkey. As the country is very backward, culturally as well as economically, the workers and peasants there have a very hard time of it. The men mostly go to Russia to earn their livelihood and the women have to bear the burden of keeping the family. From early childhood women are tied to hard physical labor, and this is their fate thruout life. They are not taught to read and write. A literate girl is treated with contempt and has no opportunity to get married, which is looked upon as a terrible disgrace for her and her relations. At the age of 14 girls are considered grown up and can marry. They are, of course, not consulted but are looked upon as chattels at the disposial of their fathers at first and subsequently of their husbands. Women are so backward and intimidated that only very few of them understand the full horror of their position.

I began to work at the age of 7 and up to the age of 11 I was over-burdened with hard physical labor. Our family consisted of 5 people—our father, our mother who was paralyzed and three daughters. The eldest of us three girls was 17 years old. Father went to Russia to seek work, the eldest sister was abducted as our father had refused to let her marry the man who wanted her. She was taken away forcibly at night and had to go thru the marriage ceremony. Once she was married she become the property of her husband. My sister's abduction affected my mother's health, which was already shaken, and she died soon after. Thus we young girls were left to our own devices. In 1909 at the time of the Turkish revolution the sultan, who had been deprived of his throne ordered the destruction of all the Greeks as he considered them his enemies. But there was no time to carry out this order as Russia intervened and saved the Greeks. Therefore, Russia appeared to me as something bright and beautiful, as a country where there is no oppression.

When in 1912, during the Balkan war, life became unberable for the Greeks we fled to our father in Russia. Great was my disappointment when I gradually began to realize what life the workers among whom I found myself were leading. I was particularly struck by the conditions of life of domestic servants, who apart from very hard work had to submit to the insulting advances of their masters and for the least offense were thrown into the street, doomed into starvation or prostitution. In 1915 I began to work in the Red Cross sisterhood of mercy and experienced on myself the bullying of the bourgeois lady-patronesses which I as a foreigner felt more than others, particularly as I did not know Russian very well.

But the October, (November, 1917) revolution freed us from this oppression. During my employment in Soviet institutions I have had, like all manual and office workers, an opportunity to study and to develop. I began to take part in social work and took an interest in trade union work, etc. I was elected a delegate to the women's section. The working women's section of the Russian Communist Party has a panel of women delegates. They are women elected in the enterprises by the working women, and under the guidance of the working women's sections they are drawn into social work. Apart from regular general meetings, where various questions concerning Soviet construction and the women's movement are discussed, the women delegates are attached to children's institutions, hospitals, co-operatives, and public dining halls where they see to it that work is carried on properly and at the same time learn themselves. Having worked as a delegate a whole year I awakened politically. I realized that only the Communist Party can bring freedom and equality to the oppressed Eastern women. Therefore, I joined the party in order to help together with it the working class populations of the oppressed nationalities to come out of their backwardness and acquire knowledge just as I have been able to do.—D. LAZARINI.

Workers' Dramatic League Will Stage Gold's Play, 'Money'

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—On Friday night, Jan. 8th, the Workers Dramatic League will introduce itself to party comrades and friends by presenting the play "Money", by Michael Gold, and by a dramatization of several revolutionary poems.

Imbued with the splendid vigor of the modern Russian stage, we will produce the play in the most radical fashion. The settings of symbolical significance, will be designed according to constructivist principles, giving the actors the opportunity to use, in addition to width and depth, the height of various levels on the stage, for the portrayal of their emotions.

Challenge Bourgeoisie.

Challenging the old bourgeois stage, with its often untruthful psychology, and conservative ways of producing, the Workers Dramatic League intends to enter the field. Our first production will have much that may and will be criticized, but something new and virile will not fail to be noticed.

Starting under the most difficult handicaps, we intend to build under the direction of Dr. Arkatov, the Russian proleculturist, and with the cooperation and help of party comrades and sympathizers, develop this workers theatre until it becomes a powerful propaganda weapon, ready for our use.

Collectivist Art.

Our work is primarily collectivist. To play on our stage does not necessarily require talent. To our understanding, the actor or performer acquires the faculty, thru intelligent training, to play upon his body, to use his body as an instrument. In order to acquire this faculty we found it necessary to organize primarily as a school, where the necessary subjects are collectively taught.

The Workers Dramatic League must become self-supporting. Help us by coming to our first production, Friday night, January 8, at Tammany Hall, 14th Street, near 3rd Ave. Help us build the Proletarian Theatre. Tickets can be had at the district office, the Freiheit, the Novy Mir, and the Jimmie Higgins Book Shop.

Liquidation of Illiteracy.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 9.—The Down with Illiteracy Society has opened 32.052 classes thruout the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, which embrace over a million people, 900,000 of whom have already been taught to read and write.

TATARBOUNAR PEASANTS' TRIAL

KISHENEV, Bessarabia, Dec. 9.—In the southern part of Bessarabia, in the district between Tatarbounar and Nikolayevska, last year the peasants rose against the terror and the oppression exercised by the Roumanian officials. In some districts the officials were driven away, but during the whole insurrection only two or three persons were killed.

According to the reports of the bourgeoisie press the Roumanian government in its struggle against the insurrection killed almost 5,000 peasants and subjected to terrible tortures and maltreatment not only the population of the villages concerned, but also those of villages which had nothing to do with the revolt.

Thruout Bessarabia an unheard of military tyranny was established. Wild soldier bands behaved as tho in an enemy country. Thousands of peasants were arrested, thrown into prison and terribly tortured. Later on 500 were kept and a process started against them. The trial started the end of August, after the peasants, many of them innocent, had spent over a year in prison and after a great number of them had died from the tortures.

Government's Purpose.

The government of Bratianu did its best to make the peasants appear as "Bolshevik conspirators" during the Kishinev trial. The peasants were accused of having been in contact with Russia and it was said that the peasants had revolted not because of the unbearable Rumanian bayonet regime in Bessarabia, but because of bribes from Russia. The government tried to prove by this trial that the Besserabian peasants party, which had no connection with the accused peasants, was bribed by Russia. In this way the government wanted to establish a reason for the suppression of the peasants' party.

Together with these two aims the government had still a third purpose, that of intimidating the peasants and the workers of the country and thus strangle every possible effort of insurrection. The government showed its whole brutal force in the trial. The accused had no right of self defense and were treated like animals.

According to the Lupta "there are many accused who have been brot before the court for the only reason that they have spoken once in their lives with the main accused, Betitcheff."

Despite the strict suppression of the right of free speech of the accused, terrible brutalities of the Roumanian soldiers in Bessarabia population annihilated without consideration of sex and age, those who manage to remain alive had to pay high war contributions and hundreds of peasants could only save their lives by giving over all their property to the officers as a bribe. All the statements of the witnesses, even those of the prosecution, were terrible accusations against the terror regime of the boyar government.

Orders Quick Ending.

When the trial began to get undesirable to the government, the war minister ordered that it should end as quickly as possible, that the witnesses of the defense should not be examined and that the questions of the defense should be unanswered.

Torres, a French lawyer, who participated as a defender in the first part of the trial, was forced to abandon his defense of the peasants by the actions of the court. After he had gone, the accused were treated still more brutally and towards the end of the trial not only about 100 accused who were still at liberty, but also about a 100 witnesses were arrested, under the pretext that they had written the appeals in favor of the accused that had been circulated in Kichinev.

The last sessions of the trial took place day and night without interruption in the cold autumnal air, altho the accused were only dressed in rags. The whole proceeding was a terrible inhuman torture for the accused. As the trial brot forth no material against the accused, the Prime Minister Bratianu made a public statement in which he acused the peasants' party as a party of anarchy and demanded that the sentences be as severe as possible.

Witness Spills Beans.

In the Kishinev trial the witness for the prosecution, Michail Cusmin, stated that according to his knowledge of the 25 peasants arrested in his community, not a single one had anything to do with the insurrection. He stated that Lieutenant Lungu had forced the accused peasants by means of terrible tortures to admit that they belonged to a "secret revolutionary committee."

"I know, however," the witness testified, "that of all this not a word is true."

The witness furthermore stated that Lieutenant Lungu had received from the wives of the accused 20,000 lei and more so that their husbands should not be killed in the examination.

Sigman's Fake Issue

The report of the general executive board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union to the Philadelphia convention is a combination of cunning, reaction and stupidity in about equal parts. But from portions of it we can get concrete proofs of the effectiveness of our party's strategy and tactics in its trade union work. It is a fundamental principle of strategy never to accept battle on the terms of the enemy if they are not favorable to victory and in the report of the general executive board we find on page 48 the admission that in the struggle carried on by the left wing in New York with the aid of the Communists against the union-wrecking officialdom, the Sigmanites were out-maneuvered, out-fought and defeated.

Of course the Sigmanites do not admit that the left wing was fighting for the integrity and even the very life of the union. But what they do say should be read again and again by every member of our party. The paragraph mentioned says:

> The conflict had started as a fight against Communist control of some of our local unions. But soon, partly thru tactical oversight on our part and partly thru adroit maneuvering of the opposition, the issues of the fight became diverted to other channels, which benefitted our opponents and befogged the real issue of the fight. Thus there were brought into this fight such issues as the change of representation system at the joint board, the question of higher dues, fraudulent elections, the extravagance of the joint board and of local officers, the election of officers by referendum—and a widespread impression was created to the effect that we were fighting to retain the status quo in the union, that we were opposed to the bitter end to any reforms and any organizational improvements, and similar stories to which the opposition was trying to give wide circulation in order to arouse sympathetic publicity for itself.

Everything stated above by the general executive board is true with the exception that the trade union issues mentioned "befogged the real issue of the fight."

What is the truth of the situation?

It is that the issue raised by the Sigmanites, the issue of Communists in the union, was a real fake issue. The Sigman machine did not want to fight for the interests of the membership and it tried to conceal its cowardice and desire for class collaboration policies behind an attack on the Communist members of the union. It failed and failed miserably. It has behind it less than one-third of the membership, while the left wing has developed and hardened itself in the struggle and enjoys the trust of at least two-thirds of the membership.

Cherchez la Femme

Cynical Frenchmen, observing the role of women in court intrigues as well as domestic scandal, have adopted the trite admonition "look for the woman," when they proceed to unravel mysteries. The recent exposure, thru a female denizen of Monmartre, of a group of British spies operating in Paris, brings up the general question of women military spies. The psychology of army officers makes them particularly susceptible to the wiles of women spies, whether they come from the Paris Latin quarter, the Cherry Hill district of New York, the mansions of Fifth avenue or appear in the guise of red cross nurses.

Many an officer in the French army will have to explain his amours to his superiors. And the superiors themselves are not without guilt in the affair if reports of the observations of the French military intelligence department are reliable.

Interesting also is the fact that the British department under the direction of that eminent knight of the garter, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, while professing undying devotion to the "spirit of Locarno," should countenance debauching of the French army by a paid demimonde.

Continental and British newspapers blandly admit that every nation has spies operating in every other nation to extort military secrets that may be useful in case of another war. The revolutionary workers of Europe will not fail to note the full implications of this network of spies.

As to the chic prostitute, Mlle. Moreuil, she will escape with a light jail sentence because she was caught in peace time. If Britain and France were at war, the British press might have another Edith Cavell case to fan the passions of national hatred, in which case the Monmartre girl would probably be described as a red cross nurse pure as the driven snow. To the enemy country the female spy in time of war is an adventuress, while those in their own employ are of spotless character, heroically sacrificing themselves on the altar of patriotism. In Germany Mati Hari, the enticing dancer, executed as a spy in France, became a heroine. In England it was the adventuress Edith Cavell, wearing the garb of a red cross nurse whose fate was utilized by the recruiting officers to entice workers into the slaughter house.

Imperialist plunderers do not scruple to utilize every venal element of society in their struggles for supremacy.

The salacious details of the manner in which the girl who crawled out of the Paris underworld enticed many officers of the French army will make them objects of contempt on the part of the conscripts who are able to think and bring nearer the day when mutinous soldiers will end the loutish careers of these satraps of imperialism.

A British scholar is reported to have found an error in the holy bible. He learns that in the King James version the "wise men" who saw that strange astronomical phenomenon, the star of Bethlehem, were in reality "magicians." The translation is said to be wrong. Next we will learn that Jerusalem Slim was also a magician, if we are to believe the story of turning water into wine. Either a magician or so drunk he didn't know whether it was water or wine.

While on the return trip to Washington from Chicago the Coolidge family stopped for a few minutes at Garrett, Indiana, to see their old-time friend, Mrs. John Babbitt. Comment is superflous.

The New Workers' Party of Japan

By Earl R. Browder

PUBLICATIONS just arriving from Japan give additional and more complete information regarding the new proletarian party, the founding of which was first planned last summer. Negotiations between the representatives of 30 workers' organizations, mostly labor unions, have been going on for months. December first was decided upon as the date on which the party was to be formally launched.

According to the stories carried in the Japanese bourgeois press, the tentative party platform, agreed upon in the preliminary negotiations, contains 49 planks. They constitute a program of class struggle, and while not definitely revolutionary, will make the new party an objectively revolutionary party if it struggles for all the demands without compromise.

The proposed platform of the proletarian party of Japan is as follows:

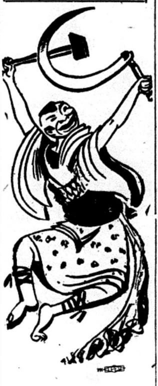
(From the Japan Weekly Chronicle, Kobe, Nov. 19, 1925, quoted from the Hochi, Tokio, Japan.)

The Japanese working class is popularly supposed, in America, to be backward and undeveloped. But if we could see the great American labor unions uniting their forces to form a labor party with a program as distinctivly proletarian as the above, we would hail it as a revolutionary event. The whole east is awakening, and the Japanese workers will evidently not be the last to assert themselves.

Brown But Red



How Moscow Celebrated the Eighth Anniversary

By WM. F. KRUSE.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—(By Mail)—Properly speaking, the celebration of the revolutionary anniversary begins weeks before the actual event. The "October Commission" meets and lays out the plans for the holiday, and in every factory, school, office, and club the workers begin their preparation for participation in the great holiday. Earnest discussions last far into the night—the decorations for the building, for the auto trucks to carry the children, for bringing in a peasant delegation, or an army delegation from the village or regiment over which the party nucleus is "chef" or sponsor the kind of placards to be carried in the parade, the program of their own small clebration—all these have to be settled long in advance. Then come weeks filled with paint-pots and red bunting, until finally the eve of the great day arrives.

How They Celebrate

In every one of the hundreds of workers' clubs thruout the city celebrations are held. At the Comintern Club a group of "Young (Leninist) Pioneers" were initiated into the Comintern nucleus. At the German Club, the largest organization of political emigres in Moscow, there was a welcome to a delegation from the Kiev German Red Army Regiment for which the Moscow Club is "chef" In a newly organized club of the oil trust employes, called "1905," a long list of speakers was followed by music and a "living newspaper."

The biggest demonstration is held in the Bolshoi Theatre under the joint auspices of the Moscow Soviet, the Moscow Communist Party, and the Moscow Committee of the Trade Unions. The great red and gold hall glistens under the lights of the crystal chandliers as brilliantly as ever in the days of old, but its shimmering beauty is reflected now in other, more appreciative, eyes. In the Grand Loge, where once the imperial parasites lolled, there sit the honored guests of the Sovnarkom, today General Yu Khan Dhin, the fighting chieftain of the Canton proletarian armies, and a delegation of youthful workers from Germany.

The admission tickets here tonight are priceless, every one has been distributed through some working class organization, every comrade who occupies a seat here does so by the grace of the esteem in which he is held by his fellow workers.

Splendid Organization

Chairman Kamenev rings a little bell and perfect silence ensues. All rise as the band strikes up the "International." A comrade goes to the speakers' stand, in front of which hangs a microphone connected with great loud speakers that carry the slightest whisper to all parts of the great auditorium. In front of the chairman's seat is another—both are connected also to the radio broadcasting stations that permit millions of workers in all this part of Europe to listen in on the event.

The comrade proposes a list of twenty for the "presidium"—they are elected by vote of the assemblage, and proceed to their places upon the stage. Workers and soldiers and peasants here, men and women, some whose grey hairs speak of a glorious past in the cause of the proletariat, others whose young hearts promise a still more glorious future. Among them is a tiny "Pioneer" girl of not more than ten. As they are greeted with the "International" all arise once more, the soldiers present salute—as do the representatives of the young "Leninists." Rogoff, of the Moscow Soviet, introduces Kamenev as the first and chief speaker. He is followed by an old bearded peasant who reads off a little speech he has written down. Then a young peasant woman, shawl over her head, rough shoes on her feet, she speaks with force and decision, her clear voice penetrates the amphitheatre and four times applause interrupts her short discourse.

Leningrad Greets Moscow

Then follows a real innovation. A consultation of watches, then silence is requested, and soon the great horns bring forth words of greeting from a simultaneous celebration in Leningrad. An awed silence spreads over the crowd. The speaker finishes, roars of applause echo from the Leningrad workers through the Moscow theatre, then "The International," played in Leningrad, and the Moscow audience jumps to its feet in an enthusiastic demonstration that lasts many minutes.

Again silence is requested, again the watches are consulted, and now Comrade Uglanov, secretary of the Moscow committee and once holder of that position in Leningrad, steps to the micraphone to return the greeting. He speaks, and the Moscow applause and music speeds across the ether to delight the Leningrad comrades at their meeting.

Ovation To Chinese General

A factory worker follows with a short speech, then the Chinese general, who receives a tremendous ovation. He speaks in Chinese and very few sentences he stops to permit translation into Russian by a handsome young Chinaman with a large red ribbon on his coat. A military leader in the Canton army and member of the political committee of the Kuomintang, his speech ends with, "Long Live Leninism." Just what the crowd wants; they are on their feet with "Long Live the Chinese Soviet Republic."

Then a German Delegate

A German youth delegate follows with the greetings of his comrades. His conclusion is "Long Live the International Unity of the Working Class Youth, Long Live International Trade Union Unity."

After a short intermission a musical program is given by an ingenious combination of symphony orchestra, workers' brass band, and the famous Pitnitsky chorus of about a hundred mixed voices. They sing with and without band and orchestra, and as chorus for a soprano soloist. The crowd cannot get enough "Bees," "Bees," (More—More) is the demand. In the course of the program we hear, for the first time, a new overture "1917," somewhat reminescent of "1812" in the treatment of conflicting anthems. It is amost one o'clock when the program ends with a series of ballet numbers, of highest artistic quality but utterly devoid of revolutionary significance. It is explained that we have not yet come around to the Bolshevizing of the ballet, here still prevails "art for art's sake," but when the younger generation of dancing stars, those who have grown up in Soviet environment, take the rudder, things will change.

Next Day a Holiday—Parades

The next day—the big day—everything is closed down tight. No restaurants, no street cars, no stores of any description are open. Every public building is gaily bedecked with flags, bunting, paintings, and electric transparencies. Every store window, every available show place, bears pictures of the Soviet leaders. Many show windows contain fine symbolic displays—this is what the workers committees have been working on these many weeks. Gaily decorated auto trucks loaded with yelling, singing children rush along the highways. The streets are jammed with people, marching and watching. A true folk holiday spirit prevails.

At ten o'clock sharp the first columns enter the Red Square. Already there has been a banner presentation by the German "Roter Jungsturn." This year, due to the mourning for their late Commander Frunze, there is no military parade, the soldiers from the city marching with their fellow workers of the factories where they were formerly employed, those from outside the city marching in the civil parade. From ten in the morning until six at night the masses pour, twenty abreast, through the great square, past the tomb of Lenin, on which stands a small group of reviewers—among them Kalenin, Budenny, Rykov, and an aged survivor of the Paris Commune. Here too loud speakers are in service and each division is greeted by their leaders. The micraphone is a miracle worker, but demands cautious behavior—the comrades on the platform whisper among themselves, crack an occassional joke intended for their ears alone, but the micraphone betrays every secret to the crowds in the square. "Long live the beautiful Red women" is suggested as a slogan as a splendid detachment of girls factory swings past, and the chuckle on the platform is borne out through the great horns and the whole square joins in.

Recreation for Workers Only

After the parade the holiday spirit continues. Every theatre and picture house is wide open but no tickets are for sale at any price, the "October committee" has distributed them through the unions and other workers organization. The day started in a miserable drizzling rain, but still the thousands poured through the streets; it changed to dazzling sunchine a few hours later, and night brought with it a chilling cold, but the spirits of the crowd were all impervious to caprices of weather as to those of their white guard enemies skulking in foreign slums waiting for the return of the dead and buried czar.

At all times the tremendous improvement in the appearance of Russia and of its people impresses the traveller with a sense of the solidity and progress prevailing here. But on this great folk holiday the whole soul of the Russian masses seems to pour itself out in joyous glorification of the new social order. To witness a November celebration in Soviet Russia would take the heart out of the last czarist well-wisher. If a grand duke were to return to Moscow today, the only place in which he would feel at home would be the museum.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST

Editor's Note: The eighth instalment of this series of articles tells us of the birth of the new, free China. Yesterday's instalment told of the inspiration the revolutionary government of Canton is to workers in Hongkong, which is under the autocratic rule of Britain.

ARTICLE VIII

By L. HELLER.

THE traditions of provincialism and clannishness are still as a matter of fact strong in China. However, within the womb of old China a new China has arisen. Owing to industrialization, its life has been revivified, "modernized." The growth of cities, the development of railways, the greater mobility of the population, the spread of literacy, the rise of the press, the springing up and proletarianization of an intelligencia, and last and most important, the appearance of an industrial proletariat, its activities and the growth of its trade union and political organizations—all these have undermined the foundations of old China, have led to the readjustment of the social forces, to the revision of the social relations, to what the Chinese themselves term as the "revaluation of the old values."

At the same time, on top of the old traditions grew and developed the feeling of national unity, of national integrity and a wratful protest against the colonial slavery in all its forms and manifestations, a heightened resentfulness towards everything restricting Chinese sovereignty and handicapping the emancipation and unification of China. All this has been briefly formulated in the slogan of the entire nation: "Down with the special treaties!" This means, down with the "concessions," down with the control by foreigners of the Chinese customs and railways, down with the extra-territoriality, down with the consular courts. And finally it means, "a China free, independent, sovereign!"

THAT this is the common demand of the whole nation, of every section of the Chinese population, is not denied, even by the most dyed-in-the-wool imperialists. Thus the Peking correspondent of the arch-imperialist Shanghai North China Daily News, reports in the middle of July:

"The slogan, 'abolish unequal treaties!' used to be monopolized by the Kuomintang, but nowadays even the most conservative Chinese, who three months ago would have condemned such talk as the talk of wild men, are asserting themselves on the side of the 'rights recovery movement!'"

The strike of the Hongkong seamen in the spring of 1922 and Shameen strike in the summer of 1924, represent perhaps the finest pages in the recent history of the nationalist movement—and these pages have been written by the young Chinese proletariat.

But splendid and significant as these activities have been in their time, they were only a prelude to the events of this summer, when the role of the working class as the leader of the national emancipation movement was so strikingly revealed. This is recognized by all, both the petty and middle bourgeoisie, and even in a certain sense by the Peking government itself. Everyone became aware that the workers' strike movement was the backbone of the nationalist movement. This explains the support that the Shanghai and Hongkong strikes received thruout the country among every section of the population. This explains also the singular fact that the Tuan Tsi-Jui government contributed $150,000 to the Shanghai strikers, and $100,000 dollars—by way of Canton—to the Hongkong strikers.

This role of the Chinese proletariat, considering its small numbers—there are hardly two million industrial workers in China, a country with 400,000,000 people—and its weak political and trade union organization may seem surprising and strange.

MINERS PERISH IN NON-UNION DEATH TRAP

SIGMAN MACHINE'S FAILURE TO FIGHT GARMENT BOSSES SHOWN IN DEBATE AT I. L. G. W. MEET

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 10.—The great desire for organization and the readiness to strike to unionize the open shops on the part of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union membership, was made plain this morning when the resolutions committee reported on a number of resolutions demanding organization in numerous sections of the industry and the calling of strikes if necessary.

There was no opposition to these resolutions on the part of the Sigman machine, but one is forced to the conclusion that only the bankruptcy of the Sigman administration can account for the loss of membership in a union where the rank and file shows such fine spirit of readiness for struggle and sacrifice.

The machine delegates were busy during the debate on the resolutions trying to show that they had been active in organization work, and for the most part minimized the serious situation which confronts the union in this phase of its activities.

The most notable failure to shift responsibility for the lack of organization and general weakness of the union was registered by Greenberg, manager of Local 91. He claimed a 60 per cent organization of the bathrobe makers and predicted 100 per cent organization in the near future.

Woman Militant Skins Greenberg.

But Sophia Knishnik of the same local, in a speech which peeled the hide from Greenberg in a most workmanlike manner, showed that the existing agreement was not even being enforced and referred to a meeting in which Greenberg had made statements directly contrary to those in his speech.

With a pettiness irritating even to the capitalist' press reporters Sigman came to the rescue of Greenberg by deliberately interrupting the speaker and asking her a series of sneering questions.

The convention starts night sessions this evening. ~~The officers'~~ report will come on the order of business Friday morning and the debate on this report will uncover every angle of the struggle between the progressive bloc and the Sigmanites.

The progressives have prepared a minority report of about 4,200 words, containing what is probably the keenest analysis of the industry, the history of the clash betwen class struggle and class collaboration policies and the role of the union, ever produced in a needle trades convention. This statement will be read to the convention and printed for general distribution.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE United States is not the only country in the world where former members of aristocratic and wealthy circles can be observed at close range, performing labor, no matter even it be useless. Many former dukes and near-barons under the reign of Rasputin, are now engaged picking fleas out of Fifth Avenue poodle dogs or employed as dancing partners to the debutantes who spend considerable time preparing for their role in society, after they are "introduced."

* * *

IN Berlin, the esteemed New York Times informs us, that former society girls are now working nine and ten hours a day, posing in garments they are too poor to buy. The fashionable shops are willing to pay those declassed parasites more money than to girls of superior pulchritude but of proletarian origin. Of the 4,000 mannequins in Berlin, 25 per cent are listed in blue books. Some day when the working class come into power in Germany, there will be more black books than blue books.

* * *

IT doesn't look as if acceptance of the discipline of the Communist International hurt the Czecho-Slovakian Communist Party in the recent elections. On the contrary the renegade who rebelled against the C. I. and organized a party of his own financed by capitalist money did not even send a single representative to the chamber of deputies, mhile the Communists increased their strength from 27 to 42. The Czech Communists frankly stated that their party was a section of the C. I. and they polled 931,000 votes while the yellow socialists dropped from 1,600,000 to 631,000. This is not good news to those who decry "interference" on the part of the Communist International in the national sections of the organization.

15,528 Killed by Autos in One Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10. — America's motor accident death rate was placed by the commerce department at 15.7 per 100,000 of population in 1924, compared with 14.9 in 1923, 12.5 in 1922 and 11.5 in 1921. Chicago's rate was 19 and New York's 16.6 last year.

The total deaths were 15,528, while in 1923 the total was 14,411 and in 1922 it was 11,666.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION OPENS FIGHT ON COOLIDGE PROPOSALS IN SPEECH BEFORE CONVENTION

War upon the Coolidge administration's plans for relief to the farmers and a fight to obtain from congress enactment of a law similar to the defeated McNary-Haugen bill was being planned yesterday by officers and directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation as they met in secret conference in this city following adjournment of their convention.

"My policy will be governed by the 38 resolutions passed by the convention," bluntly declared S. M. Thompson, farmer-banker of Quincy, Ill., new president of the federation and leader of the radical element. He was elected on the seventh ballot over O. E. Bradfute of Xenia, O., who was seeking a fourth term.

The resolutions included advocacy of a federal farm exports federation, government operation of Muscle Shoals, restoration of prewar freight rates and development of a merchant marine.

Personal Rebuke to Coolidge.

The action of the Farm Bureau Federation is a direct slap in the face of Coolidge who made a special trip to Chicago to befuddle the farmers with

MORE SECRET MEETINGS IN MINE STRIKE

Locked Doors Prevent News of Dealings

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 10.—A secret conference was held here yesterday between Governor Pinchot and a committee of chambers of commerce in the anthracite region. Methods of trying to end the strike of anthracite miners were discussed.

The chief effort is to bring about a resumption of negotiations between the operators and the union officials. The operators, feeling that they want to keep the strike going until the union surrenders and they can establish open shop, are unwilling to negotiate. Moreover, they prefer to turn down Pinchot to keep him from getting any prestige, even as a strikebreaker, since they prefer the outspoken reactionary, Senator Pepper.

The committee of business men after conferring with the governor conferred with representatives of the miners' and then with the operators, holding separate meetings behind locked doors. There is little "open diplomacy" to let the miners now on strike to see what their officials are doing behind locked doors.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY PLANS DISTRIBUTION OF MILLION COPIES OF ATTACK ON COOLIDGE MESSAGE

A statement by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party which appeared in yesterday's DAILY WORKER on the challenge that President Coolidge made to the American workers in his message to congress is now being printed and will soon be on the way to every unit of the Workers (Communist) Party. The Central Executive Committee calls upon all units of the party to distribute this statement as widely as possible among all workers and especially to those that are members of the trade unions and to the farmers.

Print Million Copies.

The party is printing a million copies of this leaflet and in a short time will issue a program of action, laying the basis for activity of the Workers (Communist) Party in the coming congressional and state elections in 1926 and aid to stimulate the move towards a labor party in the trade unions and other working class organizations.

Arrange Mass Meetings.

Mass meetings are to be arranged in all parts of the country in which the meaning of the recent message to congress by President Coolidge will be explained to the workers and the need for an active struggle of labor against the Coolidge policies will be stressed.

All members of the Workers (Communist) Party are called upon to mobilize for an active campaign to educate the workers of America to a realization of the necessity of developing class struggle activity against this program of big business laid down by Calvin Coolidge.

SUBURBAN RATES INTO CHICAGO INCREASED 15 PCT.

A fifteen per cent increase in suburban fares was granted all railroads in the Chicago district, except the Chicago & Northwestern, by the Illinois commerce commission.

The Chicago & Northwestern was not included because it recently obtained a 20 perecent increase from the interstate commerce commission.

Because of the success of the Northwestern before the interstate commerce commission, the other roads are expected to carry their case before the national commission and demand a 20 per cent increase instead of the 15 per cent allowed by the state.

The roads affected by the ruling include the Rock Island, Illinois Central, St. Paul, Burlington and Pennsylvania.

SIXTY VICTIMS ENTOMBED IN SCAB SHAFT OF ALABAMA FUEL AND IRON; BEYOND HOPE OF RESCUE IS BELIEF

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 10.—Sixty men are entombed in the shaft of the non-union coal mine operated by the Alabama Fuel & Iron company near here. At 2 o'clock this afternoon five dead miners and 17 injured had been taken from the shaft.

A cave-in as the result of inadequate timbering and the greed of the mine owners to remove every bushel of coal from the mine has entombed the others and the rescued men say that it is their belief that the remainder of the 60 are dead in the lower level of the mine.

Rescuers Busy.

All equipment of the United States bureau of mines office located here has been rushed to the scene, but most of it is inadequate to deal with the situation and it may be some days before the lower level is opened to reveal the fate of the miners.

COMMUNISTS IN WINNIPEG WIN GREAT VICTORY

Defeat Fascist Head in Elections

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 10—In the recent eections held here the Communist Party achieved a great victory. Its candidate, Comrade Popovich, was able to defeat the candidates of the conservative independents and the Ukrainian fascists, who carried on a violent campaign against the Communist Party of Canada.

Distribute 45,000 Bulletins.

Over 45,000 bulletins were distributed in the shops and on the doorsteps of Winnipeg workers. Among this literature there were two leaflets appealing to the Ukrainian workers and one to the Jewish and one to the German and 24,000 bulletins in English, explaining the clear-cut class program of the workers' candidate.

Workers or Bankers' Rule.

The issue in these leaflets was put squarely before the workers in the slogan "Shall the bankers or the workers rule the city of Winnipeg?" Facts, figures and arguments in the bulletins distributed exposed the class character and the nature of the dictatorship existing in the realm of civic politics.

In this campaign, the Communist Party had the able assistance of the Young Communist League and the Young Pioneers. The Young Pioneers proved their worth to the Communist movement of Canada by distributing thousands of leaflets to the homes of Canadian workers.

Communist in Fourth Place.

Comrade Popovich who on first count stood in third place was only forced to the fourth place by Jones of the independent labor party by 79 votes, which the latter received on the second count from the Ukrainian fascist, Yakimschak, and the conservative independent Palmer.

The final standing of the candidates (after the rest of the candidates had been eliminated) was as follows:

Barry of the conservative party 2814.

Blumberg independent labor party 2[illegible]25.

Jones, independent labor party 2104.

Popovich, Communist candidate 2025.

Make Tremendous Gains.

The Communist Party made tremendous gains in this election despite the vile and slanderous attacks that were indulged in by the Ukrainian fascists among the Polish, Ukrainian, German and Russian workers and the vile campaign of the conservative and independent labor parties.

CAP MAKERS SHOW GREAT SOLIDARITY

Boston Shop Strikes Against Scab Order

By S. D. LEVINE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 10—The workers of the cap firm Tobias Cap Manufacturing company, in Boston have shown a good example of class solidarity.

An order for about 600 uniform caps for a taxi company came into the above named firm. The workers of that firm, who are members of Local 7 Cap Workers' Union, upon finding out that this order is for the Checker Taxi company, whose workers are now on strike and that these caps will be worn by the strikebreakers, immediately called a shop meeting and notified their employer that they will not make any caps for strikebreakers.

Boss Rages in Vain.

The employer was very indignant, insisting upon the work and appealing that this would mean losing a customer, but it was of no use. The workers were determined not to make caps for strikebreakers and the order had to be canceled.

The action of the cap makers is more praiseworthy when it is taken into consideration that there is not much work now in the shops and that the loss of this order meant a loss of almost a week's wages for each one of the shop workers.

A Progressive Local.

Local 7 is a progressive local in the Hat and Cap International Union. The local participates in all progressive work of the labor movement. Its organizer is Brother J. Miller, and the secretary is S. Wisem.

LEAGUE REFUSES TO HEAR SYRIAN STORY OF FIGHT

Fear Challenge to Imperialist Mandates

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Dec. 10 — Britain and France, tho deadlocked on every other point thus far discussed at the present session of the council of the league of nations have at last found common ground. They have united in order to prevent a representative of the nationalist liberation movement of Syria and Palestine getting a hearing.

Ihsan Djabir Bey, of the stricken city of Damascus, is here as the representative of the Syro-Palestine independence movement and requested audiences with Sir Eric Drummon, secretary general of the league; Sig. Scialoja, chairman of the council, and

CHICAGO UNIONS PLAN DELEGATON TO SOVIET RUSSIA

Raising Funds to Send Six from Chicago

(By Federated Press)

Delegates from unions of carpenters, machinists, painters, printers, needle trades and others, numbering 22, organized into a permanent committee to join in the national movement for sending a labor mission to investigate conditions in Russia.

Peter Jensen of the railroad machinists was elected chairman. It is known as the Chicago Committee for a Trade Union Delegation to Soviet Russia with its address as 3451 Beach St.

Members hope to raise sufficient funds to send six instead of two representatives from Chicago tho the cost will be about $1,000 per delegate.

Committees are active in New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Philadelphia and other centers where Pres. A. A. Purcell of the Intl. Federation of Trade Unions (Amsterdam) made his appeals for world trade unity. The British and Russian unions have been most active in the unity campaign.

Foreign Powers Can Display Vintages But Cannot Give Samples

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. — Foreign governments that desire to display wine, cordials, whiskies, champagnes, etc., at the Philadelphia sesquecentennial next year, as a part of their industrial exhibits, may do so—but the forbidden fruit will have to be sealed, stamped and safe-guarded, the prohibition unit ruled, and under no circumstances can any of it be given away as samples.

The ruling was made upon an inquiry by the Spanish government as to whether such exhibits could be displayed and given away.

Race Snobs Shut Out School Children; Big Debate Over Parents

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—Children of six families in Richmond, Va., have been barred from Robert Fulton public school on the ground that "they have a touch of colored blood," the American Civil Liberties Union reports. Parents claim the ancestor of the children was a full-bloded Indian not the colored woman with part Indian blood that Dr. Plecker of the state board of vital statistics charges on his charts.

GERMAN JOBLESS AND BANKRUPTS CREATE GLOOM

No Cut in Rediscount Rate, Says Reichsbank

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Industrial depression is increasing. The Prussian trade minister's monthly report for November was distinctly unfavorable. It is true, that report predicts a continuing although slow increase in the export trade; but unemployed workmen in Germany as of Nov. 15. are stated at 471,353, comparing with 363,919 on Nov. 1.

This is the largest increase of any fortnight since last winter. Bankruptcies in November also numbered 1,320, as compared with 1,139 in October and only 718 in August.

People who had been hoping for easier money were somewhat disappointed by Dr. Schacht's decision, announced yesterday, that the Reichsbank discount rate would not be reduced, but that he would merely modify the bank's system of rationing discounts.

This rationing plan was adopted early in 1924 in order to prevent a new wave of inflation; the bank then announcing that it would not increase the volume of its discounts above that which had been reached in the preceding April.

In September of that year, however, the bank added 16 per cent, to its rationing percentage. Bankers on the whole approved of Schacht's decision regarding the bank rate and are taking the ground that there is no use in lowering the rate until credit rationing is either abolished or materially relaxed.

"Christian" Poland's Justice at Work

WARSAW, Dec. 10—During the debate on the prison administration in the Polish parliament the Jewish M. P. Sommerstein said the following on the basis of the material that the investigation commission of the sejm presented:

"Most political prisoners are kept already for years under the most terrible conditions in arrest on reward, and then it is proved, even by the prejudiced courts, that they were completely innocent. The chief of the political police in Lemberg tortures the political prisoners with electric current. There have been cases of the poisoning of prisoners with strychnine, of the raping of girls and of the wounding of women near their sexual organis."

The minister of justice stated in his answer that the excesses in the prisons were caused by the agitation of the International Red Aid, as the bolsheviki did everything possible to slander Poland and make it appear as a country of white terror.

CHINA DOESN'T SWALLOW ALL U. S. PRETENSE

Every Kicked Coolie a Broadcasting Station

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—China doubts considerably the sincerity of the sympathy professed by the United States, Raymond T. Rich, former teacher in the Canton christian college told the foreign policy association. "Every coolie a foreigner kicks becomes a broadcasting station," said Rich.

"China wants to be mistress in her own house and to run her own show," Dr. Ping Wen Kuo, vice-president World Federation of Educational associations stated, referring to China's demand for customs autonomy and abolition of extra-territorial priviléges.

Better conditions for the masses of Chinese workers is what is needed, Charles C. Batchelder, former acting commercial attache of the American embassy at Peking and now of New York University faculty, told. "The average income is $60 a year and it costs $150 to feed a family of five for a year in southern China."

Colonel Harvey Wants U. S. Capitalist Help for Bankrupt Britain

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(FP)—Former United States Ambassador George Harvey, he of the knee pants and silk stockings, is trying to arouse this country to aid Great Britain in maintaining Anglo-Saxon domination of world finance. He writes of the distressing industrials state to which England has fallen since the war in the North American Review.

He even notes that English agricultural workers are nearly half a million less than 50 years ago and must work for a week on what some American farm hands make in a day. Unemployment is increasing; England is living on her capital; 6,000 more are born on the island each week! Save England for the British capitalists, is Harvey's cry.

Lampert Report on Aviation in Congress Supports Col. Mitchell

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10. — The Lampert report, which will be presented to the house of representatives by the house committee investigating aircraft backs the viewpoint advanced by Colonel William Mitchell, the tool of the airplane interests, against that expressed in the Dwight W. Morrow report, whose big backer is Gary of steel trust.

In the Lampert report, among the recommendations to congress is one calling for the creation of a secretary of aviation on equal footing with that of the army and navy. The recommendations call for the expenditure of not less than $10,000,000 to be used in the production of airplanes in factories owned by civilians.

It calls for the elimination of competition between army, navy and private establishments.

Another point demands that contracts for airplane material be made without competitive bids.

Charge Col. Mitchell Cribbed Arguments from Sea Captain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A direct attempt by the prosecution to show that Col. William Mitchell "plagiarized" parts of his book "Winged Defense," was made at the colonel's court martial.

Calling to the stand Captain Thos. C. Hart, navy submarine expert, the prosecution sought to prove to the jury of generals that the part of Mitchell's book dealing with submersibles was "cribbed" from a lecture by Hart.

German Police Forced By Workers to Arrest Fascisti Murderers

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Faced with numerous revelations by the German radical press, the police were forced to proceed with arrests against the members of the fascist murderers' organizations. It is doubted that the courts will treat these murderers with the full severity of the law.

Some of these arrested bandits have already been released; but revolutionary workers are kept in prison waiting for a trial for months and even years. This is German class justice.

The fascist murders in eastern Prussia were carried on so openly that the police were forced by public protest to arrest them. Many bankrupt business men, who had escaped leaving large debts, were found among those arrested, and had lived by terrorizing the workers.

It has become known that a letter from Ludendorf was found in the pockets of one of those arrested. Documents were also found proving clearly that these people were carrying on espionage work for the allied states and were in close contact with reichswehr authorities.

Polish Bourgeoisie Releases Murderers of Two Communists

VILN, Poland, Dec. 10—Murashko, the murderer of Comrades Baginsky and Wieczorkiewicz, who was "sentenced" to two years "imprisonment," has been released on bail.

The polish bourgeoisie is not content with the mild sentence against this murderer. He had to be released so that the paid murderers of the Polish bourgeoisie could be spurred to new deeds against the workers.

AMERICAN LEGION SCABS ON STRIKE OF SUBURB COPS

Ill. Post Rushes to Break Police Strike

LA GRANGE, Ill., Dec. 10—Twenty-five members of the La Grange post of the American Legion acted as strikebreakers when the police of this Chicago suburb walked out on strike in protest against the forced resignation of their chief.

"The American legion has responded nobly in this crisis," Village Trustee W. M. Galvin said in lauding the successful strikebreakers. "Within a few minutes after part of the police force quit we had legionnaires patrolling the streets."

By a coincidence the legion's strikebreaking took place on the day that Calvin Coolidge, who rose to the American presidency because of his supposed part in breaking the strike of Boston union policemen soon after the war, was speaking in Chicago.

British Financiers Back Smuggling of "Cheer" to America

LONDON, Dec. 10—America's bootleg Christmas "cheer" will be supplied by London financiers, according to the Express.

This newspaper declares that headquarters have been opened in the London financial district for a great syndicate which aims to supply the wants of Christmas thirsts in the United States.

The greater part of the shipments by this syndicate are made across the Canadian border, the Express says.

Tremendous Increase in Philippine Market for U. S. Imperialism

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(FP)—Philippine imports from the United States have increased 50 times in the 25 years of American rule, the American chamber of commerce of the Philippine Islands announces, crediting American sovereignty for the great increase in trade.

In 1899 the islands took $1,353,086 worth of goods from the United States against $60,398,603 worth taken last year. Even discounting the decreased purchasing value of the dollar, friends of Philippine independence see that the likelihood of the United States giving up so valuable market to world competition is remote indeed.

Reign of Terror Still Continues in Bulgaria

SOFIA, Dec. 10—After a year of mass murder the blood thirst of the Zankov gang does not yet seem to be satisfied. Justice is working at full speed and the paper Utro, not a Communist paper, because no left papers exist in Bulgaria, writes in the following manner about this new wave of "legal" terror:

"The district court of Burges presented four death sentences to King Boris which he changed into prison for life. The death sentences of the district court Kustendil against Kisyev and his comrades and the death sentences at Tirnovo against Paunov and his comrades were, however, signed by the 'merciful ruler.' In the meantime the trial against the Communists is taking place in Sofia where dozens of death sentences are demanded."

Sentence Taxi-Cab Driver.

PARIS, Dec. 10—Harry Farcy, taxi driver, was sentenced to one year in prison and ordered to pay 45,000 francs for killing ten-year old Andre Luc with his taxi-cab. Farcy appealed and the high court changed his sentence to three-years imprisonment and 80,000 francs damages.

Amalgamated Members Must Force Officials to Fight on Vital Issues

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, a copy of the current issue, Friday, Dec. 4th, of the Advance, official organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, arrives. It is empty as usual of any statement on the vicious slugging of union members in Chicago by thugs under the direction of minor officials of the present regime that dominates the organization. It still says nothing about the arbitrary dismissal of Joseph Shafir from his job in the Chicago bank of the Amalgamated because he advocated progressive measures at the Atlantic City convention of the American Federation of Labor, as delegate of the Bank Clerks' Union.

These are matters of major importance, that place an indelible brand of ignominy upon the Hillman-Schlossberg administration in the Amalgamated. No effort of any kind has been made by either President Sidney Hillman or Secretary Joseph Schlossberg either to repudiate the sluggings, of which they are very much aware, or to justify the ousting of Shafir, a blow at militancy in the whole labor movement.

• • • •

Instead, in this particular issue of the Advance, more than a page is devoted to an attack on The DAILY WORKER, Thus the Hillman-Schlossberg regime uses the customary trick of trying to draw a red herring across the trail that leads directly to its own guilt. It is trying to direct the attention of the union membership to a side issue, which The DAILY WORKER will not refrain from discussing to the full in its proper place and at the proper time.

• • • •

There is no doubt that the Hillman-Schlossberg regime has placd some clever sophists in leading positions on the editorial staff of the Advance. They are adepts at word juggling.

There is Charles W. Ervin, at one time editor of the New York Call, socialist daily, that was completely deserted by the rank and file when it fed o'ermuch at the trough of the anti-militant trade union officialdom.

There is also J. B. Salutsky, who showed he is no mean adept at playing with phrases in his lengthy report in the Advance on the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor. Bandying words is Salutsky's stock in trade, and he'll stick at it, even if it leads to extreme misconceptions, or whether nothing at all in the way of an idea is passed on to the membership of the Amalgamated thru the union's official organ. This attitude of course, helped make life uncomfortable for Salutsky in the Communist movement, where he lingered for a time. He is comfortable in his present surroundings.

• • • •

With such tricksters as Ervin and Salutsky, and others of lesser note, in prominent places on the Advance, it is no wonder that attacks on The DAILY WORKER take the place of declarations on the big issues in the union. The Amalgamated officials, from Hillman and Schlossberg down, now that they have made slugging an issue in the union must know that they cannot combat those who are wronged with silence. Hillman and Schlossberg may learn from the experience of the Morris Kaufman regime in the Furriers' Union and that of the Sigman administration in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

It is not to be expected that the reigning power in the Amalgamated will agree with anything that appears in The DAILY WORKER. If it chose to do so it could find plenty of material for a page attack in every weekly issue.

But such attacks, on side issues, must not divert the attention of the Amalgamated's membership away from the main issues; the development of the union into a militant, fighting organization, the struggle against wage cuts and the elimination of slugging orgies against those of the union's members who disagree with the administration's position, and the punishment of those, as in the case of Shafir, who champion progressive measures like world trade union unity, anti-class collaboration, recognition of the Union of Soviet Republics, the Labor Party, amalgamation and organization of the unorganized. The membership of the Amalgamated must force the officialdom into the open to fight on vital issues. That is what they fear. But that is the only way to make progress.

League Refuses to Hear Syrians

the Marquis Theodoli of Italy, chairman of the league's mandate commission.

Prevent Hearing.

The French and British immediately got together and agreed to prevent the Syrian from being heard.

This unity of action was prompted by the knowledge on the part of England that if the league granted a hearing facts of the most revolting nature would be forthcoming that would make imposible the maintenance of the French mandate. If the facts really came to light in all their ghastly details either the league would be forced to withdraw the French mandate or the league itself would stand revealed as a tool of organized murderers and pillagers operating against defenseless peoples. Britain also realized that the revocation of the French mandate would be followed by a demand that the British mandate in Palestine be revoked.

Never Surrender.

After being refused a hearing before the league Djabir granted interviews and declared that the Syrians and Druse would never surrender. He related some of the heroic struggles before arms were captured from the defeated French in order to enable them to equip an army. "We demand the complete independence of Syria and we will not accept any other power assuming the mandate." This is a blow to England as the statesmen of that nation hoped that France would relinquish the mandate thereby enabling Britain to exercise it.

10,000 Rifles Against French.

"Unless the league acts to end the warfare, the tribes will continue fighting until they are wiped out, as they will never submit to French oppression. The Syrians are capable of putting 10,000 rifles in the field against the French. Practically all the munitions we posses we captured from the French, and we secured enuf ammunition to last six months or more, and besides we have a certain amount smuggled into Syria from the Mediterranean.

"The French are using Armenian and Circassian mercenaries aginst us, which will eventually result in charges that we are massacring these people when they are killed or wounded in warfare. The people of Syria are financing the campaign, which costs but little, however.

SENATE RECESSES TO DECIDE FIGHT ON LAFOLLETTE

Hated Because He Is Son of His Father

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—With Coolidge reported as favoring the political chastisement of Senator LaFollette, the senate stood in recess today while republican leaders sought to reach a compromise upon the treatment to be accorded him.

The insurgent issue, even though apparently settled in amicable fashion at last Saturdey's republican conference, was revived in the senate, it was said, because house republicans ousted the Wisconsin delegation from all party assignments. The influence of the president, rumor had it, favored this course of punishment for the insurgents who bolted the party in 1924, and leaned toward similar discipline for young LaFollette.

Afraid of Next Year.

Capitol Hill meanwhile thrilled to a report that a secret session of the republican committee on committees of the senate, charged with settling the LaFollette dispute, almost broke up in a row over the issue. One faction, led by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, and Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, the president's spokesman in the senate, were said to have demanded the ousting of LaFollette from all republican privileges, not so much because of his own record, but because he was a son of his father.

This attitude was bitterly fought by western senators on the committee, who argued that such a course might easily estrange the progressive vote of the west and result in the election of a democratic congress next November.

The committee at any rate reached a deadlocked on the question of "what to do with LaFollette." It will meet again next Monday to render a decision, but behind the scenes, leaders continued to seek an agreement between the rank and file of the party.

Coolidge's influence was said to have been brought into the row by Senator Butler, his close friend and confidant. Butler was reported to have argued to his colleagues that a friendly treatment of young Bob would be, in effect, a repudiation of the party's action last March in ousting his father and three other insurgents. Butler also was said to have urged punishment of young LaFollette because the house republicans had shown no mercy to their insurgents.

Rival Klan Groups in Court Over Name

MUNCIE, Ind., Dec. 10—The suit brot by the knights of the ku klux klan against the independent klan of America for damages of $500,000 and to enjoin it from using the word "klan" is set for trial Jan. 19 before Judge Thomas Slick in federal district court at Indianapolis.

John Cernegliaris

The funeral of fellow worker John Cernegliaris was held yesterday. In view of the splendid activity of John Cernegliaris in the cause of workers' defense during the years 1917-1921—the period of the Palmer "Red Raids" the Chicago Local of the International Labor Defense sent appropriate remembrances thru its Italian section. Comrade Cernegliaris' untiring work in the workers' cause up to the period of his illness for the last three or four years was an inspiring example to those who knew him.

LABOR DEFENSE SENDS PROTEST TO POLICE HEAD

Workers Indignant at Illegal Search

(I. L. D. Press Service)

Great indignation has been aroused by the action of the Chicago police department in searching the person of every man who attended a meeting of the International Labor Defense, held on Friday, Dec. 4, in West Side Auditorium. The meeting was called to protest against the imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow and of the supreme court decision in the case of Anita Whitney.

Several prominent Chicago intellectuals and progressives, voicing the feelings of thousands of others, joined the International Labor Defense in protesting this unwarranted conduct on the part of the police. The following letter signed by Rev. David Rhys Williams, Dr. John A. Lapp, of the National Catholic Welfare Council; Edward C. Wentworth, Emil Arnold and Rev. Norman B. Barr, was sent to Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins and given to the press:

"Morgan A. Collins,
"Chief of Police,
"Chicago, Ill.
"Dear Sir:

"In behalf of the International Labor Defense, I protest against the unwarranted procedure of members of the Chicago police force in forcing workers who attended a mass meeting under the auspices of the above-named organization, last Friday evening, Dec. 4, in the West Side Auditorium, to submit to the indignity of a search of their persons.

"The meeting was called to protest against the criminal syndicalist laws which are on the statute books of several states in the union, and particularly against the imprisonment of Benjamin Gitlow of New York and Charlotte Anita Whitney of California, and there was no ground for any action of interference by police officers at the meeting.

"The International Labor Defense is an organization which provides legal defense for workers who suffer prosecution and persecution for their efforts to better the conditions of working men and women.

"The International Labor Defense is operating openly and legally and comprises in its membership and on its executive council men and women of diverse views and prominent in the labor, radical and progressive movements.

"The constitution of the United States and of the state of Illinois guarantees the right of free speech and free assemblage and the principal aim of the International Labor Defense is to defend the workers in the exercise of those rights.

"In raiding a peaceful meeting, your officers have violated the rights of everybody in the audience who was compelled to submit to the indignity of a search for weapons.

"Are meetings of workers in Chicago to be submitted to such interference, while other public meetings are to go unmolested?

"We emphatically protest against the action of the police on last Friday evening and demand that you state publicly on what basis you compelled those attending this meeting to submit to the indignity of a search of their persons without any warrant and without any disturbance actual or suggested at this meeting."

The preversity of the Chicago capitalist press was never revealed to better advantage than in connection with this meeting. On the morning of the date of the meeting the Chicago Tribune carried a news story, that forty policemen were to "maintain order" at the gathering. A newspaper photographer was present to take pictures of the expected disorder, but no disorder materializing, except that manufactured by the police, and tho the photographer took a picture of the policemen "frisking" the male members of the audience on their way into the hall, neither the story nor the picture appeared in any of the capitalist papers, with the exception of the Daily News, which carried a lying paragraph about the amount of the collection.

The meeting was addressed by William Holly, Pete Jensen of the Federated Shop Crafts, Robert Minor, George Maurer and C. E. Ruthenberg. A good collection was taken up for the defense of the Ziegler miners.

He will like it! Give your union brother a sub to The DAILY WORKER.

CHINESE DEMAND UNEQUAL PACTS BE DESTROYED

Call On Workers to Combat Imperialism

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, Dec. 10—At a mass meeting of Chinese workers, the following resolution was passed appealing to the workers in the western countries to aid the Chinese workers in their fight against the imperialists of France, England, America and Japan and force the scrapping of the unequal treaties that now bind the workers in China:

Against Unequal Treaties.

"The population of Peking raises its voice in passionate protest against the unequal treaties. These treaties are the barbaric lever with which the imperialist powers have forced the Chinese people into the basest slavery and have subjected China to the most brutal exploitation. The Chinese people can not and will not tolerate any longer the customs slavery which England, America, Japan and France have forced upon our country.

"The economic and cultural development of China and the well being of its four hundred million inhabitants imperatively demands the abolition of all the limitations imposed by the treaties: The custom robbery, the foreign court, the exterritoriality of the stolen districts, and of the imperialist citizens in China. These limitations must be unconditionally abolished. The imperialists with to drown the struggle of the Chinese people in blood.

Remember Shanghai!

"We have not forgotten the murderous activity of the imperialists in Shanghai and Hankow. The garrulous diplomats who have been sent by the great powers to the tariff conference in Peking will not be able with all their speeches to weaken the determination of our people.

"We will struggle with all means for the abolition of the slave treaties.

"We cry to you, the toiling masses of the west and of the whole world in the name of the Chinese people: Exploited peoples of the west, unite with the oppressed peoples of the east and destroy imperialism!"

IOWA CORN CROP WORTH LESS NOW THAN IN 1924 DESPITE GREATER YIELD

DES MOINES, Ia. Dec. 10.—Iowa crops in 1925 were valued at $57,000,000 less than the 1924 crops by Charles D. Reed, director of the Iowa weather and crop bureau of the state department of agriculture in his annual crop summary and review presented at the meeting of the Iowa agricultural society here.

This loss stands regardless of the fact that with a production of 478,590,000 bushels, Iowa grew the greatest corn crop in its history. The average price per bushel to the farmer was fixed at 56 cents on Dec. 1.

BOMBAY TEXTILE STRIKERS APPEAL FOR ASSISTANCE

Workers in Need of Financial Aid

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—President C. F. Andrews of the All-India Trade Union Federation has issued an appeal to the people of India for aid to the Bombay strikers. He states in his appeal that only one or two of Bombay's 85 cotton textile mills have been able to work any of the time with full staffs since the strike against the wage cuts began, Sept. 1.

Altho 45 per cent of the 150,000 strikers have gone to their homes in the country districts, Andrews states that the remaining 55 per cent in Bombay are in great need, some of them starving. The workers have no savings out of their 30c a day wages and no credit now with store keepers, money lenders and those who prey upon them with usurious interest when they are working. A committee of assistance to the textile workers has been organized in Bombay. It includes representatives of the All-India Trade Union Congress; Central Labor Board; Bombay Textile Workers' Union; Madanpura Mill Workers' Union; Girni Kamgar Maha Mandal; Girni Kamgar Mandal and Kamgar Kitwardahak Sabha. Because of the great number of workers and families who need help, this committee has not been able to do much and, Andrews asks Indians and friends to contribute.

American friends of Indian trade unionism can send their contributions to Esher Lowell, Secretary Bombay Strike Relief Fund, Room 430, 799 Broadway, New York City. All money received will be sent on to N. M. Joshi, General Secretary All-India Trade Union Congress, Servants of India Society's Home, Bombay, No. 4.

APPEAL IS MADE IN PITTSBURGH FOR NEW TRIAL

Labor Defense Assists Edward Horacek

By ELLA REEVE BLOOR.

(I. L. D. News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10—The lawyer representing Edward Horacek, active member of the Machinists' Union and recently convicted of a charge of violating the Pennsylvania state sedition law, has applied for a new trial. As yet no decision has been handed down.

I. L. D. Conference

The International Labor Defense branch, which is actively assisting the defense of Edward Horacek, recently held a conference at which 50 delegates representing unions and other working class organizations participated. One of the new affiliations to the committee is the miners' union.

Tom Ray, militant fighter in the United Mine Workers of America was elected chairman and Margaret Yeager secretary of the conference.

Report on Past Work.

Ella Reeve Bloor gave a detailed report as to work that has been accomplished and the work that has been planned for the Pittsburgh district by the International Labor Defense. She urged every branch to immediately get in touch with the National Office of the International Labor Defense and order a bundle of the Labor Defender which is to be circulated among the workers calling on them to aid the workers, who are facing prison and are now imprisoned for their activities in the labor movement.

In her talk she also gave a history of the recent trial of Edward Horacek and the special demands that the trial made on the Pittsburgh International Labor Defense.

CAL'S SPEECH ATTACKED ON EVERY POINT

Rocky Road for Congress

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—A rocky road, full of ruts, bumps and detours, stretched away today ahead of the comprehensive legislative program presented to congress by President Coolidge in his annual message. Here and there, the way will be opened for easy sailing, but such spots are enclosed with obstacles.

A survey of congressional opinion as congress settled down in the hardess today for the six months grind revealed that on the four major issues presented by Mr. Coolidge—world court, tax reduction, aviation and coal legislation—the administration likely will have pleasant sailing on two of them and an extremely rough passage on the other two. The troublesome issues are the world court and aviation.

Forces Aligned.

On every issue presented in Coolidge's message yesterday there is antagonistic comment from some of the ablest war-horses of the senate and house. The main fight of the sixty-ninth congress will unquestionably occur on the question of the world court, and Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, representative of the labor hating industrial combines, will lead the fight. He is probably the most formidable debater in the senate, and though debate doesn't count for much in a gang that is bought and paid for beforehand, it will furnish interesting reading and throw considerable light on the clash of economic interests on the floor of the senate.

Assail Muscle Shoals.

Coolidge's message received a broadside from Senator Norris of Nebraska on the question of Muscle Shoals. Norris is one of the insurgent republican leaders and said:

"To sell the big power plant at Muscle Shoals, as advocated by the president in his message, would be indefensible. The statement of the president that he considers the plant worth no more than a good battleship is unbelievable. What good would all the battleships in the navy be if we had no nitrates and therefore no explosives to fire their great guns. Muscle Shoal is a war property but its value in time of peace is immeasurable."

Utterly Misleading.

Senator James A. Reed, democrat of Missouri said:

"It is probably the most misleading and illogical statement ever issued by the White House.

"It utterly disregards and misstates vital facts. A single illustration will suffice. The message states: 'No provision of the statute seems to me to give this court any authority to be a political rather than a judicial court.'

"On the contrary it is easily demonstratable that the league has expressly confered on the court jurisdiction of questions both political and judicial. This will become apparent as soon as the debates begin."

Other comment follows:

Senator Borah, of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee who will lead the fight against the president's recommendation for American adherence to the world court.

"I shall have nothing to say about the message."

Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin:

"I can say nothing about the president's message until I have studied it."

Tariff Is Bunk.

Senator Wheeler, democrat of Montana, vice presidential candidate on the LaFollette ticket: "The president's message holds out no hopes for the farmer. He recommends only cooperative marketing and in his Chicago speech he urged the tariff as the only means of relieving agricultural depression. The farmers of the west long since learned that the tariff is of no value to them unless they have some kind of an export corporation to dispose of their surplus crops.

"The president carefully avoided giving the farmers any recommendations for actual relief."

Coolidge Aids New Englanders.

Senator Caraway, democrat of Ark., said:

"With reference to the president's recommendations for the purchase of the Cape Cod ship canal and for sale of Muscle Shoals, the president disclosed that when private capital makes a bad investment, the government shall relieve them, if the investors are New Englanders. If the government succeeds, as at Muscle Shoals, the president believes private capital should be given the advantage of that success. In other words, the government shall go into private business only when necessary to relieve New England investors of a bad bargain."

POLISH COUNT FAVORS COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH SOVIET UNION

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—Count Skrzynski, who recently formed a coalition cabinet in Poland, when speaking of trade with the Union of Soviet Republics recently declared that he was in favor of a commercial alliance with the Soviet Union as it was only thru commerce with Russia that the present slump in Polish textiles can be overcome.

WOJKOFF
Soviet Minister to Poland.

"There certainly exists a desire on both sides for amicable relations," declared Skrzynski. "This however, is confined to economic and trade relations. No other friendship is possible. Further development of the relations with Russia will be worked out in a treaty of commerce now being negotiated. Russia was and can again be an enormous market for Polish textiles.

BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL FIGHTS LANDIS AWARD

Strikes Jobs Where Non-Unionists Work

"Half-breed" construction of buildings in Chicago, where union men have to work side by side with non-union, is brot to a showdown by the Chicago Building Trades Council in two strikes called to enforce the provisions of existing agreements signed by the contractors but not lived up to by them.

The new Cohan theater down-town and a movie house on the north side under construction are at a standstill because so-called Landis award workmen on a nonunion basis were employed for some of their work by the contractors.

Bosses Ignore Contract.

Work under the jurisdiction of the Building Trades Council is to be done by union men, the contract reads, but in spite of this nonunionists have been put on the job. All unions affiliated with the council, including practically every building trade except the carpenters, called off their men.

The ultimatum was served with plenty of notice when the council declared last June that it would clean up on contract violations. At that time it gave assurance that jobs already started would not be tied up but now, six months later, the practice has not been dropped by contractors and strike action becomes necessary.

Mean Business.

"We will clean up the trouble wherever it appears, down-town or elsewhere," says Pres. Patrict Sullivan of the Building Trades Council. "The contractors have had plenty of warning and we mean business."

LEAGUE SENDS QUERIES TO ALL NATIONS

Russia and the U. S. Are Included

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Dec. 10—The league of nations today decided to send questionnaires to all nations, including the Union of Soviet Republics and the United States, requesting official information concerning the private manufacture of arms and the ability of each nation to produce war material.

This information is sought for the aid of the committee which is preparing a tentative agenda for a league disarmament conference. France gained a point in the disarmament controversy today, when the council decided that the committee appointed to make a preparatory examination of proposed agenda for a disarmament conference should take up the question of Article XVI. of the league covenant, with a view to definitely fixing the extent and promptitude of league aid to an attacked country.

Still Deadlocked.

The British and French impasse is still unbroken today. The French have insisted that the disarmament conference shall lay down definite rules for the activities of member nations, in the event that they are called upon to make war for the "protection" of an "attacked" member nation. Great Britain opposes this policy, as she wants to be free to play her own imperialist game.

MINING CENTERS UNANIMOUS FOR UNITY RESOLUTION OF THE C. E. C.

Unanimous endorsement of the unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party was given by membership meetings held in all of the important mining centers of District No. 8. Max Shachtman, who represented the district executive committee of the party in a short tour of a number of cities in the southern part of the state, pointed out to the members the necessity of liquidating the fractional struggle, uniting the membership behind the Central Executive Committee and the line of the Comintern so that a united struggle against the right wing and for the bolshevization of the party might be carried on. In Springfield, Johnson City, Christopher, and West Frankfort the comrades unanimously endorsed the unity resolution. In each of these towns, the comrades turned their words into deeds by organizing their work for the building up of a mass left wing movement in the United Mine Workers of America, the building up of The DAILY WORKER, International Labor Defense, preparing to circulate the Progressive Miner in big quantities, enrolling comrades for the proposed educational circuit, and making arrangements for the holding of big Lenin memorial meetings next January.

In St. Louis, due to the extremely short time in which the meeting was arranged, only a small percentage of the membership was present and it was decided to postpone action on the resolution until a membership meeting to be held inside of two weeks. The majority of the comrades expressed themselves strongly in favor of the work for unifying the party. Nearly one hundred comrades participated in the membership meetings, which were held.

Southern Illinois is behind the Central Executive Committee in its work for unity and has unmistakably expressed itself.

Cuban Communist on Hunger-Strike

By MANUEL GOMEZ, Secretary. All-American Anti-Imperialist League.

Acting immediately upon a cable message received yesterday from its Cuban section regarding the Wall Street-insipired arrest of Julio Antonio Mella and his twelve comrades, the All-American Anti-Imperialist League has cabled organizations in all parts of Latin-America, calling upon them to protest. The league has also cabled a strong protest to President Machado of Cuba, whose subservience to Ambasador Crowder recalls the similar subservience of President Chiari of Panama.

On Hunger-Strike.

Mella has been on a hunger-strike in his cell for the last six days. The campaign for his release will be test of the rapidly developing solidarity of anti-imperialist forces thruout the Americas.

The prisoners are charged with setting off bombs in front of a Havana factory. Opinion is universal, however, that this is a frame-up of the sort that has become common in Cuba since it was announced that the government would tolerate no criticism of American imperialism. It is generally understood that Mella's arrest—the second within a few weeks—was to put an end to his revolutionary activities, particularly with regard to American interests on the island.

Leads Students' Movement.

Mella is the oustanding figure of the recently-formed Communist Party of Cuba. He is also a leader of the student's federation and has been active in uniting the students behind the demand for the repeal of the Platt amendment giving the United States government virtual overlordship of Cuba. He became very much interested in the work of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League and helped to organize the Cuban section, of which he was made general secretary.

When he supported the exploited "colonos" who refused to cut sugar cane under the conditions laid down by the big American-owned companies, the ire of the imperialists reached its height. Shortly after came his first arrest.

Protest to President Machodo.

Following is the cablegram of protest sent by the All-America Anti-Imperialist League last night to President Machodo of Cuba.

President of Republic of Cuba
Havana, Cuba.

The All-America Anti-Imperialist League, with sections in five countries of Latin-America and the United States, emphatically protests arrest of secretary of its Cuban section, Julio Antonio Mella, and twelve companions. We denounce arests as betrayal to American imperialism and demand immediate release.

Manuel Gomez, Secretary.

Campaign for Bella Release.

Campaign for the relase of Mella and his associates will be taken up in all countries oppressed by American imperialism. The nationalist parties in Porto Rico, the Philippines, etc., are expected to take part, as well as American labor organizations opposed to imperialism.

Farm Bureau Federation Opens War on Coolidge

a prepared speech designed to befog the issues confronting the farmers.

The bankers and others comprising the federation have no effective remedy, but their rebuke to Coolidge proves that even they cannot stomach the brazen impudence of the president talking about a fake prosperity instead of proposing relief for the stricken agricultural regions.

by the prison officials and said to be edited by prisoners. The department of justice secured an appropriation of $200,000 from congress to put up the building and an equal amount to finance the manufacture of shoes. Some compensation will be given to the prisoners who turn out the footwear but how much is conveniently kept a dark secret.

ANOTHER article entitled "Convict Labor" comes out strongly in defense of the prisoners' right to be a producer. Taking a slam at the unions who oppose prison contract labor the writer says: "We hold to the belief that prisoners are entitled to the right to work. We contend that no organization has the right, moral or legal, to stop the mind of the prisoner from functioning. Man (and the prisoner belongs to that class) is a thinking and a working animal. He thrives best when his whole being is constantly put to the test in the production of things which make for the betterment of the race. To stop his natural bent of producing is nothing short of criminal in itself. The work given him to do in prison regardless of its nature, stimulates his brain and permits him to function as a human being."

* * *

THIS defense of the prisoner is overwhelming. Somebody, whether he be prisoner or turnkey has tapped the wells of our emotion. We always knew there was something noble in wardens, beedles and church deacons, but that it was awfully hard to bring it out. We agree with the writer, that prisoners have the right to work. In fact we go farther and say that even those who are not in prison have a right to work. And as a matter of fact, there are many now in American prisons because they have insisted that all workers have the right to work and not only that but a right to what they produce.

* * *

TO have a prison guard admit that a prisoner is a human being is a novelty that cannot pass unnoticed in The DAILY WORKER. And if a human being cannot be kept working, how can his mind function? Does idleness account for the mental paralysis, that wardens of prisons and those who hand out such jobs suffer from? Any Leavenworth graduate can tell you how generously the prison officials supply the prisoners with means of stimulation including massage treatment, with machinery never seen in a rejuvenation parlor.

* * *

THIS is the most novel defense of the prisoner that I have ever read. The author of it should be Len Small's press agent and explain how Mr. Small, while state treasurer of Illinois managed to place state funds in a bank which conveniently got hit by a cyclone when the inspectors went looking for it. He could prove that the million dollars Len managed to retain after the cyclone passed away was found in a cow's belly, and did not come from interest on state funds lent by Small to the packers. A man who can make such a good argument in favor of granting a prisoner the right to do something he is compelled to do, with a prison guard's gun in his ribs, and for nothing, is wasting his time in prison even tho he be a confidence man. In which case he should be heard of a financial institution, or a real estate salesman in either Florida or Los Angeles.

* * *

THE steam was taken out of the bombing combine exposure here last week, when it developed that most of the master minds were heads of business associations with a few reactionary labor fakers thrown in. Anyhow, the police were grateful to run into something that would atone for the miserable fiasco they made of the Durkin case. Those bovine mentalities could not think their way thru a problem that would be easy for a child of six years. Afraid to face Durkin's pistol, a squad of those artful dodgers raided a meeting of the International Labor Defense last week and searched every man in the audience for guns. The captain in charge of the "frisking" no doubt prefered the job to raiding the haunts of the bootleggers in his district. Or perhaps, it was not "payoff night."

Leaders of Fight for Filipino Liberation in Chicago Tonight

Chicago will have an opportunity to hear the leaders of the Filipino liberation movement tonight. Sergio Osmena, vice-president of the Filipino senate, and the other members of Filipino independence mission to the United States will be the guests of honor at a banquet to be given on the ninth floor of the Auditorium hotel, at 6:30 p. m. All speeches will be broadcasted, so that even those who cannot attend the banquet will be able to get Senator Osmena's message.

Senator Osmena is due to arrive from Washington at 9:30 this morning. He will be met at Union Station by members of the Filipino association of Chicago and by a delegation from the Chicago sub-section of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League.

Those who have been invited to speak at the banquet tonight include Senator Osmena, Jane Addams, John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League. Cirilo Manat, chairman of the Filipino independence committee of Chicago, will be toastmaster.

League of Nations Member Says United States Is Arrogant

GENEVA, Dec. 10.—After reading the address of Coolidge to congress, a prominent member of the league of nations remarked:

"The United States cannot expect to try to force us to make over the world court. If the U. S. adheres, she must join like all other nations without any special privileges or dispensations."

The British and French have framed up an alleged "complete agreement" on plans for a new fake disarmament conference after Monday's split on the question. A compromise on four points is now before the committee handling the question. The disclosure of British espionage systems working on a great scale in France inclines all realistic observers to regard this "complete agreement" with smiles.

STOCKYARDS IN 'SAFETY FIRST' CAMPAIGN

Use Badges and Posters for Effect

By A Worker Correspondent

"No accident week" is being "sacredly" observed this week in the Chicago Stock Yards. Posters picturing men in overalls willfully falling off step-ladders and tin signs bearing the magic words "safety first" adorn the walls. The company even maintains "safety inspectors" who are kept busy at other duties.

The method of Armour and company in this campaign offers an interesting contemplation of this project. Each employee has been given a celluloid badge which he must wear conspicuously all week. The badge proudly sports a star, so that the wearer will feel important, like a policeman, the picture of the ham he might win if he diligently wears the badge, a number, maybe lucky, and the charmed words "I am a booster for no accidents."

At the end of the week numbers corresponding to those on the badges will all be put into a big hat. A girl slave from the general office, dressed in white for the occasion, blindfolded of course, will draw a slip out of the hat while everyone holds his breath, then the wearer of the badge with this number gets a ham, free and the campaign ends.

Meanwhile . . . a plintered ladder breaks under the weight of a man opening a valve. He is laid up for three weeks. A man slips on a slimy gut strewn floor. A tubercular hip is the result. A worn out wrench slips off a nut and cuts a gash in the mechanic's head. A rotten steampipe bursts. Someone is scalded. And, maybe. . . the man who wins the ham will overbalance into an unguarded lard kettle and be sold on the market in a pail of Armour Simon Pure Leaf lard!

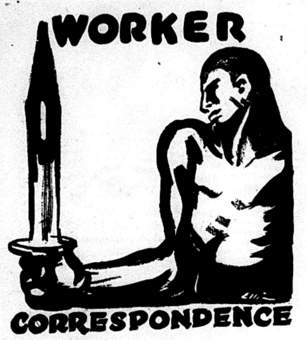
UNITED GARMENT LOCAL CALLS ON UNIONS FOR AID

St. Louis Clothing Firm Maintains Open Shop

By a Worker Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 10—Local 26, United Garment Workers of America has issued an appeal in which it calls upon all union men to abstain from purchasing the products manufactured by the Curlee Clothing company of St. Louis which refuses to deal with the representatives of the workers but insists on maintaining the open shop.

In its appeal, the United Garment Workers' Union Local, points out that the Curlee Clothing company instituted the open shop during the war and that it continues to maintain the open shop policy and fires union men as fast as they become known to the spies hired by the bosses.



LIFE OF BUILDING WORKERS IN THE UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS AND WHAT REVOLUTION GAVE THEM

By NIKOLAI KAPUSTIN.
Worker Correspondent.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—(By Mail).—Before speaking of what the building workers of the U. S. S. R. have accomplished thru the revolution, we must acquaint the reader as to how the building workers lived and worked in "good old czarist Russia."

Then and Now.

We may say that a building worker as such did not exist. They were simply peasants who came into the towns in summer time, because they had no work in the countryside as there was very little land.

In the old days building work was undertaken on an all-provincial scale and divided up internally according to craft. Just before the commencement of the building season the contractors sent out their agents from the large towns to hire building workers.

The people hired in this way gave up their passports to the agents and received an advance, which was hardly enough to cover the journey to town, but they were obliged to be on the spot by the appointed time. The contractor gave "apartments and food" for the whole summer. But what kind of an apartment did I live in? This was in Petrograd now Leningrad. The room was 40 square arshins and there were neither more nor less than 21 of us builders in it. There is no need to speak of the absolutely worthless soup and the putrid meat which was doled out.

Now things are quite different with us. Builders may be found in any town as a permanent section of the proletariat. They are settled in the town where they live both winter and summer.

Labor Court Protects Workers.

The contractors no longer go to villages to choose workers. We set about in a different way. We seasonal workers read the newspaper announcements demanding building workers, where the branch of the trade and the number of hands required is stated.

One may say that the 1925 season has shown that we have made great strides ahead in construction work. For thruout the entire great union of republics a shortage of building workers is felt. Whereas formerly we had to give up our passport to the contractor who compelled us to work for a mere pittance and eat his mouldy food, now altho contractors still exists, our wages are regulated by collective agreements, and when these are infringed, the health of the contractors does not improve at the hands of our proletarian legislation in the form of the labor court. Formerly we builders knew no other place than the "traktirs" (public houses) and that was only on Sunday evening. Now we have our own libraries at every large building site.

Illiteracy Vanishes.

Every year, as in Baku for instance, we liquidate illiteracy among more than 200 workers in two graduations. Every week lectures are read at all building works at Baku at which everyone must be present. It is difficult to recognize our building workers as compared with the old builders. They are catching up with their brother metal workers, printers, etc. Our network of clubs and rest corners, are heading straight for education. The cultural-educational work among building workers has undertaken trade union work as its first immediate task. This work, of course will not be without results. Our seasonal workers (as we call those who come for the summer) mostly arrive as illiterates. It is a well known fact that education was formerly inaccessible to us. Now we not only become literate, but even fully developed people, able to get our bearings on all political questions.

That is what the October revolution has given us building workers.

Work But Don't Slave.

Now we do not work on the buildings from dawn to sunset as formerly, but work voluntarily, eight hours a day, as all workers. But I may add that because of an insufficiency of building workers, in Baku, in some cases over-time is permitted, but not unlimited. The contractor, the foreman and the employers treat the builders in a different way now, and one no longer hears them fouly cursing the workers.

Have many changes taken place among you workers in the American building industry during the same period?

LOUISIANA JIM CROWISM KEEPS THE NEGRO CHILDREN ILLITERATE

By JENNIE PINCUS.
(Worker Correspondent.)

NEW LLANO, Louisiana, Dec. 10.—Most of the Negroes in Louisiana live on the low, marshy land in the southeastern part of the state. Here is where rice and cotton are raised. Here live none but the poorest and hopeless class of whites as well as blacks. They live in one room or two room wooden shacks. In most of these shacks such things as glass windows or even wire screens are a luxury unattainable. During the summer the hot sun comes in freely—so do the mosquitoes. During the winter the rain becomes a seasonable guest.

When school opened, I noticed three little colored girls doing the washing for a neighbor instead of going to school. Upon inquiry I learned that the nearest school was four and a half miles away. But there was the school bus. It stopped for some children down the road. "That's just it," I was informed, "school busses don't stop for colored children."

When asked if they wished to go to school, these little girls explained that as soon as the cotton picking season was over, they would try to walk to school, but they explained when the rainy season sets in, the muddy roads kept them from going to school, that's how it was last year.

I decided to pay a visit to the principal to the local school. When I stated my errand, he looked at me with mingled surprise and contempt. He was the principal of the white school—and had nothing at all to do with the Negro children. However, I might go and see Mr. Bertrand, the local member of the school board. Mr. Bertrand was the town's banker, so I could go right to the bank and inquire for him. Having found the bank and the gentleman—I proceeded to acquaint him with my mission.

"You know that niggers' school does not open until the cotton picking season is over," he informed me.

Yes, I knew that. But how will the children get to school? It is four miles away. "Is education compulsory in this state?" I asked.

"Yes, but they cannot compel any child to walk more than two and a half miles to school. And neither can we expect the parish to provide separate conveyances for every child."

When I informed him that the school bus passed the home of these children, and when I suggested that the same bus carry the black as well as white children, this "benevolent" banker stiffened and very curtly informed me that they don't "mix them down here."

To my question as to the reason they did not provide country schools or school busses for these children, he answered, "Because we have all that we can do to provide for the white children. The parish is too poor."

"Do Negroes pay taxes on their property?"

"Yes, but there are very few who own any property. Those taxes were not enough to provide their children with schools, busses, etc. And besides," he informed me, he was only one of the school board. The parish school board meets at Jennings, 25 miles away.

I have written to them but of course I do not expect any action to be taken, nor even an answer to my letter.

ROCHESTER WAR ON A. C. W. GANG HAILED IN N. Y.

Action Committee to Fight to Victory

By A Worker Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The defeat of the Amalgamated bureaucrats in Rochester created a great deal of joy among the New York tailors. Wherever you go among members of the Amalgamated you can see their eyes full of joy. The rank and file of the tailors are only asking: "How long are we going to stand the methods of gangsterism in our union?"

The fact that the Rochester tailors are uniting with the United Action Committee of the Amalgamated of New York and are fighting the bureaucratic officials and the old fashioned methods that are leading to destruction and slavery among the tailors, brot encouragement to all corners of the trade. It is really the talk of the shop and of the union meetings.

It is brot out now that Alex Cohen played a great role in trying to disrupt the meeting of the tailors in Rochester at which Liptzin and Nelson spoke. The Amalgamated Action Committee issued a call to the members of the Amalgamated in New York in all the shops, that they should continue not to recognize the agents of the union. They say in their statement that no one elected these agents and they do not represent anybody.

The Action Committee also issues a declaration to all the members which is to be read at all the meetings of the revolting tailors in New York.

The strike at Goldenburg and company, is in full swing. Notwithstanding the fact that the officials are trying with their gangsters to defend the owners, the workers are determined to strike in protest against the expelling of an old worker and throwing him out on the street. The shop is picketed until the worker will be reinstated.

TELLS STORIES OF WAGE SLAVES IN PHILADELPHIA FACTORY THAT ILLUSTRATE CAPITALIST SYSTEM

By ANGELO PETERS, Worker Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—One of the meanest men I know is John P. Farmakis, who calls himself a socialist, a good man and a friend of poor people. He is head of the St. George church at Eighth and Locust streets and is a candy and ice cream manufacturer. He is the second richest man among the Greek people in Philadelphia.

Farmakis, however, is a hungry shark for gold. He makes thousands a week, but cries for more. His workers toil for 12 to 16 hours a day, and what they get is only from $14 to $17 a week. No one stays on the job long. Three months is the limit for all but three slaves.

A Model Slave.

One was the model slave. He had been working for the same boss for 33 years without pay, just his meals, room rent and laundry; a few old clothes now and then. For 33 years, 16 hours a day, seven days a week, twelve months a year. Never rest. He died right in the store. He was 86 years old and was John P. Farmakis' first wage worker. He worked till the last.

The old slave was a great soldier. He fought in many wars, but not for freedom. He came to America when 12 years old and fought when he was young to free the black slaves, but he never fought to free himself. He then went to sea and saved all his money. Then he gave this money, all he had, to his boss to help him start in business. He never got it back. He lost his money and his life for his boss, while Farmakis was piling up thousands of dollars. The more money his boss got the less he got.

Uncle George's Story.

"Uncle George," as we called him, told me how he gave his boss, John P. Farmakis, money when Farmakis opened a candy store at 210 North 8th street in 1892. He never got it back, he said, and added: "He is the meanest man in the world. My boss has no pity on me. Nor for anybody else."

The second slave is named Hrist. He has worked for Farmakis for 20 years. Long hours, hard labor—and for nearly nothing. He is 64 years old now, nervous and sick from over work. He gets $10.50 a week in the summer just like Uncle George did. He has no chance to be happy and live long.

Weeps for Joy at Workers' Rule.

I told him about The DAILY WORKER and he was nearly crying. He wanted me to tell him more about the workers' government of Soviet Russia. He was so happy to hear of it. He said: "It sounds too sweet and beautiful. It must be a dream." But I told him more and more till he began to see that it was true. Then he nearly lost his head, he was so happy.

The third man is named Halsichadis. For three years straight he has worked 12 to 16 hours a day, seven days a week, summer and winter. He says the sooner his end comes the better it will be.

So we all know now that John P. Farmakis is stingy and the meanest man to the poor. He even cheats his own insides. Because while he makes thousands of dollars, he buys only one roll and coffee for breakfast and only two hot dogs and coffee for lunch.

PRISON FOOD FOR BLIND BABIES IN CAL. INSTITUTION

Dietician Fired; Beans Take Place of Eggs

By JIM MAC CRADY
(Worker Correspondent)

OAKLAND, Calif. Dec. 10.—Falling under the ax (economy ax), the rations of inmates of the California school for the deaf, dumb and blind are to be cut in order to keep the cost of feeding the 200 children within the 25 cents a day allowance of the state.

The cost of the food purchased by the school for one third of the present fiscal year was $13,000 while the yearly allowance is but $27,000, it was revealed at a conference of Will C. Wood, state superintendent of public instruction, and Principals Wm. A. Caldwell and R. S. French and Thos. Mayhew, business manager of the institution.

No Eggs—But Beans for Babies.

However, "no under-feeding will be indulged in," the public report hastens to add, but less eggs and more beans will be the order of the day, according to the superintendent's statement (confession) published in the capitalist press.

What more damning indictment of the capitalist system can be thought of than that the especially poor, helpless, unfortunates bereft by nature from birth of the necessary physical qualifications for life's battles, these children, themselves products of the capitalist system, should be further victimized by being deprived of the necessary diet for children and a substitute of prison rations instead, as the report continues "Miss Alice Heintz, the dietician, was automatically dropped from the staff."

No Dietician Necessary with Beans.

True enough, there would be no use for a dietician in a children's institution where the tots were to be fed on beans. Reports coming from Soviet Russia, however, indicate that in the workers' republic where the working man is king, the children have first choice even if the former capitalists have to subsist on beans—or less.

FARMER IS UNDERPAID FOR WHAT HE SELLS AND OVERCHARGED FOR WHAT HE BUYS UNDER CAPITALISM

By A. C. MILLER, Communist Member of the North Dakota Legislature

WILLISTON, N. Dak., Dec. 10.—A pathetic sight is revealde to those who may chance to travel thru the wheat belt of the Dakotas and Montana; notwithstanding the fact that the grain gamblers have thrown back a few dollars to the farmer by way of high prices.

A Poverty Stricken Picture.

Farm buildings are going to pieces on farms that are occupied as well as on those that are abandoned. The farmers' furniture and bed clothes look worn. His wife and children in many instances are ragged and look like scare crows; a sight many have seen in Russia before the reign of the Bolsheviki. Thus we see intelligent and high-spirited people reduced to abject poverty, here in great America, wtih no remedy under the present capitalist system.

No high prices set by grain speculators or by the government will help the farmer so long as business is done for profit, by the few, for the few. It it a case of 15 per cent of the people robbing 85 per cent of the people, the farmers and wage earners.

The business men are quick to point to a farmer who they claim has made good. But when you investigate these isolated cases you find that these farmers either inherited a few thousand dollars to begin with, or married school teachers in the community school and do their own house-work at the same time. Another case they point to is a farmer who is so tight and stingy that he did his wife's dental work, extracting all of her teeth.

When you ask 90 per cent of the farmers of these states if they can beat the game at farming many will say, "It can't be done." When you ask them why, they say there are too many people doing business on Main street, "we can't pay for all of those fine cars they are driving, and the gas they use; we can't support all of them."

Thus we see that the farmer is getting wise to this graft. He is beginning to find out that he must organize with the wage slave, to do business thru the collective ownership of all the machinery of production and distribution. If this is not accomplished the farmer must expect to continue to be underpaid for what he sells and over-charged for what he buys.

Movie Piffle Used to Poison Workers' Minds Against Soviet Russia

By E. W.
(Worker Correspondent)

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 10.—A cartoon shown at the Lyceum Theater, biggest movie of the west side, in connection with Current Events appears to be the new way of spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

It characterizes a man endeavoring to solve a word puzzle who is stopped by a seven letter word meaning something that comes chiefly from Russia. His efforts in trying to find the word makes him late in feeding the cat. The cat enters, learns the reason for his being late and starts out to help him find the word. She sits on a rock next to a mule who kicks her to Russia where she enters a place and finds two bewhiskered and barbaric appearing individuals studying a document which she steals and which later develops to be a "revolutionary plot."

The cat comes back in as strange a way as she went over, and tells her master that she had found nothing but trouble, which turns out to be the word he was seeking.

They dare not show actual pictures of Russia unless they wanted to show the American workers the progress that the workers' and peasants' government has made—so this is the rot they have their hirelings try to poison our minds with. However, the red star of the east is shining brighter every day, and the workers of the world see it.

WORKER CORRESPONDENTS IN THE CLASS STRUGGLE ARE NECESSARY; BE ONE

A most important phase of the Workers' School activities is the preparing of correspondents in the class struggle. Worker correspondents' classes are being held in New York City at the Workers' School, 108 E. 14th St., every Monday night at 8 p. m. with Joseph Freeman in charge and in Chicago Thursday night at 8 p. m. at The DAILY WORKER editorial office with J. L. Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER, and Arne Swabeck, general secretary of the Chicago district, in charge. Workers living in either of these two cities should join this class at once. A number of other cities are making arrangements to conduct classes as soon as there is a sufficient demand. If you live in any other city find out what is being done about developing worker correspondents in that city.

But no worker should wait for the classes before beginning to write. Read carefully every worker correspondents' article on this page every day. Then if you have something to write, go to it.

Every item sent to The DAILY WORKER by a worker correspondent will be criticized and helpful suggestions will be sent to the worker correspondent to guide him in performing this most important work.

U. S. FARMERS WORK 16 HOURS; EARN 60 CENTS

Not Told by Communist But by Govt. Official

By FRANK HOWARD
(Worker Correspondent)

YORK, Pa., Dec. 10.—If farmers are not prosperous in this part of the country they are not prosperous anywhere for here we have a soil which is as fertile as any in the United States, a fair climate and available markets. The farmers here work 16 hours a day, from 4:00 a. m. until 8:00 p. m.

If a farmer hears of the eight-hour day he assumes that the reference is to eight-hours in the morning and eight after noon. Even on Sunday milk is drawn and hauled to market and the stables cleaned of the week's accumulation. Everybody works on the farm, the women and children out in the fields with the men. The farmers look upon the authorities as enemies because children are compelled to attend school until 16 years of age.

These children do considerable work on the farms in the morning before going to school and after school is dismissed. The school season is but seven months. When the boys reach the age of 16 they leave the farm to work in the factories because their parents cannot pay them to do farm work. A farmer with a 90-acre farm must do all of the work himself to make a bare living. When threshing or other employment is procurable in the neighborhood the farmers will leave their own work to hire out for $2.00 a day.

Farmers Earn 60c. a Day.

The United States department of agriculture sends Dr. Spillman, chief of the bureau of farm management, thruout the country to advise farmers which crops may be more profitable the next season. Spillman bases his guess on data showing which crops are plentiful and which are scarce in this country and in foreign countries. Dr. Spillman says that for the first time in the history of this country cotton farmers earn as much as they pay their hired help. But he predicts that this "prosperity" will soon vanish as China and other countries have taken to cultivating cotton because of the present high price. $1.50 a day for the American cotton grower is too good to last. In one of its farm bulletins the government states that the average hourly wage of the American farmer is ten cents. At one of his public addresses Dr. Spillman was asked if this figure was correct.

"Ten cents an hour applies only to so-called 'good times,'" he replied. "Ordinarily the farmer earns but two or three cents an hour. The daily wage of the American farmer is about 60 cents a day."

This figure is based upon the income derived from the farm, after taking into consideration the number of hours of work performed by each member of the family; the amount of money invested in the property, depreciation etc.

How Gag is Applied.

One of the members of this audience asked Dr. Spillman if government ownership of the railroads would not assist the farmer, by reducing the cost of transportation. Spillman replied that that was not his subject; that he did not express an opinion on any matter to which he had not given special study. The United States government has a rule to the effect that any employe of the government who advocates the passage of any law, or who indulges in "political activity" must be discharged from his position. The rule is very elastic and may be interpreted in any way that the Washington representatives of the House of Morgan desire. This explains why Dr. Spillman and other spokesmen do not reply to such questions.

Farm slavery is one of the worst forms of capitalist mismanagement. Individual farming is unscientific, antiquated and out of date in an industrial age. Agriculture patiently awaits the revolution. The proletarians of the cities, who have time in which to learn the lessons of capitalist exploiation, must prepare to lead the farmers in revolt.

A Contemptible Insult

The part of Coolidge's address to congress dealing with the question of the Philippines becomes all the more offensive when we consider the fact that at this moment there is in this country a mission striving to realize freedom for those harassed islands. A less brutal statesmanship than that which characterizes the dollar diplomacy of the United States would have at least accorded them the courtesy due representatives of another people, even tho they are so unfortunate as to be victims of imperialism.

When Filipinos journey here pleading for liberation from the oppressor the reply is a threat to deprive them of their native legislature that sometimes acts as a check against the arrogant rule of the governor general. Here is the reply of Coolidge to the Philippine mission:

> "From such reports as reach me there are indications that more authority should be given the governor general so that he will not be so dependent upon the local legislative body to render effective our efforts to set an example of the sound administration and good government, which is so necessary for the preparation of the Philippine people for self-government under ultimate independence."

Examples of such sound administration have been portrayed to the people of those unfortunate islands for a quarter of a century. The water cure, wholesale hangings, rapine and terror are some of the wholly delightful and uplifting examples set by the government of the United States.

We do not know who wrote Coolidge's address, but the utterances of the plunderers of the islands reveal a consistent attitude. It was in May, 1923, before the American chamber of commerce in Manila that Major General Leonard H. Wood, governor general of the islands, said:

> "The Filipinos are rapidly approaching a stable government, as I define a stable government, namely, A GOVERNMENT UNDER WHICH FOREIGN CAPITAL INVESTS AT ORDINARY RATES OF PROFIT."

Evidently the Filipinos are not so anxious to permit themselves to be manacled so that foreign capital can invest at the ordinary rate of profit. Then again, there are opening up new fields of profit in the rubber industry, which will convince Coolidge and Wood that much more preparation than formerly anticipated is necessary for self government."

The only effective method and the most convincing argument in favor of Philippine independence is for the Filipinos to arise and take it by scourging the tyrant Wood and his crew from the islands.

The Manifesto Against Coolidge

The manifesto of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, published yesterday in THE DAILY WORKER, besides being a devastating reply to the pigmy president who acts as a megaphone for American imperialism, indicates the political maturity of the Workers Party. Masterful in its analysis, yet written in such a manner that any worker can understand it, the manifesto deals with every point enunciated by the president. It rips asunder the veil of platitudinous lies and reveals the speech as a reaffirmation of the capitalist war against the exploited workers and farmers.

To be immediately published in a four-page leaflet it should be distributed by the millions among the workers and farmers of the United States, so that they may know there is one party that defends their interests against the vicious assaults being prepared by the rapacious capitalist class.

The Coolidge program is one that extends the tentacles of imperialism to remote corners of the earth. There also the manifesto challenging it should reach the colonial masses, translated into their own language.

As opposed to the Coolidge program for the perpetuation of the rule of the capitalist class the Workers (Communist) Party presents to the exploited masses a program that can be made the starting point for effective resistance that will culminate in that concentration of force necessary to send the political structure of capitalism in this country tottering to its fall.

Dawes Doesn't Get the Prize

Reports emanating from Geneva that the clownish vice-president of the United States, Charles G. Dawes, was to obtain the Noble peace prize for his services to the House of Morgan in obtaining Anglo-American control over the economic life of Germany, were incorrect.

If this fourth-rate politician was considered at all he was soon dropped. The world situation is such that even the peace prize commission cannot find any one worthy of accepting it for the "greatest contribution to peace this year."

The commission is not at all particular either, when we consider the fact that the late Theodore Roosevelt once received the thing.

However, the commission has already chosen Austen Chamberlain and Aristide Briand, the heroes of Locarno, to receive a double prize next year. Since it is only (?) $20,000 annually, the commission decided to wait until the prize fund had doubled in order to halve it between the English and French statesmen.

This decision was reached day before yesterday. Yesterday came the deadlock of the league council at Geneva and at the same time the expose of the spies of Mr. Chamberlain endeavoring to ferret out the military secrets of M. Briand. We fear that if the Nobel prize is awarded next year it may be necessary to find some peaceful jungle chieftain in the heart of the "dark continent," on which to bestow it. That is if imperialism does not beat them to it, and change the peaceful natives into brawling pawns of the great powers.

Widows and orphans were the first considerations when the United States senate opened last Monday. Since the government can do nothing for them the Rev. J. J. Muir, D. D. (doctor of delusions), besecched in prayer his spook in the sky to be the "widow's god and the father of the fatherless." The Soviet Union does not trust to a phantom to aid widows and orphans, but takes care of them without any aid from on high.

Injunction Judge Challenges Chicago Labor

By Arne Swabeck

THE ruling of the labor hating Judge Dennis E. Sullivan declaring the Illinois injunction limitation act unconstitutional in his decision in the case of Ossey Brothers department store, against the Retail Clerks Local No. 195, has become an open challenge to the Chicago trade union movement. It is a test of its strength to meet another deadly attack directed against its right to exist and to function. How will this challenge be met?

Judge Sullivan held that there is no such thing as peaceful picketing as described in the injunction limitation law and sentenced several members of the clerks' union who had been on the picket line, including the business representative, to various terms of imprisonment and fines.

The Chicago Federation of Labor, at its last meeting, went on record giving the executive board full power to act in support of the Retail Clerks Local and to also invite the Illinois Federation of Labor to assist.

Study This Injunction

This ruling by Judge Sullivan should be no surprise to any thinking worker, not only because of the notorious injunction record of this judge, but more so because he in this instance merely becomes a tool in the hands of the whole ruling power of the employing class. It is one more demonstration that the capitalists have no earthly respect for laws enacted by their own puppet politicians if they do not suit their purposes. Those gullible workers who honestly believed that the injunction limitation law means something to them will have to thing over again. The injunction is too good a weapon for capitalists to give up or to have any limitations set upon. To them it means little whether the injunctions are issued by so-called "good" or "bad" judges. The chief objects of injunctions are to, whenever necessary, limit or completely do away with the rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage of workers of their right to strike and function as an organized body.

The first injunction were used merely to restrict the right to picket struck plants. Then, the judicial decrees attempted to abolish that right altogether. As the workers' resistance became weaker the bosses became bolder and the injunctions were used to completely prohibit strikes as in the Hitchman case, and more outrageously in the case of the injunction issued by Judge Wilkerson against the striking railroad shopmen in 1922, taking away altogether their rights to function in an organized manner. The injunction evolution continued. One case issued by Judge Carpenter in the Mitchel Bros. company case in Chicago went to the extreme limit of forbidding organizers to ask workers to join the union, although there was no strike in progress. And now Judge Sullivan, finding an obstacle in his way, simply declares the injunction limitation law unconstitutional.

A Dangerous Tendency

It is not to labor's credit to make attempts to pattern this outrageous practice of the bosses. Recently the Chicago District Council of Carpenters applied in Judge Foells court for an injunction against the "Citizens Committee." Once befor they made a similar application without success, the "Honorable" Judge merely declared that many of the things done by the defendant ("Citizens Committee") had better remain undone. Although the odious record of this so-called "citizens" outfit is well known, attempts by labor to adopt the injunction practice can only have serious reactions. For not only is the injunction weapon extremely dangerous in its direct application against the workers, but also on account of the recognition it gives to the capitalist controlled courts to become partners in the settlement of industrial disputes.

The Kansas industrial court, created by Governor Allen, was conceived on precisely the same basis, even tho it went one step further and assumed complete jurisdiction in settling industrial disputes. It was hailed as a savior by the parasites everywhere. Governor Allen was boosted as a new Mussolini, one who would finally relieve the bosses of any worries in connection with strikes, because such would no longer take place. The working class chains were forged complete.

What Are Good Capitalist Judges?

That industrial court law was defeated only by the heroic struggle of the coal miners, under the leadership of Alexander Howatt. Aside from this one glorious example little or nothing has been done by the trade union movement to defeat the injunction practice. It is true that almost two years ago a "Labor Committee on Injunctions" was created by the Chicago Federation of Labor, under the official tutelage of Samuel Gompers. After much "hard" labor this committee brought forward nothing but a recommendation for judicial elections following shortly thereafter to elect "good" judges in place of "bad" judges on either of the old capitalist tickets. This dispite the fact that the only opposition ticket in the field, that of the socialist party, contained a full slate of candidates, a majority of them trade union members, some of them having formerly been on the Federation Executive Board. Since that recommendation some of these "good" judges who were actually elected, have shown their ability to use the injunction weapon as efficiently as any of their predecessors.

The injunction limitations act adopted by the Illinois legislature last year records another effort precisely as futile. The expert lobbyist Jimmie Walker, president of the State Federation, worked diligently for a considerable time to have such a bill adopted. It became a splendid opportunity for a number of capitalist legislators to put an appearance of "favorable to labor." They had been in the game before and knew that even if such a bill was enacted it would mean only a scrap of paper in actual practice. And that is today the great achievement of Jimmie Walker and those who helped him.

Bosses "Sit Pretty"

The bosses knew that they need not fear defying such legislation brought about by the result of lobbying and they let Judge Sullivan proceed without any apprehension. It would be an entirely different matter, however, if this legislation had been brought about as a result of the mass pressure of the workers by the workers acting politically independent of the capitalist parties. The bosses would use far greater care knowing that there was actual power behind it. This is but another proof that no gain for labor need be recorded as real unless it has been obtained by means of an actual mass struggle. Nor is there any other way to defeat the injunction weapon but through mass action of the workers.

The American Federation of Labor as early as 1908 recognized this, at least on paper. It adopted a declaration pointing out that injunctions meant the usurpation of power by the courts and it should be disobeyed by the workers.

Miners Militancy Brot Success

The trouble is that the leaders of the A. F. of L. unions have never attempted to put this formula into practice. Many times they have been called upon to do so, but to no avail, and naturally injunctions have become ever more arrogant. At the time of the injunction in the Mitchel Bros. case the Communists urged that the Chicago Federation of Labor take the leadership in applying this formula,—with no response. The only instance of successful defeat of this practice is the one cited above in the heroic struggle of the Kansas coal miners. Their militancy brought success.

Militancy will be necessary if this Judge Sullivan's decision is to be wiped off the records. Any other means will not do. It is true that other judges in the superior court may not agree with Sullivan, possibly the fines of the members of the retail clerks union may be remitted or a pardon may even be obtained, but the danger of the injunction weapon still remains and will remain, until the workers by organized mass pressure put it out of business.

Why a Young Miners' Conference - -

By John Williamson

TODAY, when the coal miners' strike in the anthracite is the principal labor struggle in America, it is well to realize that about one-third of the 150,000 miners in this field are between the ages of 14 and 25.

In the bituminous fields, which employ nearly three-quarters of a million miners, the percentage is considerable lower, but the sum total of young workers employed in the mines in both anthracite and bituminous can safely be stated at well over 100,000 without exaggeration.

The conditions of the young miners is best expressed by example of letters regularly received from young miners which contain such statements as the following:

Conditions in Ohio Mines.

"THE conditions of the young miners in the union fields are much better in the union mines than in the non-union. The only reason for this is the protection of the union. But despite this protection the coal operators have succeeded in starting a speed-up system in the mines that even Henry Ford would have a hard time to beat. A large percentage of the young workers are employed at hauling coal either with motors on which two men must work or with mules.

The companies have gradually given them more miners to haul from and still expect to get out the same amount of coal as before. In order to cut down expenses they are neglecting to keep the roads clean and are not timbering the entries.

"This allows the roof to come in and then only when the track is so dirty that it is impossible to get over it, will they clean it. This is dangerous as the brakemen are almost always running beside the trips and it is very easy to slip on a piece of coal or slate and fall, throwing an arm or a leg under a moving trip.

"Also where the hauling is done by motors the trolley wire is usually loose. A little fall from the roof will tear down 150 or 200 feet of it. To get hit by this wire means instant death as there is from 250 to 500 volts in it." (From a young miner in Ohio)

In The Anthracite.

FROM the anthracite a young miner writes as follows: "The youngest are employed on the breaker and are called breaker boys. Here they sit all day long, picking out impure coal, rock, etc. These are the lowest paid young workers, getting as low as $2.70 per day. The rest of the young workers are hired as mule drivers, brakemen, nippers, trappers, spraggers etc.

"The trappers sit all day long at the door in the mines, which regulates the ventilation. When the trip is bringing out the coal, it is the duty of the nipper to open the door. Many times the trip runs away and the nipper gets caught as the trip runs and breaks thru the door. Other young workers work in the gang way cleaning the refuse and coal dust off the tracks, work in the ditches in dirt and slime etc.

"All these young workers, who work underground are supposed to have an 8-hour day, which in fact is not true. It is only on paper. The agreements require 8 hours work at the face. In many places it takes from half to an hour to get to the surface thus making the work day an hour or two longer. The drivers who take their mule to the barns are not paid for this extra time."

The Trapper Boy.

A very vivid description of a trapper boy is contained in "Mother Jones' Autobiography" where the following is quoted:

> I met a little trapper boy one day. He was so small that his dinner bucket dragged on the ground.
>
> "How old are you, lad?" I asked.
>
> "Twelve," he growled as he spat tobacco on the ground.
>
> "Say, son" I said, "I'm Mother Jones. You know me, don't you? I know you told the mine foreman you were twelve, but what did you tell the union?"
>
> He looked at me with keen, sage eyes. Life had taught him suspicion and caution.
>
> "Oh, the union is different. I'm ten come Christmas."
>
> "Why don't you go to school?"
>
> "Gee" he said—though it was something stronger—"I aint lost no leg"
>
> He looked proudly at his little legs. I knew what he meant; that lads went to school when they were incapaciated by accidents."

Immediate Demands of Young Miners.

THESE quotations are only symptomatic of the conditions of the young miners. It is obvious that such conditions demand action. The Young Workers League, as the leader of the young workers of America is taking the initiative in raising the immediate demands of these young miners. It is necessary for the young workers to gather and discuss their problems and how best they can consolidate the labor movement.

They must discuss the problems, such as those raised in these young miners' letters quoted here. The union must be forced to pay greater attention to the needs of the young miners, such as raising the wages of the trapper boys to those of the other company hands; greater attention to safeguard the lives of the young miners from poor timbering, unclean tracks and loose wires, must take place. All of these daily needs of the young miners as well as the general tasks of the labor movement must be tackled by the young miners.

For Young Miners' Conference.

THE conditions in America are certainly ripe for calling a conference among the young miners. The Young Workers League will conduct preparatory work among the young miners of East Ohio—West Pennsylvania, with a view to the holding of such a conference within the next three months.

The progressive miners, young and old, must mobilize themselves for this task. The young miners will respond. They must take up their problems and make clear their attitude on these demands which affect their everyday life.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST - - -

By L. Heller

EDITOR'S NOTE: The ninth and last instalment of this series of articles tells of the role played by the peasants, the workers and the petty bourgeoisie of China in the struggle. Yesterday's instalment told of the beginning of a new, free China.

ARTICLE IX.

By L. HELLER.

HOWEVER, the conditions in China, from the point of view of the relationship of the class forces, largely resemble the position of pre-revolutionary Russia. Precisely because such an overwhelmingly important place in the mining, metal, railway, shipping and textile industries and in the banking, is held by foreign capital, precisely because of all this, the Chinese industrial bourgeoisie is so weak. The Chinese industrialists quite frequently fanction also as compradors, that is middle-men, catering for the foreign capitalists and finding this an additional source of self-enrichment.

This double role played by the Chinese industrial bourgeoisie lessens its importance still further in the national movement. For it is clear that only a really industrial bourgeoisie can become the promoter of a nationalist emancipation movement, while the comprador capitalists are only humble servants of imperialism. This weakness is the only explanation of the political peculiarity of China, where the native bourgeoisie has not as yet produced any definite political organization with a definite program and platform, comparable even with those of India and Japan. Yet the growing power of the commercial and industrial capitalists finds its political expression in their ever-growing control over the party of the Kuomingtang, whose right wing has been breaking loose from the national revolutionary movement and seeking a compromise with imperialism. Tho small in number, these elements are very powerful. They constitute the nucleus of the Chinese chamber of commerce in Shanghai, which even as far back as June, was already trying to find the means whereby they could put an end to this "troublesome business" of the strike, and what appears to them the "too far fetched" struggle against imperialism.

THESE same comprador elements of Hongkong and Canton are responsible for the arming of the merchant corps (the so-called "paper tigers") that have more than once attacked the Canton workers. It was they who, in alliance with Hongkong, stood behind the generals Tan-Chi-Tao, Yan-Hsi-Ming, who were defeated by the Canton troops last June. And lastly, it was they who promoted the political assassination of Lao-Chun-Kai the most stalwart leader of the Kuomintang left wing.

The peasantry, making up the overwhelming majority of the Chinese people, and who will decide in the long run the outcome of the struggle, have not yet been lined up in the movement en masse. Only in the Kwantung province is there anything like a mass peasant organization.

A great part is still played by the very large petty bourgeoisie of the Chinese cities, composed of impoverished artisans, small traders and to some extent, of the proletarianized intelligenzia who supply the main forces of the Kuomingtang party. The recent events have shown that these small business men of the city, constituting the majority of the urban population, follow the lead of the proletariat. The commercial and industrial bourgeoisie, both on economic grounds (the common interests between the compradors and the foreign capitalists) and on political grounds (the fear of the growing consciousness and organization of the working class) are rapidly and resolutely quitting the nationalist revolutionary movement, thus deserting objectively, to the camp of imperialism. The petty-bourgeoisie and those of the middle class who have remained true to the national cause, as well as the radical intelligentzia, have nothing left but to follow the working class whose fight is wrecking the forces of imperialism.

THIS working class, mercilessly exploited, especially by foreign capital and laboring under the double yoke of class and national oppression, is revolutionary in spirit, and has displayed splendid fighting capacities right from the start. Its determined struggle, more than anything else, awakens and puts into motion the Chinese masses, reverberates far beyond the boundaries of the particular city or province, arouses the entire vast country, moulds its public opinion and transforms the Chinese masses into a Chinese nation. There is, of course, no contradiction in the fact that this same struggle of the working class results also in a rapid differentiation and division within this nation that is taking shape in front of our eyes.

In this process, which under the Chinese conditions is inevitably bound up with the irreconciliable fight against imperialism, the petty bourgeoisie, as we have seen, follows the working class. However, its role, both at the present and at the immediate future must still be very great, greater than was the role of the Russian petty bourgeoisie in the struggle against czarism. The Chinese city, the Chinese petty bourgeoisie, has century old organizational traditions. The guilds, the clans, the street unions, give these small business men of the city a certain organizational strength, a certain stability, considerable initiative that increase its social weight on the social scale.

The role of the peasantry, on the contrary, despite its numerical strength, will probably be of smaller importance than it was in Russia.

There is no large landowning class is China. The struggle of the various interests within the peasantry itself will be more complex and variegated than was the case in pre-revolutionary Russia.

Under these conditions the working class of China is sure to play the leading part. Thereby the task confronting the Communist Party of China, the unchallenged leader of the Chinese working class vanguard, and the Chinese trade unions, is exceptionally great. Despite the tremendous achievements already on hand we are only witnessing the beginning of the revolutionary struggle in China. On its way to freedom the working class will meet with not a few temporory defeats and trials. The events of this summer have shown that the working class, despite its youth, is capable not only of attacking, but of steering and retreating in the best fighting order. This is the surest guarantee that the working class of China will retain its supremacy and will bring the task with which history has confronted it, to a successful completion.

Thus the struggle of the Chinese proletariat is assuming world historical significance and fully deserves the universal attention that it has attracted.

Story of Women Members of Moscow Soviet

By AG. KONONOVA.

("White-Russian Baltic Railway.")

I WAS born in Moscow in 1881. My mother was a laundress and had four children. She was a widow and had naturally a hard time of it. But thanks to my mother I was able to study and went thru the municipal school. When I was twelve years old I started work also in a laundry. I married when I was 22.

My husband was a working man, and like most working men under the old regime, was wont to drink. He was very quarrelsome. When children came, our misery was great. Quarrels and even fights were the order of the day, and in fact my life was as dull and hard as the life of most working women. In 1914 my husband died and left me with four children to bring up. But I did not despair, for he had never been a good bread winner. I did laundry work at home.

THEN came the great year 1917.

To us workers, this is a memorable year. We turned another page of our lives, and then there came the struggle, but not for existence, but for the emancipation of all workers. I gave up my laundry work because the bourgeoisie had vanished and poor people never gave out their washing to a laundress, and also because our dear leader Ilyitch showed us working women the right way.

In 1919 I got the post of a station guard on the Moscow goods station No. 1 of the Moscow-Kazan railway which I still hold. In 1920, I was elected shop-delegate of the women couriers on the railway. I went as a delegate to the railway conference where I heard for the first time our dear Ilyitch, and those who have heard him once will never forget it. Then I was elected district delegate. Thus we working women get drawn step by step into public work. There are various branches of work and one is eager to get familiar with all of them.

IN some sections work is more interesting than in others. In 1924 I was elected member of the Moscow Soviet by the general meeting. The Soviets were created by the workers, peasants and Red Army soldiers who were ready to lay down their lives for them on the barricades. In 1924, I joined our glorious Communist Workers Party in which it is necessary to give my life and that of all my children to the people's cause, to the Red October, for freedom and liberty.

[illegible] UNION UNANIMOUS FOR LABOR PARTY

ALA[illegible] MINE BLAST MURDERS 61 MINERS; CAPITALISM AND RELIGION PARALYZE PROTEST

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Dec. 11—Of the estimated 61 dead coal miners blown to pieces and burned to death in the non-union Overton mine owned by the Alabama Fuel and Iron company, the bodies of six white men and 44 Negro miners were recovered yesterday. The known dead number fifty-three, the other eight being yet not found in the lower workings.

The Alabama Fuel and Iron company is a gigantic and rich corporation connected with the steel trust and New York banks. It owns 36,395 acres of coal lands in Alabama alone, and 1,628 acres in the Kentucky scab coal fields. It operates on $6,397,723 capital and in 1922 made a gross profit of $748,622.

Company to Blame.

Yet this rich corporation failed to establish safety devices and the sprinkling system to keep down dust that causes explosions, and as a result there are 61 dead miners in the Overton mine, most of them Negroes.

Neither has there been any effort on the part of the Lewis machine of the United Mine Workers' of America to organize these miners who remain unorganized, not because they prefer it, but because they need the power of the U. M. W. of A. to succeed in establishing the union there.

The whole situation is typical of the industrial oppression existing in the United States. On the board of directors of the Alabama Fuel and Iron company is Valentine E. Macy, a New York capitalist. Macy is also director of the Mechanics' and Metals' National Bank, the Union Trust company, the Bank of Long Island, the Manufacturers' Commercial company and the Queensboro Gas and Electric company.

Interested in Child Labor!

But Mr. Macy has also an "interest in labor and philanthropy," as may be seen—not by his indifference to whether or not the white or black coal miners of Alabama are blown to bits so long as dividends roll in, but in his opinion the fact that he is vice-president of the Civic Federation, the leading institution of formal class collaboration composed of capitalist, labor and "public" representatives.

Mr. Macy is also concerned over child labor, tho one would not think

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

BRITAIN'S steel war dogs are growling in the Mediterranean Sea and ready to bark if the Turks continue to place obstacles in the way of the British oil magnates who are anxious to get their paws on the Mosul oil deposits. Only a few days after the Locarno pact was signed amidst hallelujahs from pacifists all over the world! It need not surprise anybody to see a nice little shindy kicked up in the event of hostilities between Turkey and England. Just now France is co-operating with England against the Turks, in return for English co-operation against the Syrians. For the moment both pirate powers are putting up a united front for the sake of "civilization." But one can never tell how long this holy unity may last.

GENERAL FENG, who needs no introduction to you, is pounding at the gates of Tientsin in Chihli province, formerly a stronghold of Wu Pei Fu, who is now looking around for a faction to line up with. Chang-Tso-lin is between two minds whether to take a short sea voyage or stay at home and commit suicide. The odds are in favor of the journey as he is credited with having made his yens while the sun shone. With the likely fall of Chang Tso-lin Feng should not have much trouble cleaning up the rest of the Chinese tuchuns in the pay of the foreign capitalist powers. The imperialist press feels very distressed over the civil war in China, tho they are not shedding any tears over the bloodshed in Morocco and Syria. Which is easily accounted for.

THOSE of you who were inclined to sympathize with Andrew Mellon for his laborious work in the treasury department should read Senator Couzen's report on the operation of the taxation experts of the treasury and save your tears for a worthier purpose. It appears that one oil company of which Mellon is the principal owner pocketed over four million dollars unpaid taxes which a corporation not in such a friendly standing with the treasury would be compelled to fork out. PEKING, Dec. 11.—After eighteen hours spent in going eighty miles the international train from Tientsin arrived under guard of various imperialist troops.

There is little fighting but much preparation going on in the area. Feng continues to throw troops into position against General Li Ching-lin, governor of Chihli, who is also engaged fighting the soldiery from Honan province to the south.

Rumors of Japanese aid to Chang Tso-lin, who is hard pressed near Mudken, are unconfirmed, altho Tokio dispatches say that the Japanese are aiding Chang, especially with money.

Chang is said to be preparing to make a last stand in the hill country on the Liao river against Kuo Sung-lin's troops, now gathered in mutiny against the former "war lord of Manchuria." Chang's chances are, however, very much against him doing more than postpone the end. He is, despite this, calling in reinforcements from the north and making ready to defend Mukden.

EDISON ELECTRIC STRIKE TIES UP CICERO FACTORY

Metal Workers No. 115 Has Fighting Pickets

By A Worker Correspondent

After a number of workers had been fired for union activities, a strike has been declared against the Edison Electric Appliance Co., on 52nd and 19th Sts., Cicero. The company operates two shops, one on 54th and Taylor Sts., and the plant mentioned above, which manufactures electric ovens and employs mostly sheet metal workers.

The strike has been called by the Sheet Metal Workers' International Alliance, Local 115, and most all the men responded to the strike call and are maintaining an effective picket line around the plant.

The men employed in the Edison Appliance have been attempting to organize for some time and force this open shop concern to pay a living wage. The company, thru it spy system, began a systematic firing of all men suspected for union activities.

Messages Announce the Release of Ben Gitlow

NEWS of the release of Benjamin Gitlow from Sing-Sing penitentiary in New York came to The Daily Worker yesterday at press time thru dispatches from William F. Dunne and Jack Johnstone, now in Philadelphia attending the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union as representatives of this paper.

Ben Gitlow, well known labor leader and Communist, was recently committed to the penitentiary after the United States supreme court had reaffirmed his conviction in 1920. He had already served two and a half years of his term. Tremendous agitation for his release was carried on in the labor movement and the I. L. G. W. U. convention now in session has gone on record demanding his pardon from Governor Al. Smith of New York.

The messages from Dunne and Johnstone said that Gitlow had been invited to address the convention by unanimous vote and amid great enthusiasm.

Sigman Majority on Paper Against Trade Union Unity

By J. W. JOHNSTONE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—Sigman's paper majority in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union convention yesterday defeated the resolution on world trade union unity by a vote of 158 to 113, representing less than 30 per cent of the members. It is clear that Sigman's control is mechanical.

Marks and Helperin pointed out the need of international working class solidarity to combat international capitalism. Hochman defended Amsterdam as the "champion of the working class," claiming it had 21,000,000 members and that the Red International was trying to destroy Amsterdam. He contended that there was no need for a new international.

CONVENTION OF INTERNATIONAL LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS TURNS BACK ON OFFICIAL A. F. OF L. POLICY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 11—The biennial convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union assembled here unanimously adopted a resolution for a labor party. This is the second big international within the past few weeks going on record for the formation of a labor party. The first one was the recent Boston convention of the International Furriers' Union.

With both these internationals on record in favor of a labor party the movement to call a conference and establish a committee to carry the agitation for a labor party thruout the entire labor movement is greatly accelerated.

Struggle Continues.

The bitter conflict between the left wing delegates and the supporters of the Sigman machine continued today with the reaction getting decidedly the worst of it in debate. The Sigman machine suddenly became an ardent supporter of the Civil Liberties' Union as the guardian of the political privileges of the workers today when the endorsement of the International Labor Defense came before the convention in the form of a resolution signed by 23 local unions representing a substantial majority of the membership. The resolutions committee report referred the matter to the incoming executive board and the left wing took sharp issue with this recommendation. Delegates Wortis, Morgenstein and Zack spoke against the committees' report while Antonini, Feinberg and Hochman supported it. The report of the committee was adopted by a vote of 155 to 105.

Demand Release of Gitlow.

Immediately following the defeat of this resolution a resolution protesting against the imprisonment of Ben Gitlow and Anita Whitney, demanding their release and instructing the officials to send the protest to the governors of New York and California, was passed unanimously. Previous to

LABOR DEFENSE BAZAAR DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

Hear the Story of the Zeigler Frame-up

The second night of the International Labor Defense Bazaar, held in North West Hall, corner of North and Western Aves. for the benefit of the framed-up Zeigler miners brought out a record crowd. While on the opening night most of the visitors came for "business," that is, to purchase some of the tempting articles offered for sale, last night's crowd came for pleasure as well as business.

A dance orchestra which made one's feet giddy kept the floor patronized by devotees of the terpsichorean art. Barkers from the various booths, some with trumpets, shouted their wares, making life hectic for everybody.

Big Night Tonight.

Tonight is expected to be the big night with Max Shachtman to tell the story of the frame-up against the Zeigler miners, as he heard it from the lips of men who were in the hall when the fatal shooting occured.

Among the most prized articles at the bazaar were those sent from Walla Walla prison in Washington, by Eugene Barnett an I. W. W. prisoner in that institution. In reply to a request of George Maurer, organizer of the bazaar asking for some articles for sale, Barnett sent a solid beaded bag, two hair belts, one hair hat band and a hair hand bag. All those things

MOTHER OF 12 IS WANTONLY SLAIN BY SCAB TRUCK

Penn. Coal Town Scene of Tragedy

By A Worker Correspondent

LIBRARY, Pa., Dec. 11.—A striking miner's wife and mother of twelve children was killed and another woman fatally hurt in this little mining town when a company truck dashed into a group of women. The woman killed is Mrs. Timka and the woman now in the hospital with four broken ribs and broken arms is Mrs. Susie Besek, aged 53. There is very little hope that she will live. Two deputy sheriffs were also hurt.

Victims Result of Wage Cuts.

The mine in this little town owned and controlled by the Pittsburgh Coal Co. closed down early last spring. Recently it was announced that the mine will be reopened at the 1917 scale. The men refused to accept this outrageous wage cut, and the company began to import scabs under the protection of armed guards and deputy sheriffs. Most of the imported men were not told that a strike was in progress and when they learned the real situation and wanted to leave the mine they were threatened with guns and bullets. Despite of all this, only few scabs remain at work.

Papers Spread Lies.

As soon as the news of the killing spread the capitalist sheets came out with big headlines that a riot took place, that the women caused the driver to lose control over the machine and the women were responsible for the cold blooded murder. Fifty warrants were issued for the arrest of the wives and mothers of the men on strike. The company officials who are really responsible for the murder are still at liberty.

The truth of the matter is that the truck, carrying provisions to the scabs who do not dare leave the mines, was going at high speed, 60-65 miles an hour, under the protection of armed deputy sheriffs. The truck had to make a turn from the main road to the road leading to the mine. The driver, instead of running at the right side of the street, turned at the left and dashed into the group of women standing close to the fence. Mrs. Timka was hit by the wheel and was knocked down. She died several minutes later before she could be taken to a hospital. Mrs. Besek was hit by the fender and thrown over the machine. The driver, leaving the victims in cold blood, began to run away after the machine upset, but was stopped by Joseph Hans, who happened to be close by. For this "crime" Hans was severely beaten up next morning and placed under arrest by deputy sheriffs. Later he was releas-

PRINCIPAL BREAKS BOY'S ARM FOR CALLING "SCAB" AT STRIKEBREAKER'S SON

By A Worker Correspondent

LIBRARY, Pa., Dec. 11—The word "scab" is the most despised word in this little town. Even the school children cannot refrain from showing resentment against the scabs. One boy, Wm. Turchic who called "scab" at a strikebreaker's son had his arm broken by M. Baker, the principal of the school. Miss Wilson, the school teacher, then forced the same little boy to do his writing with his left hand as a further punishment. That's how miners' children learn their lessons of the class struggle.

UNION OFFICIAL ATTACKS YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE

Youth Organizes Miners to Fight Lewis

By GEORGE PAPCUN.
(Worker Correspondent)

REPUBLIC, Pa., Dec. 11.—A so-called trade union official by the name of John Kurtz who is supposed to be an organizer for the United Mine Workers of America attacked the Young Workers (Communist) League and the Workers (Communist) Party at a meeting held here recently. He charged that the leaders of the Communist movement were "damn fools" and "nuts"—and why?

Because the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers (Communist) League won the confidence and the leadership of the coal miners in the coke region where the trade union officials failed.

There was an opposition to the miners' union during the strike in the coke region. Did the officials do anything to break the opposition against the union? No! They did not even try. It took the party and the league to break this opposition.

When we took the situation in hand it convinced over 40 miners that they must join the union and got the other miners convinced that they must not oppose the union but must get inside and fight against such fakers as Kurtz and Lewis. When Kurtz got up in the meeting and said that Feeney was coming to speak at their next meeting, there was big uproar and the fellows shouted they did not want to hear the betrayer of the coke region miners.

The miners joined the union at its last meeting and when asked why they joined they say the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers (Communist) League tells us to join and not because the union officials tell us, which is a blow against the fakers and they will not be able to fool the rank and file in the coke regions as they are doing in some of the other places.

Another big blow to the fakirs was the Pat Toohey meeting in Cardale, Pa., which is near Republic. Over a hundred non-union miners attended the meeting where the question of joining the union was put to the fore. The meeting was held under the auspices of the mine nuclei and two new members joined the nucleus.

Green Notices Negro Workers Who Turn Red

By A Worker Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 11—The Inter-Urban Association is circularizing the trade unions with questionnaires regarding Negro labor. Among the questions one finds such as: Are there any Negro workers in your trade, if so how many are in the union? Are you opposed to Negro workers in the union? Have Negroes acted as strikebreakers in your union? The letter accompanying this questionnaire asks the unions to cooperate with the above organization and is signed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

MANY WORKERS SUFFER NERVOUS BREAKDOWN IN CHRISTMAS RUSH

By HENRY VICTOR
(Worker Correspondent)
Student of Chicago Class.

A girl employed as a clerk at the Owl Drug Store, corner State and Adams streets, fainted right at her counter and had to be carried out to a nearby hospital. Nervous breakdown from overwork was the diagnosis made and inquiries of her fellow clerks brot details of a speed up system conducted just before the Christmas holiday.

As the shopping rush increases, the bosses, unwilling to employe more help, impose upon the workers a vicious speed-up system. This system becomes unbearable in many department stores and mail order houses when workers are compelled to work overtime. It results in the nervous and physical breakdown of a great number of workers.

ed. There is a general belief that the truck was intentionally driven into the peaceful gathering of women. A tear bomb and a policemen's club were found at the place where the murder occurred.

A reign of terror began immediately after the woman was killed. The school is closed. Several stores were raided by deputy sheriffs, fifty John Doe warrants were issued for the arrest of women, a Negro, a union miner, was beaten up by a gang of Negro scabs for his refusal to go back to work.

The union officers are investigating the matter and it is expected that the company officials will be called upon to answer for the cold blooded murder. The "accident" in this little town is one of the outstanding features in the history of the class struggle in this country and should arouse every conscious worker into action.

EAST CHICAGO TEACHERS FIGHT WAGE REDUCTION

Educators Call Protest Meetings

By HENRY VICTOR.
(Worker Correspondent)
Student of Chicago Class.

The teachers of the East Chicago, Ind. public schools are putting up a battle against the sweeping reductions in the salaries of teachers proposed in a schedule submitted by J. W. Ashbury, superintendent of schools.

A number of meetings have been called at which the teachers indignantly protested against the proposed cut in wages, which will practically reduce them to starvation.

The new schedule introduced by Superintendent J. W. Ashbury, and which was framed without consultation with a single teacher, provides a normal increase in salaries of teachers over a period of 45 years in service—in other words, teachers will be permitted to eat after a number of years of starving. Teachers, under the new schedule, will begin their teaching at $1,000 the first year; at the end of 10 years of teaching experience their salaries would be $1,850.

Personal Favoritism.

The above plan of increase applies only to "good" teachers; "poor" teachers may be employed the second year without any increase, while "superiors" or "excellent" teachers may receive double salary increase, a fact so indignantly denounced by William Ballou, president of the Teachers' Association, maintaining that personal tributes by teachers to school officials are not within the obligations of a teacher, and "personal favors and powerful friendships have proved to be of more worth in making an advancement than real merit in the classroom."

Many of the teachers are preparing to move to Chicago and other cities where teachers' salaries are said to be higher. They fail to realize that their only duty is to remain and fight it out for by running away they will only meet with a similar situation elsewhere.

Davis Store Workers Receive No Pay for Their Overtime Work

By JACK REED.
(Worker Correspondent)
Student of Chicago Class.

The department store employes are unorganized and as a result are working under very miserable conditions.

I was employed in the groceries shipping room of the Davis company. There the workers work 60-hours a week. The wages are $18 for beginners and $22 for old hands.

From a week before Thanksgiving until after New Years the workers are compelled to work overtime as late as 10 p. m. for the price of a supper. When the straw boss came up to me and told me that I would have to work overtime I refused. The following day, I was fired. I was told by some of workers that when the company takes "stock," which is usually on Sunday when the store is closed, they have to work for just the price of a dinner—no extra pay.

The American Federation of Labor never made a real effort to organize the workers in the department stores. It is up to the workers themselves to joint the Retail Clerks' Union in order to better their conditions.

IT was a mean trick the Farmers' Federation played on Calvin Coolidge last week. The "Sphynx" came all the way from Washington to help elect a conservative after his own heart, to the presidency. Cal told the banker-farmers, that their profession was an art, that he handles a pitchfork occasionally—when there is a cameraman in the vicinity—that a farmer's wife is about the most valuable piece of animated protoplasm on earth, because she supplies the wars with the best cannonfodder, as the industrial workers are either too hungry or too saturated with factory poisons to make satisfactory repositories for bullets. He said the farmers were a manly lot and should fight on the barricades rather than allow the government to help them. This would be paternalism, and perhaps alright for railroads, who were brot up on such fodder, but it would rob the farmers of their sturdy manhood and independence. The farmers showed their appreciation by burying Cal's friend, who ran for re-election under a truck load of manure and electing one who branded Cal's speech as hokum.

THE Russo-German trade alliance doesn't look good to the Literary Digest. Neither does anything Russian—since November, 1917. Not being content with reprinting digests of articles from various papers hostile to the treaty, it reprinted a cartoon from the Montreal Star, depicting Soviet Russia as a hairy and tattered bum, passing the hat to world capitalism, saying: "Help, please! It is impossible to get along without you." Needless to say, this is about as far from the truth as even a lying capitalist sheet could get. Only a few weeks ago a Soviet commission was here to purchase American sheep for breeding purposes. They spent several million dollars on sheep alone.

SINCE the trade treaty with Germany was signed Berlin bankers granted Russia a credit of $100,000,000. Curiously enuf, the Berlin bankers borrowed this money from Wall Street bankers, whose government has not yet recognized the Soviet regime. Russia has already used up three-fourths of this credit which means that German manufacturers have sold $75,000,000 worth of goods to the Soviet buyers since then. In general Russia is far from being the beggar she is represented to be by her enemies. The workers' standard of living is improving, while that of the workers in every capitalist country is going down. That is what counts. Of course the Russian aristocrats who are flopping all over the world are not getting along so well.

* * *

RUSSIAN economists estimate that the country needs goods to the value of $1,500,000,000. How this figure will make the teeth of American manufacturers water! They hate Soviet Russia as the devil is supposed to hate holy water, but a Russian ruble looks much better to them just now than the franc of capitalist France, or the zloty of capitalist Poland. Both curriencies are going down as fast as a plummet. With Senator Borah's resolution for Soviet recognition before the senate and all this Russian business rushing by America's door Silent Cal may have an awful hard time to keep his mouth shut, when the manufacturers begin to ask questions.

Militarism's Heavy Tax Burden Knocks out White Government in Finland

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Tuleheimo government in Finland topples into dust. This event is important because Finland, with its 3,000,000 population, is capitalism's frontier on the northwestern border of the Union of Soviet Republics. The present demise of the Tuleheimo government is directly due to its efforts to fulfill its functions as an imperialist bulwark against Bolshevism. But the masses refused to endure its program of militarism.

• • • •

The news reports do not state just what the "defense" program of the government was. The special radio to the Chicago Daily News declars that the government had "advocated an ambitious naval program." The records show that the Finnish navy at one time consisted of two broken ships stolen from Russia when the white terror managed to hold Finland against Soviet Rule. Later, reports had it, these ships were dashed to pieces on the Swedish coast in a storm that swept the Baltic Sea.

The Finnish terror, however, had paid much more attention to its army. The soldiery has stalked thru Finland, since the Bolshevik revolution, pretty much after the fashion of the Russian knout wielders and saber rattlers in the days of czarism. There is also nine months' conscription and a so-called "voluntary" white guard. The goose-step of militarism is firmly and heavily fastened upon the Finnish masses.

• • • •

The workers and farmers of Finland, drawn into the world war under the czar, had fought valiantly for their liberation following the Bolshevik triumph over czarism. In the white terror, supported by the German kaiser before his fall, it is estimated that from 20,000 to 30,000 martyrs gave up their lives on the gallows for the revolution. An equal number died in the bullpens from hunger and exposure. A score of thousands more were held in prison for long terms. There are still nearly a thousand political prisoners in Finland.

• • • •

The Communist Party is illegal in Finland. The Workers (Socialist) Party, organized in sympathy with the Communist movement, was also declared illegal and hundreds of its most prominent spokesmen thrown into prison. Very recently another terror drive was launched against the Young Socialist League of Finland, its crime being that it was also sympathetic to Communism.

• • • •

All this, however, has not prevented the masses, both in the cities and on the land, from sending their spokesmen into the Finnish diet. The gallows, prison and police torture have not succeeded in silencing protest nor liquidating discontent. The growing taxation burden, to meet the mounting costs of militarism, has been the most effective lash in spurring the masses to fury against the government. So effective has been their attack that even the "socialists" have deserted the government, refusing also to take any part in the organization of a new one.

The agrarians joined the city workers in undermining the government that has been so energetic in its efforts to organize the Baltic bloc against the Soviet Union. As the agent of west European capitalism, it has tried to unite Latvia, Esthonia, Lithuania and even Poland in an alliance that had for its purpose new attacks on Workers' and Peasants' Rule. Now it finds itself discredited and deposed at home. Truly the capitalist dike against Bolshevism is crumbling. Finland today. Some other sector of capitalism's front against Workers' Rule on the morrow.

Edison Electric Strike Ties Up Factory in Cicero

their fellow workers and when the men protested this action the superintendent called the men together, first promising them all the privileges in the world, bonus and what not, but the next minute threatening them with violence and abuse if they would dare to strike. He very boisterously boasted about the powers that were behind the company, such as the General Electric Co., and stated:

"If you men attempt any darned picketing around this shop, this company has enough money to hire hundreds of sluggers to deal with you." The next move was to fire 11 more men. This finally resulted in calling the strike.

Strike Grows Stronger.

The successful picketing and the militant spirit of the workers have had the results that a number of men are coming out every day and joining the ranks of the strikers and production has been completely paralized. All the highly skilled men who have been working here for many years have joined the strike.

The company, however, has made good its threats of hiring all the plug-uglies, pimps and sewer rats in town to try to intimidate the men. All these professional strikebreakers have been sworn in as special deputy sheriffs and each scab is accompanied home by one or two of these skunks, who even have the audacity to threaten violence on elevated trains and street cars when they see the strikers attempt to talk to the scabs.

Should Be Time to Unionize.

All this intimidation, however, has only resulted in greater solidarity among the strikers, who are determined not to be bluffed by a bunch of professional scabs posing as special police, and they are determined to carry on the fight until the company has been forced to recognize the union and pay a living wage.

The workers employed in the electrical industry are all paid a miserable wage and this strike ought to be the signal for a general organization campaign to bring into the fold of organized labor every man and woman who is working in this great and important industry.

I. G. L. W. Convention Votes Unanimously for the Labor Party the International Labor Defense resolution May 1st had been made a compulsory holiday for the industry.

Call Sigman Bluff.

In addition to the acrimonious debate on the International Labor Defense resolution, another clash occured between the left wing and the Sigmanites. The convention was held in the Eagles Hall, smaller than the Lu Lu Temple, which is located across the street and was available for the convention, and the machine had made no proper arrangements for seating the delegates, Sigman took advantage of the irritability generated by the uncomfortable quarters to continue his deliberate policy of insulting the left wing at every opportunity by blaming them in the most provocating language for the slightest disturbances.

He utilized every opportunity to threaten the convention and visitors with executive sessions—something the machine has been trying to engineer, in order to get away from the hundreds of union members who attend, ever since the convention opened.

After a particularly insulting performance of Sigmans, Zimmerman took the floor and delivered another ultimatum: "You are deliberately and constantly insulting the progressive delegates to this convention, in line with your general policy of expulsions. We have been very patient but we warn you that we will stand no more. This is not Boston but Philadelphia."

Sigman then declared a half-hour recess but no one left the hall. When the convention resumed business Sigman's tactics had obviously been changed and the discussion proceeded in a calmer atmosphere. The convention has gone on record against citizen's military training camps, instructed its American Federation of Labor delegates to fight against them at the convention of that bady and endorsed all the movements directed against militarism, especially among the youth, that are under way in the country.

In allowing such measures to pass without opposition and with their open support the Sigmanites are demonstrating the difference between themselves and the cruder reactionary machines in other A. F. of L. unions.

This support to class struggle measures is given with tongue in cheek and in the most cynical manner imaginable but the record is kept fairly clear. The watchword is to steal the issues from the Communists, but to keep out of power any group which would really follow a class struggle policy.

Arturo Giovannitti, appeared before the convention in behalf of Il Nuovo Mondo, the new Two-and-a-Half International daily. Giovannitti, who spent most of his life fighting such elements as the Sigman machine, is now the best supporter it has. He told how he wept after the Boston convention when the expulsion policy was put in force but in the next breath chided the left wing for "slandering the chosen officials of the union."

The depth to which Giovannitti has sunk can be estimated by the fact that while he mentioned the French and American revolutions he was unable to remember such a thing as the Russian revolution. The convention pledged support to Il Nuovo Mondo.

JAPANESE LABOR FOR UNITY WITH SOVIET RUSSIA

Russian Metal Trades Applaud Proposal

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail)—A storm of applause greeted the Japanese delegate, Kavasi, who in an impassioned plea before the conference of metal trades workers of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics called for the formation of a Russo-Japanese committee of action, which would bring the labor movements of those two countries closer together.

Kavasi, who is a member of the Japanese delegation that is now in the Soviet Union declared, in the name of the Japanese metal workers, that the persecutions of the police against the Japanese working class because of their demonstrations of solidarity upon the arrival of the Russian trade union delegation, had not intimidated the Japanese workers.

"The Japanese workers are determined to establish a firm connection with the European proletariat despite all difficulties," declared Kavasi. "They are further determined to acquaint themselves with the situation in the Soviet Union."

Kavasi then pointed out that the lack of a united trade union federation was one of the weaknesses of the Japanese proletariat and reduced its possibilities of resistance against capitalism.

"Revolutionary ideas are penetrating ever more deeply into the Japanese working class which is losing its belief in the labor protection of capitalist law," stated the Japanese delegate. "The Japanese workers are in favor of the national revolutionary movement for freedom in China. They will do everything possible in order to prevent a new imperialist invasion of China."

Kavasi then closed his speech amid stormy applause with the proposal to form a Russo-Japanese committee of action.

Swedish Delegate Present.

The Swedish metal workers' delegate, Eckmann, who is also attending the conference expressed great pleasure in seeing representativs of the Asiatic working class at the metal trades workers conference and declared that heretofore the European labor movement has always excluded the Asiatic workers.

Pastor Uses Dynamite Instead of Chewing-Gum

STAMFORD, Conn., Dec. 11.—Rev. Clarence M. Goodman, clergyman and contractor, told a judge that he chewed dynamite because it was good medicine. He was fined $25 for possessing eight sticks of the explosive without a permit.

Chicago City Council Gets Plans for New "Thru Traffic" Streets

Plans were submitted to the city council by the Chicago plan commission calling for the creation of forty-four "thru traffic" routs of which twenty-five would permit a freer and faster traffic service east and west and fifteen running north and south and five diagonally.

At the present time there are forty-two "thru" streets of which thirty-six are incorporated into the new plan. The six streets that are not incorporated are to be abolished.

Chicago has had considerable traffic difficulty and the streets that were laid down mean to break the congestion of traffic. The plans call for their immediate construction and maintenance as boulevards with the customary safety devices.

Texas Prison System Makes $1,000,000 on Its Cotton Crop This Year

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 11—The press is talking a great deal about the soft-heartedness of "Ma" Ferguson for her pardoning of a number of bootleggers, but the prisoners that are forced to labor on the cotton fields that the state runs have a different story to tell.

During the past year, the convicts have ben forced to work harder than ever and today as a result of the slave-driving methods, the prison system boasts that the cotton crop will bring over $1,000,000 this year. It is stated that the debt of the prison will be met and that a neat cash balance will result, when this cotton which was raised by involuntary labor will be marketed.

Chicago Mayor Urges Staging of Another World's Fair in 1934

The question of a centennial celebration which would be another World's Fair, in 1934 to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of Chicago as a village or one in 1937 to celebrate the incorporation of Chicago as a city was raised in Mayor William E. Dever's message to the city council.

Along with Mayor Dever's message were letters of various civic heads urging the centennial celebration and pointing out that Grant Park and the ten-mile strip along the lake front which includes the Art Institute, the Field Museum and Municipal Pier and Soldiers' Feld can be made the pivotal point for units of display.

The suggestion was turned over to the committee on city planning for further action.

RAILROADS NOT SATISFIED WITH 15 PCT. BOOST

To Demand 20 Pct. From Commerce Body

A fight to determine whether the interstate commerce commission or the Illinois commerce commission has the last word on rates within the state was in prospect as railroads serving the Chicago suburban districts prepared to refuse a raise of 15 per cent granted by the state body.

Their plea for a 20 per cent raise would be carried to the federal commission, it was said. That body recently granted the Chicago and Northwestern a 20 per cent increase, ignoring the state commission. Railroad officials testified before the state body that they required a 32 per cent increase to break even on suburban passenger traffic but would be satisfied with a 20 per cent increase. The commission's order for a temporary 15 per cent increase was not satisfactory.

Pershing Postpones Plebiscite, But Cal Gets a Chance at It

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 11. — Chile has taken its appeal against General Pershing's ruling postponing the plebiscite to a place of cold comfort for Latin-Americans. She is appealing to Coolidge against the postponement from February 1, the date proposed by Chile, to April 15, the date proposed by Pershing.

Chile claims she has obeyed all the orders of the plebiscitary commission and thinks that the voting should proceed. Peru and Pershing together have overruled Chile. Pershing's idea being apparently based on the policy of keeping American armed forces as long as possible in South American cities, since it will be good for U. S. imperialism to have Latin-Americans get used to seeing Yankee soldiers around.

Ridicule Hell 'n Maria Dawes as Modern Don Quixote in U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The attack of Vice-President Dawes upon senatorial rules drew fitting reply in the senate when he was hazed by senator Pat Harrison.

Harrison described Dawes as "Don Quixote's only counterpart in history," derided him as a "bold bad man" and jeered his "gymnastic rhetorical outbursts."

Republicans and democrats alike laughed at Harrison's quips while the vice-president sat in his chair.

Millionaire Murderer Is Released on Parole

Discovery that Ira D. Perry, Jr., son of a millionaire manufacturer, has been released on parole October 31, from Joliet prison where he was serving a life term on a plea of guilty to murder during a holdup, has led to reinstatement of five charges of robbery with a gun against Perry.

Perry, when he was sentenced in 1922, said laughingly that his life term was "An April fool sentence" and that he would be out shortly.

BOSSES EMPLOY PENSION SYSTEM AGAINST UNIONS

Research Board Shows Value to Bosses

NEW YORK, Dec., 10.—The national industrial conference board, reasearch body for United States Rubber company, American Telephone and Telegraph, E. I. DuPont de Nemours company, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel and similar big employers, is issuing a study of the company pension problem with comment that industry can take care of the situation, and that over $30,000,000 was spent by American industries on employes' pensions last year. The board's study covers 248 formal pension plans of 245 companies, affecting 2,815,512 employes. The 35,953 employes receiving pensions got an average of $506 each for the year. The board warns that "sound financing on a scientific basis" is necessary but adds that industry can work up from present experimental schemes.

The American Bankers' Association publicity director, Gorden Edwards, discusses company pensions in the Annalist, financial magazine published by the New York Times. Edwards frankly admits that "only a relatively small percentage of workers remain with one company long enough to complete 30 years of service and attain 65 years of age. Therefore, the number of employes who reach pension status is a comparatively small percentage of those who enter the employ of the corporation." Government figures show less than 1 per cent of the workers employed under company pensions over get the pnsions. Edwards advocates companies setting aside $1 yearly per $100 of payroll as sufficient to cover possible pensions.

Edwards notes that most company pensions schemes carry no legal obligation for the company granting pensions to continue them indefinitely, or to apply them under all conditions, "since in most cases they contain clauses reserving the right to change or withdraw them at will." He attacks present schemes for mounting costs with increasing numbers of workers in industry. He points out that workers in industrial employment have increased nearly 125 per cent in the last 30 years but ignores the likelihood of much slower increase of possible decrease in the number of industrial workers in future.

Union complaints against company pensions are not considered by the writers for big business but the usefulness to employers of pensions as a weapon against aggressive labor and union organization is implied in the articles. Pensioned engineers of Western Maryland railroad, where union engineers and firemen are now striking, feel the pinch of company pensions with railroad President Byers trying to force them back as scabs or lose their pensions. Railway carmen pensioned by the Pullman company lost pensions when they refused, as the engineers are, to scab on striking car builders in Pullman, Ill.

Workers remember the bitter experience of Morris and company packing house workers who lost their pensions when the company was taken over by Armour and company. Bethlehem Steel scrapped the Steelton Steel Works company pensions when it took over the company. Shopcrafts workers of Pennsylvania railroad complain that company pensions, in which Pennsy line leads are no benefit when workers have no control over them. Ward Baking company, big anti-union machine bread and cake makers, take away all pension privileges from workers who leave voluntarily or "under stress of influence inimical to the company or when their services are required by the company" as in time of strike or attempts at union organization.

LEONARD WOOD IS WALL STREET'S AGENT IN THE PHILIPPINES

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood is Wall Street's chief agent in the Philippine islands. Incidentally, he is governor general of the islands, having been appointed by "our" president as a man who could be depended upon to oppose every aspiration of the Filipino people for national liberation. His brutal policy of suppression has united the Filipinos solidly against American imperialist rule. "Complete and immediate independence for the Philippines!" is the demand voiced by all sections of the population. Whereupon Wall Street's favorite general answers that the Filipinos would not know what to do with liberty if they had it. And the bloated American magnates of rubber, sugar, tobacco, hemp and shipping shout their approval. The Chicago Daily News recently published a whole series of slanderous statements against the Filipino people, given out by Gov. General Wood in an interview with Edward Price Bell. A recent article, written in reply by one of the best-known figures among the local Filipino colony, gave the readers of The DAILY WORKER an opportunity to see what American imperialist rule looks like to the Filipinos.

Private Firms Want the Unemployment Insurance Business

NEW YORK—(FP)—Needle trades unions have led the field in organized unemployment insurance but big insurance companies are eager to corral the market. Haley Fiske, president Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., told the annual convention of the Assn. of Life Insurance Presidents that he expected insurance legislation to be modified so that the companies might write unemployment insurance.

That the old line life insurance companies make profits out of all proportion to the service they render is shown in a recent study proving that policy holders pay twice as much into the company treasuries as their beneficiaries take out in benefits.

Unity Impelled by Fear

Britain and France at the league of nations council in Geneva have reached a deadlock over the interpretation of article 16 of the league covenant. Britain refuses to bind herself to any specific form of military aggression to defend an aggrieved power against another. Her conflict of interests against France in Europe and Asia makes such commitment inadvisable.

Altho the league council decided that Greece pay indemnities to Bulgaria for the recent border warfare, Greece, backed by England, is defiant and insists upon a reopening of the case at which time she will present counter-claims. Turkey, backed by the United States Standard Oil concern and French oil interests, defies the league decision on the question of the Irak boundary dispute. Differences, deep and profound, prevent unity within the league council.

But on one point there is unity, a unity forced by mutual fear of the growing national consciousness of the colonial and semi-colonial peoples living under league mandates. Britain was prepared to propose the revocation of the French mandate in Syria because of the widespread warfare in that territory and it is probable that she had a hand in instigating some of the disturbances.

But the people of Syria are not pliant pawns of imperialism. The outbreaks of fury against French imperialism after the savage storming of Damascus were directed against the whole mandate policy of the league. England expected to gain by the disorders, but instead of being able to capitalize the situation in her interest she is now confronted at Geneva with a representative of the Syro-Palestine independence organization in the person of Ihsan Djabir Bey of Damascus, demanding not only the withdrawal of the French mandate in Syria, but the British mandate in Palestine. Thus is the political situation changed by the agents of the oppressed peoples. This challenge forced France and England to adopt a unified policy based upon mutual fear of losing both league mandates. If the liberation movement is powerful enough to evict them, neither nation will have the mandate. The formerly oppressed nations will establish their own governments.

When Djabir arrived and sought an audience with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, he found that France and Britain were united to prevent a hearing of his complaint. No such hearing will be granted because the British realize that as soon as the question of the French in Syria comes up the demand will also be made for freedom of Palestine. This retreat of Britain, forced by the natives of Syria and Palestine, is veiled in the customary hypocritical expressions of amity. Britain now asserts that she will support France in this affair because France supported her in refusing a hearing to the Egyptian representatives who resented the arrogance of Britain after the murder of Sir Lee Stack in Cairo last year.

All revolutionists rejoice in the defiant statement of the Syrians that they "demand the complete independence of Syria and will not accept any other power assuming a mandate."

Coolidge's Chicago Repudiation

Coolidge's trip to Chicago for the purpose of desseminating poison gas to the farmers of the middle west reacted as a boomerang. Instead of convincing the farmers who are forced to sell their corn crop at 50 cents a bushel he failed even to convince the aggregation of petty bourgeois business men and well-to-do farmers who attended the conference of the American farm bureau federation.

S. H. Thompson of Quincy, Illinois, who openly opposed the nostrums proposed by Coolidge and who is considered the radical spokesman of the conference was elected president of the bureau, defeating the incumbent, O. K. Bradfute, of Xenia, Ohio, who was instrumental in arranging for the Coolidge address.

Coolidge came to Chicago to save the conservative faction in the American farm bureau federation. His speech was so reactionary it furnished the best weapon with which to defeat his friends.

Coolidge has never made much of a hit with the middle westerners. While vice-president of the United States in 1922 he journeyed to the Minnesota state fair where the crowd booed and hissed him until he had to refrain from speaking. An accident of death made him president, and the Wall Street gang had to make the best of a bad bargain and proceed religiously to manufacture a Coolidge myth. Like the late Harding, the president should confine his campaigns to front porch activities, for when he appears in public he queers the game.

For a Labor Party

The resolution of the Philadelphia convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union in favor of a labor party indicates a definite swing away from the treacherous Gompers policy of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies" within the old party political machines. This is the second convention within a few weeks to go on record for a labor party. The first one was the Boston convention of the International Furriers' Union.

A good start is made toward the calling of a national conference that ought to set up a permanent committee to carry on intensive campaigns in all the central labor bodies and local unions in the country in order to crystallize the mass sentiment that unquestionably prevails for a labor party, a sentiment that has steadily grown since the close of the war.

The creation of such a party will be the greatest forward step possible for American labor at this time, and those militants who initiated the resolutions should see to it that they are not sabotaged by the officials who support progressive measures in words but are slothful in deeds.

Senator Pat. Harrison of Tennessee excoriated Vice-President Dawes the other day, calling him a "Don Quixote, tilting with every adverse element from geese to windmills." The democratic senator shows poor historical and literary insight in his use of analogy. Dawes is not a Don Quixote. His verbal outbursts are far more reminiscent of Sancho Panza's jack ass.

Long Live the American Workers (Communist) Party

The manifesto adopted by the convention of the Finnish section of the Workers (Communist) Party in regard to the party situation was as follows:

COMRADES: The convention of the Finnish section of the Workers Party which convened from Nov. 28 to Dec. 3, 1925, in Chicago, Ill., in order to clarify the situation that was created in our federation in connection with the bolshevization crisis of our party. This crisis which many comrades were apt to take as merely a factional fight between the leaders, had its roots deep in the fundamental questions of the class struggle of the American working class. During the party convention this fall, it was clearly shown that there really was a right wing in our party against which non-Communist elements the party convention took energetic action in expelling Lore. However, thru this action the right danger was not totally avoided and our party must further be careful against opportunistic deviations.

Things that have taken place after the party convention, especially Comrade Cannon's withdrawal from the Foster group, have shown that the Communist International, by its interference, has correctly helped the party out of the crisis and from the factional dangers that have manifested themselves in connection with this crisis. The unity resolution of the Central Executive Committee, which was unanimously adopted by the Finnish convention, is another step forward to unify our party. Altho remains of former groupings may still manifest themselves, we can be confident that our party in following the correct policy in everyday action will completely overcome the tendency to groupings. It is especially important to find the correct line in our trade union policy and the proper way to handle the labor party matter in order that we may encourage the rising class movement of the American working masses. It is also important to follow a correct policy in the relations of the workers' class movement and the movements of farmers. It is our conviction that the action of our party, within a short period, will show the millions of exploited workers that our party is to become the uniting, guiding influence in their struggles and show them the way to carry on their fight against capitalistic exploitation and against the imperialistic oppressions and war policy.

The bolshevization process of our party, which in America, as well as in other countries, has created a crisis, caused also confusion in the Finnish section and created a crisis, and as in the party, so in our federation there have been occurrences of which every class conscious proletarian and Communist must take serious notice. There have been tendencies that show either conscious or unconscious efforts to draw away from the world's Communist Party and its American section, the Workers Party. There have been more open and veiled right wing tendencies than we were aware of. Opportunistic tendencies manifested themselves thru exaggeration of practical difficulties in the reorganization and using these exaggerations in order to create distrust of the party and its leadership. We must not close our eyes to the fact that in connection with this there has appeared pessimism and skepticism regarding the ability of the Communist International to help Communist parties of different countries to solve their problems.

OUR convention, conscious of its Communist responsibility has closely examined the situation, has analyzed for itself all the tendencies and their objective meaning. Thru a thoro discussion, with the assistance of representatives of the party, it has analyzed the causes of the crisis in the party and in our section and has clarified misunderstandings and errors where they have developed. We note with satisfaction that comrades are sincerely trying to find and correct weaknesses, mistakes and are glad to inform the members of the party and the Finnish section that in all fundamental problems we unanimously come to the same conclusion. This is a guarantee to members that we will be able to solve our crisis and clear our way for future actions.

It is natural that there should appear occasional social-democratic and other non-Communist petty-bourgeois tendencies among branches which are made up of such a variety of elements as ours, but we are confident that the class coscious proletarian vanguard who have been the pioneers of our movement and won their way thru many crises and struggles to their present position, as the largest group in the American party, will make a sincere and strong effort to achieve a clearer Communist understanding and are ready to make the greater sacrifice in the actual class struggle which the present period demands from every worker and farmer.

THE strong conviction of the proletarian masses of our section gives us definite assurance that we will be able to overcome the difficulties before us and the Finnish comrades thruout the country will find their right place in the front rank of the class struggle.

Comrades, a historical change has taken place in our federation. The vanguard of the Finnish laboring masses in this country has already taken practical steps and shown its willingness to discontinue its national separation and to connect itself with the workers of other nationalities in America in their organizations and struggles. In our reorganization activities in locals, districts, and now in this convention, we have come nearer to our party, its other membership, and leadership. Confidently working together in all party activities we can go forward on the road to bolshevization, eliminate misunderstandings and possible errors.

In order to further this unification and perfect our party activities, we have with the agreement of the representatives of the C. E. C. in this convention, also planned necessary organizational steps, such as the organization of former Finnish branches into workers' clubs, etc., and put them into action upon a new basis so that they will continue, even more than before, to serve their purpose as organizations of workers and farmers in the struggle against capitalism. We have considered it especially important, for the near future, to have a larger force in the central office, which undoubtedly, even from the economical point of view, will be of advantage. We have tried to further ideological unification as well as the centralization of activities, both of which bolshevization requires. We are confident that the Finnish comrades, with close ranks will join in action upon these bases, and bring shame upon the hopes of the traitors and misleaders that in the ranks of the class conscious workers would take place some kind of division, from which they and their capitalist masters would benefit.

The convention urges every Finnish Party member who is conscious of the necessary requirements of bolshevization, with all his energy to support the following:

1. To fight against all opportunistic and other non-Communist tendencies. This requires creating solid ideological perfection upon a correct Communist basis.
2. In overcoming the remains of factionalism and national separativeness we must create a solid organizational unification and to start actual cooperation among the comrades speaking other languages in the Party organs, shop and street nuclei.
3. To show activity in mass organizations, in the trade unions, cooperatives, sports, etc. Especially is it important to further independent working class action by working for realization of the Labor Party idea, always keeping in view the unity between workers and exploited farmers.

In all these actions we must remember that the first requirement of bolshevization is firm faith in the leadership of the Communist International and its American section, our Party, and a struggle against all attempts to upset this conviction.

The convention appeals to all Party members and to all exploited Finnish workers and farmers in America urging them to strengthen the fraternal union so that we may be able to realize the great final end, freedom for all laboring masses. The convention greets the Central Executive Committee of the Communist International and our Party leadership and thru them sends its fraternal greetings to our Party membership and to fraternal Communist Parties, especially the Communist Party of Finland and also the struggling workers and farmers of Finland.

We are confident that the American Finnish revolutionary proletarians are willing to fulfill their tasks in the common fighting front.

Long live the Communist International!

Long live the American Workers (Communist) Party!

Long live the struggle for freedom of the exploited workers and farmers thruout the world!

The Convention of the Finnish Section of the Workers (Communist Party of America.

WHAT KANSAS FARMERS THINK

By J. E. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH, Kansas, Dec. 9—Farmers must take over their own business, set the price on their product, drive the speculators out of the market place, establish their own banking system, and in their assembled local unions study the problems of economics that govern the farmer and his farm. That is about the gist of the advice of John Tromble, president of the Farmers' Union of Kansas.

He was speaking at a Farmers' Union picnic seven miles southeast of Pittsburgh, Kansas. The farmers there are about the average of small farm owners in Kansas. From the way they received their president's speech and the one I made following his, I should judge that there is a decided tendency toward revolt against the present system of market gambling, railroad discrimination in freight rates, banker hold-ups by mortgages and high interest and price fixing by everybody that either buys or sells from or to the farmer.

He cited the enterprises that are now being established by the Farmers' Union, such as live stock, produce, grain and other commodity exchanges, and that a combined national conspiracy exists among the speculators to destroy these enterprises. An attempt was made to keep the Farmers' Union out of the stock yards at Kansas City; the bankers association has it so fixed that they can decide whether there are too many banks in a town and a Farmers' Union Bank is "too many."

A professor from the teachers' training school in Pittsburgh, Kansas advised the farmers to study up on the use of the many elements in feritlizer and that prosperity would come by the use of more fertilizer. President Trombel's answer was, that he had no objection to the professor's advice, but what was the use of using fertilizer, to increase the crops, when the farmers cannot sell what they produce now for enuf to pay the interest on the debts they owe, besides when every time they raise fifteen bushels of wheat to the acre there is an overproduction and the bottom drops out of the market. He said the general impression in the world is that the "farmer is a failure," it is continually repeated and the farmer has been an upt scholar and has lost confidence in himself and his own enterprises.

After the meeting I asked him if he thot the big business interests would submit without a struggle, even at arms, to the farmers taking over the industrial and financial interests and doing their own exchange business all down the line? He answered that he did not think they would. That he feared that things were leading to a terrible situation unless the producers wake up to the enormity of the situation.

I was invited to address the audience and told them of the International peasants' movement, the international trade union unity movement and their urgent invitations to all farmers' organizations in America to join them in the battle to wrest the market places of the world from the hands of the speculator. I called their attention to the fact that the wheat market is in Liverpool, England, the cotton market in Manchester, England, the meat market in Chicago, and the money market in Wall Street. That the same international group of capitalists form an interlocking directorate over all these, and, that the producers of wealth are divided and propagandized into hatreds while the big fellows gobble up everything. They nationalize and localize us into serfs to their industries while they internationalize the wealth into fewer and fewer hands.

I told them of the workers' and farmers' movement in Russia and the splendid co-operative movement there, also of the fact that in Denmark where the co-operatives have 98 per cent of the farmers as members, the school teacher must teach co-operation and take a leading part in the farm organization work as well as handling the markets. That in Russia the speculation problems are not allowed in text books such as we find in American text books, that while we are making our farmer neighbor into a co-operator, the capitalist teacher is making our children into boosters for the capitalist system.

The farmers present were much interested and invited me to their locals to speak further on this subject as I only had a few minutes.

A feature that is of importance to all farm and wage working unions was manifest at this picnic. They sang many farmer songs, had farmer recitations and had a big community dinner. The social culture idea is one of the big needs of our farm and labor movement and we were glad to see this feature. So long as capitalism furnishes our culture for us we will get nothing but perversion for our children and ourselves. Our entertainments, schools, teachers, school books, our newspapers, moving pictures, radios, phonographs, Sunday comics and churches and all are being used today to pervert the workers' minds away from the real problems that confront us, and we must own and control these institutions as well as the institutions of production and exchange.

I seconded the advice of their president that their local union must become the forum where these economic problems must be studied and practiced, and that I thot the distrust and lack of confidence in each other could thus be destroyed and transferred to the capitalist shell game and confidence men who have always hoodwinked and robbed the farmers at every turn.

The Kansas farmer is reaching out for something better. He is seeking education. He is beginning to sense the size of his opponent. Tromble tells me that his organization is ready to go more than half way to meet the labor organization, but that it has been hard to get any response on such matters as reduction of freight legislation etc., but the farmers are still hopeful.

HOLD MEMBERSHIP MEETINGS IN THE DISTRICTS FOR UNIFICATION AND PARTY TRADE UNION WORK

Meetings of the District Executive Committees of the various districts as well as membership meetings in the main party centers on the two vital questions of unfication of the party behind the Central Executive Committee, and the intensification of the party's trade union work, are being arranged.

The following are the arrangements for the meetings to be held:

PHILADELPHIA—D. E. C. meeting, Dec. 14, at 521 York Ave.; membership meeting, Dec. 15, at 1626 Arch St.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—D. E. C. meeting, Dec. 16; membership meeting, Dec. 17, Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller St.

CLEVELAND—D. E. C. meeting, afternoon of Dec. 19; membership meeting, evening of Dec. 18, at Gardinia Hall, 6021 St. Clair St.

CHICAGO—Membership meeting, Tuesday, December 22, 8 p. m., at Schoenhoffen Hall, 1224 Milwaukee Ave. (Milwaukee and Ashland Aves.).

These meetings are of the utmost importance and the comrades in the various centers must see to it that the maximum attendance is obtained.

SIGMAN PAPER MAJORITY VOTES DOWN WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY IN PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION

The Russian unions could join Amsterdam if they would accept it program. He, Hochman, was "opposed to Communist domination."

Willing to Discuss.

Hyman, speaking, said—"Hochman uses the excuse of Communist domination, but the real reason is because the Red International has ideals and principles and a program, while you have none."

"Do you agree with the Red International?" asked Hochman.

"No," said Hyman, "Not on everything, but I am not afraid to meet and discuss with them the problems of the working class."

Hyman pointed out that Hochman claimed 21,000,000 for Amsterdam, but that England with 6,000,000 was leading the fight for world trade union unity and that in all countries there were large sections favoring world trade union unity and we must unite internationally.

Besides our immediate demands, all accomplishments can be set aside by capitalism by simply a declaration of war, Hyman said, which destroys the soul of humanity. A declaration of war must be answered by a world-wide strike.

Delegate Di Moln was against world trade union unity because, so he said, he "did not want to be dictated to by the Communist International."

Profintern Enemy Laughed At.

Lefkowitz, chairman of the committee on international relations, accused the Red International of being a "dual union" and the Communist International with destroying the German Metal Workers' Union. He said that Purcell only "represented himself" and that Hyman and Zimmerman were doing "likewise." He said that he "voiced the opinion of the membership." He spoke seriously but even his own supporters laughed at him.

Pasquale Cosgrove spoke for the International Labor Defense and especially for the Gitlow case. He stated that Gitlow was convicted on a law made at the time McKinley was assassinated. The motion to donate $1,000 was laid over to a committee.

Expose Class Collaboration.

Resolutions on labor banking and the life insurance plan of the American Federation were endorsed by Sigman's thirty per cent delegation. The left wing exposed the machine's class collaboration policy which is leading the organization away from the class sruggle. The left wingers pointed out that Sigman's administration thot more of business that they did than of the problems of the workers. The vote was 135 for to 105 against.

The resolution providing that unemployment insurance be taken out of profits and administered by the union, was adopted unanimously.

Members Demand Action.

The sentiment of members is shown in the resolutions from the majority of clothing centers demanding an organizing campaign and a general strike to remedy evils of the industry. All these passed unanimously, the incoming executive board being instructed to carry them out.

Sigman is seemingly trying to hold up the convention by unfair rulings, demagogic speeches and provocative and insulting methods against the left wing delegates. But in spite of his bravado, he evidently has no set plan to handle the left wing and backs down whenever the left wing becomes militant. The voting down of the progressive resolutions is not taken as seriously as they would be if Sigman really represented the membership.

Convention Reaches Impasse.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 11—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' convention has now reached an impasse. Afraid to bring the report of the General Executive Board, with its denunciation on the left wing before the delegates, the Sigman machine is wasting time on unimportant matters.

None of the important committees except that on resolutions has reported, altho the convention is supposed to adjourn Saturday and it is physically impossible to finish the work in the specified time.

Sigman Wants No Fight.

Private proposals have been made by certain machine delegates to the left wing that an agreement be reached for an extension of the convention sessions to next Tuesday. .. ..

The hope of the Sigmanites is that an agreement on the incoming General Executive Board can be reached with the left, and that the complete exposure of the machine, which will be made in the debate on the officers' report, can be avoided.

Excuse Falls Flat.

The Sigman plan of blaming the left wing for the delay in getting work done has failed miserably and upon the administration rests the full responsibility for the debating society into which the convention has degenerated.

The convention this morning gave unanimous consent for the introduction of a resolution by Zimmerman denouncing the ku klux klan. Resolutions endorsing recognition of Soviet Russia, the sending of a trade union delegation and putting the convention on record against legislation against the foreign-born were adopted.

No Education for Workers.

The report on educational activities by Fannia Cohn was severely criticized by the left wing delegates, who pointed out the middle-class and scholastic character of the education conducted. The left wing meeting held here last night in Garden Hall was attended by 1,000 needle workers who cheered Hyman, Rubin, Toohey and others who spoke. The meeting marks the revival of the left wing here and the beginning of the reorganization which will rebuild the Philadelphia union, badly shattered by the Sigman expulsion policy.

Alabama Coal Mine Blast Kills 61 Miners

t from the condition of the children of the miners who were killed by the Overton explotion. Nevertheless, Mr. Macy is treasurer of the National Child Labor committee and vice-president of the New York state child labor committee.

Of the 81 miners underground at the time of the explosion, only 20 escaped death. Company officials seem to think that they are making a great concession when they announce that before mining operations will be resumed—and the profits be resumed with more wage slaves to take the jobs of the dead—all the bodies will be removed.

The blast which shook the windows many miles away in Birmingham, brot terrible scenes to the bereaved wives and children around the pit mouth. When the first bodies were brot out there was a rush to identify them.

The crowd was in an angry mood and was threatening to riot as protest against this mistreatment when, as usual, the intervention of religion came to serve as an opiate. A Negro preacher, who like all preachers serve to make the workers satisfied with heaven hereafter and hell on earth, mounted a large rock and began to sing:

> "Swing low sweet chariot,
> Coming for to take me home."

This paralyzing influence of superstition, which in the form of a song traditional to the colored race, took off the load of responsibility from the Alabama Fuel and Iron company for failing to sprinkle the mine dust and provide proper timbering, and loaded all responsibility onto god, set the crowd of impresionable workers to weeping and praying and their mood for battle against the company and the brutal police was gone.

Mr. Morgan's Mr. Coolidge Informs the Farmers that Nothing Can Be Done About It Under Democracy.

The "Golden Peace"

Also the United States Signed the Treaty of Locarno—but with Invisible Ink.

THEY signed the treaty of Locarno with gold pens.

Sir Austen Chamberlain signed with a fountain pen made of solid gold—handle and all—probably made of newly imported ore from South Africa; and probably with ink from India and upon parchment made of Australian sheep-skin. For the treaty is a triumph of British imperialism.

But it was also a movie show. The most ponderous statesmen of Europe moved about the big, decorated hall under the glare of calcium lights such as are used at Hollywood. Thruout the solemn ceremony they kept their faces carefully turned so as to be caught in the camera-reels—the same as Norma Talmage or Mary Pickford, or like Charlie Chaplin in "The Gold Rush."

Not that it is not serious. On the contrary, it is the most deadly serious affair of many a month—an affair intended to balance off the revolution in China and the revolt of the Druses and of Abd-el-Krim and the successful consolidation of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The Locarno affair is the signing of a treaty for the most colossal plan of many powerful governments. But the glare of the white lights and the noise of the fast-moving camera machines is necessary for this treaty. For this treaty of war is also a movie show entitled: "Peace."

WHAT is the treaty of Locarno—this "golden treaty of peace?"

It is a world conspiracy against the working class of the world, against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics which belongs to the working class—not of Russia alone, but of the entire world—and against the hundreds of millions of victims of capitalist Britain, capitalist France, fascist Italy and imperialist America, in the colonies of Asia and Africa.

The treaty of Locarno is an attempt to arrange the line-up for the biggest of all wars—the rapidly developing second world war. It is a treaty attempting to consolidate an imperialist united front for a war of extermination against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, for a civil war of enslavement against the workers of those countries whose governments signed the treaty of "golden peace," and for a universal extension of the war of bombing airplanes and battleships against the hundreds of millions of Africa and Asia.

That is why it has to be called a "treaty of golden peace." That is why the movie cameras have to click; that is why it has to be put forward to the working class in a million cinema theaters thruout the world under the false title: "The signing of the golden peace of Locarno." If it wasn't advertised as "peace" the working class of the world too quickly gather the fact that it is war. So the best genius of the movie camera industry is put to work so that a hundred million simple working men and women in thousands of cities and towns will watch the screen where the images of the great statesmen are shown signing the "golden peace," and will believe and will glow with gratitude toward the butchers preparing their death. Probably never before was a single movie reel exhibited as this one will be.

HERR LUTHER, chancellor of the German republic, smiles his best into the camera lenses—for this movie must be shown in the theaters of Berlin. Monsieur Aristide Briand stretches his leathery mouth into a grin, for the picture must be shown in Paris. Monsieur—that is, "Comrade" Vandervelde, the king's "socialist" of Belgium, must have posed his best, for the picture is to be shown as one of "peace" in the Brussels working class districts.

The cameras' click sounded almost like machine guns as Doctor Benes of Czecho-Slovakia leaned almost across the table to exchange stage-gestures and grins with Chancellor Luther, his proverbial enemy of Germany—for this movie is to be shown within a few days in all the movies of New York and Chicago and Prague and Vienna, Paris, London and Berlin,—under the title of "The signing of the golden peace of Locarno."

SEVEN nations signed the treaty. "Sir" Austen Chamberlain (who received the Order of the Garter just the day before in order to give him a title for the occasion) signed for Great Britain, and Mr. Baldwin was accorded the privilege as well Herr Luther for Germany, and—

Where is Mussolini?

Mussolini didn't come. He wanted to come, and was wanted. But the British foreign office was reluctantly obliged to advise him not to come. There would have been difficulties of railroad travel on English soil; railroad trains might have refused to run with Mussolini on them, in England. Great Britain's signature is on the treaty. But it appears that the England that signed the treaty was not all of England.

The British government signs a treaty with Mussolini, but restless British workers won't let Mussolini come to London to sign the treaty!

There are TWO Englands. Capitalist England signed the treaty. Proletarian England did not sign the treaty. And this indicates the key to the fate of the treaty of Locarno.

WHERE was the United States when the treaty was signed? The United States did not visibly sign the "golden peace."

Yet, hovering over Locarno, dictating, bulldozing, and sharing in the formation of every line and syllable of the treaty—was the United States government (acting, of course, for American finance capital.) The treaty of Locarno is a British-American imperialist document. Of the two great powers, only Great Britain visibly signed the treaty,—but written in invisible ink under the names of the other powers is the signature of the United States of America. When the time comes to read the signatures under this pact of criminal world conspiracy, —when the gun-powder is poured onto the page—then the signature of the United States will become visible.

This is already admitted by Coolidge in his message this week to congress. He boasts with unconcealed glee that the Locarno treaty represents:

> "the success of this policy which we have been insisting ought to be adopted, of having European countries settle their own political problems without involving this country."

What Coolidge means is that the big finance capitalists of the United States conceived, ordered and put thru the big imperialist combine in such a way as to leave themselves in a prefered position as the natural lords of the world who did not even have to put their own signatures to it. The United States did not have to sign the treaty; its signature is understood; it is understood that the towering master of world-credit is "in" on any world conspiracy among its debtors.

Coolidge in his message to congress even goes so far as to claim personal responsibility for the Locarno treaty, mentioning the fact that he had "publicly advocated such agreements in an address made in Massachusetts" last July. Coolidge called Locarno "the third step"—indicating that the whole policy of European imperialism has been gradually bent into form by the maneuvers and coercion of the United States government and the Morgan bank over the governments of Europe. The form now—after the financial bargains of Morgan & Co. have been safely completed—is satisfactory to the United States. (He omits to say that it is not a purely American, but a British-American triumph.) But otherwise the president of the United States indicates under a thin concealment his claim that HE—little Coolidge!—has succeeded in bringing about the subjection of Europe to British-American imperialism.

THE biggest of all the bullies of capitalist imperialism—the creditor and overseer of the capitalist world—is playing a tremendous role in all of the machinations of the present day. We have seen the events come thick and fast. The great "pacifist" nation of Wall Street played peace from 1914 until it paid to play war. Then it came out of the war as the creditor of the world, as the coldblooded Shylock bargaining over the bones of ten million dead. Nations changed and patched their financial systems to the dictation of a single American banking heirarchy, two of whose petty servants became the president and vice-president of the United States. After the servants of this banking house had drawn up the Covenant of the League of Nations as a "league of imperialists to strangle the nations," the general judgment of American capitalism found that the murderous coalition plan did not yet pay sufficient toll to the Shylock of the world, and refused to sign. Then, when the terms were bettered for Shylock, the same imperialist world-plan was revised under the new name of the "World Court." But still the terms for blood money were insufficient. For several years longer the dickering went on. Then, nation by nation, the powers of Europe were humbled by their own threatening decay. Came a series of monster loans totaling hundreds of millions of gold dollars. France came running to Morgan and company. And England, and the British dominions of Australia and Canada, and Italy. Morgan bought nations cheap.

Now the time had come. Coolidge takes responsibility for the Locarno treaty; and Coolidge says the United States will join the world court.

A few days before his message to congress Coolidge gave the word that Morgan and company were ready. Mr. J. P. Morgan seldom gives interviews himself. But the little servant Coolidge told a meeting of the New York chamber of commerce that now the United States is ready to join the world court. This was the word from the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., and from the colossal heirarchy of finance capital whose monarch Morgan is.

BUT the new Knight of the Garter —"Sir" Austen Chamberlain—appears as the diplomatic victor above all in this successful conspiracy. The British king knighted him with the Order of the Garter for his success. He deserves forty thousand British ladies' garters for this triumph, and from the point of view of the British working class he deserves one "garter" of hemp, for his pains.

It is a bargain for Morgan, but it is an attempted guarantee for British imperialism against all of the terrors which threaten the quaking empire. It is an agreement for the complete national enslavement of Germany—not only of the working class, but even on the petty-bourgeoisie of Germany. It is an arrangement to hold off the hungry militarists of France from disturbing Britain's designs in Europe. It is a war agreement by which the cracking British empire is to be defended by a "united front" of all imperialist powers. It means war against China, India, the native nationalists of Africa, Syria and Mesopotamia—and against the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—a war in which British imperialism occupies the front trench and Wall Street-Washington imperialism becomes the supposedly inexhaustible reserve.

GERMANY stood between two choices. Either to become the conquered slave of the British-American plunderbund, or to reach out its hand to the only nation which could be its friend—the Soviet Union. Nothing but an orientation toward the Soviet Union could preserve the national independence of Germany. The dastardly treason of the social-democratic party of Germany immediately after the war consisted in preventing the alignment with the Soviet Union; it continued this role until the time came when the German bourgeoisie could rule Germany directly, and then the German capitalist class took the helm openly into its own hands. The German bourgeoisie at last was able to decide the choice (with the continued help of the "socialists") in favor of selling the German nation into colonial slavery. By the Locarno "golden peace" the German workers and peasants and also the German petty bourgeoisie become the slaves of British-American finance capital. . . The German big bourgeoisie, from the point of view of German national independence, becomes the gilded prostitute of British-American imperialism. In exchange the German bourgeoisie receives a promise of military protection from the wrath of the German working class and peasantry.

BY this treaty France at last surrenders its claim as an independent nation and slinks with bowed head into the ranks of the subject nations of British-American imperialism. For France also there was no other choice but Russia. The slavery of the French working class becomes intensified, and the Dawes plan becomes the constitution of the French republic.

BUT all the orders of the garter and all the moving picture shows of the "golden peace" cannot conceal the enslavement also of the British working class by this "triumph of Great Britain." Not Great Britain, but the United States clambers to the top in the struggle for the world market. The prospect of a military free hand for war against Africans and Asiatic peoples does not make British factories run, not quiet the temper of the British working class in unemployment and facing foreign wars.

The morale of the capitalist society is falling into decay, and the morale of the working class is being strengthened. We can't forget that Mussolini couldn't come to London. This and other small incidents show that there is real need for this monstrous advertising of the "golden peace." Nor is the peace among the conspirators a permanent thing. The discovery of British spies in stealing the secrets of French military airplanes (before the ink was dry on the "golden peace") is not the only reminder of the mutual plans for assassination on the part of the powers that have entered this supposedly "permanent" world conspiracy of Locarno. The emissaries of Chili appeared at the league of nations to declare furiously, that the United States is making a single vast colony of Wall Street thruout South America. The mailed fist of Washington is hammering at every door in South America. There are no markets for Great Britain there! This is the private domain of American capital. Her own wars of conquest in the western hemisphere are being planned by the United States. War with Mexico is being prepared. Every effort or servile political leaders of Mexico "peacefully" to sell their country to United States capital cannot remove the causes of friction. Strangely like the events in China, events in Mexico are bringing the Mexican working class into direct conflict with the big Gringo masters in New York. At this moment, proposed laws for the protection of Mexican workers against the most extreme degrees of exploitation are taken up as American political issues in the capitalist newspapers of the Uited States, Mexico, like all of South America, is considered as annexed territory of the United States.

Coolidge's message indicates the approach to conquest of China in the first stage by agreement with "the countries involved." But another stage will be the open clash between the piratical imperialist "countries involved."

AHEAD is the second world war, beginning on the basis laid by the "golden peace of Locarno." A war involving every country on the globe, with millions of Americans, Germans, British, French, Italians, Belgians, etc., fighting on the plains of Asia and Africa and being driven to the attempt at the conquest of Soviet Russia—dying for the "golden peace of Locarno." But it will be a war in which the true interests of the vast majority of the earth's population—the workers and toiling farmers of all these countries and equally the one billion population of Asia and Africa—will be forced upon their consciousness. The transformation of the war between nations into the war between classes will come.

The working class of the countries of Europe is being driven to learn the lesson. The American working class lags behind, but it, too, will learn. Even now the transformation shows some signs of beginning in the affairs of the labor unions. The problem in America is a primitive one, relatively. It is the problem of hastening the crystalization of the American working class as a class. Even Japan sees the birth of a labor party. America will see it too.

THE most precious privilege of every honest and intelligent worker in the United States is now to make himself or herself a part of the great revolutionary movement. The Communist International will be the organizer and backbone of the resistance to this monster world-conspiracy. Obviously there can be but a single world-leadership. And equally obviously the Communist International will be that leadership. Every worker who is strong enough to take his part in the front rank should endeavor to be within it.

NOW is the time when scores of millions of workers should be set into motion in England, Germany, France and the United States—as they are in the Soviet Union—against this "golden" Guarantee Pact of British-American imperialism.

The cry should be "Down with the Guarantee Pact!"—"Long Live the Guarantee Pact between the workers of the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics!"

What Are the Conditions of Labor in America?

By EARL R. BROWDER.

OBJECTION is sometimes raised against the statistical material gathered by the research department of the Workers Party; material which shows the increasing rate of exploitation of labor and the absolute decline in the standard of living: the objections being on the ground that the figures are incomplete and therefore prove nothing, and that the actual conditions of the workers, as disclosed by direct investigation, are on the whole improving. To what extent are these objections valid?

Admitting that the statistical investigation is far from complete, it must still be insisted upon, that almost all figures, compiled by many independent institutions (all of them either hostile to labor or "neutral"), disclose the same tendency of increase in rate of exploitation and an absolute decline in the standard of living, the spread-eagle claims of Hoover and Coolidge to the contrary notwithstanding. The only way in which improvement of labor standards can be shown is to compare present conditions with the period of peak prices right after the war, when labor was at its lowest point. The true tendency is disclosed by a longer-range comparison (as in Paul H. Douglas' "Wages in 1890-1923") and by the current development in the present period of "prosperity."

For the moment, however, let us ask what are the actual living conditions of labor as disclosed by empirical investigation?

A sample case may be taken from the "aristocracy of labor," the railroad workers.

In the "Railway Clerk" for December, 1925, page 479, may be found the following letter from a railway employe. It says:

"After nearly forty years spent in railroad service I am today receiving a wage barely sufficient to provide a very meager existence. Yet I am holding one of the highest rated jobs in the freight accounting department. During my forty years of railroad service I have never received more than enough to maintain a very restricted standard of living. Yet I have been more fortunate than most of my fellow workers. There are just myself and my wife. We are both economical. We are careful with our household expenses. We wear inexpensive clothes, and wear them longer than we like to. We live in a modest apartment, yet one-fourth of my wages go to the landlord each month. My gas and electric bills have doubled in the last three years.

"I have lost more in wage reductions since wages were at their peak than I have gained in reduced living costs, statistics to the contrary notwithstanding. My wife and I are deprived of amusement; we both like music and the drama but seldom get to see a good show, and never an opera. An occasional picture show is about all we can afford.

"I have saved less during the last year and a half than during any similar period in the last eight years. After forty years of service I have been unable to save anything like enough to provide against the time when I shall probably have reached the age when my earning power ceases.

"The company in whose service I have given the better part of my life—a company which has enjoyed uninterrupted prosperity for years, particularly the last four, and can well afford to increase our wages, refuses to do so, but expects me to be loyal and watchful of the companies interests and render efficient service. I have been loyal and I have been a hard worker; but what has it gotten me? I and my class deserve a wage increase and I am willing to take whatever action is necessary to get it."

The union to which this worker belongs is not red, has not the faintest pink tinge. It is 100 per cent American in the true Gompersian sense. But its official organ comments upon the letter, saying "This man voiced the protest of two hundred thousand railroad and express clerks and station service employes. Literally that many workers of our classes are today receiving wages that mean a restricted life, privation, and in thousands of cases actual want."

It is true of railroaders (and out of the 1,800,000 employes on the railroads it is true of at least 1,500,000—while the more privileged receive only 20 per cent to 50 per cent more wages) then it is even more true of the steel workers, the miners, the textile workers, the rubber workers, etc. The building trades seem to be an exception, but this is largely an illusion, and to the extent that it is true, is very temporary. Even the printers, with their "mighty union," the International Typographical Union, have been steadily losing ground. The automobile workers are being constantly driven down to the level of other industries, in spite of the tremendous expansion of that production. Our railway clerk, quoted above, spoke not only for two hundred thousand clerks, he spoke for ten million workers in America who are living on the ragged edge of poverty.

What is to be done about it? The official leaders of American labor are exerting all their powers to completely reorientate the unions away from strikes and struggle, towards class collaboration, towards "B. & O. plans," towards company unions, towards insurance and labor banking. This class collaboration movement is growing more menacing every day. It is gnawing at the very heart of unionism.

The Trade Union Educational League, and the Communists, have been for years pointing out the only road of progress for labor. This is the road of greater solidarity of labor, stronger organizations, and militant class struggle. And even the most conservative workers are being pushed in our direction, even against their conscious desires.

It is an important symptom of what is brewing in the ranks of labor, when such a conservative organ as "The Railway Clerk" can say:

"The workers are sick and tired of this buck-passing. They have been trying the conference table method of adjusting their wage questions for five years now. They prefer the conference table to the picket line, but their experience with this method has shaken their faith in its efficiency. They have presented, first to the carriers and then to the Labor Board, masses of data on wages, living costs, and what-not, but their statistics didn't stick. Not because their statistics did not prove their case, but because gentlemen who are accustomed to analyzing statistics with an eye only to profit and loss are not much impressed with the story they tell of cramped and half-starved lives. An elegantly phrased wage-submission is more pleasant to contemplate than an ultimatum; but the workers have learned that it hasn't the effect of the latter on wage boards and railroad presidents."

This argument from one of the very unions which has been most active in the labor banking, insurance, and B. & O. plan movement, is the declaration in bankruptcy of their present tactics. And it is a sign that the masses of workers are beginnig to put severe pressure upon their leaders. Further, it is the final proof that we are correct when we point out the increasing exploitations of the whole working class by American capitalism.

Two Stories by the Russian Writer, Vsevolod Ivanov

THE 'MERICAN

(Copyright, 1925, by International Publishers Co., Inc.)

A MUZHIK with bandaged head, drove his piepald horse wildly along the lane. His body was glued to the flat back of the horse; his face twitched, his fists were swinging in the air: gleeful yells issued from his throat:

"Brothers—we've caught—a 'Merican!"

Okorok shouted:

"Oh-ho-ho!"

Three muzhiks, carrying rifles, appeared in the lane.

Behind them, walking with a slight limp, was an American soldier, dressed in a khaki uniform.

His face was young and clean-shaven; his parted lips showed his teeth chattering from fear; on his right cheek, close to the cheek-bone, a muscle was trembling.

A lanky, gray-haired muzhik, who was escorting the American, asked:

"Who's chief here?"

Vershinin spoke up: "What's the matter?"

"He's the chief—him!" shouted Okorok. "Nikita Yegorich Vershinin. Come, tell us how they got him!"

The muzhik spat to one side, and patting the American soldier on the back, as if he had come of his own will, began to tell the story with the garrulous eagerness of an old man:

"I've brot him to you, Nikita Yegorich. We're from Voznesnski county. Our band has been following the Japs a long, long way."

"And what village are you from?"

"Ours is a town. The small town of Penino,—you've heard of it, maybe?"

"They say it burned down."

"The damned dogs! They burned the whole place right down, little father, so we all took to the hills!"

The muzhiks came closer, saying:

"Sure! The same evil had come to us all!"

The gray-haired muzhik continued:

"There were two of them, the 'Mericans! They were driving a cart with tinned milk. Such fools they are: they come to fight, and they stuff themselves with milk and 'chucklade.' Well, we nipped off one of 'em, and the other threw up his hands. So we took him along. We wanted to turn him over to the elder, but now, here's a whole company!"

The American stood erect in soldierly fashion and without taking his eyes off Vershinin, as if the latter were a judge.

The muzhiks crowded closer.

The odor of tobacco and sour peasant-bread floated to the American, enveloping him. The mass of crowded bodies gave forth a warmth to turn the head, and dry, feverish wrath stirred into flame.

The muzhiks began to clamor:

"Now then!"

"Shoot him, the damned dog!"

"Give'm hell!"

"Make an end of him!"

"Go to it!"

The American soldier hunched his back slightly, and, guardedly pulled in his head between his shoulders; at this movement the fierce wrath of the muzhiks flared up still more strongly.

"They burn our villages, the sons of——!"

"They act like masters here!"

"As if at home!"

"Look how they've butted in!"

"Who asked them?"

Someone shrieked in a piercing voice:

"Get at him!"

At that moment, Pentefli Znobov, who had been a longshoreman at Vladivostok, climbed up on a wagon and, as if pointing to something that had been lost, shouted:

"Wait!"

And added:

"Comrades!"

The peasants gazed at his mustache, shaggy as a fox's tail; they looked at the unbottoned flap of his trousers, thru which his swarthy body was visible, and grew silent:

"There's time enuf for killing! That is simple! That is easy! Look how many are piled up in the street already! But I think, comrades, we ought to fill him up with propaganda and let him go. Let him smell the Bolshevist truth. That's what I think!"

Suddenly the muzhiks uttered a roar of laughter that came pouring out thickly, like grain from a bag:

"Ho-ho-ho!"

"He-khe!"

"Ho-o!"

"Button your pants, you devil!"

"Go ahead, Pentya, fire away!"

"Knock it into his head!"

"He's a man like others, after all."

"Even a stone can be chiseled."

"Out with it!"

The sturdy Avdotya Steshchenkova raised her dowdy skirts, bent down, and nudged the American with her shoulder:

"Listen, you fool, it's for your own good."

The American soldier surveyed the hairy, bronze-red faces of the muzhiks, and the unbuttoned flap of Znobov's trousers; he listened to the incomprehensible speech, and politely screwed up his clean-shaven face into a smile.

The muzhiks walked around him excitedly, shifting him about in the crowd, like a leaf over water, and bawled at him, as people shout to the deaf.

The American raised his head, blinking as if gazing thru smoke, smiled, and understood nothing.

Okorok shouted to the American at the top of his voice:

"You must tell them there—everything—it's no good like this!"

"Why should you interfere with us!"

"They make you go against your own brothers!"

Vershinin said stolidly:

"You are all good people; you must understand. You are, we may say, peasants, like us; you till the soil, and all that. The Japs, well, they gobble rice; with them it's a different story!"

Znobov stamped uneasily before the American, and stroking his mustache, said:

"We are not highwaymen; we're trying to bring order. They don't know this in your land, I suppose; it's far away, and then, again, your soul is of a foreign land. . ."

The voices rose and thickened.

The American glanced around helplessly and said:

"I don't understand!"

The muzhiks at once became silent.

Vaska Okorok said:

"He can't get what you say. He doesn't know Russian, poor devil!"

The muzhiks walked away from the American. Vershinin was embarrassed.

"Send him to the rear; what's the sense of bothering with him," he said to Znobov.

Znobov would not give in, repeating stubbornly:

"He will understand! Only it's necessary. . . He will understand!"

Znobov was thinking.

The American remained standing, continually shifting one foot, and swaying slightly.

A scarcely preceptible shadow of wistfulness agitated his face, as a light wind the haystacks.

Sin-Bin-Ou, stretched on the ground near the American, covered his eyes with his palm, and drawled out a high-pitched Chinese song.

"What a torture," said Vershinin plaintively.

Vaska Okorok offered hesitatingly:

"Perhaps some book will do?"

All the books at hand were in Russian.

"All they's good for is to roll cigarets with," said Znobov. "If we could find one with pictures."

Avdotya walked over to the wagons that stood along the paddock fence; she rummaged in the coffers for a long time, and at last brot out a worn, dog-eared textbook of religion, the kind used in the village schools.

"Perhaps this,—'religion'?" she asked.

Znobov opened the book and said in a puzzled way:

"The pictures are all 'bout religion! We're not going to rechristen him. We're not priests!"

"Try it, just the same," suggested Vaska.

"But how? He won't understand, I guess."

"He might. Go ahead!"

Znobov called to the American:

"Hey, comrade, come here."

The American approached.

The muzhiks gathered again, once more exhaling the smell of tobacco and bread.

"Lenin!" said Znobov firmly and loudly, and then smiled, as if in spite of himself.

A swift tremor passed thru the American's body; his eyes sparkled, and he responded joyfully:

"There's a chap!"

Znobov smote his breast with his fist, and, his palm patting the backs and shoulders of the muzhiks, he shouted, speaking for some reason in broken Russian:

"Sovietska respublica!"

The American stretched out his arms to the muzhiks; his cheeks quivered, and he shouted excitedly:

"That is pretty indeed!"

The muzhiks burst into joyful laughter.

"He understands, the son of a——!"

"The rascal!"

"And our Pentya, look at our Pentya reeling off American!"

"Send their bourzhuis to hell, Pentya!"

Znobov hastily opened the textbook of religion, and pointing to the picture showing Abraham about to sacrfice Isaac, while god was suspended in the clouds above, he began to explain:

"This one, with the knife, is a bourzhui. Look at his fat belly; it needs only a watch and chain. And here, on the logs, lies the proletariat, do you understand? Pro-le-ta-ri-at."

The American pointed to his chest, and stuttering joyously, he said proudly:

"Pro-le-ta-ri-at! . . . We!"

The muzhiks embraced the American, touched his clothes, and with all their might squeezed his hands and shoulders.

Vaska Okorok, grabbing him by the head and looking into his eyes, yelled exultantly:

"Lad, you tell them there, over the sea. . ."

"There, that will do, you fidget," Vershinin lovingly remonstrated.

Znobov continued:

"So, he, the proletariat, lies on the logs and the bourzhui chops him up. And there in the clouds is the Jap the Inglish, the 'Merican, all that trash; the 'imperialisma' herself sits there."

The American tore off his cap and yelled:

"Imperialism! Away!"

Znobov angrily threw the cap to the ground.

"Imperialism and the bourzhuis, to the devil!"

Sin-Bin-Ou jumped over to the American, and pulling up his falling trousers said rapidly:

"Russki respublica-a. Chinese respublica-a. 'Mericanski respublica-a no go-od. Japanee no good; must, must get respublic-a. Must get, must get Red respublica. . . ."

And glancing around, he stood on tiptoe, and slowly raising his thumb, he said:

*"Shango."

Vershinin commanded:

"Give him something to eat. Then lead him out to the road and let him go."

The old man who had brot the prisoner asked:

"Shall we bandage his eyes when we take him? Ain't he going to bring them here?"

The muzhiks decided:

"Not necessary. He won't give us away."

Good,* in Chinese.

ON THE RAILS

(Copyright, 1925, by International Publishers Co., Inc.)

MOUNTED on a round-bellied horse that was as shaggy as a mastiff, Nikita Vershinin rode along the bushes near the railroad embankment.

The muzhiks were lying in the bushes, smoking and getting ready for a long, stubborn wait. Their shirts—scores, hundreds of motley spots of color—flashed on both sides of the embankment between the crossings—over a distance of almost ten versts.

A lazy horse; a bag instead of a saddle. Vershinin's legs dangled down and his boot painfully rubbed his heel thru the carelessly wrapped rags.

"Look here, boys, there must be no women!" Vershinin was saying.

Detachment-commanders drew themselves up soldier-fashion, and briskly, as if steadying themselves thru soldierly deportment, asked:

"Any news from the city, Nikita Yegorich?"

"There's an uprising."

"And how's the military advances?"

Vershinin struck the belly of his horse with his heel and started off, feeling sleepy fatigue in his body:

"Advances are good, lad. Remember, we musn't make a mess of our end of it."

The muzhiks lined up along the embankment as if for mowing. They waited.

The embankment looked unnaturally, disagreeably empty. During the last few days echelons of refugees, of Japanese, American, Russian soldiers, had passed eastward, one after the other. Then a thread snapped somewhere and men were thrown in another direction. There were rumors that the peasants coming from the hills were plundering the refugees, and the soldiers were envious. Armored Train No. 14-69 was dashing between the stations, and it alone prevented the soldiers from dropping everything and making off.

The guerilla staff was sitting in the switchman's booth. The switchman stood dejectedly at the telephone receiver and asked the station:

"Is the armored train coming soon?"

Next to him sat a guerilla fighter with a calm face; he held a revolver and he was gazing at the switchman's mouth.

Vaska Okorok was baiting the switchman:

"Don't get cold feet. We'll make you a cook."

And pointing to the telephone he said:

"They say that the learned Bolsheviks in Petrograd talk with the moon."

"Well, who can help it, even if it's so?"

The muzhiks sighed and looked at the embankment:

"Truth can climb even to the stars."

The staff was awaiting the armored train. Five hundred muzhiks were detailed to the bridge. Long Russian carts brot logs to the embankment, so as to prevent the armored train from going back. Crowbars lay near the ties—ready for tearing up the rails.

Znobov said grumblingly:

"Truth and truth is all you know. But we don't know ourselves what it's for. What do you want to talk to the moon for, Vaska?"

"Just from curiosity, that's all! Perhaps we might want to build a muzhik on the moon."

The muzhiks roared.

"Damned sinner!"

"Darn his hide!"

"Here we're trying to dope out how to lose as few men as we can, and he goes batting about the moon. How are we going to take the armored train, darn you?"

"We'll take it!"

"It ain't a squirrel that you can just nip off a pine."

At that moment Vershinin arrived. He entered, breathing heavily; with a weary movement he put his cap on the table and said to Znobov:

"Soon?"

The switchman at the telephone said:

"They don't answer."

The muzhiks sat silently. One of them began to talk about hunting. Znobov remembered the president of the Revcom in the city.

"That light-haired fellow?" asked the muzhik who had just been talking about hunting; and straight off he began to spin a yarn about Peklevanov: that his face is whiter than wheat flour, and that women cling to him like frogs to a swamp, and that the American minister had offered seven hundred billion to induce Peklevanov to assume the American faith, but that Peklevanov had answered proudly: "We won't accept you into our faith, even for nothing."

"Son of a——!" said the muzhiks admiringly.

For some reason it was pleasant to Znobov to listen to all this lying, and he felt moved to tell something himself. Vershinin took off his boots and began to rewrap his foot-cloths. Suddenly the switchman spoke timidly into the telephone:

"When? Five-twenty?"

And turning to the muzhiks he said:

"Coming!"

And as if the train were already at the booth, all of them ran out and, shoulldering their rifles, mounted the carts and drove eastward to the blown-up bridge.

"We'll make it!" Okorok was saying.

A scout was sent forward.

They looked at the rails that stretched with a dull glitter among the trees.

"Rip 'em up, and that's all."

And from another wagon came the retort:

"Can't be done. Who'll put 'em together again?"

"We'll go straight in the train, brother!"

"We'll just roll into the city!"

"We can't afford to meddle with the track!"

Okorok shouted:

"Brothers, but they have men!"

"Where?"

"On the train. Special men who fix the track, haven't they?"

"You're a fool, Vaska; and what if we kill them all off? All of 'em?"

And getting into the spirit of it, they all agreed:

"That's the stuff . . . Kill 'em off!"

"No, no, there'll be nobody to fix the track."

They kept looking back to see if the armored train was coming. They were careful to remain under cover of the woods, for rarely did men expose themselves along the line—the armored train fired on the run.

Hearts were beating with fear; the men flogged their horses, urging them on as if shelter awaited them at the bridge.

About two versts from the switchman's booth they saw a rider on the embankment.

"Ours!" shouted Znobov.

Vaska took aim.

"Shall I nip him off? Or is he ours?"

"The devil he is! Would I be aiming at him if he were?"

Sin-Bin-Ou, the Chinaman, who sat next to Vaska, restrained him:

"Wa-it, Va-si-ka-a!"

"Wait!" shouted Znabovo.

The rider came nearer. It was the muzhik with the bandaged head, the one who had brot the American.

"Is Nigita Yegorich here?"

"Well?"

The muzhik shouted joyfully:

"We come there, and we find—Cossacks. Near the bridge! We shot 'em down and turned back."

"Where from?"

Vershinin rode up to the muzhik and, looking him over, asked:

"Did you kill them all?"

"All, Nikita Yegorich. Five of 'em, god bless their souls!"

"But where are the Cossacks from?"

The muzhik slapped his horse on the mane:

"Well, the bridge ain't blowed up yet, Nigita Yegorich. It's standing."

The muzhiks yelled:

"What's that?"

"Pravokater!"

"Smash his mug for him!"

The muzhik began to cross himself hastily.

"On the cross! It ain't blowed up. They blowed themselves up near a rock, 'bout two thousand feet from here. Must have been tryin' out the dynamite. All we found was a part of a man's leg, with a bit of pants around it,—and all the rest . . gone!"

The muzhiks were silent. They went forward, but suddenly stopped. Vaska, his face all distorted, cried:

"Brothers, but the armored-train will get away to the city! Brothers!"

The crowd of muzhiks who had been sent to the bridge swarmed from the woods.

One of them said:

"There are logs piled up on the bridge, across the track, Nikita Yegorich. We're answering the fire of the Cossacks. Well, there ain't many of 'em."

"Shall we go to the bridge?" asked Znobov.

At this moment, for some reason, they all looked back. A stream of smoke was spreading lightly over the forest.

"Coming!" said Okorok.

Znobov repeated, fiercely flogging his horse:

"Coming!"

The muzhiks echoed:

"Coming! . . ."

"Comrades!" rang out Okorok's voice. "We must stop it!"

They leaped from the wagons, grabbed their rifles, and rushed to the embankment. The horses walked off to graze, munching busily and swinging their bridles.

The muzhiks ran up the embankment. They stretched out on the ties, inserted the magazines; all was ready.

The rails moaned softly. The armored train was approaching.

Znobov said in a low voice:

"It'll just cut us in two. They won't even bother to shoot!"

Suddenly all of them realized this, and they quietly crawled into the bushes, again leaving the track bare.

The smoke was becoming thicker. The wind tore it into shreds, but still it crawled stubbornly over the forest.

"Coming! . . . Coming!" the muzhiks shouted, running up to Vershinin.

Vershinin and the whole staff, all wet, were lying shamefacedly in the bushes. Vaska Okorok smote the ground angrily with his fist. The Chinaman squatted, silently pulling up leaves of grass.

Znobov said hastily, with fear in his voice:

"If only we had a corpse!"

"What for?"

"You see, there's a law—when they run over a corpse—the train must stop. To make out a protocol . . . certificate and all that!"

"Well?"

"Well, suppose we had a corpse. We'd put it across the track. They'd cut it and stop, and then, when the engineer comes out, we shoot him. Then we can take the train."

The smoke was growing denser. A whistle sounded.

Vershinin jumped up and cried:

"Comrades, who volunteers . . . on the track . . . to be run over! We've got to croak, anyhow. Well? . . . And then we'll nip off the engineer! But it's more likely she'll stop before running the man over."

The muzhiks raised their heads and glanced at the embankment that looked like a funeral mound.

"Comrades!" Vershinin shouted.

Not a sound from the muzhiks.

Vaska threw his rifle aside and began to climb the embankment.

"Where to?" shouted Znobov.

Vaska snapped back angrily:

"You go to hell! Sons of——!"

And extending his arms along his body he stretched himself across the track.

The trees were already murmuring and echoing, and shreds of yellowish-red smoke, like foam, were leaping over the tree-tops.

Vaska turned around with his face down. The ties smelt of pitch. Vaska put a handful of sand on one of the ties and rested his cheek on it. The sand was warm and big-grained.

The muzhiks' voices came from the bushes indistinctly, like wind among the leaves. In the forest the rails were rumbling.

Vaska raised his head and shouted toward the bushes:

"Got some home-brew? . . . Heart's burning!"

A yellow-bearded muzhik crawled up to him on all fours, with a flask of home-brew. Vaska took a drink and placed the flask by his side.

Then he raised his head, and brushing the sand from his cheek, listened intently to the rumbling: the blue trees were rumbling, the blue rails were rumbling.

He raised himself on his elbows. His face contracted into one yellow wrinkle, his eyes were like two blood-red tears. . .

"I can't! . . . My soul! . . ."

The muzhiks were silent.

The Chinaman threw his rifle aside and began to climb the embankment.

"Where to?" asked Znobov.

Sin-Bin-Ou, without turning his head, articulated:

"Lo-ne-some! . . . Va-si-ka-a!"

And he stretched himself next to Vaska.

His face, yellow, like an autumn leaf, became darker and more wrinkled. The rails were moaning. Whether it was a man crawling back down the embankment, or the bushes receiving someone . . . Sin-Bin-Ou did not see, did not know. . .

"I can-not! Bro-thers?" howled Vaska, crawling down.

The grass grew slimy. . . . The sky grew slimy. . . .

Sin-Bin-Ou was alone.

His flat head with the emerald eyes, like the head of a cobra, touched the ties, tore away from them, and swaying, rose above the rails . . . A glance around.

In the bushes the motionless heads of the muzhiks were staring with waiting, hungry eyes.

Sin-Bin-Ou lay down again.

And once more the emerald-eyed cobra swayed upward, and once more a few hundred heads stirred the bushes and gazed toward him.

Again the Chinaman lowered his head.

The rough, yellow-bearded muzhik shouted to him:

"Throw the flask over here, Chink! And you'd better leave the livorver here . . . What do you want it for? . . . Really, now . . . And I could use it."

Without lifting his head Sin-Bin-Ou took out the revolver; he swung his arm as if to throw the weapon into the bushes, and suddenly shot himself in the back of the neck.

The Chinaman's body clung close to the rails.

The pines threw forth the armored train. It was gray, square, and the eyes of the locomotive burned an angry red. The sky became overcast with gray mildew, the trees stood out like blue cloth. . . .

And the corpse of the Chinaman, Sin-Bin-Ou, clinging closely to the earth, listened to the ringing reverberation of the rails. . .

Coolidge Is Afraid of the Black Man

By Elsa Bloch

CALVIN COOLIDGE, in his message to the congress just opening its session in Washington, saw fit to include—at the very end of the document—a few words about the group which of all the exploited working class of the United States is the most exploited, the most persecuted—the workers of the Negro race.

WHAT Coolidge had to say about the Negro in America is of importance, not as an expression of the personal opinion of Coolidge—for it is not as an expression of his belief that the president sends this annual message to congress—but as indicating the trend of opinion and the probable course of action of the group of bankers and industrial capitalists who are behind this and every other expression of the government. It is particularly significant as indicating the opinion of the leaders of that party which for over sixty years has been held up to the Negro race as its only possible saviour, the republican party.

AT first glance, the few sentences which the message devotes to the question of the Negro workers are without definite meaning. They seem—at first—to consist of a few doubtful compliments, a few meaningless abstractions, and a few half-hearted promises, to which no one need pay much attention.

But look further. For every promise made to the Negro workers, some phrase is brought in a little later which definitely repudiates that promise! What Coolidge gives to the Negroes with one hand, he promptly takes away with the other.

Then look once more. There is not only a negation of every promise made, but there is actually a threat, politely veiled, but none the less a threat, that the government will not tolerate any attempt on the part of Negro workers to do away with the abuses from which they suffer. And there is a very definite assertion that the party for which Coolidge speaks does not for a moment consider the Negro as worthy of real freedom or real equality.

"It is fundamental of our institutions" says the message, "that they seek to guarantee to all our inhabitants the right to live their own lives under the protection of the public law. . . . This does not include any licence to. . . . violate the established customs which have long had the sanction of enlightened society."

AND just what are these customs? Why, segregation, of course, and inferior education, and inferior homes, and all of the practices which make up the burden of social inequality that degrades the Negro race! These are the "established customs" of which Coolidge is speaking. These are the practices which he is so eager to have us realize are fundamental to our present society. "The custom of forbidding the Negro to live except in a narrow section of the cities, and the practice of mobbing a Negro who dares to go outside of this pale—as a mob so recently attacked a Negro physician in Detroit whose home was outside of the prescribed limits—these customs are not injustices,—they are "established customs which have long had the sanction of enlightened society."

President Coolidge, in his eagerness not to alienate any of the votes of the votes of the race-proud and prejudiced middle-class whites, and in the hope of driving a wedge into the solidly democratic south, is following in the footsteps of President Harding, another representative of this same party, who in October, 1922, committed himself as "uncompromisingly against every suggestion of social equality."

THE average white worker, unconscious of the burdens under which his fellow workers of the Negro race suffer, and the average Negro worker, unless he is trained to take note of delicate shades of meaning implied in a phrase, may see nothing significant in Coolidge's wording. But the southern cracker, the northern real-estate dealer, and others whose profits depend upon keeping the Negro down, will hear and understand.

The Negro, says Coolidge, "should be protected from all violence." But a little later on he adds that the "right (of Negroes) to live their own lives. . . . does not include any licence to injure others materially, physically, morally. . . ."

Clever phrasing! The implication is that the Negroes, as a race, are especially liable to do physical and material injury to others—that they have in their character something brutal, something beastly, which makes it necessary for the president to remind them that they must keep this instinct in check. And it is just this belief, which Coolidge has strengthened by his message, which is the basis for the lynchings and burnings and hangings of the south. It is just this damnable lie, driven into the consciousness of the whites by a selfish master class which thrives on conflict between races, which gives the excuse for the terrorization of the Negro in the southern states. Does a Negro show undue self-respect, does he assert his rights in a way displeasing to the masters? Then how easy it is to raise the cry that he has attacked a white girl, ho wsimple it is with this lie to gather the mobs that will do away with this self-assertive Negro!

No, President Coolidge does not mean to take from the race-hating crackers their excuse for terrorization.

"BUT," says Cooidge, "it does mean the full right to liberty and equality before the law." Notice that phrase, "before the law." There is a definite line drawn between civil and social equality. But we know too well that it is not necessary to make a law and to have that law placed upon the statute books in order that a nasty discriminatory practise may be put into effect thruout the whole social system. There is no law—in most states—requiring Negroes to live in certain parts of the town. But the law can and does protect the real estate dealer in his privilege of choosing his own customers. And there is a law—a very definite law—which will bring to trial a Negro who, like Dr. Sweet of Detroit, fires to protect his own life and the lives of his family from the attacks of a mob.

But even in the case of laws which definitely accord equal rights to the races—there are so many loop-holes thru which the race-hating lawyer may crawl. A law in Louisiana declares that there must be no out-and-out discrimination between any one group of people and any other group. But another law, setting off distinct section of the city of New Orleans for Negroes, is held to be not in conflict with the first, because—if Negroes are not allowed to buy homes in the white district, why, neither are whites allowed to buy homes in the Negro district!

No. If the law means anything at all to the Negro, it is significant, not for the protection it is supposed to afford him from injustice, but for its work as an instrument of this very injustice.

ONE thing more: Coolidge is careful to tell the Negroes that they have no right to "incite revolution." This is a new phrase in reference to the Negroes. No former president has found it necessary to issue a warning against "inciting revolution" among the Negro race. And to what does the phrase refer? To nothing less than the historic event in the life of the Negro race, the assembling together in October of this year of a group of men and women, representing definite groups of Negro workers, to consider their problems in the light of clear reason and to plan definite and concrete steps to do away with these injustices. Coolidge is referring to the American Negro Labor Congress, branded by the old parties as a "tool of the reds."

Coolidge and his party find it necessary to issue a warning to the Negro race. They find this warning necessary because the first Negro Labor Congress repudiated forever the policy of going to the white master, hat in hand, to beg for a few crumbs from this master's table. The Negro Labor Congress, say its leaders, will not wait upon the president to put into his message a few half-promises which need never be kept. They do not need the "sympathy and kindness" which Coolidge offers them. They have declared their intention to fight their own battles, to take what is their hard-won right. And, if the Negro Labor Congress remains true to its pledge, no "warning" or threat from Coolidge and his party will cause them to turn back.

The Nature of Future Warfare

(A Speech in Moscow).

WHAT will be the nature of future wars?

The work done by the Military Scientific Societies of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and in general accomplished by its military scientific-theoretical thought already provides sufficient material for us to give a fairly exhaustive reply to this question. The first element determining the nature of any future war which the Soviet Union may be compelled to conduct, is its peculiar social-class nature. The war which the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics will wage, will not be a national war. It will be a revolutionary class war. This means that our army will not fight for any kind of narrow-national interests, will not fight in order to conquer or to encroach upon the property of other peoples, but in order to protect the conquests of our revolution from the attacks of the internal and external class enemies of the proletariat. This factor is reflected in our entire constructional work. It is just this which determines the worker and peasant class nature of our army. It permeates the entire system of our organization, and finds its reflection in the methods of training and teaching in the army and in a number of other practical results.

Another characteristic of future wars will be their all-embracing and decisive nature. There will not be a clash over trifles which can be quickly solved No, the future war will be between two different social-political and economic systems, each of which excludes the other. How does this arise? This arises from the class nature of the Soviet state.

Our state is organized both politically and economically on a quite different basis from the bourgeois world surrounding us. A profound and irreconcilable contradiction lies at the basis of our economic and political organization and the organization of bourgeois states, and once this contradiction commences to be solved by military methodism, it will lead to a sharp, profound and in all probability long drawn-out encounter. This latter factor is in the first place connected with the fact that we ourselves, our Soviet Union, represent very palpable dimensions both from the point of view of the size of the population and also from the point of view of our economic resources. On the other hand we will have against us all or a considerable part of the bourgeois capitalist world, which in turn can raise tremendous forces against us. That is the reason why, when it is a question of a serious encounter, this can hardly be decided within a short space of time by a knock-out blow.

The third factor which influences the nature of future warfare in a decisive manner is the factor of technique.

The experience of the imperialist war has shown what a tremendous role technique will play on the future fields of battle. The development of aviation, chemistry and wireless telegraphy, etc., open up very wide perspectives in this connection. At the present moment it is even difficult for us to picture how the army which has proceeded the furthest ahead along the path of technical development in bourgeois countries, will emerge from the field of future battles. The weapons they will use will probably be very different from what we have seen during the imperialist war. The war of the future will to a very large extent, if not entirely, be a war of machines. This fact again brings us face to face with a number of new demands.

Finally, the fourth factor which in my opinion will characterize our future war is the factor of mass formations. I consider that once it is a question of deciding serious conflicts, all the forces at the disposition of the combatants will be thrown into the struggle. At any rate, we must not picture future struggles as far as we are concerned, as though we may be able to get along with small armed forces, without touching the wide masses of the population and without harnessing all the resources at the command of the state. I say: "At any rate—as far as we are concerned," because with regard to bourgeois armies, I admit that the fact of the internal class struggle becoming more acute, may compel them to resort not to the arming of the entire mass of the population, but to placing all their hopes in technique. We may observe signs of this even at the present moment. But even under such conditions they will at the same time bring forward such forces which we will be able to fight with by bringing armed masses on the scene.

The above are in my opinion, comrades, the four main factors which compel us to arrive at definite conclusions with regard to the nature of future wars which we will have to conduct.

A Red British Miner at Work

By MICHAEL GOLD.

Foreword.

WHEN I was in England last year, I attended a summer school conference lasting a week of the Plebs movement. This is the movement for real Marxian working-class education, which has fought the English brand of Brookwood—A. F. of L. "impartial" education, and which has been so militant and successful that it has begun to outstrip the bourgeois-laborist outfit in trade union importance. In fact, it has become so powerful that the Trades Union Congress at its session a year ago, decided to recognize the movement of which the Plebs group has been the dynamic nucleus.

This conference was intensely interesting. William Paul, W. T. Collyer, and other active Communist leaders held sessions, also J. F. and Winfred Horrabin, Mark Starr, Ellen Wilkinson and other outstanding figures. There were warm debates, and a real process of education in working-class realities. Fascism, imperialism, Russia, economic geography, trade union unity, and proletarian art were some of the matters discussed. There was also football, cricket, hikes, and excursions in the afternoons, and singsongs every night, at which I had the pleasure of teaching the forty odd British workers there the songs of the American proletarian revolution—which, up to now, have been mostly the wobbly songs.

I never enjoyed myself more socially or intellectually, and I kept thinking what a fine idea such vacation week conferences would be for American workers.

One learns at these conferences, and one forms fine rank-and-file contacts. There were agricultural workers, clerical workers, machinists, furniture workers, textile workers, and a group of miners—all intelligent men and women with a real grasp of the labor struggle. Thru their eyes I got a clearer and more accurate picture of British proletarian life than I could have gotten by personal investigation in less than a year or two, or maybe more.

One of the miners was George Williams, a tall, powerful looking young chap, about 30 years old, who came from Mansfield, in Nottingham. I had many walks and conversations with him, and before the week was over, I felt as if I had never met a finer type of worker anywhere. When I think of the English labor movement now I think of this strong young miner, with his slow north-country dialect, and his deep, steady, fearless way of tackling problems.

A real rank-and-filer—a miner since childhood—he goes to work at six every morning. He has two children and wife, and has to support them on the $10 a week wage the British miners now receive—when they are lucky enough to be allowed to work. At night George's work begins all over again. He carries a great deal of the miners' problems for his district. He is organizing secretary for the national minority movement for Nottingham, and he serves on executive and other committees for his trade council, local labor party branch, cooperative, labor college, and Communist Party branch. He has to conduct a large correspondence by hand; tho writing doesn't come easy to him, for he has had to fight painfully for his education. He is always active, and now he is conducting a factory newspaper for the mine where he works. Everyone knows him in his district; the workers in his mine know they can trust him in anything, even tho most of them are not Communists, as he is. What I liked best about him, too, is that he has just begun growing. Painfully, gamely, he crowds in a lot of study and reading into his overworked life. And it is all done so sanely—so steadily—without fireworks, phrasemongering, or ostenation. Nothing can stop him—he is the proletariat, the new world growing up amid the storm and destruction of the old.

Recently Comrade Williams sent me a long letter and copies of the new "shop nucleus" newspaper which his Communist group publishes, and which he edits. The letter is an interesting flash into British life to-day, and the newspaper seems to me a fine model for similar papers in this country.

Extracts from Williams' Letter.

"Dear Mike:

"Pleased to hear from you again. You ask about my election to the board of guardians. (He ran on the regular labor party ticket). I was unsuccessful, owing to the attitude of the 'labor skates,' as you call them. They gave no assistance in the clerical work or outside in the ward. Instead, they worked very quietly but surely against us. They are even holding back my campaign expenses, which the miners' union was supposed to pay. It is a bit rough when a working-class fighter has to fight so-called labor representatives for his dues. But we will get these expenses, I am sure.

"I have been nominatedly by my branch of the national minority movement to run for the town council at the forthcoming municipal election. Altho I was nominated as a trade unionist, the liberals made the labor party turned me down again last night. We have really some good and amusing scraps with them. They talk about us getting our orders from Moscow, but they get theirs from Ramsay Mac and Jimmy Thomas and even if we were getting orders from Moscow,' I think Ramsay Mac is nearer to King George than is Moscow.

"I'm glad you enjoyed your visit to Russia. It must make a red confident beyond words to go there. It does us good to think about it, and to know that the workers own and control one-sixth of this earth's crust, which they lifted right off the imperialist's pawnshop counter. No more of that filthy imperialist game now—no more promises of Constantinople in exchange for workers' freedom. But to see Russia—to see it in operation, must inject new life into a man.

"I should very much like to go out to the mining areas of Russia visit the mines, work in them for a week or two, then come back to our chaps—stump the district—and tell them what is waiting for the taking. God, what powerful propoganda it would be. I may get sent yet. Perhaps I do not know sufficient of the theory of the party to undertake such important work, however. I know theory is what I badly need to balance my practical knowledge amongst the workers in the pit here. Well I am going to get it somehow.

"So you were proud of our trade union delegation when you saw them in Russia? Let me tell you, there are some very solid comrades in the left wing official movement, even tho we of the Communist Party and National Minority Movement are still unofficial. By the gods, we are unofficial, but we are giving the lead in the politics of the country, bar us as they may. We gave the lead on unity, which resulted in the greatest manifestation of working-class solidarity in British history, recently; the miners' fight. The left wingers, associates with the Russian report, have done well on this miners' fight, and they are continuing at Scarborough this week, at the Trade Union Congress, Swales made a fine opening address, which gave us hope and inspiration, coming as it did from an old trade unionist.

"A. J. Cook was staying with me a fortnight ago. He told me Swales was a genuine fighter and altho he could not grapple with the Dawes plan complication, was a real rebel. He also spoke highly of Herbert Smith, as having along with Swales an abundance of courage. Cook himself has done really well. He addressed four meetings here in the open air to huge crowds of workers. At three of the meetings he spoke for over two hours—at least six hours of solid talking in a day. He talks as he feels, and puts real energy into the job. But when night came both voice and energy were gone. He must take more care of himself—he is a very valuable man to the miners of England. He is to be here again next month for lectures on working-class education and a big public meeting. There will not be a seat to be got an hour before the meeting starts.

"I am getting tired Mike, and will have to go to bed. . . .

"At this point, I return to this letter 15 days later; the first chance I have had of finishing it.

"What with trades councils, labor party, trade union, cooperative, labor college, national minority secretary's work, and other work, not mentioning ordinary and special jobs for the Communist Party, and not at all mentioning the seven hours every day inside a hot pit 600 yards below ground—on top of all this they have 'lumped' a pit paper to me, two copies of which are enclosed. I have just sent No. 3 off to the printer's—we have grown up in two issues from a mimeograph to a regular printers'—so popular is the paper already.

"I see America is not to have our wicked Communist Saklatvala contaminating your pure, innocent country. Aren't you glad you're saved?

"There is a possibility of further immediate trouble in the coalfield owing to the coal-owners breaking away from the conditions of the truce.

"Good luck to the American fighters for the great working class movement.

"Fraternally,

George Williams."

The "Rufford Star."

The pit paper Williams edits is called the "Rufford Star"—after the mine where he works. It is one of the best examples of such a paper in English I have yet seen. It is simple, militant, and above all, practical. It discusses real immediate issues in a concrete way. Its language has the sap and directness of workers' speech—no puerile attempts at rhetoric or high-falutin bombast. The workers are not confused with too much theory, and yet the national and international class war is explained and driven home to the workers' mind.

Who Is the New Red Army Commander?

(Moscow Correspondence by WILLIAM F. KRUSE.)

THE body of Michael Frunze, late Commander in Chief of the Red armies, after lying in state three days and nights at the Dom Soyuz, was buried beneath the Kremlin wall on a Tuesday. Hundreds of thousands followed the body into the Red Square as a last tribute to the departed hero.

Five days later the same hundreds of thousands, in the same Red Square, were acclaiming the new Commander, Comrade Voroschiloff.

WHO is Clemente Yefremovich Voroschiloff?

He is a Ukrainian, born 1881 in the Ekaterinoslav province, Bachmurt district, of a peasant family. His father, landless, was a village wage worker (batrak). At the age of six the future Red Army commander started to work. He had only two years of folk school which were ended in 1895, after which, in 1896, he began his life work in the factory—and in the revolution. Investigated and arrested several times by the police, in 1900 he was discharged for revolutionary activity. From that time onward for seventeen years he remained under police surveillance until the revolution.

HERE are some of the high points of his record:

1904: Elected to Central Committee of Social Democratic Labor Party.

1905: Became active labor organizer in Lugansk, imprisoned for eight months.

1906: February: Elected to Stockholm Congress of the Russian Social Democratic Labor Party.

1907: July: Arrested at close of the party congress at Kiev, and in October sentenced to three years exile in Archangel.

1907: December: Escaped and fled to Baku where he resumed work.

1912-1917: Worked in close co-operation with Kalenin, arrested several times.

1917: Organized the revolt in the guard regiments, elected regimental deputy to Petrograd Soviet where he was active in Bolshevik fraction.

1918: November: Member of Ukrainian Soviet government.

1919: February: Commissar for the Interior, Ukrainian Soviet government.

1919: July: Member Ukrainian Council of Defense, and Political Bureau of the Ukrainian Communist Party.

1921: March: Elected to the Central Committee of the Russian Communist party, and to service on its southeastern bureau. And from this time on continuously on the Central Committee of the R. S. F. S. R. and of the U. S. S. R.

Military Record.

1917: We find him a soldier in the guard, and by his influence able to win the soldiers over to the side of the revolution.

1919: May: Elected commander-in-chief of the Kharkov Military District, and he effectively liquidated the bandit bands of the Hetman Grigoriev. A month later he was given command of the 14th Army, another month and he was in charge of the Ukrainian interior front and member of the Council of Defense. In November he was a member of the Revolutionary War Council and leader of the First Cavalry Army.

1921: Sent, with other delegates of the Tenth Party Congress, to liquidate Kronstadt counter revolutionary revolt. In May of same year he became commander in chief of North Caucusus Military District.

1924: Commander of the Moscow Military District and Member of the Revolutionary War Council and of the Presidium.

1925: Commander-in-chief of the Red Army of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The Demonstration on Skulianskaya Rogatka.

THE attacks by the patriotic hooligans against peaceful workers, students and Jews became bolder and bolder, and finally culminated in the autumn of 1904 in the murder of an old innocent woman. She was the owner of a small tobacco store.

A group of hooligans came into the store and asked for cigarettes. After serving them she requested payment for the cigarettes. Instead of paying her they began to beat her, finally killing her.

About a week before that happened, a worker, a party member, was badly beaten up in the city park. Many simillar incidents occured before. This murder was the last straw that broke our patience. We decided to arrange a political demonstration of protest. A special meeting of the Boyevoy Otriad (military organization) was called and plans made for a demonstration. It was decide to turn the funeral of the victim into a political demonstration.

By order of the united conference of all the revolutionary organizations of the city all party members quit work on that day and came down to the hospital from which the funeral procession was to start. About nine o'clock in the morning the big court-yard of the hospital was crowded to capacity. The court-yard was circled by a tall stone wall and had a big gate thru which two ambulances could pass.

The "B. O." (as the military organization was called) took up positions at the gates, which were at once locked, and in the office of the hospital near the telephones. The administration was informed that the Russian social-democratic labor party was now in charge of the hospital, and that we will not interfere with the regular work of the hospital, but would see to it that no messages shall be sent to the police. Nobody was allowed to leave the place without the permission of the "B. O." and all telephone conversation was listened in to by the members of the "B. O."

About ten o'clock while the autopsy was being made in the hospital, we opened up in the court-yard the first open-air meeting in the city. Speakers representing the Russian social-democratic labor party, the social-revolutionary party (S.-R.) and the Jewish social-democratic organization (Bund), made fiery speeches exposing the murderous policy of the bloody czaristic government. They pointed out that the real murderers are not in this city but in Petersburg (now Leningrad, than the capital of the czar). They spoke about the bloody persecutions of the workers in the shops and factories, the miserable sufferings of the landless peasants, the lack of all freedom to fight their exploiters which workers abroad have, no unions, no possibility to meet, no possibility to organize legally, etc.

"The only way left to us is the revolutionary struggle for the overthrow of czarism!" said one speaker.

"Let's then fight this bloody monster that is killing us in the shops and factories, by long working hours and unbearable working conditions, let's fight the government that is using the murder of innocent people as the shield for its defence! Freedom for the workers! Land for the peasants! Down with czarism!"

The meeting lasted for over an hour. While the meeting was going on, the "B. O." held a meeting of its own. Every member of the "B. O." who ~~was not~~ stationed at strategic points was called into the park which formed a part of the great court-yard of the hospital. There all the preliminaries were gone over again and final instructions were given. Cartridges were passed out to those who were short and everybody warned again not to fire until we will be fired on, or attacked.

When the meeting was over and everything ready, the "B. O." began to line up the crowd eight abreast before the gate. The bier was brought up to the front and the gate swung wide open.

The hospital is located near the city limits. The cemetery is a few miles away from the city. It was the general custom to carry the caskets to the cemetery on the shoulders.

The strongest group of the "B. O." was concentrated in front of the procession, the rest were scattered in the center and on the flanks. We expected to be met by police at the cemetery.

About a mile away from the hospital, when we reached the highway Skulianskaya Rogatka, a scarlet banner went up in the center of the procession. It was in the form of a pillow slip and about the same size. The breeze filled it up with air making the white letters on the red background plainly visible. As we read the words: "Down with absolutism! Long live the Revolution!" hearts began to beat faster. Up till now we had been talking of fighting czarism under the red flag of the revolution, but this was the first time we actually marched under the red banner openly defying our enemies. The thrill passed all over the ranks. The members of the "B. O." clasped tighter the guns in the pockets. All eyes were on the red flag.

About a block farther we encountered a mounted policeman. He was standing on a side street watching the procession pass. He saw the red flag but did not stir. As soon as we passed he rode off at full speed in the direction where we came from. We understood that something was up and an attempt was made to get in touch with the leader of the "B. O.", but before we had time to do it, a cry went up: "Dragoons!"

We had been attacked from the rear! Our main forces were concentrated in front and in the center around the red flag. As the panic began only a few members of the "B. O." succeeded in making their way to the rear in face of the rushing mob.

In the middle of the street a company of dragoons was galloping at us with drawn sabers, on both sides the gendarms and police were running with drawn revolvers. As they came nearer they began to fire. The fire was immediately returned by the few members of the "B. O." who had fought their way to the rear in order to hold back the attack as long as possible to give the crowd a chance to disperse.

A captain of the police fell wounded. The police and gendarms stopped hesitatingly. The dragoons could not stop. By this time they were madly rushing at us. They cut into the crowd trampling it under the hoofs of the horses. The sabers began to fall right and left, sparkling in the sun. The police and gendarms recovered their wits and began to fire again. As they reached the crowd after it was already disorganized by the attack of the dragoons, they also drew their sabers and began to stab and cut right and left.

The crowd fought back with bare fists, stones picked from the street, boards from the broken fences, etc. The members of the "B. O." used their guns as long as they could, but most of them were wounded at the first onslaught of the dragoons. One comrade who put up a stubborn fight was cut up almost to ribbons. He died on the spot.

The air was filled with shrieks and groans of the wounded, the cries and swearing of the police. One police captain was especially fierce, crying madly: "Shoot them! Stab 'em! Kill 'em!"

The battle did not last very long. The forces of the government won a big victory. There were about two hundred revolutionists wounded, lying in the street and only a few policemen injured. A couple of hundreds were rounded up. The street was littered with battered hats, broken boards, walking sticks, etc., when the friendly nurses who were warned by the comrades arrived from the hospital with firstaid supplies. By that time some of the patriotic hooligans arrived and began to beat up the arrested and wounded. The nurses and doctors who came up began to protest to the head of the government forces and it was stopped.

Gendarms were stationed at the hospital to round up everybody who will apply for aid for gunshot wounds or saber cuts. But they did not catch many in this way, because the friendly nurses would lead the wounded out thru a side door. One leading comrade for whom the police was looking and who was slightly wounded, was lead out of the hospital dressed in womens' clothes and wrapped up in a big shawl.

Thus ended our first open fight against the czarist government under the red flag of the revolution.

A few months after this affair the fierce police captain was shot and killed in the center of the city. He had a mounted policemen as a body guard, but the latter ran away as soon as the firing began.

THE NEW NEGRO: A NOTICE OF ALAIN LOCKE'S BOOK.

By EARL R. BROWDER.

"The New Negro, An Interpretation," Edited by Alain Locke, New York, Albert and Charles Boni, 1925. Price $5.00.

"THIS volume," begins the editor in his forword, "aims to document the New Negro culturally and socially—to register the tranformation of the inner and outer life of the Negro in America that have so significantly taken place in the last few years." And no matter how many reservations may be made, as to the adequacy of a book which almost completely ignores the economic basis of its subject, the book stands out as a ringing challenge to American society. The Negro has become conscious of himself. He feels the powers of all humanity within his own spirit. He brings these powers to expression and finds them equal to the best of the "superior races." A revolution takes place in the minds of the Negro masses!

A review of this important book, which summarizes the cultural processes that have been going on among the Negroes for some years, particularly since the war, can be written only after a careful study of it. The book is just off the press. It's table of contents immediately marks it as a noteworthy work, which must be brought to the attention of everyone who realizes that the awakening of the Negroes to consciousness is one of the most important and interesting facts of American life. This notice, preliminary to a later review, is intended to serve only to arouse interest in an important book, not to pass judgment upon it except as to its importance.

The book opens with essays: "The New Negro" by Alain Locke, "Negro Art and America" by Albert C. Barnes, "The Negro in American Literature" by William Stanley Braithwaite, and "Negro Youth Speaks" by Alain Locke. Then there follows the work of Negro artists, in fiction (selections from six Negro writers); poetry (from nine poets, including Claude McKay, James Weldon Johnson, and Georgia Douglas Johnson, who are familiar to readers of the Liberator and the Workers Monthly); drama (from three Negro writers, including a play by Willis Richardson); music (four contributors). Five essays on "The Negro Digs Up His Past" complete Part I of the book which bears the general title of "The Negro Renaissance."

Part II is entitled "The New Negro in a New World." It lacks the color, the energy, the self-confidence of the first part, and shows the "New Negro" groping thru the devious paths of bourgeois culture and bourgeois institutions, quite evidently not himself, not at home, but as yet unable to sound a clear note of protest against the distortions of established middle class social forms. As one of the contributors says: "When I visit the Business Men's Association, the difference between this gathering and that of any Rotary Club is imperceptible." And Part II of "The New Negro" reeks thruout of the atmosphere of the Rotary Club.

This is, of course, inevitable. Only thru bitter disillusionment will the New Negro find his way out of the marshes of the middle-class "culture" of America and shake the last fetters from his mind. Only when the Negro finds his intellectual home with the revolutionary working class, abandons his dreams of a bourgeois paradise, will he reach his full stature. As yet we find but faint echoes of such development in books such as "The New Negro." To hear the real note of the future on the problems of "The New Negro in a New World" one must turn toward the American Negro Labor Congress.

The book closes its 445 pages with a rich bibliography which is of great value. And the book itself, as a product of the printer's and binder's art, is a thing of beauty of which the pulishers may be proud; not the least pleasing feature being the splendid portraits and decorations by Winold Reiss. A serious review of the book must be undertaken after more prolonged study than has yet been possible—and perhaps by more competent hands.

EDISON ELEC C APPLIANCE CO. USES GUNMEN GUARDS FOR SCABS IN STRIKE AT CICERO FACTORY

By A Worker Correspondent.

The strike at the Edison Electric Appliance company, 52nd and 19th streets, which is conducted by the Sheet Metal Workers' Local No. 115 to force this notorious open shop concern to pay a living wage and recognize the union still continues, and a number of men are coming out every day and joining the ranks of the strikers.

The company is using all the usual methods of intimidation in order to break the strike, the result of which so far has been to strengthen the solidarity among the strikers who are determined to carry on this fight to a successful conclusion. Over 50 of the most skilled mechanics are out and only a few spineless weaklings have stabbed their fellow workers in the back and are working under police protection.

A Deputy to Each Scab.

The company is so scared of letting the strike pickets talk to the men still staying in the shop that a special so-called deputy sheriff or sewer rat has been hired to accompany each of these scabs to his home. So effective has the picketing been that over a dozen have already quit and more are expected to come out Monday and Tuesday.

Some of the weaklings who are yet to come out are Archie Baron, Henrie Heptkie, W. Dunn, Bruno Smith and Bill Krause.

A Deliberate Scab.

Krause was one of the main agitators among the electrical workers, but when the strike actually occurred he was won over by the promises of Superintendent Kipp and is now staying on the job.

The company has, as one of the special gunmen, a notorious character by the name of Eddie Holstrom, who is well-known in a number of Chicago strikes. He was once upon a time employed as a production foreman by the Edison Electric Co. and now this skunk is used as special deputy.

Production Tied Up.

Over a score of such criminal characters are employed to lead the scabs to and from the shops. Another weakling who was talking a lot of the need of organizing in dark corners, but when the strike started, helped to break in the scabs, is Barney Mitchel, production gang boss.

In spite of the advantages the company has in the situation, the production is at a standstill. This is proven by the fact that the company is send-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE New York Times recently published a lengthy and stupid editorial based on articles by its Moscow correspondent which painted a horrible and exaggerated picture of thousands of ill-clad and half starved orphans that inhabit the streets of that city at night. Of course the organ of Mr. Ochs attributed this inflated misery to the "proletarian dictatorship which is trying to banish religion, destroy the home and make the schools nurseries of Communism." Yet in recent issues of the Times we see several pages of space devoted to the "100 neediest cases" in New York and a terrible picture of poverty and destitution those pages tell. This destitution exists under the regime of capitalism in the richest capitalist country in the world. The Times is even more stupid than we think if it thinks all the American workers are blind to its efforts to besmirch the working class government of Russia.

* * *

THE Soviet government recognizes that all is not well by any means in Russia. And no capitalist paper criticises as savagely the shortcomings of some of the administrative officials as the official organ of the Soviet government. What the Times does not point out is, that compared to the conditions existing in Soviet Russia during the civil war those of today are extremely good. There is poverty in Russia today, but the work-

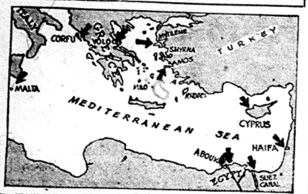
LEONARD WOOD, MILITARY DICTATOR, VETOES PHILIPPINE BUDGET BILL

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 13.—The military dictatorship of Wall Street imperialism, personified in Governor General Leonard Wood, again acted in defiance of the desires of the representatives of the of the Philippine people yesterday by vetoing the bill passed by the recent legislature creating a budget bureau for the insular administration.

While such a measure is hailed as a great forward step in America by Dictator Wood's own republican party, in his statement giving his excuse for arbitrarily vetoing the bill, Wood claimed that the bill would "curtail the existing powers of the governor general" (Wood himself) and his satellite, the insular auditor.

British Navy Watches Turkey



BRITAIN has entered into an agreement with Greece providing for establishment of formidable naval bases at strategic points enabling this rapacious empire to dominate the whole of the eastern Mediterranean. The agreement had the two-fold purpose of a move to crush Turkey in the quarrel over Mosul oil in Irak and at the same time to blockade Russian exports through the Black Sea, the Dardanelles and the Mediterranean. As indicated on the map the British navy through control of the Greek fleets has already established or is now establishing naval bases at the following points: Volo, Mudros, Mytilene, Samos, Malta, Aboukir, Haifa, Cyprus and the Suez Canal.

Italians charge that it was with the object of controlling this territory that as early as 1921 Britain expressed irritation over the seizure of Corfu and tried to give Smyrna, Samos and Adramyti to Greece.

Just above Mytilene, (indicated by upper arrow) lies the straits of the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, leading to Constantinople, the Golden Horn and the Black Sea. This point will be the base from which to launch the attack to oust the Turks from Constantinople. From Cyprus and Samos air planes will be launched against the mainland of Turkey and troop landings will be attempted at Smyrna, which has an excellent port on the Aegean sea.

The Elections in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union in Chicago

Statement by the Trade Union Educational League Section of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

MANY vital problems of the rank and file workers are involved in the elections of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' local unions to be held beginning Tuesday, Dec. 15. The question of who shall occupy the offices for the coming term is important only to the extent of guaranteeing that the correct policies and tactics will be pursued which will strengthen the militancy of the union and build it into an ever stronger instrument of struggle for the workers.

Two candidates are running for the office of general manager of the Chicago joint board, Sam Levin, the head of the present local administration and its choice, and Nathan Green, member of Local 144, supported by the T. U. E. L. group of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

The head of the present administration, Sam Levin, represents the policies pursued or sanctioned in the past, of wage cuts thru so-called readjustments and resulting deterioriation of working conditions, expulsions of militant members for holding opinions in opposition to reactionary policies of the administration. During this administration, slugging and discrimination of union members who attempted to fight for more militant methods toward the bosses have taken place.

Nathan Green is wholly supported by the left wing because he represents its policies and is pledged to fight for the program of the following measures:

1. Genuine unemployment insurance.
2. Organization of the unorganized.
3. Freedom of minority expression and reinstatement of members expelled for holding such views.
4. Amalgamation of all needle trades unions.
5. Shop delegate system.
6. A labor party based upon trade unions.
7. International trade union unity.
8. Against wage cuts in form of readjustments or otherwise.
9. Against expulsion of members holding opposition views.
10. Against slugging and terrorist tactics.

The Trade Union Educational League stands for the unity of all progressive elements in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union on the basis of the class struggle and the various immediate issues facing the membership now.

The Chicago membership of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union will have to choose between these two lines of policies and a vote for Nathan Green is a vote for the left wing policies which is the only basis of building a fighting union ready to meet the onslaught of the bosses and becoming an instrument in the hands of the workers to do away with sweat shop conditions and eliminate exploitation.

Workers! Vote for the left wing candidate, N. Green. Support the left wing program.

BENJAMIN GITLOW RELEASED BY PARDON FROM NEW YORK PRISON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Benjamin Gitlow, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party and its vice-presidential candidate in the 1924 elections, was pardoned by Governor Smith late Friday from Sing Sing prison, where he was recently incarcerated after a final appeal to the United States supreme court had been denied. His sentence was for a term of ten years.

Gitlow was convicted in 1920 for publishing, along with C. E. Ruthenberg and I. E. Ferguson, the manifesto of the left wing of the socialist party when it organized within the old socialist party in 1919. The cases against Ruthenberg and Ferguson were brot to trial first and after imprisonment both were released on a writ of error. The charge in all cases was under the "criminal anarchy" law of New York state.

Released upon bail at different times during the course of appeals to higher courts, Gitlow has been candidate for congressman, mayor and vice-president.

When he ran for the office of mayor of New York city recently, his name was not permitted on the ballot on the excuse of his being a "convict."

In granting the pardon, Governor Smith indicated that the term of prisson confinement already served was "sufficient punishment for a political crime."

Comrade Gitlow was to speak Saturday afternoon at the International Ladies' Garment Workers' convention at Philadelphia.

PEKING TEACHERS CALL ON WORKERS FOR ASSISTANCE

Educators Appeal for Fight on Treaties

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, Dec. 13—The professors of the National University of Peking who have organized to combat the imperialist encroachments in China by means of the unequal treaties, appeal to the workers, peasants and intellectuals of the west to unite in a common struggle against the imperialist policies of their rulers.

In the following appeal, the professors point out that the imperialist exploitation of China, the exploitation of her natural resources and her cheap labor-power means a worsening of conditions in the western nations and that if the workers desire to have better conditions in their own lands they must resist the imperialists' desire to make China the source of a cheap labor supply:

"To the friends of the Chinese people!

"To intellectual circles in the whole world!

"To the toiling masses of all countries!

"For centuries China has suffered under the terrible pressure exercised upon it by the imperialist world pow-

I. L. G. W. CONVENTION DELEGATES DRIVEN FROM HALL AS VISITORS ARE BEATEN UP AND ARRESTED

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 13.—Police drove the visitors to the International Ladies' Garment Workers' convention from the hall Saturday before the afternoon session began. A number of visitors were arrested and some suffered severely from the clubs wielded by Smedley Butler's bluecoats. The use of police had been hinted at by Sigman in the morning session when he threatened the use of "special officers" to exclude visitors.

The forcible clearing of the hall by a charge of policemen marked the climax of the most open and vicious provocation on the part of the machine yet witnessed at this convention. That it was part of a deliberate scheme to provoke a split and then blame the left wing for the disruption can hardly be doubted by anyone not allied with the Sigmanites.

The Reason.

The real reason for the unprincipled methods of Saturday was that the Sigman machine suffered a political defeat on the one question on which it expected to administer a smashing blow to the left wing—the question of industrial conditions and future policy.

It was necessary for any semblance of leadership to remain with the Sigman machine that the Sigmanites be able to display superior understanding of the purely trade conditions in the debate on the officers report, because of the certainty of inability to defend their expulsion policy in the debate on the internal situation and the morale of the union, the other two portions of the officers report.

Sigman Calls Police.

Unable to defeat the left wing on trade conditions and policy, the Sigman machine in its desperation lost its head and again played into the hands of the left wing. It cannot defend before the members, hundreds of whom were present to hear Benjamin Gitlow, released from prison on Friday, the use of police in the convention.

The disgraceful incident is the more significant in that it occured after Sigman had made the open offer from the chair to the left wing for support of its trade program in return for the endorsement of the past policies of the officialdom. When the left wing rejected his proposals, amounting to a retraction of all its charges against the machine growing out of the expulsion policy, and a cessation of its criticism on the convention floor, Sigman began the

LEAGUE BARS DRUSE ENVOY FROM HEARING

League of Brigands in Flagrant Combine

GENEVA, Dec. 13.—If the Druses of Syria hope to get any justice out of the international bandits of the league of nations which back up the murderous French administration under the league's mandate, they will have to get it at the end of a rifle.

Refuse to Listen.

That is the only conclusion possible, since the council of the league refused Wednesday to receive, let alone consider, an envoy from the Druses who was sent to protest against the French administration in Syria.

The envoy of Ihsan Djajbir Bey of Damascus, representing the executive committee of the Syro-Palestine independence movement. He not only addressed a request for a hearing to the collective council of the league of nations, but also to each single member.

The French and British at once got together to bar out the Druse from getting even a hearing. The British, Austen Chamberlain and Lord Robert Cecil doing this as an exchange for the French last December having aided the British in barring out Fanouse Pasha, an Egyptian delegate, when Egyptians came last year to the league of nations to protest against British soldiers seizing Alexandria, Cairo and the Sudan. British also fear that the people of Palestine will be next to demand deliverance from their "protectors" under league mandate.

Wanted League to Obey its Laws.

The Druse envoy declares that they have 10,000 riflemen in the field, have captured six months' ammunition from the French and intend to fight until they are killed off.

"And," says the Druse, "all the Druses ask is that the league execute its own covenant requirements and send a committee to investigate how the French are maladministrating the mandate in Syria."

provocation and insults, including the open threat of the use of special officers, against the rank and file visitors to the convention.

Yanofsky Provocation.

As a part of this policy Sigman had Fisher of Local 10 bring forward a resolution passed by the New York Joint Board condemning Yanofsky, a former editor of Justice, for his articles against the Joint Board and in defense of crooked practices of former business agents.

Zimmerman spoke for the resolution and Sigman then gave Yanofsky the floor to make the most vicious and slanderous attack on the left wing, and especially Zimmerman, that has been delivered here.

The connection between the speech of Yanofsky and the general policy of provocation becomes apparent when it is considered that the condemnation of Yanofsky could have been debated at any time within the last two weeks before the most important question of the convention was on the floor.

General Officer Threat.

Zimmerman stated that "the purpose of the resolution has already been accomplished, because Yanofsky is no longer in the office of Justice." Yanofsky resigned just before the convention.

Sigman interrupted Zimmerman, and when the latter told Sigman "to keep his insinuations until he heard the facts," the machine delegates staged a near riot that lasted for ten minutes—a forerunner of what was to come in the afternoon session. It was after quiet had been restored that Sigman made his threat of the use of "special officers."

The vote on the endorsement of the past policy was 151 for and 112 against—Sigman's tactics and the speeches of his supporters resulting in the loss of seven votes from the average strength shown here by the machine.

Italians Form Bloc.

No session of the convention will be held Sunday, and in the meanwhile the Italian delegates, about fifty of whom are present, have formed themselves into a so-called group which is conducting negotiations with both the right and left groups.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS DEBATE BEGINS BIG CONVENTION BATTLE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 13.—After ten days of cautious maneuvering and delay the Sigman machine late Friday afternoon accepted battle on the officers' report. It forced the left wing to meet it on what the Sigmanites considered their strongest point—industrial conditions—but the machine met defeat while the left wing scored a political victory in the debate which lasted until 9 p. m.

The left bloc displayed a knowledge of the industry at least equal to that of the machine speakers, including Sigman himself, and in addition they brot into the debate a note of hope for the future and confidence in the fighting spirit of the membership that was completely lacking in the speeches of the machine delegates.

Clever Maneuver.

The Sigmanites had maneuvered rather cleverly, knowing that on the New York situation they could not hope to win, they divided the officers' report into three parts—industrial conditions, internal situation, and the morale of the union.

They insisted that the debate must be confined to these divisions and that the internal situation, for instance, could not be discussed under the head of industrial conditions.

Sigman Has No Program.

Portnoy moved to combine the three sections and have the committee read its whole report, but the motion was defeated.

The committee report merely endorsed the work and policies of the General Executive Board on industrial conditions since the Boston convention, it put forward no future program but it refused to endorse the industrial program of the left wing contained in resolution number 33.

This lack of program enabled Rose Wolkowitz to ask a very embarrassing question which took Sigman ten minutes to "explain"—"you have rejected our program, wheer is your own?"

Blames the Members.

Feinberg's speech set the fashion for the machine speakers who followed him. For the deplorable conditions in the industry he blamed the bosses and the workers, particularly the workers. He cited a number of instances which he claimed showed lack of militancy and loyalty to the union on the part of the workers.

The other speakers indulged in eulogies of the governor's commission and turned the debate into a tribute to the "impartiality" of the various bodies of liberals and politicians, stressing the note of class collaboration stronger than has ever been done at an I. L. G. W. convention.

Sigman's speech was a combination of superficial knowledge of the industry and a warning to the union of the dangers to the membership which he professed to see in the anti-class collaboration policy of the left wing.

left Wing Speaks.

The speeches of Borkovich, Zack and Rubin stressed the growing national character of the industry and pointed out the disastrous consequences which the weakened condition of the union had brot to the workers.

Hyman smashed the arbitration argument of the machine speakers by showing that the union was forced to strike no matter what decision the arbitration boards rendered.

"If the arbitration board gives a favorable decision the manufacturers will not put it in force until we make them do it by a strike. If they give an unfavorable decision we have to strike also. The only thing accomplished by arbitration is the demoralization of the membership," said Hyman.

Debate Prisoners.

The debate on this section of the report finished Saturday morning with Hyman closing for the minority.

Previous to the openign of debate on the officers' report a bitter debate occurred on a resolution for the release of political prisoners in all countries including Soviet Russia. An amendment to strike Russia from the list and substitute "all capitalist countries" was defeated by a vote of 156 to 108.

Support for the workers who are on strike against the Metropolitan Opera company was voted, and all members of the union are instructed to boycott this concern.

Much Business Ahead.

A watch was presented to Martin Hettl, fraternal delegate from the German clothing workers.

Night sessions of the convention are now in order but it is doubtful if the business can be concluded before the first of the week. Only one-third of the officers' report has been debated while the two committees next in importance, those on law and appeals have not yet reported.

Utica Mill Workers Strike.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 13.—The workers of the Utica Steam Cotton company and the Mohawk Valley Mills have gone on strike for the reinstatement of a woman worker who was discharged without cause. About 90 per cent of the workers of one mill and 30 per cent in the other mill have come out.

HYMAN REFUTES SIGMAN ALIBI FOR LOSS OF POWER BY UNION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 13.—Hyman Saturday morning delivered a smashing refutation of the Sigmanites on the "natural causes" alibi for the bad conditions in the industry and the loss of power by the union.

"The man who, when the evil of contractors first arose, pointed out the violation of the agreement by the jobbers, was removed by you from his position at the demand of the bosses," said Hyman. "The business of the union," said the speaker, "is with the contractor who is a result and not a cause of the weakness of the union."

Exposes Secret Deal.

Hyman then exposed the secret manipulations by which the arbitration agreement had been put over on the union and made the statement, which was not denied, that Feinberg was kept in office by the machine when his colleagues all admitted his misdeeds. Hyman challenged the machine to deny that Hillquit had made this proposal for arbitration and that even the local officials were not consulted.

"Had the workers been already on strike, with the industry stopped, had you had the army at your back, then we might have gone before an arbitration board with an ultimatum. But it was your crime that you asked for arbitration, convinced the bosses we were afraid to fight, and disorganized our army at the same time," said Hyman.

Every Cloakmaker Knows It.

A tremendous storm of applause broke out when Hyman concluded by saying that "every cloakmaker will know that I am right when I say that the continuation of such policies means the destruction of our union whether he votes against the officers' report or not."

COOLIDGE IS WORRIED OVER CHILEAN DEFY

Want Pershing to Get Out of Tacna

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—President Coolidge and his principal advisers were frankly worried today over the prospects of serious trouble with Chile that may affect adversely the entire scope of American relations with the republics of South America.

Chile's decision to ignore "Black Jack" Pershing and go over his head with a direct appeal to Coolidge in the Tacna-Arica boundary dispute deposits a delicate and admittedly dangerous controversy on the White House doorstep.

Coolidge is the supreme court in the Tacna-Arica dispute. He appointed Gen. Pershing as the umpire to get Chile and Peru together, both countries agreeing in advance to accept the ultimate verdict.

Wants Pershing Out.

Now Chile has repudiated the measures taken by Gen. Pershing to insure a fair plebiscite in the disputed territory, and in the course of the next few weeks will ask President Coolidge to throw out all of the work that Gen. Pershing has done in South America in the past four months.

This will put up to Coolidge the delicate question of repudiating Gen. Pershing, his own agent in the controversy, or offending Chile to the point where it may cause a rupture between the relations of the two countries.

All South America is watching the proceedings in the Tacna-Arica affair with keen attention, according to diplomatic reports.

The interesting question was being asked in diplomatic circles here today as to how far the United States would go in the matter should Chile follow her repudiation of Gen. Pershing's work with another repudiation of the Coolidge verdict in the end.

Resent Conspiracy.

Both Chile and Peru were gerrymandered into making pledges to accept the award, whatever it might be. The question is now asked, considering the rebuke to Pershing, what steps will the United States take to compel its acceptance? Though denying the intent to use armed force to stifle the two countries and to control the disputed territory because of the rich nitrates that may be shipped thru that territory, those familiar with the designs of the American government know that armed forces will be used if other methods of intimidation fail to bring the desired results.

When it became apparent that Pershing was deliberately sabotaging the plebiscite that is supposed to decide the boundary fight the Chileans and Peruvians resented the conspiracy and are endeavoring to force the removal of Pershing. They have not reached the degree of political maturity necessary to enable them to realize the fact that Pershing is merely the gunman of imperialism and that it is not Pershing, but the United States government, the tool of Wall street, that must be driven from that part of the world before there will be peace.

If you want to thoroughly understand Communism—study it.

Senate Candidate Fights Coolidge's World Court

HARRISBURG, Ill., Dec. 13.—Frank L. Smith, candidate for the United States senate, in his campaign speech here declared that if he were elected he would oppose America's entrance into the world court as it was nothing but a disguised name for the league of nations and stated that in 1920 the voters of the United States had shown their overwhelming opposition in the league of nations.

Coolidge to Sell Shoals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Cal Coolidge approved a resolution introduced in the house of representatives, by Snell, republican, of New York, for appointment of a joint committee of the house and senate to dispose of the rich nitrate fields at Muscle Shoals to private concerns.

Cotton Bloc Formed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—A senatorial cotton bloc was formed here by senators and representatives from cotton producing states. A number of southern bourbons are engineering the bloc and will fight to get special favors for cotton raisers.

Sixth Filipino Mission Shows How Not to Fight for Liberation of Islands

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the sixth Philippine commission of independence is in this country, treading lightly and very timidly in the footsteps of the five commissions that have preceded it.

If the speech made by Senator Sergio Osmena, heading the present drive for Filipino independence, in Chicago, is to be taken as a criterion, then there is little need of explaining the contemptuous attitude that President Coolidge took towards the question of Filipino liberation in his message to congress last week. Senator Osmena's kind had merely invited an other kick and they got it.

• • • •

The United States went into the Philippines in 1898, now 27 years ago. The grabbing of islands was one of its first imperialist ventures. The islands today constitute Wall Street's territorial outpost in the orient. There is no indication that U. S. imperialism intends to voluntarily let them go. In fact, Coolidge's message called for greater power being put into the hands of the oppressor governor-general, the militarist and strikebreaker, Leonard Wood. This will result in the authority of the local legislative body being lessened to the extent that Wood's authority is increased. This is what Washington diplomacy calls, "training the Philippines in self-government." It is, in truth, lulling the Filipinos to sleep with phrases while increasing the stranglehold of American domination over the Filipino people. Senator Osmena seems peculiarly and willingly susceptible to this manufactured potion of American imperialist statesmanship.

• • • •

The resolution prepared for the Chicago reception to the sixth Philippine commission, as well as Sen. Osmena's speech, were devoid of any indication that the elements representated realize in the slightest the nature of the struggle confronting them. Some phrases are taken bodily out of the American declaration of independence, now a century and a half old, without containing any of the bold statement of numerous grievances contained in that document, on the basis of which the colonists launched their war against British tyranny. Wilsonian phrases, like "making the world safe for democracy" are also called into play by Osmena's commission which seems to indulge the hallucination that the succulent phrases of imperialism's diplomacy are uttered to be fulfilled. They show they have allowed themselves to be caught in the trap set for them.

• • • •

While Osmena was making has plea in Chicago, for "an ever-increasing self-government," as promised 27 years ago, Governor-General Wood was arbitrarily vetoing acts of the Filipino legislature, and soldiers under the stars and stripes were shooting down natives in approved Wall Street style.

With Senator Osmena on the speakers' platform was Prof. Edwin A. Burtt, of the Standard Oil University of Chicago, who urged the Filipinos to place their hope in the "world fraternity"—the league of nations—at Geneva, Switzerland, half way around the world. The greasy professor did not tell them that the league was an instrument for the suppression of smaller nations, like the Philippines. Instead of blasting the professor's pretensions, however, Senator Osmena and the other Filipino speakers accepted them like welcome crumbs thrown from a rich store of treasured reasoning.

• • • •

If the [illegible] members of the Filipino commission are of the sam[illegible]s Senator Osmena, they constitute an obsequiou[illegible]hat will win nothing for the subject islanders.

There will no doubt b ea seventh commission. The industrial workers, growing more numerous on the islands, and oppressed land labor, must inaugurate steps to see that they are represented, if they do not control the next mission. Senator Osmena's actions indicate that he has turned his back upon the workers and farmers of the United States, the only source from which the Filipinos can expect aid in this country for their liberation struggle. Wall Street's grip upon the Philippines can only be loosened by the united efforts of class conscious American labor allied with the most conscious elements of the Filipino people realizing to the full the nature of their struggle. In such an alliance there is no room for belly-crawlers humbly kissing the feet of the enslavers of mankind, both in the homeland and in the colonies.

Imperialist Agents Find Chinese Trips Stopped by Battles

PEKING, Dec. 13.—The international train which was shelled by General Li Ching Lin's artillery, Saturday, was back in Yangtsun today after an unsuccessful attempt to reach Tientsin.

It was learned that the shelling of the train was probably precipitated by General Feng Yu Hsiang, who attempted to pierce his adversaries' lines by following in the wake of the international train with two armored trains.

With a hot fire coming from both directions over their heads, passengers of the international train abandoned it and returned by motor to Yangtsun.

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 13.—The iron heel of imperialist oppression which grinds the workers of Cuba knows no mercy. Jose Mella, the young and devoted secretary of the recently formed Communist Party of Cuba, who has declared a hunger strike upon being arbitrarily imprisoned at the orders of the unofficial dictator, General Crowder, is in a crucial state in the Havana prison. He has lost nearly eighteen pounds weight and his weakened condition may be seen from his abnormal temperature. Despite the condition of Mella, whose only "crime" is that he is a Communist, the government refuses to listen to demands made upon it by thousands of students and workers for Mella's release

COOLIDGE WANTS U. S. AT GENEVA ARMS GATHERING

Fake Call for War Preparations

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—Coolidge is to ask congress for funds with which to finance a delegation from this country to the disarmament conference that the league of nations is planning to hold at Geneva.

This move will be opposed by the irreconcilables in his own camp who also oppose the entrance into the world court as the back door to the league of nations. To send a delegation to the league conference will be tantamount to acknowledging the authority of the league and will be a long step in the direction of this country entering that body.

Bankers Want Conference.

Finance capital centered on Wall Street, which in reality is the real government of the United States, is interested in limitation of armaments as it wants Europe to achieve industrial reconstruction, and to stop investing so much in armaments and devote its funds to paying interest of American debts. Furthermore it believes that if more attention is given to industrial reconstruction rather than building of armaments it will create new spheres for investment of American capital.

Another object is the cutting down of European armaments so that Germany and Britain will not be able to challenge other countries in Europe where the United States has heavy investments.

There is also an incentive for American finance capital to advocate entering the league of nations as Britain, its mortal enemy, is using the league at the present time to further its own designs in Europe and Asia. Wall Street thinks that if the American government enters the league it can use its tremendous financial power to control it against Britain, thereby gaining a great advantage in the world situation.

Conference a Fake.

But the preliminary draft of the limitations of discussion on disarmament reveals the fact that the limitations to be imposed concern land armaments only but at the same time urges an industrial mobilization of productive forces useful in warfare. This means that a gesture toward arms limitation will be made by retiring soldiers in land forces from active service, where they can be held in reserve, and in the meantime devoting time to strengthening the industrial power of the various nations so they can be mobilized to their full strength in case of war.

It is the old game of preparing for war under the guise of talking peace and disarmament. Naturally the United States, as one of the contending imperialisms of the world wants to sit in on the affair in order to defend its own predatory interests.

ALABAMA EXPLOSION KILLS TOTAL OF 52 NON-UNION MINERS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 13.—Only two miners, Alfred Yarbrough and John Rice, were missing today in the explosion which wrecked the Overton Coal Mine No. 2, of the Alabama Fuel and Iron company Thursday, costing the lives of more than fifty workers. Both are given up for dead and with fifty bodies recovered, the death toll was set at 52—nine whites and 43 Negroes. The mine is non-union and run without regard for safety of the miners.

NORWEGIAN LABOR DELEGATION PLEDGES RUSSIAN WORKERS TO WORK FOR TRADE UNION UNITY

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—(By Mail)—The Norwegian workers' delegation which has been touring the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and is now leaving for Norway, in a declaration issued just before they left the Soviet Union pledge themselves to work in harmony with the Anglo-Russian committee to bring about world trade union unity.

In the declaration they point out the trade unions of Russia are numerically stronger than any other unions in the world and that they have a deciding voice in the management of the affairs of the government.

Received Full Co-operation.

"The Norwegian workers' delegation consisting of 13 delegates representing all shades of political opinion in the Norwegian working class movement elected on the basis of the decision of the Norwegian Trade Union Congress, wishes to express its hearty thanks for the fraternal hospitality which it has received. We delegates visited many towns and districts, numerous factories and industrial undertakings, workers' clubs, schools, hospitals and sanitoria. We have had numerous discussions with trade union officials and Soviet representatives, these treated us as friends and class comrades and gave us every possible assistance in visiting the institutions chosen by us; they also gave us all possible information upon the working conditions and upon the construction of their organizations.

"The Norwegian delegation draws the following conclusions from its visits in the Soviet Union:

"1. All organs of the Soviet power are working energetically together with the trade unions, political and co-operative organizations of the working class in the building up of the economic power which was destroyed by the war and civil wars. This work of reconstruction is developing rapidly in agriculture, in transport and in commerce. We have seen that the workers whom we met were without exception directly interested in the reconstruction of indsutry and that they used all their forces to reach this aim. In this connection the standard of life of the working class is rising.

Task Accomplished.

"2. The Russian working class and peasantry have carried out the tremendous task of taking the power from the bourgeoisie. They have been successfully maintaining this power and defeating all the enemies of the Soviet system.

"We have seen that the last task, that of building up a socialist society, has been brought perceptibly nearer to its solution. This work has but recently begun, but already production, commerce, finance, imports and exports are being carried on systematically and everywhere there is a firm determination to create order and security in economic and social life.

"Whilst in the capitalist countries finance and industrial capital is all-powerful, and controls both economically and politically, in the Soviet Union, workers and peasants are at the helm and are carrying out an heroic work for the improvement of the situation of the working class. We have seen gigantic work in the raising of the standard of productivity. New machines are being installed, new factories being built, the process of electrification is proceeding rapidly.

"It is in the interest of the international working class that this work should proceed without interruption or interference on the part of the capitalist powers. Any attack upon the Soviet Union is an attack upon the working class and must be fought with all means.

"3. The delegation considers the two most important results of the victorious revolution: the growth of the workers' and peasants' co-operative movement and the growth of the trade union movement. The latter are absolutely and relatively, numerically the strongest working class organizations in the world.

Trade Unions Big Factor.

"The trade unions in the Soviet Union enjoy great authority amongst the working masses and in their relation to the state power than the trade unions in any other country. The trade unions take an active and immediate part in the reconstruction of the workers' and peasants' republic. They work energetically and systematically for the increase of the working class standard of life.

"The delegation is firmly convinced that the economic and social political policy and activity of the trade unions is in complete agreement with the interests of the working class. A worker coming to Russia from a capitalist country knows how to estimate the efforts which are being made to better the housing conditions, to create and develop maternal protection, etc., the workers' sanatoria, the state protection for the unemployed and the sick, and the tremendous work carried out by the workers' clubs for physical culture, etc. The trade unions are carrying out a gigantic work both socially and culturally, and their work is a splendid example for the trade unions of all countries.

"The delegation has observed a strong wish amongst the workers of the Soviet Union and inside their trade union organizations, for the reestablishment of international trade union unity. This wish was clearly expressed in the factories and in the numerous workers' meetings where we were present.

"From the twenty-three trade unions of the Soviet Union only one, the union of the foodstuffs industry is affiliated to the existing international union, whilst the other Soviet trade unions are barred from their internationals.

"The work of the All-Russian Trade Union Council which is carried on thru the Anglo-Russian Unity Committee is meeting with great hindrances. The delegation declares that these hindrances must be regarded as damaging for the whole world proletariat.

For World Union Unity.

"The Norwegian working class supports the efforts of the Anglo-Russian committee for international trade union unity. This unity is necessary in order to counter with united forces the attacks of capitalism and to assist the working class in all capitalist countries to conquer the state power, and thus to create the basis of its economic and social freedom as this has been done by the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union.

"5. The Norwegian workers' delegation will make a complete report upon its impressions and observations in the Soviet Union, it will publish this report in the whole Norwegian workers' press and will send it to the trade union organizations of other countries. In this way, we hope to strengthen the fraternal relations between the trade union organizations of these countries and to pursuade them to affiliate to the Anglo-Russian committee and thus take part in the work for the creation of the international unity of the trade union movement."

CHRIST OR MAHOMET AN EXCUSE OF COMING WAR OVER MOSUL OIL WELLS

GENEVA, Dec. 13.—Strenuous efforts at mediation in the Mosul dispute are in progress here today. Tewfik Bey, Turkish foreign minister, who had announced that ne would leave for Angora, has decided to remain here for a time in order to keep in touch with mediation efforts.

The Turkish delegation has been in touch with the British delegation and there has been an exchange of views on the possibility of the two nations reaching an agreement over the control of the Mosul oil fields. If no agreement is reached there will be as expected, a war, in which England will propagandize the western world with tales of how the "heathen" Turks are abusing chistians.

SOVIET UNION TO PURCHASE 18,000 FARM TRACTORS

Russia Lays Plans to Manufacture 2,000

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 13.—Leon Trotsky, chairman of the concessions committee in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics and formerly commissar of war, in an article in the Moscow Izvestia points out that today Russia must buy machinery and tractors from abroad and that she will buy 18,000 tractors in the coming year but that the Soviets do not intend to keep on purchasing from abroad all of the time but will build machinery in the Soviet Union.

To Build Own Tractors.

"During the coming year we expect to import 18,000 tractors and produce 2,000 in our own factories. Eventually we hope that the tractors will be replaced by tractors made in huge factories owned by workers instead of by capitalists," writes Trotsky.

In discussing why the Soviets will spend $250,000,000 on the red army and navy during the coming year, he declares:

Conspiracies to Blame.

"If we were not surrounded by enemies, if the American government would not try to interfere in our interior affairs, and if the world court were not holding sessions in Europe, then we might use this 5,000,000 of gold roubles for the purchase of more tractors. But even with this handicap we are approaching the prewar level of production both in industry and agriculture. But we want to reach the American level."

The use of machinery has become quite popular on the farms and the peasants are jubilant over the success they are having with their tractors that some have named their sons and daughters Fordson. On this point Trotsky tells the peasants:

"Ford is an American capitalist and millionaire and an exploiter of the proletariat. We must learn how to build tractors from him, but we must not dishonor the sons and daughters of the revolution with his name."

Russia Achievements.

Regarding the achievements of the Soviet government Trotsky reported that 80 per cent of the industry is still nationalized, that the government is controlling 75 per cent of the interior trade, 100 per cent of the foreign trade, 100 per cent of transport, and 100 per cent of the banking system.

Number of Prisoners in Chicago Bridewell Increases 300 Per Cent

The number of inmates at the Bridewell "House of Correction" has increased 300 per cent since 1923. Superintendent Ritchie V. Graham reported to the council finance committee.

In 1923 the daily average population consisted of 800 inmates. Last year it averaged 1,750. This year the average has been 2,305.

Use Dehydrated Vegetables.

Because of the shortage of funds, dehydrated vegetables are being used in soups. This resulted in a saving of $600 last month.

Compete With Union.

The daily output of crushed stone is to be increased after January 1 from 100 to 400 tons and the number of bricks increased from 33,000 a day to 50,000.

Graham asked for an appropriation of $623,295 to operate the Bridewell next year. Comptroller O'Brien recommended he be given $519,655.

American Mercenary Is Cited by France for Killing Babies

PARIS, Dec. 13.—For his massacre of Riffian tribesmen, who are fighting for the independence of Morocco from the domination of French imperialism, Colonel Charles Sweeney of Spokane, Wash., is being raised at the recommendation of Marshal Petain to the rank of high grade officer of the legion of honor.

This American mercenary, who is being cited by the French government, was in charge of the Sheriffian air squadron which murdered thousands of innocent women, children and babies in the mountain villages of Morocco.

Peking Teachers Call for Aid

ers. By the unscrupulous wars, by the finances extended to the militarists and by utilizing the civil wars which have resulted, the imperialists have brought our country into a state of absolute helplessnesse and defenselessness toward the exterior. With force, political trickery and intrigues the great powers have spun a net of agreements which rob China of her national ipdependence absolutely.

World War Slogans

"England, France, America and Japan carried off the world war under the slogan 'The right of self-determination of all nations, freedom for the cultural and economic development of all peoples,' but it is these same powers which force our people before foreign courts on Chinese ground and compel them to tolerate extraterritoriality of snatched districts, foreign control of our customs and finances, extraterritoriality for foreign citizens, etc.

"It is these same powers who make our right of self-determination a bloody mockery, rob China of her freedom with rifle blows, force suffering upon her and treat her citizens shamefully.

Unequal Treaties.

"Our dead leader, Sun Yat Sen, termed the agreements which have been forced upon us, unequal agreements. The whole of the Chinese people demands the abolition of these unequal agreements. The customs slavery which the powers have forced onto our country ruins its finances and limits its economic development in the greatest degree.

"The customs diplomats are now discussing in Peking the future form of the customs.

"The whole Chinese republic resounds with the cry of our people: 'Away with the unequal agreements!' 'Down with the customs slavery!' 'Complete customs autonomy for China!'

"But the diplomats, the most zealous representatives of the capitalist groups in their own countries close their ears to the cries. Just as their imperialist masters in Great Britain, America and Japan, they regard China as a half-colonial country for the supply of raw material, as a market for the disposal of surplus products, as a field for capital investments, as a source of cheap labor power. From this point of view the representatives of the powers are to chain China by a customs policy in accordance with the profit greed of the imperialist powers. They want a customs policy to render the exploitation of China more easy, a customs policy to prevent China's economic development. If these aims are realized China will be driven to the verge of the precipice.

Aid Chinese Struggle!

"Friends of China!

'Toilers in all countries!

"Peasants in the whole world!

"The Chinese people are carrying on a despairing struggle for life or death.

"Her intellectuals, her workers and her peasants are forced into the most terrible sufferings which will be increased if the imperialist are able to realize their new plans. But the masses of the west will also be immediately affected by an unlimited exploitation of millions of our people thru imperialism.

"Intellectuals, workers and peasants of the west and in the whole world! We have heard from your ranks the call 'Exploited of all countries unite to crush imperialism!' This slogan is in accordance with the needs of the hour. The Chinese people are struggle valiantly with its deadly enemy, imperialism. Down with the customs robbers!

Rely on Workers.

"We rely upon you, the toiling masses of the west, to recognize the necessity of a common struggle with us. We are convinced that the masses of the west will no longer permit their imperialist governments to carry on the exploitation and robbery of our country.

"We who send you this brotherly greeting in the name of the struggling Chinese people, rely absolutely upon your active solidarity. We are deeply convinced that no intellectual, no peasant and no worker of the west will hesitate to extend support to the exploited and oppressed people of China in their difficult struggle against world imperialism.

"Down with the unequal treaties!

"Down with the customs robbery and the customs slavery!

"Complete customs autonomy for China!

"Down with imperialism!

"Long live the alliance of the exploited classes of the west with the oppressed peoples of the east!"

Worker Missions Feted in Moscow

of the German working class youth and declared that the delegation would carefully and conscientiously study the situation in the Soviet Union and present a true picture of the workers' country as seen by the elected representatives of the working youth of varions shades of political opinions as against the net of lies spun by the bourgeois press. The speech of Chu Chan Min given in Chinese was greeted with great enthusiasm. Chu Chan Min declared in the name of the revolutionaries of Southern China that the October revolution was a necessary preliminary for the freedom of the eastern peoples and that every political and economic success of the Soviet Union, each acquisition of the international working class movement is received by the Chinese masses with strained attention, as such successes make their own struggle for a human existence the more easy.

In his concluding speech Kamenev said that he hoped that the foreign workers' delegations had come to Russia not merely to examine the successes achieved and to learn the truth, but also to learn from the experience of the Russian workers how capitalism can be overthrown, the workers' power defended and a socialist economy built up.

Will Not Retreat.

"The toilers of the West and of the East have found their way into the country of the workers and no power in the world will be able to close this way," declared Kamenev. "We are proud of the results of our eight years' of struggle. We are prepared to relinquish our pride in that moment when we are no longer the only Soviet power."

The session adopted an appeal to the toilers of all countries which said among other things: "On the eighth anniversary of the establishment of the workers' and peasants' republic, and after four years of peaceful work in which it has almost reached the pre-war level of economy, the working population of the Soviet Union remembers with gratitude the fraternal assistance of the international working class in those difficult years which lie behind it. Without this fraternal assistance, the present successes would have been impossible.

"In the eighth year of the existence of the Soviet Union, numerous workers' delegations have visited it and convinced themselves with their own eyes of the reality of the successes of socialism. The truth about the first workers' country is breaking thru, the international solidarity is being strengthened. The Soviet Union was and is the chief support of the international proletariat in its struggles. The sucesses of the Soviet Union strengthen the international proletariat. And from this comes the inexhaustible hate of the international bourgeoisie against the Soviet Union.

Bourgeois Intervention.

"The bourgeoisie has not given up its idea of intervention, on the contrary it is now engaged in organizing new international conspiracies against the Soviet Union.

"The international solidarity of the toiling masses will support and maintain the gains of October!

"Long live the international solidarity of the international proletariat!"

The October celebrations in which the working population of Moscow demonstratedin immense processions, started with a meeting of hundreds of thousands in the Red Square where a flag from the German Red Front Fighters' League was presented to the Moscow proletariat. The celebration took place in front of the Lenin mausoleum. Tomsky as an honorary member of the Red Front Fighters' League handed the flag to Michailov, the secretary of the Moscow committee of the Rusisan Communist Party. The latter read a letter from the league in Germany declaring: "The Red Front Fighters' League which has won the confidence and regard of broad masses of the proletariat in Germany in difficult days, sends this banner to the Moscow proletariat on the occasion of the eighth anniversary of the October revolution as a sign of revolutionary class solidarity which binds the Russian and German proletariat. Unfurl this banner at the grave of Lenin as a proof that millions of German workers are prepared to defend with you the legacy of our great teacher.

To Answer Imperialists.

"We shall answer the plans of the imperialists at Locarno by the establishment of a free union of an independent socialist Germany with the first proletraian state of the world. Over the frontiers we extend the hand of comradeship to you.

"The class conscious proletariat will defeat capitalism and unfurl the red banner of victory.

"Long live the work of Lenin!

"Long live the first proletarion state of the world!"

WORKERS WAGES' ON UPGRADE IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Reach 95 Pct. of Pre-War Standards

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, U.S.S.R.,Dec. 13.—When the new economic policy was introduced the average wage of workers in Soviet Russia was only about 30 per cent of the pre-war wage. But the reconstruction of industry brings with it a gradual rise in wages. In the food industry wages are now 128.5% of the pre-war level, in the chemical industry 113.6%, in the paper industry 110.8%, in the leather industry 107.8%, in the printing trade 100% and in the wood industry 86.1%.

The industries which lag behind are: the metal industry—76%, the oil industry 65%, the mining industry 66%, railways 67% of the pre-war level.

Wages are on an average about 95% of the pre-war level.

On the whole wages continue on the upward grade. The new tariff agreement with the Central Porcelain Trust provides for a wage increase of 10%. The new wages tariff in the rubber industry provides for an increase from 5 to 7%.

The new tariff agreement in the engineering industry provides for wage increases of 5-14% and an average increase of 11.6%.

There has been a 12% rise in the wage of post and telegraph officials and workers on October 1st. Over and above this a further increase of 8% is contemplated.

Senate Gets Report on Mismanagement of Mellon's Department

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—The methods of the internal revenue department in the handling of the tax cases of the Gulf Oil corporation, the Standard Oil company of California and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation were severely criticized in a report handed to the senate by the committee charged with investigating the mishandling of tax cases in the internal revenue department.

It is pointed out that the government lost $4,509,835 in taxes from the Gulf Oil corporation from 1915 to 1919, while Andrew W. Mellon held a large interest in it.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair and the solicitor of the bureau had been defied by division chiefs in efforts to settle the Standard case, involving $3,378,000 in taxes directly and $25,000,000 in directly.

It also charged the tax cases of S. G. Kennedy and T. A. Springer, who made a profit of $6,000,000 on the sale of Oklahoma oil lands in 1916, was "kicked around from pillar to post until the statute of limitations ran out and no tax was assessed against that profit."

The American Mining Congress Sides with Anthracite Operators

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12—The stand of the anthracite operators in their controversy with the miners was endorsed today in a resolution adopted by the American mining congress.

In supporting President Coolidge's recommendation for settling industrial disputes by arbitration, the resolution said: "In order to terminate the present intolerable situation in the anthracite region, the operators have offered to submit all matters in controversy, without reservation, to arbitration."

The congress gave not a thought to the demands of the miners nor did it consider the terrible loss of life in the hard coal mines, all it was interested in was "production of coal."

Second Pittsburgh Is Planned in Illinois

GRANITE CITY, Ill., Dec. 13.—As over two hundred members of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce toured thru here plans were discussed of building a second Pittsburgh, which would take in the territory stretching from Alton, thru Belleville, Granite City to St. Louis.

Near To Raw Materials

It was pointed out that some of the finest coal that is dug in the country can be found only 85 miles away from the proposed site of the steel mills and that the site is only 90 miles away from the iron ore deposits of old Iron Mountain of Missouri and that the demand for steel and castings is continually increasing thru the valley here.

NEW YORK YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP MEETING ENDORSES UNITY RESOLUTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—At the general membership meeting of the Young Workers (Communist) League, the resolution of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party calling for unity was adopted by a vote of 198 to 34.

The unity resolution which was adopted by the New York membership meeting was recently hailed by the Young Communist International as a step towards the unification of the Communist forces in the party and the league against the right wing tendencies and it called upon all Communist elements to support the unity resolution and combat the right wing tendencies manifesting themselves in the party.

Comrades Jay Lovestone and James P. Cannon, both members of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party were given an ovation when they appeared.

Jack Stachel led the discussion on the unity resolution showing to the membership the necessity of unity in the party and called upon all members present to vote for the resolution and unite in the fight against the right wing in the party and league.

CHICAGO MEMBERSHIP IS 90 PER CENT IN SHOP AND STREET NUCLEI

By MARTIN ABERN.

Twenty-eight shop nuclei and forty street nuclei are the results of the reorganization of local Chicago, Workers (Communist) Party on the basis of shop and street nuclei. The total number of members who registered was 930, which is nearly 90% of the former dues-paying membership.

There were, of course, many more members on the records. Virtually all language and English branches, with the exception of the Lettish and Finnish branches, responded heavily to the reorganization. In the Lettish and Finnish branches only about 30% of the former membership have come into the reorganization thus far. However, from the Finnish comrades especially, members are now coming in. For both of these at least 50% return can in time be expected. The Italian branches, from whom was expected difficulty, rseponded very well with the exception of the 31st ward. Generally, comrades who failed to register at the time of the section membership meetings are beginning to fill in their cards now.

The shop nuclei range in size from 3 to 23 members. The shop nuclei are organized in steel plants, railroad shops, department stores, clothing shops, concentration groups, Pullman car builders, automobile plants, printing shops, manufacturing concerns, electrical companies, stock yards, Chicago Surface Lines, machine shops, and Harvester concerns.

One hundred and eighty members are organized into 28 shop nuclei, which is about 20% of the membership. Nuclei membership is divided as follows:

One department store nucleus, 8 members.

Ten clothing shop nucleus, 28 members.

One concentration group, 5 members.

Two steel car building companies, 28 members.

Three railroad shop nuclei, 22 members.

Two printing nuclei, 19 members.

Four electrical, harvester, etc., manufacturing concerns, 39 members.

One Surface Lines nucleus, 3 members.

One machine shop nucleus, 5 members.

One stock yards nucleus, 4 members.

To each of these shop nuclei has been attached at least one specially active comrade or party functionary to aid in the work of the shop units, especially in the issuing of shop bulletins. The shop nuclei are located for the most part in large plants employing thousands of workers.

Shop and Street Nuclei Developing Activity.

The shop nuclei are meeting regularly now; the members in them greet the reorganization enthusiastically and in every instance already laid out a detailed program of work. Seven hundred and eighty of the members are at present in 40 street nuclei, which is an average of approximately 17 members per street nucleus. Street nuclei cannot contain over 25 members and when they are over that they are divided, thus leaving a basis for further growth. Even in this brief period of organization, comrades both in the street and shop nuclei express themselves generally satisfied with reorganization. The spirit of responsibility is developing in the street nuclei (International Branches) and shop nuclei.

The comrades feel that they cannot be so lax as they have been in their former language or English branches. Work is demanded of them. The nuclei respond, as old units never did previously, to communications from the party office. Connections are maintained more easily. Possibility of placing our hands on each member of the shop or street nucleus and drawing all into party work has been greatly increased. The street nuclei are expected also to aid in the work of shop nuclei, such as in the distribution of literature and shop bulletins that shop nuclei members may not be in a position to distribute at the time.

Nuclei Beginning DAILY WORKER Drive.

A number of nuclei are already ordering bundles of The DAILY WORKER for shop distribution and are insisting upon each member being a subscriber to The DAILY WORKER. Other nuclei have made it mandatory that a specific amount of literature, besides The DAILY WORKER and Workers Monthly, must be purchased each month by every member. A fuller report on work being conducted now by the nuclei, street and shop, will follow.

The trade union registration of our membership is now completed, and shows that out of the 930 registered members, 340 are listed as members of the trade unions, or nearly 35 per cent. The needle trades, metal trades and building trades show the best average of union membership in our party,—95 members in the various trade unions in the needle trades, 61 in the A. C. W. of A. and 20 in the I. L. G. W. U., and the remainder divided among the millinery workers, journeymen tailors, cap makers and furriers. Forty-six are listed in the metal trades, 37 to the machinists and the remainder to the moulders, metal polishers, sheet metal workers and pattern makers. Seventy-four are listed in the building trades, 36 carpenters, 16 painters and the remainder among the painters, laborers, wood turners, sign painters, etc. Twenty are listed in the printing trades, and the rest of the members in the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union, street and electric railway, egg inspectors, laundry workers, Teachers' Federation, journeymen barbers, united wall paper trades, press writers, railway carmen, musicians, draftsmen, electrical workers, watch & clockmakers, bank employers, track repairers, United Mine Workers, teamsters, waiters and food workers, cigar makers, milk drivers, I. W. W., window washers, electric and elevated workers, bakers, janitors, leather workers, newspaper drivers, butchers and coopers, etc.

The unorganized membership has been listed by trade and industry and a drive will set in a short time to call meetings of the unorganized members to get them into the unions. It will be mandatory to every eligible comrade to join such a union or else to show reason why he should remain any longer in a Communist Party.

On the whole, the reorganization to date has been successful. Organizing and carrying out of the activities and programs of the party is now the order of the day. The phase of party bolshevization has been carried out to a degree. The Chicago membership can be further expected to respond to the need for joint activity in every phase of the party work.

PARTY REORGANIZATION MOVES FORWARD RAPIDLY IN DETROIT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 13.—Carrying out the program of action outlined at the meeting of the reorganization commission of District 7 in consultation with Comrade Lovestone on Saturday, Dec. 5, two section meetings were held Monday evening, two Tuesday evening and two Wednesday evening. Additional registration was taken up and provision made for the assignment of the comrades to the shop nuclei and international branches.

Section membership meetings will be held agian on Wednesday, Dec. 16. The reorganization commission is calling in the books of all the branch financial secretaries and will send notices to all the members in Detroit to attend their respective section meetings. At these meetings the international branches will be formed and the members assigned to their branches and shop nuclei. The reorganization will be completed by the end of December and Detroit will begin the new year with an organization based upon the new constitution.

Eleven Shop Nuclei.

Detroit has eleven shop nuclei organized and functioning at the present time. This number will be substantially increased during the current month.

The manufacture of automobiles is the basic industry in Detroit, the factories employing upwards to 300,000 workers. The industry is open shop.

To Organize Auto Workers.

Local 127, Auto Workers' Union carried on an intensive organization campaign during the year and while the membership of the union increased, it was not enough to make a dent in the industry. The union is making ambitious plans to continue the organization work and the party nuclei will be a decisive factor in this campaign. As the party inaugurated its program for the intensification of industrial activity we look forward with confidence to the role of the nuclei in the organization of the unorganized auto workers in Detroit.

LA FOLLETTE ON PROBATION IN COOLIDGE RANKS

Can Come in and Stay on Good Behavior

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Senator Robert M. Lafollette, Jr., wil be admitted to full republican standing in the senate, it was learned today, as a result of a compromise reached by administration leaders.

This peaceful solution of the new senate's first insurgent row, it was said, was agreed upon after Senator William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee and spokesman for Pres. Coolidge, withdrew his opposition to LaFollette. Butler was reported as willing to admit LaFollette on probation to the republican ranks, but insisting upon his punishment if he bolts the party on any strictly partisan issue.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, who led the fight against LaFollette, however, was reported as opposing the compromise. Watson was said to feel LaFollette's speeches in his senatorial campaign, which included attacks on Coolidge, were sufficient cause for his removal from the party. Watson stood virtually alone in his opposition.

He May Be "Regular."

A majority of administration leaders, it was learned, believe a distinction can be drawn between young LaFollette and his father's record.

"After having been elected as a republican, given republican committee assignments, including an important chairmanship, and republican patronage, the senior LaFollette went out and led a third party in the last presidential campaign in an effort to defeat his own party," said one republican spokesman. "That defection merited punishment. Young Bob has never done that. If he does in the future, then it will be time enough to punish him."

The fight against LaFollette, it was revealed today, was stirred up by William J. Campbell, millionaire chairman of the republican committee of Wisconsin, who came to the capitol and demanded that young LaFollette be read out of the republican party.

The Worcester city organization is the second largest organization in District One."

The resolution of the city executive committee also calls for a determined struggle against all deviations from the line of the Comintern.

HUNGARIAN WORKERS' ORGANIZATION FOR SOVIET RUSSIA RECOGNITION AND RELEASE OF BENJAMIN GITLOW

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The Hungarian Workers' Sick Benefit and Educational Federation at its latest annual convention held in the Workers' Home, 300 East 81st street, recently passed resolutions favoring the recognition of Soviet Russia, one calling for the release of Benjamin Gitlow and a decision to affiliate to the International Labor Defense.

The conference was attended by over 70 delegates, who represented a membership of 5,000.

Among other actions of the convention it was decided to donate $500 to Uj Elore, the Hungarian organ of the Workers (Communist) Party of America. William Weinstone, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, addressed the conference upon invitation by the organization. His address on the tasks of the Hungarian workers was received with great enthusiasm.

Recognize Soviet Russia

In the following resolution which calls for the United States government to recognize Soviet Russia, it points out that the reason recognition has not been granted Russia, was because the bankers of Wall Street saw in the only workers' and farmers' government a menace to the rule of the capitalists:

"Whereas: The government of the United States stubbornly refuses to recognize the government of Soviet Russia, the Soviet Republic of the Russian workers and peasants, and

"Whereas: The Soviet government is in existence for more then seven years, growing stronger every year and being recognized by practically every nation, and

"Whereas: Recognition is refused by the American government for the sole reason that the bankers of Wall Street look upon Soviet Russia as a menace to the class rule of capitalists; therefore,

"Be it resolved: That the Hungarian Workers' Benefit and Educational Federation in convention assembled on Dec. 5 and 6, in the City of New York demands the recognition of the Soviet government by the government of the United States."

Unconditional Release of Gitlow

The Hungarian workers' fraternal organization in another resolution demands the unconditional release of Benjamin Gitlow, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party and standard bearer for the Workers (Communist) Party in the mayoralty elections of New York City. The resolution follows:

"Whereas: Comrade Ben Gitlow has been imprisoned by the courts of the capitalist class for his work in the interests of the working class, and

"Whereas: Ben Gitlow, member of the Workers (Communist) Party for years has been one of the leaders in the class struggle for the emancipation of the working class, therefore

"Be it resolved: That this convention of the Hungarian Workers' Sick Benefit and Educational sends its fraternal greeting to Comrade Gitlow, and be it

"Further resolved: The convention demands of Governor Smith the unconditional release of Ben Gitlow from prison."

Join Labor Defense

This convention also passed the following resolution in which it points out that the International Labor Defense is an international organization for the defense of workers who are persecuted by the capitalist class and that as the Hungarian Workers' Sick Benefit and Educational Society is composed of workers it affiliates itself with the International Labor Defense and will pay a per capita of one cent per member per month.

"Whereas: The International Labor Defense is an international organization for the defense of workers, persecuted by the ruling capitalist class for their activity in the interests of the working class, and

"Whereas: The membership of the Hungarian Workers' Sick Benefit and Educational Federation is composed of wage workers, who in many instances are persecuted for participating in strikes nad for picketing, therefore

"Be it resolved: That the Hungarian Workers' Sick Benefit and Educational Federation joins the International Labor Defense, paying one cent per month for every member of the organization."

UNION MEN WALK STREETS WHILE AGENTS PROSPER

Building Laborers Must Ask Steward System

By A BUILDING LABORER.
Worker Correspondent
Student of Chicago Class.

At the last meeting of our local which also was instalation night, the president having called all the elected and appointed officials to the front of the hall to be installed into office, found just three members seated in their chairs.

Local No. 76 of the International Hod Carriers, Building Laborers, and Common Laborers' Union is one of the largest locals, has among its members most of the semi-skilled workers in the building industry. The lack of interest in the union meetings on the part of its membership is partly due to the members themselves in not paying their dues at their regular meeting nights instead of giving money over to the business agents who usually show up on the jobs the days following pay day. And then it seems to the rank and file that more interest is paid to those on the job working on permits than those workers with cards of long standing in the union, completely ignoring the fact that no stewards are placed on these buildings under construction.

Interested in Initiations.

This condition of affairs would have one believe that the officials are more interested in collecting five and ten dollars each pay day (initiation fee is $54) from workers receiving permits than having to collect $4 dues for three months from those with cards in good standing.

In face of the facts that at local union meetings, reports of business agents, and this local has five assistant business agents, the reports consist mostly of how much money was collected on permits issued to workers on the jobs. These sums run into hundreds of dollars from each business agent every two weeks. This state of affairs would leave one to believe that the local union is initiating from 50 to a hundred new members at each meeting, at the rate permit money was being collected. But as a matter of fact perhaps one or two would appear at the meetings to be accepted as members and receive their working cards.

Demand Steward System!

To remedy this chaos in the organization it is the duty of all members of this or any other local union of the International to attend their meetings regularly and demand an accounting of our officials as to why workers with paid-up cards are walking the streets and jobs being filled with non-union men in order to collect money on permits. It is also the duty of the membership to demand that job stewards be placed on each and every job where more than two laborers are employed.

The Why of Worker Correspondents

WHAT is news? is the first question that usually confronts a worker who has never written for the press and who intends to become a worker correspondent. There are many interesting happenings in the shop and factory, and where workers congregate, but for one who has never written for the press these happenings pass unnoticed. Sometime the question comes up in his mind: Is it worth while to write about it? The safest way is to write it anyway. Then there is another way to find out if it is worth while to write about—ask the other workers in the shop or in other shops, if for any reason it is not safe to talk about it in the shop where you work. As a rule the workers know what interests them, especially where there is a kick against the boss or foremen.

Every worker correspondent should develop a special "smell" for news. Look for it and you will find it. There is plenty of news for the one who looks for it. There are always people at the gates of the factory looking for work. Talk to them. Find out what they are thinking about. Tell their stories in the paper.

There are always people being fired. Talk to them. Often jobs are being sold by the foremen in conjunction with the labor agencies. Go the limit to discover and expose this graft. There is always cause for dissatisfaction even in the "best" union shops. Write up these causes.

A worker correspondent must develop his eyes and ears. Watch things that are going on, listen in to the talks of the workers. Put in a word or two yourself.

See that the things that are written about a certain shop shall reach the workers of that shop. Find out what they think about it and take their advice seriously.

Eventually you will become a live up-to-date worker correspondent.

Use Gunmen Guards for Scabs in Strike at Cicero Factory

ing special agents to the houses of the men, promising them everything under the sun providing they return to work. Other agents have even come to the strike headquarters and promised to give some of the men jobs in other factories in the Cicero district. This is for the purpose of breaking up the effective picket line, but so far has not met with any success.

Fight Trust's Company Union.

The Edison Electric, which is a subsidiary of the General Electric Co., has been fighting against all attempts to unionize and, of course, all its forces will be used to frustrate this attempt.

A so-called fake bonus is being given the men. A so-called shop council (company union) has been organized. Sick benefit systems have been established, etc. The so-called shop council can function until you begin to talk about wages, then the particular individual who dares to bring up such impertinent questions very likely finds himself out of a job.

Union Talk Is Forbidden.

Talk about increasing production and such things as will benefit the company, and your job is secure, but keep your mouth shut about the union. The company has also special foremen's clubs where efficiency is discussed and bonuses are paid to the ones who can best speed up the men.

Must Organize Industry.

The men involved in this strike are striking against these slave conditions. Instead of false promises, discriminations, fake bonuses, speed-up system, they are demanding a living wage which will enable them to earn enuf to take care of their families. This strike should arouse the interest of the whole organized labor movement and be the signal for a general drive to organize the entire electrical industry.

SIDE LIGHTS ON THE CONVENTION OF THE I. L. G. W.

Amusing Sketches of People and Sigman

By A Worker Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 13.—Every day there are more thrills at the convention of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. If it isn't a near riot between the delegates of both sides, it is a slip of the tongue by the very "fair" chairman, in which he speaks the truth without intending to.

Yesterday, after some commotion in the hall, it must have been Sigman's better self that spoke: "It seems to me," he said, "we will soon need an impartial chairman." Even his tongue repeated his great pretense of fairness, for he makes frequent grand speeches, ignoring the presence of division in the convention.

Upon the appointment of committees, having put 14 out of 18 left wing delegates on the Label Committee, and no strong representatives on important committees, his conscience was clear, he said, that he had been fair.

Waits The Axe.

Accused of permitting three "rights" to make irrelevant and incorrect statements and then denying the floor to the "left" delegates to refute them, he was criticised. "You will be more careful when you are conducting the convention," he said to "Red Rosenthal." "I wish I were," answered Rosonthal. "So do I," said Sigman, "but wait, you may be yet, the convention isn't over. I wish you godspeed."

In the right wing hotel the spokesmen are kept busy explaining themselves. Nadler can be found buttonholing a pale delegate, and violently defending himself, denying the fact that he ever sold insurance and giving alibis. . . . A young curly haired Beau Brummel explains the difficult issues of the convention to a gum-chewing flapper country delegate thus wise: "They want the jobs."

And the girl, finding one simple answer to all the questions she has been voting on—she does not know how or why—says with relief at the revelation: "Oh, I see, I understand now."

The socialist reporter who is press representative of the convention, sends no reports to the Federated Press, but tries to get statements out of Hyman and Zimmerman that he can interpret as difference of opinion in the leadership, so he can announce a break in the left wing ranks.

Socialist Reporter Worse Than Capitalist.

Getting a straight statement from Zimmerman, he ignores it and sends his false interpretation to the capitalist press, which the capitalist reporter, himself present at the incident, was too decent to write.

There was much laughter after the session when Sasha Zimmerman asked Dr. Moskowitz, director of the label department, whether a left wing wing "label" could be given to a right wing convention. "I'd be satisfied," he answered, laughing. "They'd put some pep into it."

The "heroes and geniuses of the labor movement," as Sigman sarcastically calls the left wingers, are making splendid demonstrations and keep the convention at such a pitch that delegates and visitors are impatient for the reconvening of each session.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Employment Exchange

By A Worker Correspondent

ABOUT nine months ago I registered for a job in the employment office of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. I noticed something queer about the system employed in giving out jobs. Talking the matter over with other workers I was convinced that I sized up the situation correctly.

Originally when the employment exchange was established in Chicago, the system appeared to be a fair one. When a worker would register with the exchange he would be given a number and when his turn would come the number appeared on the blackboard. The system employed was a simple one and fair to the workers. If he happened to be out of the office at that time, the employment exchange would call him on the phone or else notify him by mail.

Business Agents Owns Jobs.

But today a new system prevails. He who happens to be in the office when a job comes in gets it. A person could run to the employment office for months and yet miss a job by a minute.

Now you will wonder, as I did, why the original system of giving out jobs is not in practice. The present way of giving jobs is only to assist business agents.

How it Works.

The clothing industry is a season trade. In Chicago the men's clothing industry is divided into two groups, the wholesale and the special order trade. The seasons do not correspond. When the wholesale season begins the special order season ends.

The employment office today has but one function, to place workers during the busy season in shops or sections that are not able to keep pace with the rush of the season. Those jobs are mostly temporary.

At first when the worker learned that they were only getting temporary jobs they would refuse to take them so, to get around that, the employment exchange would often send the workers to a job telling them that the job is steady and the foreman would tell them the job is not permament after they had worked a few days. The shop chairman even brazenly asserts that he has no intention to overcrowd the section.

These shop chairmen work hand in hand with the business agents. It is their job to keep the machine well oiled. They play favoritism to workers for which in return these workers are expected to do their bidding. These misled workers, to keep their job, take orders from the officialdom to intimidate other workers and to discredit the more progressive workers.

"Good Boys" Get Fat Jobs.

This playing at favoritism by the officials has created such a situation that the bulk of the membership is not looked after at all. The officials' only concern is to keep the so-called "good boys" satisfied. The man who lines up with the organized reactionary machine is the first one to be promoted to any office regardless of his abilities or his past record. The officials have no use for earnest and sincere union men, no matter how much the organization may benefit by their services. They want "boys that can be used."

Here is a concrete example. A friend of mine was unemployed for eight months. The chairman of the shop where I worked, a sleeve inserter, the same kind of work that this unemployed worker does, announced one Saturday that he is going to work at another job at so and so's. I asked him how he knows beforehand what job we will land! He answers, "The business agent sends me to this shop because they need a 'good boy' in that shop." I try to convince him how wrong it is for the business agent to do such a thing when there are others waiting for work for more than a year. I argue that my friend, who has been running to the employment exchange for eight months, is entitled to that job. He meets my objections with the argument that if the deputy of the shop does not agree politically with the man, how can he co-operate with him in the shop?

Degrading the Union.

As for myself I have seen and I have learned many things that are degrading our union. I simply can't get used to the fact that the people who do not belong to the union should do union men's work. This I have found in contracting shops as well as in the large shops.

About two weeks ago I got an O. K. to a certain shop. The people at the table ask me "Did the business agent send you here?" I answer, "The employment office is supposed to send the people with O. K's, not the business agent." One man replied, "When the deputy sends someone we are sure that the man will be alright." That means that he is one of our "boys.

A sister worker told me that she was sent by the employment office with an O. K. to this shop but the "chief" came with another girl for her job. "I had to give up the job," she complained. "It was a better paying one than the one I have now. I can hardly make a living on this job." The chief told her she ought to be satisfied for having a job at all.

Wages Cut Indiscriminately.

During the time that I have been partly unemployed I've worked in from 20 to 30 different shops. Workers tell me how the readjustments are taking place. Some workers have had their wages cut in the last year and a half about three times, without a particle of difference in their work.

I just relate my own experiences. There are thousands of clothing workers unemployed in Chicago. The officials do not bother to find a remedy for the unemployment. I am convinced that when the left wing in the Amalgamated proposed a 40-hour week they were one hundred per cent correct. It would relieve the unemployed to a great extent. But the officials do not put forth demands that are beneficial to the workers. In the coming election a change should be made in the administration. At present the officialdom work only for own interests and entirely neglect the membership. We elect the officials to work for our interests but they fail in their task. It is our duty to get rid of them and put in others.

AS WE SEE IT

ers and peasants are gradually getting rid of poverty. Every month sees the living conditions of the workers and peasants improving, and the first to share in this improvement are the children. This, the lying Times knows but will not admit.

WHAT about the thousands of waifs who flit like ghosts thru the alleys of London and Berlin? What about the hundreds of thousands who are on the verge of starvation in every country in the world? Those countries are not trying to "drive god out of the schools" but god seems disinclined to shower any favors on them. When there was a great famine in Russia, Irish priests declared it was due to god's anger over the atheistic government of that country. Yet a few years later a famine hit Ireland, the most priest ridden and spook-ridden country in the world not even excluding Poland.

THE American workers should expect weird tales of hunger and distress coming from capitalist liars stationed around the borders of Soviet Russia. Everything that appears in the capitalist press concerning Russia should be treated with supreme suspicion. It should be considered guilty until proven innocent. England was flooded with lies about Russia until the British trade union delegation made its report. Since then, the paid liars of capitalism have had a hard time trying to make their lies stick. When the American workers send a delegation to Russia to see for themselves how conditions are in the workers' republic, and tell the story to their fellow workers on their return, the venal sheets of capitalism here, will have harder sledding putting their fables across.

THE great trouble with society today, says a Jesuit priest of New York, is the unholy freedom enjoyed by the young people. He did not use the word "enjoyed," but we believe it fits. The reverend father blames short skirts and other innovations used by women with the object of improving the general outlook for a good deal of the new fangled deviltry. Why the holy man should be grieved by such abbreviations is a mystery, we laymen being under the impression, that a priest sees only thru his spiritual eyes. Perhaps it is a case of avatism, or reversion to the good old days, when the priests not alone partook of the "cup that cheers"—they do that now—but partook of everything else that was going.

THE picture this Jesuit drew of America today will not be editorialized on in the Times. It reads too darned much like the picture of Moscow drawn by the Times correspondent. The priest says: "Our homes are ruined, fathers and mothers are not faithful each to each, and the dockets of our divorce courts are crowded, children are bandied about from one divorce to another or parked as automobiles are, parentless, in an institution." The cure for all this rottenness, he said was "self-sacrifice: a reaffirmation of the sanctity of life; a restressing of the dignity of human parentage; self-restraint." Which is all bosh.

ANOTHER catholic priest warned catholics against reading books placed on the index by the pope, with a view of safeguarding their morals. If catholic parents had the privilege of listening to Professor Joseph McCabe, ex-priest tell of the merry animadversions of the popes of Rome in other days they would think the Decameron or the old testament harmless books to place in the hands of their children. It is interesting to note that such writers as Nietzsche, Conan Doyle, Sir Oliver Lodge and H. G. Wells are on the index. With the exception of the first named, those writers fit very well in a spook gallery.

CONSIDERABLE criticism was levelled against Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan of New York, by catholics, for their attendance at last month's ceremonies at the cathedral of St. John the Divine, an episcopalian institution. For an ordinary catholic to attend such a service would be a one way ticket to hell. But a dignitary of the church said that Smith and Hylan were justified in doing something that would mean damnation for an ordinary catholic. It seems a Roman congregation in 1882 permitted taking liberties with the laws of the church where politics were involved. A Roman law! And yet Communists are accused of sedition for obeying decisions of the Communist International! Who takes orders from a foreign country?

INDICTED BOMBERS AIDED MACHINE TO EXPEL PROGRESSIVE BARBERS

IN answer to the charges made by W. S. Leidig, president of the Chicago Barbers' Union, in the International Labor News Service, that the bombers who were recently indicted for their activities on behalf of the Master Barbers' Association, were supporters of the progressives in the union, the International Progressive Barbers' Committee has issued a statement exposing the not as supporters of the progressives, but as the ardent adherents of the Leidig machine.

In the following statement the Progressive Barbers' Committee shows that a number of those indicted served on the investigation committee that tried a number of the leading progressives on charges made by Leidig and that the progressive at all times opposed collaboration with the Master Barbers' Association, showing that such collaboration might lead the union into the situation that now faces it:

THE name of the progressives has been drawn into the recent "bomb trust" exposures by a statement given the International Labor News Service by President W. L. Leidig of the Chicago Barbers' Union. He attempts to link up the bombers, who happen to be members of the union with the progressive group by calling them radicals.

The progressives wish it known that Joe Avanzi, Jack Davis, Louis D'Andrea, George Martin and George Mills have never been part of the progressive movement altho at times they have supported the progressives for reasons of their own. In the elections held in the union these men ran on a ticket of their own, with no particular platform. It has been the policy of the progressives to criticize this method.

Barbers Expel Progressives

"Both George Martin and George Mills were on the pay roll as local representatives of the International Journeymen Barbers' Union. The latter was chairman of the investigation committee which tried Joseph Giganti, A. D. Albright, Isadore Eltingon and their comrades and expelled them with the connivance of the international officials on the trumped up charges of Pres. Leidig and his brother officials.

"It is quite evident, therefore, to whom they were giving their support.

Against Collaboration

"The bombings of union shops, as the result of the boss barbers' activities, has been denounced many times by the progressives in the criticism of their officials' collaboration with the bosses. The progressives have warned the officials repeatedly that their collaboration policy would lead to the discrediting of the union. This has proven to be correct and if the officials wish to clear themselves before the rank and file of the Journeymen Barbers' Union, they must publicly sever their connection with the bosses' association.

The Amalgamated Elections

Elections of local officers in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union are to be held beginning tomorrow and in some localities continuing for three days. The joint board of the union, in announcing the addresses of polling places says:

> "Election period is an appropriate time for our members in which to manifest their interest in the welfare of our organization."

True! But the welfare of the organization hinges upon certain definite changes in the conduct of the organization. The workers in this union for years have been forced to accept the most shameful wage cuts under the euphonious slogan of "readjustments." Since the series of wage cuts thruout the country in 1922 that Sidney Hillman and his gang characterized as "great victories," the workers have been subjected to periodic "readjustments," to the advantage of the employer.

All reactionary officials conducting drives against the membership in the interest of the employers realize that the first essential is to silence exposure of their contemptible role by smashing the left wing and stifling criticism. Members have been expelled for voicing the elementary demands of the rank and file.

Sluggers and gangsters have been employed to break up meetings of loyal members of the union who endeavored to discuss the disgraceful servility of the officialdom to the bosses.

Indeed the election period is an appropriate time for members to manifest their interest in the welfare of the organization. The welfare of the Chicago organization can best be served by going to the polls and voting against wage cuts, against gangster terror, against expulsions, against suppression of opinion, and for an effective fighting organization by voting for Nathan Green whose program embodies the demands that can strengthen the union in its struggle against the employers.

Inciting Assassination

The presence in the capitols of the world of representatives of the Soviet Union enrages the reptile press so it launches a propaganda of assassination against Soviet diplomats. The Chicago Tribune of Sunday joins the clamor in an editorial describing Tchitcherin, foreign minister of the Soviet Union, as a modern Macbeth living sleepless nights for fear of the vengeance of some infuriated MacDuff whose family has fallen at the hands of the Bolsheviks. The difference is that instead of the modern MacDuff being an opposing military leader with the courage to stand face-to-face in open combat and with broad sword in his hand meet blow for blow, he is a snivelling, craven modern white guard conspirator who for capitalist bribes tried to throttle the workers' revolution in order that all Russia could be turned into a slaughter house. Instead of meeting his enemy in open battle, he sneaks in the dark and his weapon is not the sword but the assassin's bullet in the back.

The Chicago sheet visualizes Tchitcherin repating to himself the introspective dirge of Shakespeare's Macbeth:

> But let the frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer,
> Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep
> In the affliction of these terrible dreams
> That shake us nightly; better be with the dead,
> Whom we, to gain our peace, have sent to peace,
> Than on the torture of the mind to lie

This sort of rot may appeal to the Babbittry that gets its inspiration from the editorial columns of the Tribune, but we can assure them that the Soviet foreign minister, in case he quotes Macbeth in regard to any czarist or white guard who has perished in the flames of the revolution that "have lighted fools the way to dusty death," will simply observe that:

"After life's fitful fever; he sleeps well."

No Bolshevik is ever plagued by dead counter-revolutionists.

As to the story of Tchitcherin's sleepless nights because he fears the assassin's bullet at the hands of the exiled czarist and white guards, we may recall still other words of Macbeth:

> "It is a tale told by an idiot,
> Full of sound and fury,
> Signifying nothing!"

Sigman's Desperation

Morris Sigman, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, who is endeavoring by every means, fair or foul, to hold his control of the organization against the overwhelming majority of the membership, has finally arrived at the last refuge of the labor faker. When his own policy of terror failed he proceeded to a methodical program of provocation, indulging in deliberate and studied insults and slander against the left wing. Members of the union, in attendance at the convention, resented this and showed in no uncertain manner their contempt for such tactics, which further infuriated Sigman.

When S. Yanofsky, the discredited editor of the official organ Justice, was under fire from the left wing Sigman, in utter desperation, called on the Philadelphia police to stage an assault upon the visiting members. The police drove the convention delegates from the hall, beat up and arrested workers in the audience. Here is revealed in the most flagrant manner the role of Sigman and his machine as agents of the employers. Trade union officials who use the police to fight their battles deserve nothing but the undying execration of the membership.

The left wing in the International has proved in action that it is more competent to lead the union than the vile Sigman machine and in spite of Sigman's desperate methods to provoke a split will not countenance any such thing. It showed in the bitter struggle in New York that it would fight for the unity of the organization and it will prove to Sigman that his union-wrecking campaign in order to maintain his own rule will be decisively defeated.

Louis Lochner, in his book "Henry Ford, America's Don Quixote," revealed the futility of the voyage of the "peace ship" of ten years ago. Now Coolidge proposes an official delegation to Europe to establish a basis for permanent peace. Before another decade has passed Coolidge's mission, if he sends one, will be viewed with the same levity as Ford's.

LABOR IN THE FAR EAST (JAPAN) - -

By TANI

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Trade Union Educational League, having received a series of articles on labor in the Far East, is giving them to the American workers thru The DAILY WORKER. The series on China and the Chinese labor movement is just finished. Today we begin a short series on the Japanese movement. Japan itself an imperialist country, offers a different picture. These are written by Comrade Tani, representing the Japanese labor on the Executive Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions.

ARTICLE I.

MANY are already familiar with the recent split in the Japanese General Federation of Labor (Sodomei) and of the founding of a left wing center, the Japan Labor Union Council (Nihon Radokumia Hyogikai). The event was one of the most important happenings in the history of the Japanese labor movement and its further developments are worthy of close attention, for it marks the beginning of a new turn in the whole labor movement of the country.

Toward the end of last May, after the 14th Congress of the Japanese General Federation of Labor, 28 unions were summarily expelled from the federaiton, on the ground that they supported their Communist leaders against the wish of the bureaucratic central committee. This was the result of a heated fight between the Communist left wing minority in the federation and the reformistic right wingers, carried on for over a year.

The root of the split was in the historic development of the labor movement along the general development of Japanese capitalism. It was a miniature incident equal to the birth of the Profintern after the world war and the temporary collapse of the world labor movement. The same situation came to Japan in a national scale and five years later following the earthquake instead of the war.

IT is not at all surprising, then, that the newly-born center of the revolutionary labor movement of Japan is very much alike in spirit and in policy with the R. I. L. U. The similarity is due to the similarity of situation and not to any artificial control of the movement.

The synopsis of the declaration of the inaugural congress of the abovementioned Nihon Rodokumiaia Syogikai is given as follows:

"WORLD capitalism and the trade union movement—The International capital is on the way to collapse. The proletarian mass is rising against the reformism of bureaucratic laborites and their split policies.

"The present situation of Japanese capitalism—The capital in Japan is in deadlock. Thereupon, the capitalists and the government more and more attempt to exploit and to suppress the workers. In order to lower their standard of living and to enslave them.

"The principal policy of the labor movement in the situation.—Against the offensive of capital the force of the working class must be strengthened. In order to do so, the masses must be organized into trade unions on the basis of their immediate demands and must be trained to fight. Representing the immediate demands of the masses does not mean conciliation with capitalists.

"THE present status of the trade union movement and criticism of leadership.—Accompanying the offensive of capital, the difficulty of maintaining the status of the workers, not to speak of its improvement, considering the existing strength of the trade unions, has increased. At the same time the capitalists attempt to defeat the trade union movement by corruption. Bureaucratic leaders have submitted themselves to temptation. But in the present deadlock situation the working class gains nothing thru collaboration with capitalists. Its betterment may only be expected thru constant, aggressive struggling.

"Our line of action:

"1. Atracting the working masses to the trade unions.

"2. Active fight for the betterment of the working class.

"3. Organizing women workers.

"4. Utilization of reformistic measures.

"5. Organizing and training the union members on the basis of the class struggle.

"6. Educational propaganda on the basis of the class struggle.

"7. Active participation of all union members in the trade union movement.

"8. Local, national and industrial unification of trade unions.

"9. Co-operation with peasant unions.

"10. Promotion of the political movement.

"11. International unity of labor."

SUCH is the outline of the ideology of the left wing labor in Japan. The revolutionary workers of Japan seem to be not so blind to the general world situation nor to the immediate situation close around them. A little explanation on the points enumerated as the line of action may further prove their correct thinking.

As to point 3, they say: "Owing to the specific character of the industrial life of Japan, women comprise a large part of the Japanese working class, the trade union movement, therefore, must pay a particular attention to the problems of female workers. . ."

Of point 4, they state: "Reformistic measures and machineries may be actively utilized only from the ground of class struggle. While they may be resorted to for the benefit of the working class, their true character should constantly be unmasked before the eyes of the working masses."

Of co-operation with peasants they declare: "that the non-propertied elements comprise a majority among the agrarian population is a feature of the Japanese capitalistic society. Unity and co-operation between city workers and village workers is a fundamental condition for the success of revolutionary movement. The trade union movement should, therefore, always be in close co-operation in a united front with peasant movement.

"ALL other non-propertied elements and their movements are also important factors in the proletarian army." They declare touching point 10, "The proletarian party is to unite all these elements and thereby to enlarge the front of the class struggle on the political field. Therefore, the trade union movement is by duty bound to co-operate with the non-propertied elements outside and should actively strive for the realization of the proletarian party."

And finally they declare: "The trade union movement is a movement based on internationalism. 'Workers of the world, unite!' the slogan, must be turned into deeds at every opportunity. The Japanese trade union movement must, on the one hand, unite with the movements in China, Korea and other neighborig countries, and, on the other hand, must strive for the realization of the genuine unity of international labor."

(To be continued in next issue.)

Factory Sport Organizations

By FRITZ REUSSNER

"If we mean to carry on a sensible labor policy and to have peace with labor, the state and the employers should proceed systematically to establish sports grounds and to support all sport enterprises. This is an investment which will yield high interest." Karl Diem, general secretary of the German Reich Physical Culture Committee ("Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung").

THE bourgeoisie uses every possible means to bring the proletarian class into complete spiritual and economic subjection. If formerly we said that the best opportunities of the bourgeoisie were the schools, the church and military service, we can today add also sport.

Sport has become an important feature in the general life of the people. Millions of persons take an active part in sports. From the political-economical standpoint too, sport is far from being unimportant. The workers in particular are taking up gymnastics and sports, namely, physical culture.

With its keen instinct the bourgeoisie has long felt that here is a field of great possibilities for winning over the masses, and is therefore giving liberal financial support to bourgeois gymnastic and sports organizations. It is generally said: "Sport is a neutral factor and has nothing to do with politics and class questions." This is just to lure the workers into the bourgeois organizations. The million figures showing the membership of bourgeois gymnastic and sport organizations show that many workers have allowed themselves to be misled by this bourgeois swindle and have joined the organizations of our class enemies.

The capitalists are not satisfied with the fact that the workers are mostly organized in bourgeois gymnastic and sport organizations. They want to bring the workers still more under their control and to bind them to their respective factories. Capitalists long to control the leisure of the workers. Moreover they are anxious to form in the factory a nucleus of righ-minded workers in sympathy with the "benevolent" employer, in order to establish "class co-operation." Among other institutions they also form factory sports clubs.

These clubs are mostly formed in the big industrial enterprises. The big industrialists are actuated by purely capitalist considerations. The first and foremost of these considerations is to divert the attention of the workers' from political and trade union life. The second consideration is the recognition that a healthy and physically trained worker is a better producer, and the third consideration is that their own sport grounds are a good investment of surplus capital and "this investment yields high interest." Increased productivity of labor means bigger profits.

Factory sport organizations are already fairly widespread. They are an international phenomenon, particularly developed in America, France, Italy, Great Britain and Germany. We get a good insight into factory sport organizations from an article of a bourgeois gymnastic instructor. This article contains the following statement:

"Various big industrial enterprises have complied with the wishes of their manual and office workers and have given sympathetic support to their endeavours on behalf of sports and gymnastics. For instance, Krupps in Essen have built an up-to-date swimming bath, two first-class gymnastic halls and a big sports ground. Berliners are familiar with the magnificent sports grounds of the Siemens workers which consist of a sport field with a concrete race-course and stand for spectators, dressing rooms which can be heated, bath rooms with douches for men and women, tennis courts, several fields for games and a boat house. The grounds of Schwartzkopf in Wildau consist of a boat house, a swimming bath, a gymnastic hall, a football field. Those of Borsig, Tegel, consist of two football fields, a hockey ground, a gymnastic hall, and a swimming bath. There are also the sport grounds of the Werner, Bamag and Osram companies, and many others. With this support it has been possible to form good and capable sport organizations within the works: The Krupp Gymnastics Society, the Siemns Sports League, etc.

A conference of superintendents of technical schools held in May 1924 in Berlin, resulted in the formation of a league to which the technical schools of the following firms are affiliated: A. E. G., Reinickendorf, A. E. G., Kabelwerk Oberspree, Borsig, Siemens, Lowe, Werner, Stock, Zwietusch, Mix & Genest, Bergmann, Knorrbremse and Daimler.

The league was formed with the object of GIVING AN OPPORTUNITY TO ALL APPRENTICES, THAT IS TO SAY ALSO TO THOSE WHO HAVE ALREADY DEFINITE POLITICAL VIEWS, TO GO IN FOR SPORT ON A PERFECTLY NEUTRAL BASIS." (Emphasis mine.—F. R.)

One can see by this that the capitalist gentry do not mind spending something in connection with the matter. They hasten to explain the object, namely to give also apprentices who have already definite political views an opportunity to go in for sports on a "perfectly neutral basis." To put it bluntly this means that their attention is to be diverted from political and trade union questions.

An extract from the list of participators from factory sport organizations in the Berlin Gymnastic and Sports week, shows the extension of the organization in the various enterprises. In this list there were: the German Reichs, Post, the Dresdner Bank, the Reichshauptbank, Osram, Daimler Motor Company, Schultheiss Patzenhof Brewery, Berlin Handelsgesellschaft, the Bank of the Berliner Kassenverein, etc.

One could multiply these examples from various countries. For instance, an electrical company in Chicago has a factory sport league with over 10,000 members, all of whom are employed in the enterprise. The Renauld works in Paris and other Paris works have strong sport leagues, and the same may be said of motor car and other factories in Italy.

The firms are endeavoring to give their factory sport leagues high qualifications and use this at the same time as an advertisement. In order to attract highly qualified sportsmen they are offered good positions and higher salaries. By various favours and privileges the workers in these factory sport organizations are corrupted and made willing tools of the employers.

It is obvious that the privileged members of these factory sport clubs and leagues become strikebreakers and informers. They will mostly keep at a distance from trade union and political organizations. They will be in fact hostile to the endeavours of the workers. Through the sport organizations employers will transplant the spirit of class co-operation to the factories.

Trade unions and political organizations must realize these facts and must therefore pay special attention to factory sport organizations. The slogan must be to place the factory sports club under the sole control of the workers and to affiliate it to the central workers sports federations, to win the members of factory sports clubs for the trade union and political movement. In this connection the factory nuclei of the Communist Party and the Young Communist League have still a big task before them.

Russian Workers Score Rakosi Court-Martial

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail)—The placing of Rakosi and his comrades before an extraordinary court despite the tremendous volume of protest from the international working class without distinction of political opinion, caused the greatest indignation in all circles in the Soviet Union.

The Pravda points out that the murder in Budapest is being carried on against accused, who have been refused every possibility of legal defense, which is unusual even for the reactionary Hungarian understanding of law. The public prosecutor seems to be aware how absurd the accusations are and for this reason the accused were refused permission to see the material upon which they were being charged. The Pravda asks whether the public prosecutor does or does not consciously lie when he declares that Rakosi was sent to Hungary on the orders of a foreign power for the purpose of bringing about the fall of the state.

Does the prosecutor really believe that a revolution can be made on the order of a foreign state? Does the public prosecutor himself believe in this slander?

Naturally Rakosi and his comrades and the whole of the Hungarian working class are dissatisfied with the present social order in Hungary, but the overthrow of this order can only be the work of the whole working class in Hungary and not the work of individuals and to accuse these of insurrection is the work of a maniac. But the public prosecutor is not in the least interested in the innocence or guilt of Rakosi, the only interest is to settle him as quickly as possible. The whole international proletariat must raise its voice in angry protest against the shameful justice comedy in Budapest. All honest proletarians must take Rakosi and his comrades under their protection! The maniacal Hungarian bandits must be brot to a stop!

The Labor Defender Appears

THE Labor Defender is a new magazine of which the first number has just appeared published by the International Labor Defense, edited by T. J. O'Flaherty. This paper is a fresh and vigorous presentation of the ideas of a movement which can shake the world; the organization of millions of workers for the simple demand that the champions of the labor movement shall not be butchered and imprisoned by the capitalist governments of the world.

We remember how the prosecution of William D. Haywood, of the Western Federation of Miners, in 1907, on the charge of murder of the governor of Idaho, opened the eyes of hundreds of thousands of workers. The militant defense of Haywood gave a powerful impetus to the crystalizing of the class psychology of the workers of this country into something more definitely approaching a class ideology. Many thousands of workers can trace their first awakening to the realities and the ideals of their class thru the thinking that was induced by the case and applied to the experiences of the struggle for existence in the capitalist world.

Before that the Debs case had taken its dramatic place in history—and still earlier, the terrible case of the Haymarket martyrs had brought the bloody launching of the eight-hour movement. In more recent years the Schmidt and Kaplan and McNamara cases tore across the capitalist skies as a warning to the parasitic class that all was not permanent in the world of silks and satins and rags. Then, nine years ago, the frame-up of Tom Mooney and Warren Billings reached around the globe from the scene of a little streetcar strike in San Francisco and played even its own small part in the Russian revolution's early days and in the affairs of the world war. The almost incredible facts of the mass trials of the I.W.W. and the condemnation of Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair were piled upon it.

Yet the famous labor cases which have gripped the vitals of the working class heretofore, now appear as only a fragmentary part of the tremendous mass of prosecutions that are now going on all over the world in these sharper times of the last period of capitalism and of the dawn of the proletarian revolution. Every one of a thousand terrible dramas now being played in every country in the world has the same power to move and educate the working class. But actually there has been too much material for the purpose—too many dramas playing at once, to be able to command the same concentrated attention. The very volume of the battle-ground brot deafness to the battles. There was need of a powerful hand to reach out and gather and organize the material and to present the drama of "the thousand Mooney cases" in one all-powerful presentation.

It seems that the International Labor Defense will succeed in organizing and presenting to the workers this big drama on its world scale. It succeeds in reminding us again that the fighters are still in, and that new fighters are legion. The presentation in the first number of the Labor Defender gives something of the flavor of the old single dramas—but with the new flavor of mass struggle. At the same time the organization behind it serves to do the practical work of gathering material aid for those who are being mangled and tortured behind the bars.

THE BACKBONE OF THE SOVIET UNION

It is workers and peasants such as these that the British, Norwegian, French, Czecho-Slovak, Hungarian, nad Japanese delegations to the Union of Soviet Republics beheld running the affairs of the Soviets and constitute the real backbone of the Soviets.

On the side is a picture of a Russian working woman. Women participate in all affairs of the Soviet Union on an equality with the men.

Due to the energetic support of workers such as these Russian industry and agriculture have been steadily climbing upward until in some fields it has surpassed the pre-war peak.

The treaty that was drawn up by the capitalist powers at Locarno is aimed at the government which these workers and farmers have been able to form and maintain thru many bitter years of civil war, famine, intervention and blockade. The duty of all workers in other lands is to support these workers against the designs of the capitalists.

CUBAN RULERS SAY MELLA MUST DIE

SENATOR BORAH'S DEMAND FOR RECOGNITION OF SOVIET UNION AROUSES INTEREST IN CAPITOL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Senate resolution No. 74, which was introduced by Senator Borah and reads: "Resolved, that the senate of the United States favors the recognition of the present Soviet government in Russia," is the subject of much comment among members of both houses of congress.

Borah, in the strategic position of chairman of the foreign relations committee, influences groups in both houses when he speaks on international affairs, and it is believed that when this resolution, which was laid on the table at the request of Borah to be taken up later, finally comes before the senate there will ensue one of the greatest debates of the present session.

Sentiment Growing.

In spite of the refusal of the administration to reverse its stand on recognition of Russia, there is ample evidence that sentiment thruout the whole country is increasing in favor of recognition. Manufacturers realize that Russia offers a splendid market for their commodities and they are demanding recognition in order to resume normal relations with Russia.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

A CONSIDERABLE store of speculative food is furnished to European diplomatic circles in the visit to France of George Tchitcherin, Soviet foreign minister. Comrade Tchitcherin is holding conversations with the French premier and according to reports, the discordant note is missing. It would not be surprising if Britain throws a fishy eye across the channel while the Soviet envoy and Briand are confabbing. Britain framed the Locarno pact to isolate Soviet Russia, but the last word has not yet been said and France as well as Germany may not be so happy playing the role of serfs to British and American capitalism, as the speeches of Briand and Luther would lead one to suppose.

* * *

ONE quarter of a page of last Sunday's Chicago Tribune was devoted to news of Soviet Russia. Alongside of the column which carried the news of the pourparlers between Paris and Moscow there was story of a banquet given to Soviet missions in America by some of the biggest bankers in this land of big bankers. Among those present were the vice-president of the Chase National Bank and our old reliable gusher, Charles Schwab, the shrinking violet who shed tears a few years ago when he was charged with spending a quarter of a million dollars a month in expenses while working for the government for one dollar a year.

* * *

THE bankers and manufacturers gathered together in New York to honor the Soviet economic ambassadors and sup with them, never said a word about the "dirty trick" the Russian workers and peasants pulled off on the czar when they deposited him under a ton of granite. They did not shed tears over the countless dukes, grand dukes and dukes not so grand who now flop around in restaurant kitchens washing dishes and making themselves generally useful. What they

TURKS DEFY LEAGUE ON IRAK FIGHT

British Prepare Naval Attack on Turkey

(Special to The Daily Worker)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 14.—Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish foreign minister, announced last night that the Turkish delegation would have nothing more to do with the council of the league of nations as far as the Mosul dispute is concerned. They will not participate further in such deliberations and have stated their opposition to Britain and their resentment against the league in no uncertain terms.

The Turks were infuriated at the news from London to the effect that the British government was preparing for a swift naval attack upon the Dardanelles. This is interpreted as an attempt to capture and hold Constantinople, long an objective of Great Britain.

Will Resist Britain.

In spite of British naval preparations and the threat of wholesale air bombings against their country, the Turks declare they are prepared to resist by force of arms if necessary the efforts of Britain to seize the disputed territory in Irak.

The Turkish statesmen point out that most of the mandates areas in the middle east really belong to them and were forcibly annexed by the various countries holding league mandates after the war. Even with a so-called unanimous decision on the boundary dispute, which theoretically would array all Europe against Turkey they are unyielding as they know that the fierce antagonism that is now smouldering will force new alignments at the outbreak of a European war, and that it is unlikely that either Italy or France will engage in a war against Turkey on the side of Britain.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Samuel A. Browne, Negro letter carrier, has filed a suit with the county clerk of Richmond for $100,000 against nine of his neighbors, who have constantly persecuted him in an effort to force him out of the Castleton Hill district where he purchased a home.
